NEW-HAMPSHIRE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Proceedings of the House of Representatives of the Colony of NEW-HAMPSHIRE, who convened at EXETER, as Delegates from the several Towns, Parishes, and places in said Colony, on the 21st day of DECEMBER, A. D. 1775, and continued a Congress until the 5th day of JANUARY, A. D. 1776, and then (by leave of the honourable the Continental Congress) resolved themselves into a House of Representatives or Assembly for the Colony of NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

"In Congress, Friday, November 3, 1775.

"The Congress taking into consideration the Report of the Committee on the New-Hampshire Instructions:

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the Provincial Convention of New-Hampshire to call a full and free Representation of the People; and that the Representatives, if they think it necessary, establish such a form of Government as, in their judgment, will best produce the happiness of the People, and most effectually secure peace and good order in the Province during the continuance of the present dispute between Great Britain and the Colonies.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.

"By order of Congress:

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"NOAH EMERY, Deputy Secretary."

In Congress, at Exeter, January 5, 1776.

Voted, That this Congress take up Civil Government for this Colony, in manner and form following, viz:

We, the Members of the Congress of New-Hampshire, chosen and appointed by the free suffrages of the People of said Colony, and authorized and empowered by them to meet together and use such means and pursue such measures as we should judge best for the publick good; and in particular, to establish some form of Government, provided that measure should be recommended by the Continental Congress; and, a recommendation to that purpose having been transmitted to us from the said Congress, have taken into our serious consideration the unhappy circumstances into which this Colony is involved, by means of many and grievous and oppressive Acts of the British Government, depriving us of our natural and constitutional rights and privileges; to enforce obedience to which Acts, a powerful Fleet and Army have been sent into this country by the Ministry of Great Britain, who have exercised a cruel and wanton abuse of their power, in destroying the lives and property of the Colonists in many places with fire and sword; taking the ships and lading from many of the honest and industrious inhabitants of this Colony employed in commerce agreeable to the laws and customs a long time used here.

The sudden and abrupt departure of his Excellency John Wentworth, Esq., our Governour, and several of the Council, leaving us destitute of legislation; and no Executive Courts being open to punish criminal offenders, whereby the lives and property of the honest people of this Colony are liable to the machinations and evil designs of wicked men: Therefore, for the preservation of peace and good order, and for the securities of the lives and property of the inhabitants of this Colony, we consider ourselves reduced to the necessity of establishing a form of Government, to continue during the present unhappy and unnatural contest with Great Britain; protesting and declaring that we never sought to throw off our dependance upon Great Britain, but felt ourselves happy under her protection, while we could enjoy our constitutional rights and privileges; and that we shall rejoice if such a reconciliation between us and our Parent State can be effected as shall be approved by the Continental Congress, in whose prudence and wisdom we confide.

Accordingly, pursuant to the trust reposed in us, we do resolve that this Congress assume the name, power, and authority of a House of Representatives, or Assembly, for the Colony of New-Hampshire; and that said House then proceed to choose twelve persons, being reputable freeholders and inhabitants within this Colony, in the following manner, viz: Five in the County of Rockingham, two in the County of Strafford, two in the County of Hillsborough, two in the County of Cheshire, and one in the County of Grafton, to be a distinct and separate branch of the Legislature, by the name of a Council for this Colony; to continue as such until the third Wednesday in December next; and seven of whom to be a quorum to do business.

That such Council appoint their President; and, in his absence, that the senior Counsellor preside.

That a Secretary be appointed by both branches, who may be a Counsellor, or otherwise, as they shall choose.

That no Act or Resolve shall be valid and put into execution, unless agreed to and passed by both branches of the Legislature.

That all publick officers for the said Colony, and each County, for the current year, be appointed by the Council and Assembly, except the several Clerks of the Executive Courts, who shall be appointed by the Justices of the respective Courts.

That all Bills, Resolves, or Notes, for raising, levying, or collecting Money, originate in the House of Representatives.

That, at any session of the Council and Assembly, neither branch shall adjourn for any longer time than from Saturday till the next Monday without consent of the other.

And be it further Resolved, That if the present unhappy dispute with Great Britain should continue longer than this present year, and the Continental Congress give no instruction or direction to the contrary, the Council be chosen by the people, of each respective County, in such manner as the Council and House of Representatives shall order.

That General and Field-Officers of the Militia, on any vacancy, be appointed by the two Houses; and all inferior officers be chosen by the respective Companies.

That all Officers of the Army be appointed by the two Houses, except they should direct otherwise in the case of any emergency.

That all Civil Officers for the Colony, and for each County, be appointed, and the time of their continuance in office be determined, by the two Houses; except Clerks of Courts, and County Treasurers, and Recorders of Deeds.

That a Treasurer and Recorder of Deeds for each County be annually chosen by the people of each County, respectively: the votes for such officers to be returned to the respective Courts of General Sessions of the Peace in the County, there to be ascertained as the Council and Assembly shall hereafter direct.

That Precepts, in the name of the Council and Assembly, signed by the President and Speaker of the House of Representatives, shall issue annually, at or before the first day of November, for the choice of a Council and House of Representatives, to be returned by the third Wednesday in December then next ensuing, in such manner as the Council and Assembly shall hereafter prescribe.

Upon reading the Petition of the Agents for the Town of Newtown against Joseph Bartlett, Esq., (being present before the House,) Ordered, That the parties be heard thereon before this House on the 18th day of January current, if the Assembly be then sitting; and if not, then on the second day of their sitting after that time.

A copy of an anonymous Letter was brought into the House by one of the Members, and ordered to be read, (by the Speaker;) whereupon the Clerk of the House read the same, and it is as follows:

"Portsmouth, January 11, 1776.

"DEAR SIR: As the Committee chosen yesterday by this town, are just a going to Exeter with a Petition and Remonstrance to the Congress against their proceedings, I thought I would just inform you of it; for I think it gives a silly cast to all their doings. I hope they will not comply with their request. The objection was first started in the Committee at the work-house, the night before last, and the town-meeting called yesterday; the meeting was very thin—not above forty or fifty persons in it. Every one in the meeting voted for it, though I believe they were actuated by different motives. They have voted to send circular letters to all the towns, that they may remonstrate likewise. It was proposed, I think, by designing men, on purpose to make a division in the Colony, and, I believe, will go near to effect it, unless the wisdom of the Congress prevents it. I am, &c., VERITAS."

Read a Petition from sundry Members of this House, and also a Remonstrance or Petition of the Town of Portsmouth.

The House examined several Gentlemen lately from London, about the state of affairs there concerning America.

Voted, That the Petition from the Town of Portsmouth lay for consideration.

Friday, January 12, 1776.

Met according to adjournment.

Voted, That Captain John George Turner's Company of Artillery be paid out of the Treasury the sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds, towards their wages in the service of this Colony, and that the President of the Council give his warrant on the Treasurer for the same.

Adjourned till half-past two o'clock, P. M.

Met according to adjournment.

Voted, That Timothy Walker and William Parker, Esqs., be a Committee to join with the Secretary, by leave of the honourable Board, to prepare and correct the plan or form of Government for this Colony, and fit it for the press.

Captain Long and Mr. Sherburne brought in the following Dissent and Protest; which was read, and is as follows, viz:

"We, the subscribers, chosen by the People of several Towns in the Colony of New-Hampshire, to represent them in the Congress of said Colony, held at Exeter, on the 21st day of December, 1775, beg leave to enter our dissent to,

and protest against, the present plan of taking up Government, for the following reasons: First. That the vote of the Continental Congress countenancing the same, was obtained by the unwearied importunity (both within door and without) of our Delegates there, as appears by their letter. Second. That the said vote does not appear to have been unanimous, but we have reason to think very otherwise. Third. Because the Colonies of New-York and Virginia—which are in similar circumstances with us, are much larger, and more opulent, and, we presume, much wiser, (to whom we would pay all due deference,)—have not attempted any thing of the kind, nor, as we can learn, ever desired it. Fourth. Because we have no ground on which to pretend to make a Council, as our neighbours of the Massachusetts, who act by Charter never vacated on any legal trial. Fifth. Because it appears assuming, for so small and inconsiderable a Colony, to take the lead in a matter of so great importance. Sixth. Because our constituents never expected us to make a new form of Government, but only to set the Judicial and Executive wheels in motion. Seventh. Because the Congress, as such, could have done what was necessary, and their power could not be enlarged by any act of their own. Eighth. Because the expense of the Colony is greatly augmented thereby. Ninth. Because it appears to us too much like setting up an Independency on the mother country.

“Colony of New-Hampshire.

“At a Town-Meeting held at Portsmouth, this 12th day of January, 1776, Voted unanimously, That Ammi B. Cutter, Esq., George King, Esquire, and Captain George Wentworth, be a Committee to write a Letter to the Congress, requesting to be favoured with the original of an anonymous Letter read in Congress this day.

“The said Committee accordingly returned with the following draft; which was voted to be forthwith sent to the Congress, and is as follows:

“Portsmouth, January 12, 1776.

“To the Honourable Congress at EXETER:

“MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: The Committee appointed to prefer the Petition of this Town, of the 10th instant, having acquainted us that, after they had preferred the same, and had retired, they were informed that a letter, subscribed Veritas, was read before your Honours, purporting that it was voted at a very thin meeting, with other assertions utterly false, scandalous, and derogatory to the honour of the town; it is our duty to acquaint your Honours, that there were upwards of two hundred persons present, who unanimously voted therefor; and we earnestly request that your Honours will indulge us with a sight of the original letter, of which that was a copy, in order that the author who has been guilty of this scandalous falsehood, may receive the reward of his just demerit.”

“A true copy. Attest:

The Petition of the principal Inhabitants of Southampton, relating to the Estates of Elijah Brown and Moses Brown, praying that this House would make some effectual act, or lay some bar, so that they may not squander away their Estates without the knowledge of the town, &c., being read, Ordered, That it lay for further consideration.

The Committee to draw a plan for providing Fire-Arms for a Colony stock, report as follows, viz:

That for every good Fire-Arm manufactured in this Colony, made after the following manner, viz: A barrel three feet nine inches long, to carry an ounce ball, a good bayonet with blade eighteen inches long, iron ramrod, with a spring to retain the same, the maker's name engraved on the lock, which shall be delivered at Exeter, to Nicholas Gilman, Esq., Receiver-General, on or before the 1st of May next, the owner of such fire-arms receive three pounds for each, of said Receiver-General, after having tried said gun in the presence of the said Receiver-General with four inches and a half of powder, well wadded, at the owner's own risk. And that there be appointed one good man, well approved, in each County, to receive any fire-arms so made in said County, on the same condition, (as before-mentioned for the Receiver-General to receive them,) and the persons so appointed to receive the money for the number of guns so delivered.

Which Report being read and considered,

Voted, That the same be received and established as a resolve of this House.

And, Voted, That Colonel Evans, for the County of Strafford; Samuel Emerson, for the County of Grafton; Major John Bellows, for the County of Cheshire; and Deacon Nahum Baldwin, for the County of Hillsborough, be Receivers of Fire-Arms, according to the aforesaid Resolve.

The Memorial and Remonstrance of the Freeholders of the Town of Portsmouth, being brought into the House, was read, and is as follows:

“Colony of New-Hampshire, Portsmouth, January 10, 1776.

“To the Honourable body now sitting at EXETER, in and for said Colony:

“The Memorial and Remonstrance of the Freeholders, and other Inhabitants of the Town of Portsmouth, in legal town-meeting convened, humbly shews:

“That your Memorialists are greatly alarmed by the information of their Delegates, that they, together with other Delegates of the several towns in said Colony, were about to dissolve their existence as a Congress, and assume that of a House of Representatives, and to proceed to an election of twelve Counsellors, who are to act as another branch of legislation, for the future government of this Colony; which measure your Memorialists, with all decency, tenderness, and respect, beg leave to remonstrate against, for the following weighty reasons:

“First. As we are of opinion that the inhabitants of the Colony do not generally approve of this measure, we could therefore have wished to have had the minds of the people fully taken on such a momentous concernment, and to have known the plan before it was adopted and carried into execution, which is their inherent right.

“Secondly. We humbly conceive that such a measure is an open declaration of independency, which we can by no means countenance, until we shall know the sentiments of the British nation in general. We have hitherto viewed the controversy as with the Ministry and Parliament only; and our enemies are styled the Ministerial Army and Navy, and we have considered them as acting contrary to the voice of the nation. We have just received certain advices that our friends in Great Britain are at this time exerting themselves, and uniting in their petitions for a redress of our grievances, and, in all probability, will make a powerful diversion in our favour, and will finally prevail, if it is once fully believed that we are not aiming at independency. But when they perceive we are setting up new forms of Government, they will be exasperated against us; and, losing sight of their former friendship and affection, will be filled with resentment, and charge us with duplicity.

“Thirdly. We have the highest opinion of the upright disposition of the Congress, and that what they have done is intended for the general good; but at the same time we must beg leave to suggest our apprehensions that this measure will have a tendency to disunite us, which is a most alarming consideration, as being a circumstance which we are well informed our enemies greatly expect, and would be rejoiced to hear of. We would be cautious of prolixity in addressing your Honours, but must beg leave to repeat that the Ministry, among other deceptions, have asserted that the rebellious war (as they term it) now levied, is become more general, and is manifestly carried on for the purpose of establishing an independency. This our friends in Great Britain utterly deny. While we are governed by a Congress, they have a right so to do, because necessity compels us to the measure; but they will certainly make a very wide distinction between necessity and what will be called usurpation, the consequences of which deserve due weight.

We therefore pray that the assumption of Government may at least be suspended for the present, and that some regulation may be adopted for the preservation of property, under such restrictions as the Congress in their wisdom shall think proper. And your Memorialists as in duty bound shall ever pray. A true copy. Attest:

"JOHN PENHALLOW, Town Clerk."

"Colony of New-Hampshire, in Council, January 19, 1776.

"Upon reading the Letters from his Excellency General Washington and General Sullivan, requesting Recruits from the Continental Army, the Board are of opinion that the requisition ought speedily to be attended to, and would therefore recommend a vote to be passed for the raising one regiment out of our Militia now in the service; and that a Committee of the honourable House be appointed to join with a Committee of the Board, and fully authorized to carry the same into execution.

"Voted, That the foregoing be sent to the honourable House.

"Attest: E. THOMPSON, Secretary."

General Washington's Letter is as follows:

"Cambridge, January 16, 1776.

"SIR: The alarming and almost defenceless state of our lines, occasioned by the slow progress in raising recruits for the new Army, and the departure of a great number of the Militia, which had been called in for their support till the 15th instant, rendered it necessary for me to summon the General Officers in Council, to determine on proper means to be adopted for their preservation. For this purpose, they met at Head-Quarters yesterday and to-day, and finding that it was with the utmost difficulty and persuasion that such of the latter as are now here have been prevailed upon to continue till the last of the month, (after which there is not the remotest probability of their staying a moment,) they have judged it expedient, and absolutely necessary, that thirteen regiments should be forthwith raised, equal to those of the new establishment, to be officered according to the usual mode of their respective Governments, which are to repair to this camp by the last instant, if possible, to be in readiness to act in such manner, till the 1st of April, as circumstances may require. Of this number, they apprehend the Massachusetts should furnish seven, Connecticut four, and your Government two, being agreeable to the proportion settled by Congress.

"In order that each regiment may consist of a proper number of officers and men, I have enclosed you a list for their regulation, and of the Continental pay. I must earnestly solicit your attention and regard to arms, ammunition, blankets, kettles, and clothing, that they may come as well provided with these necessaries as possible, particularly the first, as, from the amazing deficiency here, I shall not have it in my power to supply them. G WASHINGTON.

"Hon. Matthew Thornton, Esq."

Another Letter from his Excellency General Washington.

"Cambridge, January 21, 1776.

"SIR: In the hurry of my last despatches to you, of the 19th instant, I forgot to intimate that, for the encouragement of the regiment destined for Canada, a month's advance pay will be allowed officers and soldiers by me, in behalf of the Congress; at the same time, I think it but right that you should be apprized of the intention of this Government to allow their regiment another month's pay, to enable the men to provide for so long and fatiguing a march, and, in the mean time, leave something for their families to subsist upon during their absence. I have no doubt but that this last advance will be pleasing enough to Congress, and that the money will be speedily refunded; but as I have no authority to direct it, and would not appear, by any act of mine, to put the three regiments for Canada upon a different footing than those who have been raising for this Army, I only give you a hint of the intention of this Government, that, if you think proper, the regiment from your Colony may be placed upon the same footing, as I know all kind of distinctions are considered by troops with an evil and jealous eye. Such necessaries as are absolutely requisite for the march of this regiment you will please have provided, upon the best terms you can, and regular accounts, with vouchers thereof, kept, that payment may be made. The importance of despatch will, I am persuaded, appear in so urgent a light to you, that I need add nothing on this head, but shall be glad to hear what progress you make in the business.

"Being with the sincerest regard and esteem, sir, your most obedient humble servant, G. WASHINGTON."

To the Honourable Congress of the UNITED COLONIES of NORTH AMERICA.

Humbly sheweth the Council and Assembly of the Colony of NEW-HAMPSHIRE:

That by reason of their vicinity to the Town of Boston, and the enemy's ships-of-war often hovering round their coast and harbour, they have been kept, for many months past, in perpetual alarm; have been at a very great expense in preparing to defend themselves, at least thirty thousand pounds, lawful money, in erecting batteries, mounting cannon, and supporting soldiers, having had fourteen hundred men under pay at one time, exclusive of two hundred matrosses to guard the metropolis, and expect, the ensuing spring, to be under the necessity of raising a much larger number; and as you have been pleased to order a number of battalions of men to be raised, to guard other Colonies, and as this is by far the poorest Colony on the Continent, according to the number of inhabitants, we most humbly pray your Honours would order such a number of men to be raised and stationed at Portsmouth, and, in case of any emergency, to assist our neighbour Colonies, as you in your wisdom shall see fit.

The House adjourned to the first Wednesday in March next, to meet then at the Town-House in Exeter; at three of the clock, afternoon.

A List of the Members returned as Delegates from the several Towns and places in the Colony of NEW-HAMPSHIRE, to sit in Congress, began and held at EXETER, on the twenty-first day of DECEMBER, A. D. 1775, and continued as a Congress until the eighth day of JANUARY, 1776, when the Council separated from the House, and then being, according to the plan of Government, two distinct branches of the Legislature, formed into a General Court.

Voted, That John McClary, Esq., Doctor Dearborn, and Captain Moulton, be a Committee of this House, to join a Committee of the honourable Board, to confer upon the expediency of sending some part of the Militia to Portsmouth and Newcastle, immediately, for the defence of Piscataqua Harbour, and places adjacent.

Voted, That the balance of the Account of the Committee of Durham for Fire-Rafts, amounting to six Pounds one Shilling and three Pence, be allowed and paid out of the Treasury, and that the President of the Council give order of payment thereof accordingly.

Voted, That the Hon. Meshech Weare, Esq., Ebenezer Thompson, Esq., and Nathaniel Folsom, Esq., of the Council, the Hon. Philips White, Esq., Pierce Long, John Dudley, Josiah Moulton, Stephen Evans, and Robert Wilson, Esquires, of the Assembly, be, and hereby are, appointed a Committee of Safety for this Colony, to act in the recess of the General Court, with the same powers and authority as any former Committee of Safety of this Colony have had; and also to convene the Council and Assembly upon any emergency, in the time of their recess. That any five of them be a quorum to do business; that they render an account of their doings to this House the first week of their next session; and that they have eight shillings per day for their attendance on the business, paying their own expenses.

The Petition of Rebecca Felton, concerning the Will of her late husband, William Felton, being read, Voted, That the Petitioner be heard thereon, on the second Thursday of the next sitting of this Assembly.

Voted, To choose a Committee of three Members of this House, to join a Committee of the honourable Board, to confer together upon the Accounts of the late Committee of Safety, and report to this House as soon as may be; and that Captain Prentice, Dr. Nichols, and Deacon Knowles, be the Committee for that purpose.

Which Committee, being joined by a Committee of the honourable Board, made report as follows, viz:

That they are of opinion that the expenses of the said Committee of Safety be paid out of the publick money, and recommend that each of them be paid five shillings per diem wages.

WYSEMAN CLAGETT, Chairman.

Whereas there are sundry Towns in the Colony, settled these few years, both within the lines of what is called Mason's Patent, and under grants from the Crown, which have not the benefit of Incorporation, and thereby unable to choose proper Officers to assess and collect the Colony Taxes,

It is hereby Resolved, That, upon application of three of the Freeholders of said Town to the Selectmen of the adjoining Town, (if incorporated,) otherwise to the Selectmen of the nearest Town incorporated, they (the Selectmen) are authorized, and hereby required, to undertake and act for such Town, and to take Inventories of Estates, make Rates, and issue Warrants, to such or either of the Freeholders of said Town as they may think suitable persons; to levy, collect, and receive the said Rates and Taxes, (the charge of the Selectmen's time in said business to be included and paid by the Town so taxed,) which Tax shall be transmitted to the Receiver-General, according to his warrant.

The House adjourned to to-morrow morning, eight o'clock.

Saturday, March 23, 1776.

Met according to adjournment.

Voted, That the expenses of the late Committee of Safety of this Colony be paid out of the Treasury; and that they receive out of the Treasury five Shillings per day each for wages, and that the President give order for payment thereof.

Voted, That the balance of the Account of Nathaniel Folsom, Esq., amounting to two Pounds eight Shillings and six Pence, be allowed and paid out of the Treasury, and that the President of the Council give order of payment.

Voted, To choose a Committee to agree with Colonel Toppin, for the purchase of seven Cannon, belonging to him, now at our Batteries, at Piscataqua Harbour, not to exceed twenty Pounds for each Cannon; and that Mr. Sherburne and Colonel Evans be the Committee for that purpose, to make report to the Committee of Safety.

Voted, That Deacon Williams have and receive, out of the Treasury, twenty-four Shillings in full, for the use of his House, and firing, for the several Committees of this House, to this time, and that the President of the Council give order of payment.

Voted, That the several Officers, appointed by this House, proceed in their respective business immediately after their taking their respective oaths of office, (without having commissions;) not to interfere with a former Vote of this House for opening the several Courts to try criminal cases and trespass only.

Voted, That Colonel Timothy Walker be added to the Committee for examining Accounts, &c.

Voted, That the Committee of Supplies be paid for their services and expenses, eight Shillings per day when doing business abroad, and four Shillings per day when they did business at home.

Voted, That the Inventories of Rateables, Estates, and Polls, in and throughout this Colony for the current year, be taken in the month of April next, and the several rates at which the said Estates are to be set, to be hereafter considered by this Court.

Voted, That Captain Long, our Barrackmaster, be ordered to build Barracks, or hire Houses, on Great-Island, to lodge our Soldiers in, as he shall find most convenient.

Voted, That Mr. Elijah Grout have, and receive, out of the Treasury, twenty-five Pounds, to be by him accounted for, and that the President of the Council give order of payment.

Voted, That Captain Prentice, Colonel Evans, Mr. Patten, and Mr. Grout, be a Committee of this House, to join a Committee of the honourable Board, to confer together about the Pay-Roll of the Members of this House, and to make report to this House as soon as may be.

Which Committee being joined by a Committee from the honourable Board, made report: That it is their opinion that each Member receive their pay out of the Treasury, in the same manner, and on the same conditions, they did the last session, and that the Secretary and Clerks immediately make out the rolls for the same.

NATHANIEL FOLSOM, Chairman.

Therefore, Voted, That the pay of the several Members of the Council and of this House, for this session, be drawn out of the Treasury in the same manner, and on the same conditions, as for the last session; and that the Secretary and the Clerk of the House immediately make out the Rolls for the same, and certify them to the Treasurer.

Then the House adjourned to the first Wednesday in June next, the fifth day of said month, then to meet at the Court-House in Exeter, at three of the clock, afternoon.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL LEE.

Philadelphia, March 1, 1776.

DEAR SIR: After a warm contest, occasioned by the high estimation the Members of Congress have of your worth and abilities, (every one wishing to have you where he had most at stake,) the Congress have at length determined to supersede the orders given you to proceed to Canada, and have this day come to a resolution that you shall take the command of the Continental Forces in the Southern Department; which comprehends Virginia, North-Carolina, South-Carolina, and Georgia.

The Congress have also appointed six new Brigadier-Generals, viz: John Armstrong, William Thompson, Andrew Lewis, James Moore, Lord Stirling, and Robert Howe, Esquires, four of whom are to command under you, in the Southern Department, and two in the Middle. By this conveyance, I have forwarded the commission for his Lordship. As soon as your health, and the necessary orders you may think proper to give for putting New-York in a state of defence, will permit, I have it in charge to direct that you repair to the Department put under your immediate command.

In expectation of seeing you soon in this place on your way, I need not add, but, that I am, with every sentiment of regard and esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Hon. Major-General Lee, at New-York.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO LORD STIRLING.

Philadelphia, March 1, 1776.

MY LORD: I do myself the honour of enclosing to you a commission of Brigadier-General in the Continental Army. From the high opinion the Congress entertain of your zeal and attachment to the American cause, they flatter themselves you will do everything in your power to discharge your duty to your country on this important occasion. I have it in charge from Congress to direct that you continue at New-York until further orders.

I have the honour to be, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

The Right Hon. Lord Stirling, at New-York.

JAMES DUANE TO LORD STIRLING.

Philadelphia, March 1, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am afraid you will suspect I have been unmindful of your request, when last here, and of your interest; but I beg you will be assured, that inattention to my friends is one of the vices of which I feel myself incapable.

The first opportunity I have embraced to solicit your promotion, in which I was so happy as to be supported by my friends. Your Lordship is accordingly appointed a Brigadier-General for the Middle Department, comprehending New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, the Lower Counties, and Maryland; the Colonies to the southward, the four Eastern Provinces, and Canada, form the other three Departments.

It is now determined that General Lee shall command in the Southern Department, where an immediate attack is expected. The debates of this day did him singular honour, and evinced the confidence the Congress place in his zeal and abilities. He was given up to the Southern Colonies, as the most exposed, with great reluctance. General Schuyler, with Brigadier-General Thompson and yourself, are destined for the Middle Department. The Commander-in-Chief for Canada remains to be filled up, and is a subject of some perplexity as well as of very great importance. It was the anxious wish and earnest advice of our much lamented friend, Montgomery, that he should be succeeded by General Lee; but the situation of our affairs has prevented it. General Schuyler's very precarious state of health, and the danger to which his native Province is exposed, will, we suppose, make the disposition respecting him very agreeable.

Present my respectful compliments to him and to General Lee, and believe me to be, with great regard, your Lordship's most obedient servant,

JAMES DUANE.

To Lord Stirling.

EASTON, NORTHAMPTON COUNTY, (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

In Committee, Easton, March 1, 1776.

"We, the subscribers, inhabitants of Chestnut-Hill and Hamilton Townships, in the County of Northampton, being conscious of our misdemeanour and accumulated guilt, as well in entering into a written agreement and unlawful combination, to bid defiance to the laws of our country and to resist the authority of the civil Magistrates, as also in wickedly and maliciously defaming and slandering the honourable Continental Congress: We therefore acknowledge ourselves highly culpable, and ask pardon of our offended countrymen, promising in the most solemn manner, as a token of our sincere repentance, to yield and deliver up into the hands and custody of the Committee-men of the said respective Townships, within ten days from this date, all our arms, to be by them kept and detained until, both by our words and actions, it shall evidently appear that we merit the favour and confidence of our fellow-citizens.

Resolved, That the above be published in the English and German Newspapers.

Extract from the Minutes:

ROBERT TRAILL, Clerk.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

In Committee, March 1, 1776.

Henry Juncken, of this city, having voluntarily sent to this Committee the following Letter, which is voted a proper acknowledgment of his own,

Ordered, That the same be published in all the Newspapers, English and German, in and near this city.

T. MATLACK, Secretary pro tem.

"GENTLEMEN: Whereas I have been charged, before you, of being inimical to the noble struggle for liberty in general, as well as to the Association in particular. And whereas there may have words dropped in conversation, which may be construed as tending to discourage those which otherwise would have associated, the which was never my intention to do. And whereas I value liberty as dear as life, and am sensible that I shall reap a proportionable benefit in the success of this our noble struggle for the same, my interest and that of the publick being inseparably connected.

"And whereas I am sorry for any unguarded word or expression which may have dropped from my mouth, and which may convey even the most distant sense of being inimicably disposed to this our noble struggle; being also deeply concerned for the displeasure of the publick in general, as well as my respected fellow-citizens in particular, for whom I have nothing but love and good-will at heart, and with whom I wish to live in peace, harmony, and friendship. Therefore, to appease their minds, and to convince the publick in general that this my declaration is sincere, and that I am not insensible to the duty of my country, I do hereby, of my own free will and accord, and without any persuasion, threat, or compulsion whatever, ask their pardon for any offence by me to them, or any of them, given. My future conduct will and shall prove that I am equally with them engaged in the same good cause, and that I am determined, as I always have been, to stand or fall with them in this our noble struggle for liberty.

"HENRY JUNCEN.

"To the Gentlemen of the Committee of Inspection."

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Province of NEW-YORK.

The Petition of JOSIAH ROBERSON, JOHANNES TACK, &c., of MARBLETOWN, in the County of ULSTER, and Province of NEW-YORK, humbly sheweth:

That whereas the Township of Marbletown formerly contained a sufficient number of men for three distinct Companies of Militia, which, although increased since that time, have, by the Committee of said Town, for local conveniences, only divided into two Beats or Districts, and now forms two Companies, of upwards of one hundred men each. And whereas certain dissatisfactions have arisen, about the choice of a Captain in the Southwest District of said Township, which we humbly conceive may have an evil tendency to disunite the good people of this town, if some suitable remedy be not applied in time.

And whereas it is judged that the most effectual method for removing dissatisfaction from amongst us would be to raise a Company of Grenadiers, under the command of Charles W. Broadhead, Captain, Jacob Delamater, First Lieutenant, Moses M. Cantine, Second Lieutenant, and Jacob Chambers, Ensign.

We therefore (having obtained the previous approbation of the Commanding Officer of this Regiment, together with the Committee, and the Officers of the Militia of said Township) humbly pray, that we may be embodied into a Company of Grenadiers, in said Regiment, and that the said Charles W. Broadhead, Jacob Delamater, Moses M. Cantine, and Jacob Chambers, may be commissioned as above-mentioned. And your Petitioners shall ever pray.

WILLIAM BARKER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Amenia, Dutchess County, March 1, 1776.

SIR: I have received orders under your hand, to enlist men in the Continental service, as a Captain, and am very sorry the privates are not allowed as much pay as our near neighbours in Connecticut, who are allowed fifty-three shillings and four pence for a bounty, and fifty-three shillings and four pence per month, which discourages our men from enlisting in our Province; but a bigger discouragement, I take it to be, that there is no time prescribed for their enlistment. Also, one place, the orders say, they (the soldiers) to find their own arms, and in another place, arms and accoutrements for the men, &c., to be provided at the publick expense; and no mention is made of any advance pay, which appears to me that it will be absolutely necessary that they should have one month's pay before they march, in order to furnish themselves. Under those discouragements, I find it very dull raising men. If, therefore, sir, you can, by a line by the bearer, give me any further directions in these matters; you will greatly oblige, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM BARKER.

To the Hon. Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Congress at New-York.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Lebanon, March 1, 1776.

SIR: I received the 24th your favour of the 19th of last month per Bennett. Captain Troop's company, raised hereabouts for the Colony battalion, half of it marched two days ago. They escorted eight hundred weight of powder in casks, to prevent embézzlement. The residue will follow the 11th. I hear some other of the companies moved forward this week, and will be followed soon. I expect they will need the arms and accoutrements you gave encouragement to supply them. Your direction to the Paymaster-General, to make an estimate of what is still due, and to pay it to the gentlemen of our Pay-Table to pay off the men, is a salutary measure, which will answer very good purposes to prevent complaints. Our Treasurer's chest is dry. To have it replenished from yours as speedily as possible, will be very agreeable. I have noticed Lieutenant-Colonel Mott of the mistake relative to billeting allowance made him, and our Pay-Table are informed of it, and will govern themselves accordingly. Mr. Lee, of Charlestown, moved to me for an allowance for his service at Skeneborough, after the taking of Ticonderoga. I informed him that a complete account must be made out, before anything could be done here, and that I would write to you upon it; since which, Captain Lusk, who was at the first taking of Ticonderoga, and places adjacent, and in service afterwards at St. John's, came to me to ask a settlement and payment to those who were employed in that first service. I told him, that in my opinion, the Congress intended that whole affair should be at Continental expense. And as several Colonies were concerned in it, and had advanced money to several persons thereon, so it could not be done without a perfect account made up of the whole services, provisions, &c., and the advancement each Colony had made; that for that end I would write to the honourable Continental Congress to appoint a Committee, to meet at some convenient time and place, with power to call on all concerned therein for their accounts, to liquidate the same, and to make their report thereon, and thereby justice obtained for those brave men who undertook and so happily effected that work.

This gave present satisfaction to him, and may do the same for Mr. Lee. If you judge this method expedient, your application to Congress will greatly facilitate their compliance with my request thereon.

I am, with great regard and esteem, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. Major-General Schuyler.

JOHN STEVENSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

March 2, 1776.

Dr. Stevenson begs leave to present a memorial to the honourable the Council of Safety, now sitting, to acquaint them, that some time ago, he had engaged a quantity of gunpowder from Mr. John Craig, merchant, which the Committee of Baltimore Town took for the publick service, and being at present greatly distressed for a small supply of powder to carry on his copper-works, requests that he may be supplied with such a quantity as they shall think proper, and he will with pleasure repay any charge in replacing the same.

JOHN STEVENSON.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety, now sitting at Baltimore.

C. BEATTY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, March 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have the petition of one of the companies in the Thirty-Third Battalion, praying that you will commission the gentlemen therein mentioned. The company seems to be well satisfied to be commanded by them, and I am of opinion they will make good officers, therefore, hope you will approve of them. Captain Mantz, who was appointed Quartermaster of our troops by the last Convention, has declined serving in that capacity; therefore, I hope you will have the commissions for him and the other officers of his company, made out and sent up with the others, by the first safe hand, and you will oblige, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

C. BEATTY.

To the Council of Safety of Maryland.

N. B. Mr. Lewis Rush, who was appointed Quartermaster to the Thirty-Third Battalion, has accepted of a commission in the Pennsylvania Troops, therefore has declined serving as a Quartermaster in said battalion. In order to have the vacancy filled up, I consulted with the rest of the Field-Officers of said battalion, and we unanimously agreed to recommend Mr. William Ritchie as a man well calculated to fill up the place. If he should meet with your approbation, we pray that a commission may issue, and be transmitted with the above.

C. B.

To the Council of Safety of MARYLAND:

The Petition of sundry of the Freeholders and Inhabitants of Frederick County, who compose the company to which Colonel Charles Beatty was formerly elected Captain, and Colonel Baker Johnson First Lieutenant, the removal of whom to their present appointments have occasioned vacancies, we, therefore, to render the company complete, and that it may exercise in battalion, as directed by the resolves of the Convention, have gone into a choice of officers to fill the vacancies above-mentioned, and have appointed Mr. John Adlum Captain, John Furguson First Lieutenant, Christian Weaver Second Lieutenant, and Thomas Beatty Ensign. If those gentlemen meet with your approbation, of which we have but little doubt, we hope that commissions may issue, and be transmitted to Colonel Charles Beatty by the first opportunity.

Signed per order: WILLIAM RITCHIE, Clerk.

ON SENDING COMMISSIONERS TO TREAT WITH THE CONGRESS.

The man who would penetrate all the designs, and thoroughly acquaint himself with the several manœuvres of the British Government, ought carefully to attend to two objects. The Prime Minister is always considered as the central wheel of all Government movements; and the eyes of every one are fixed upon him, and his motions alone attended to. But in the present case, where he is confessedly ostensible, the affair is quite otherwise; and he who wishes to distinguish between the measures which proceed from the real Minister, and will be prosecuted, and those which the ostensible is directed to hold out, (as barrels to a whale,) may, perhaps, find the true clue to guide through the labyrinth in the following observations.

Great Britain has steadily and invariably pursued one course of conduct towards these Colonies for the last twelve years; and yet politicians have constantly charged her with fickleness, and a want of a regular plan. He who discerns the true cause of this inconsistent consistency, can point out its nature, end, and use, and show that this fickleness demonstrates the firmest steadfastness, sees into the bottom of the present British policy, and comprehends all her measures. This knowledge I wish every member of the honourable Continental Congress possessed of, with virtue and spirit sufficient to withstand all their efforts to destroy our liberties.

As soon as the Parliament is called, the King gives certain intimations of his designs, and applies for the approbation and support of the Commons. Here we have a small opening of the designs of the Cabinet, no more being communicated than is absolutely necessary for obtaining a general concurrence and vote of aids from Parliament. This being once obtained by way of Address, a new plan opens, and that spirit, which was roused by this discovery of the real designs of the Government, is laid asleep as quickly as possible, and the real Minister now retiring behind the curtain, the ostensible one succeeds to his place. You may therefore observe, that, as soon as the hands of the secret Cabinet are let loose by Loyal Addresses, things take a new turn in Parliament immediately; and the Prime Minister, as if totally forsaking the high ground he had lately taken possession of, begins to open new plans, of a very different nature from that held out in the Speech from the Throne, and recommended in the Addresses of both Houses of Parliament. The King and his cabal go to work with all the secrecy and vigour they are masters of, and Lord North assumes his new character, which is that of the Deceiver of America and Amuser of the Nation. And he has hitherto played his part so well, that all has gone on to their mind. He last year rendered them invisible, even to their own party, and had like to lose all by it, so that he was forced to take off the mask, and partly discover himself, before he could carry matters in the House. Any one who remembers his motion, will feel the force of what is here related; and he who recollects that said motion arrived but a few weeks before the order for seizing Messieurs Hancock and Adams, which opened the present scene of the war, must perceive that he acted in the capacity I have assigned him. Even they who entertain the most indifferent opinion of the Administration, were, by this motion, induced to believe, for a time, that they meant to give up the matter. He is now playing the same game over again. Proposals for a reconciliation, Commissioners, and what not, are now held out, as the motion was last year, and for the same purposes.

The two parties now divide, each going to his own proper business: the King, and his Secret Cabinet, to arraying the greatest military force they can muster, and despatching them to butcher us with the utmost expedition; Lord North, and the Parliament, to amuse the nation, and distract and divide the Colonies, by every hypocritical art in their power. Thus the two plans go hand-in-hand; the one to divide, the other to conquer. Was it not precisely so last year? Is it not so now? All ye timid, irresolute, terrified, and double-faced Whigs, who have, by one means or other, crept into authority, open your mouths wide, and bawl stoutly against every vigorous measure until the Commissioners arrive. They will bring pockets well-lined with English Guineas; Patents for Plans, Pensions, and Titles in abundance, will attend them. Your palms will be first greased. You are the only men who can complete the Parliamentary plans for raising an American Revenue! Common Sense says this winter is worth an age. Rejoice that it is now past. Do all in your power to pass the spring in activity, and matters may yet go to your minds. Lord North's motion last winter did much for you; the Commissioners, equally improved, will probably crown your wishes. I shall thank God, and heartily rejoice, if your influence reach not the Councils and proceedings of the Congress.

Depend upon it, my Countrymen, "Divide et impera" is the instruction of every Commissioner, and his orders will be delay, divide, distract, as much as possible, until the forces are all arrived, and they be in a condition to enforce their plan. Then they will inform you that they have received orders by which they are commanded to break off the treaty. Too many have already lost sight of the King, and our real enemies, and are so fascinated with the prospect of Commissioners, that I begin to dread the snare, and cannot help crying out to you, Oh, foolish Americans! Who has bewitched you, that you should put any confidence in men who spill your blood with as little ceremony and reluctance as a butcher would that of an ox! Is this all you know of the King and his Ministers?

I know there is not a Tory now on the Continent but hopes these Commissioners will effect their purpose, and are preparing to give them every possible assistance, and very few Whigs who have not their fears on the occasion. Every thinking man on both sides of the question must, and does believe, that their sole errand is to cajole and deceive, and that large promises, lies, bribery, and corruption, are the means they will use. I beseech you to lend all your spirit and vigour to the Congress on the occasion. Depend upon it they will want it. Pray them to take one decisive step; to send orders to the Commander-in-Chief in each Province to arrest said Commissioners, in the name of the Thirteen United Colonies, as soon as they set foot on shore, and send them, under strong guards, to the Congress, with the strictest injunction that they be permitted to speak with no man, besides the guards and their servants, until they arrive in Philadelphia; and that, as soon as they arrive, a deputation from Congress wait upon them, and ask them this one plain question, Have you authority to order home your fleets and armies immediately? If they answer in the negative, then to break off all further conference, and send them off that instant to the enemy's head-quarters, with this information, that we scorn as much to treat with a dagger at our breasts, as we disregard their forces. If they answer in the affirmative, then to assure them that, as soon as the intelligence of their fleets and armies' safe arrival in Great Britain, shall have reached America, the conference shall be opened, and not before; that they, in the mean time, shall be kept in safe custody, treated like gentlemen, but not permitted to correspond or converse with the inhabitants before the treaty is completed. Every hour spent in conference with Commissioners before this takes place, is an hour lost to America, and two gained to Great Britain; besides the immense damages which will arise from the powers of deceit and corruption, English gold, Government promises, pensions, titles, and every art which malice, cunning, and religious hypocrisy can invent or use, will be played off against our liberties. These, judiciously applied, will convert such among the great as have not virtue and integrity to withstand their force; and you will be sold without pocketing a penny of the price. Without pocketing did I say? Nay, yourselves must pay it. Hard lot, indeed! But if you have not virtue and spirit sufficient to support the Congress in executing these measures for your security, you deserve it. I conclude, by exhorting you to keep on the watch; lose not sight of the King and the Army, by looking at the Prime Minister, Parliament, and Commissioners. One bold stroke will effectually defeat the machinations of the latter, and then the former will stand alone and unsupported; and a second vigorous exertion will crush their evil designs against your liberties. Remember, these Commissioners are the wooden horse which is to take those by stratagem whom twelve years' hostility could not reduce. Act, then, like Laocoon; strike the dagger into his breast, and never permit your credulity or inactivity to give the perjured Sinon an opportunity of making a worn-out, deluded, or corrupted Whig the altar on which to offer up your dear-bought privileges.

CASSANDRA.

P. S. I shall be told this would be treating the Commissioners too cavalierly. To this I answer, Men coming on such an errand, cannot be treated too much so. Let any one show the least mark of a design in Administration to relinquish their claims, and I will treat them with the utmost ceremony and respect. I will publish an ancient testimony in their own favour, if it can be but considered as doing them honour. For though I trust I shall never prostitute a pure and holy religion to pay my court to men, though they be Kings, yet I will do any right thing for those who come on so good an errand.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL ARMSTRONG.

Philadelphia, March 2, 1776.

SIR: The Congress, from a sense of your merit and zeal in the American cause, have been induced to appoint you a Brigadier-General in the Continental Army. I do myself the honour of enclosing your commission; and shall only add, that I have it in charge from Congress to direct that you repair as soon as possible to South-Carolina, there to take the command of the Continental Troops till further orders.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

John Armstrong, Esq., Brigadier-General.

N. B. A letter of the same form was, at the same time, sent to General Thompson, directing him to repair to New-York to join the Continental Troops, under the command of General Lee.

GENERAL ARMSTRONG TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, March 2, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of this day, covering the commission of a Brigadier-General of that venerable body where you preside, does me great honour. The importance of the station in which they are pleased to place me, as well as the trust and confidence implied in the appointment, fills me with concern. Conscious as I am of my small degree of military knowledge, and sensible, very sensible, of the decline of nature, I had no right to expect an appointment of this sort, and beg leave to assure the Congress that I accept the commission from a sense of duty to this much-injured country, and shall, by divine aid, endeavour to execute it to the best of my ability. Permit me, sir, to request you may please to return my grateful thanks to that august body for this mark of their confidence, and to assure them of my readiness to comply with their future commands to the utmost of my power.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN ARMSTRONG.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

COLONEL WHIPPLE TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 2, 1776.

SIR: I arrived here the 28th ultimo. The roads were so extremely bad it was impossible for me to get here sooner. The papers which Captain Long gave me, sealed up and directed to the President, I delivered on my arrival. They were yesterday read in Congress, and referred to a Committee.

My colleague talks of leaving me in about a fortnight; by that time I hope I shall be able to forward the determination of Congress on the petition for a battalion. If your Delegates could have been furnished with an estimate of the Colonial expenses they might have improved them to advantage. But you may be assured we shall do the best we can without them. But I beg the account may be sent forward as soon as possible, or, if the accounts cannot be got ready, let me be furnished with an estimate both of the Continental and Provincial charges.

I was much surprised to find there was no instructions among the papers given me by Captain Long; not a word about purchasing the flour which was so much talked of, when I was last with the Committee. If anything of that sort is to be done, I should be glad to be advised of it as soon as possible, for no doubt the risk increases with the advancement of the season. The Congress have appointed six more Brigadier-Generals, four for the Southern, and two for the Middle Department. It is probable General Lee will have the command of the Southern Army. I have nothing new that I can communicate; when I have you may be assured I shall be very particular, and I hope I shall hear from you often. All the Delegates, except from New-Hampshire, are furnished weekly with all the transactions of their respective Colonies, and really wish to be on a footing with them in that respect. I shall write to you again shortly. In the mean time give me leave to assure you that I am, with great respect, your most obedient and faithful servant,

WILLIAM WHIPPLE.

To the Honourable Colonel Weare.

COLONEL JOSIAH BARTLETT TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 2, 1776.

SIR: Yours of the 8th ultimo, per Colonel Whipple, I received the 28th, and am glad to be informed of the spirited behaviour of our Colony in raising a regiment for Canada without waiting for the order of Congress.

The several matters relative to our Colony affairs are, according to order, laid before Congress. As soon as a determination is had, I hope to be the bearer of them myself to you.

I am very sorry for the unhappy difficulties in our Colonies, at a time when we have nothing to expect from our inveterate enemies but war and bloodshed, notwithstanding their hypocritical pretences of treating and reconciliation to amuse us. I pray God we may not be taken in the snare.

I am your most obedient servant,

JOSIAH BARTLETT.

To the Honourable Meshech Weare, Esq.

P. S. I should have wrote more largely but the post this minute is setting off.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, DATED NEW-YORK, MARCH 2, 1776.

An affair has lately been discovered here which has given no small uneasiness to the Congress. Some manoeuvres of Governour Tryon convinced that Assembly that he was perfectly acquainted with their proceedings, and they were at a loss to guess from what quarter he could get his intelligence. At length a doubt arose in the breast of Mr. Duane (a principal Member of the Congress) that his valet, who had formerly lived with Governour Tryon, had, at night, when he went to bed, taken his minutes out of his pocket, which he had copied, and sent to his late master. He informed the Congress of his suspicion, and it was agreed that he should put, as usual, some minutes in his pocket, but they should be fictitious ones, in order, if possible, to ascertain his servant's dishonesty before he was apprehended. This was accordingly done; the servant, as it is supposed, copied and sent them to the Governour, who soon found that the servant either had imposed on him, or was himself imposed on, and therefore gave him notice to take care of himself: he fled immediately on this to Governour Tryon, who sent him over to England in the last ship that sailed from hence.*

*PHILADELPHIA, January 9th.—At breakfast I was visited by Paul Fooks's housekeeper, who informed that their boy, Neal, had heard his sister Rosanna Thompson, who lived at Richard Bache's, say that James Brattle, servant-man to James Duane, one of the New-York Delegates, was employed by Governour Tryon to collect and send him all the news he could find, on board the Asia, for which he should be

The Memorial of sundry Merchants and other Inhabitants of the City of NEW-YORK, humbly setteth forth:

We, the subscribers, beg leave humbly to represent to this honourable Congress, that we have observed for a considerable time past Robert Robinson and Michael Price, of this city, merchants, suffering great hardships, under the censure of the Committee; and conceiving their case to be singularly hard, and being persuaded that they will in future earnestly endeavour to avoid giving any just cause of offence, we humbly pray that this honourable Congress will be pleased to take their case into consideration, and grant them such relief as in your wisdom may seem meet.

COLONEL BUDD TO JOHN MCKESSON.

Mamaroneck, March 2, 1776.

SIR: Some time past I had a small boat taken from me. I am informed she is gone to the Asia man-of-war. I should take it as a particular favour if you would get a permit for the bearer, Mr. William Grey, to go on board in search of her, as he is acquainted with her.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

THOMAS MOFFAT TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Blooming-Grove, March 2, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed you have a return for several officers in the Militia and Minute departments, occasioned by vacancies on account of the advancement of some, and others refusing to qualify. The Committee desire you would endeavour to get the commissions made out for them, and sent up as soon as possible; and, also, that you would get a commission made out for Vincent Helms, Ensign, in the company of Captain Samuel Raymond, in the Minute department, a return whereof has been made, but no commission come.

I am, with respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant. By order of the Committee:

THOMAS MOFFAT, Clerk.

JAMES ROSEKRANS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Fishkill, March 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In compliance to my orders, in making report from time to time of my progress in inlisting men and raising a company to be employed as part of the American Continental Army, I hereby inform the honourable Congress that I last evening met my Lieutenants, Lee and Laurence, and Ensign Balding, and find that we have inlisted sixty-five men, and I do expect, without any doubt, to be ready to have my full company mustered the week after next. And well rewarded, and also be preferred to some post. In consequence of which, he had written to him, and in particular the day our fleet sailed, with their number, &c. On this information, I called upon some of our Committee at the Coffee-House. Joseph Dean went with me, but could gain nothing. We returned. Then John Bayard went with me to Joseph Reed's: he not at home; thence to see him at the Committee of Safety; not there; thence to the Court-House; found him. After taking his advice, went to Hall's printing-office; took Richard Bache home with us; called his maid; examined her. She seemed confounded, but, on the whole, denied it. From thence to the Coffee-House, where, consulting Major Cox, he joined us two. We went to the State-House; called out Mr. Duane; informed him; he seemed confounded; requested us to attend him to his house. We did. He called his man; examined him; took him up stairs and made search, all to no purpose. We then went, took him with us to Paul Fooks's; examined the boy, who persisted. We brought the boy back to Mr. Duane's lodgings; sent for the young woman, who, upon seeing her brother, confessed that what he had said was true. James was called and interrogated, but all to no purpose. Then Major Cox and Mr. Duane took him up stairs again, and while they were employed in that business, he slipped down stairs, out through the yard, and they have seen no more of him. Major Bayard and myself waited for them in the parlour. Thus he escaped.—C. Marshall.

whereas I further make not the least doubt but that I shall be ready to be called upon sooner than any other Captain in this County by odds; I therefore pray that I may be considered as oldest Captain in the regiment to which I am to belong.

I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JAMES ROSEKRANS.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress at New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO KINGSTON (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

Albany, March 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 29th February, by Captain Hasbrouck, he has just now delivered me. As I had never heard from him since he left this, I did not know if he had recruited, or intended to recruit his company; I therefore could not join him to Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment, which were the only troops that I was empowered by Congress to raise. He will, however, continue in the service if he chooses, and it be agreeable to you, in one of the four regiments to be raised in, and for the immediate defence of this Colony; and you have nothing more to do than to send his name to the Provincial Congress.

I am, gentlemen, respectfully, your obedient, humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To William Ellsworth, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Kingston.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 8, 1776.]

Lebanon, March 2, 1776.

SIR: Mr. Lee, of Castleton, moved to me for an allowance to be made him, and those employed under him, for their service at the iron works, and other business, at Skenesborough, after the first taking of Ticonderoga until they were dismissed. Also, Captain Thomas Lusk, one of the first adventurers in the reduction of Ticonderoga and places adjacent, moved for a settlement and payment to those who undertook and were employed in that service.

I gave them my opinion, that the honourable General Congress intend that affair, and transactions thereon, should be a Continental expense; that inhabitants belonging to divers Colonies were concerned, that each Colony had advanced money, and that it is needful a full account should be prepared of the services, provisions, and advancements, to be examined and liquidated by some suitable persons thereto appointed. Therefore this serves to move the honourable Congress, that a Committee be appointed, fully authorized and empowered to call on all concerned therein, for their accounts of services and disbursements, and to appoint and notify some convenient time and place to hear, examine, and liquidate the same, and make report thereof, that justice may be done, and those brave men who undertook and so happily effected that work, generously rewarded.

I am, with great truth and regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable President Hancock.

MANIFESTO SENT ON SHORE AT NEW-PROVIDENCE.

To the Gentlemen, Freemen, and Inhabitants of the Island of NEW-PROVIDENCE:

The reasons for my landing an armed force on the Island is, in order to take possession of the powder and warlike stores belonging to the Crown; and if I am not opposed in putting my design in execution, the persons and property of the inhabitants shall be safe; neither shall they be suffered to be hurt, in case they make no resistance.

Given under my hand on board the Ship Alfred, March 3, 1776.

ESECK HOPKINS, Commander-in-Chief.

PERMISSION TO CAPTAIN HINSON.

By the Hon. ESECK HOPKINS, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Fleet, and, at present, off the BAHAMA Islands.

Whereas I have this day received a Petition from Joseph Hinson, setting forth that the Brig Christina, under his command, from St. Thomas, bound to the Mississippi, belonging to the subjects of his Danish Majesty, was obliged to put into this port in a leaky condition, and praying leave to sell his cargo, to enable him to repair his said vessel; and whereas it is the intention of the United Colonies of North America that all good offices should be done to the subjects of foreign States, I do, by virtue of the authority in me vested by the Delegates of the said United Colonies in Congress assembled, give leave, and empower him, the said Joseph Hinson, to sell all the said cargo, in order to defray his expenses in this port.

Given under my hand, at the Fort of Nassau, March 7, 1776.
ESECK HOPKINS, Commander-in-Chief.

SIR: You are hereby directed, upon receipt of this, to deliver to Captain Hinson all the goods in the King's Stores which belong to him, or his owners, and for so doing this shall be your sufficient authority.

Given under my hand at Fort Nassau, March 7, 1776.
ESECK HOPKINS, Commander-in-Chief.

To Mr. Gardner, Keeper of the King's Stores.

ORDERS GIVEN TO THE SEVERAL CAPTAINS AT SAILING FROM NEW-PROVIDENCE.

SIR: You are to keep company with the ship I am in, if possible; but, should you separate by accident, you are then to make the best of your way to Block-Island Channel, and there to cruize in thirty fathom water (south from Block-Island) six days, in order to join the Fleet.

If they do not join you in that time, you may cruize in such places as you think will most annoy the enemy, or go into port, as you think fit; and acquaint me by the first opportunity, so that you may receive further orders.

ESECK HOPKINS, Commander-in-Chief.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM SAVANNAH, GEORGIA, TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED MARCH 3, 1776.

As the following Resolutions will, I am persuaded, give you the greatest satisfaction, I have sent you a copy of them, that, rather than our enemies should possess our merchant shipping and our capital town, we unanimously resolved that all shall perish in a noble conflagration, lighted by ourselves.

"Savannah, in Georgia, March 2, 1776,
"In the Council of Safety."

"For the safety of this Province, and the good of the United Colonies, it is,

"Unanimously Resolved, That the houses in the Town of Savannah, and the hamlets thereto belonging, together with the shipping now in our port, the property of, or appertaining to, the friends of America, who have associated and appeared, or who shall appear in the present alarm to defend the same, and also the houses of widows and orphans, and none others, be forthwith appraised.

"Resolved, That it shall be considered as a defection from the cause of America, and a desertion of property, in such persons who have, and shall leave the Town of Savannah, or the hamlets thereunto belonging, during the present alarm; and such persons shall be precluded from any support or countenance towards obtaining an indemnification.

"Resolved, That it be incumbent upon the friends of America in this Province, to defend the Metropolis, as long as the same shall be tenable.

"Resolved, That, rather than the same shall be held and occupied by our enemies, or the shipping in the port of Savannah taken and employed by them, that the same shall be burnt and destroyed.

"Resolved, That orders shall be issued to the commanding officer, directing him to have the foregoing Resolutions put into execution.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"EDWARD LANGWORTHY, Secretary."

JOHN HANSON, JUN., TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, March 3, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of the 2d February came to hand a few days ago, enclosing a resolve of the Congress, respecting the collection of gold and silver in this Province, together with your appointment of myself and others to collect the same in this County. Am sorry to acquaint you that it is not in my power to render the publick any service in that way, on the terms proposed, no one being willing to part with their gold and silver without receiving the paper immediately in exchange. Any orders your Honours may at any time think proper to intrust me with, shall always be complied with, as far as may be in the power of, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

JOHN HANSON, JUN.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE TO SILAS DEANE.

Philadelphia, March 3, 1776.

On your arrival in France, you will for some time be engaged in the business of providing goods for the Indian trade. This will give good countenance to your appearing in the character of a merchant, which we wish you continually to retain among the French, in general, it being probable that the Court of France may not like it should be known publickly that any agent from the Colonies is in that country. When you come to Paris, by delivering Dr. Franklin's letters to Monsieur Le Roy, at the Louvre, and Mons. Dubourg, you will be introduced to a set of acquaintance, all friends to the Americans. By conversing with them, you will have a good opportunity of acquiring Parisian French, and you will find in Mons. Dubourg a man prudent, faithful, secret, intelligent in affairs, and capable of giving you very sage advice.

It is scarce necessary to pretend any other business at Paris than the gratifying of that curiosity which draws numbers thither yearly, merely to see so famous a city. With the assistance of Mons. Dubourg, who understands English, you will be able to make immediate application to Mons. De Vergennes, Ministre des Affaires Etrangères, either personally or by letter, if Mons. Dubourg adopts that method, acquainting him that you are in France upon business of the American Congress, in the character of a merchant, having something to communicate to him that may be mutually beneficial to France and the North American Colonies; that you request an audience of him, and that he would be pleased to appoint the time and place. At this audience, if agreed to, it may be well to show him, first, your letter of credence, and then acquaint him that the Congress, finding that in the common course of commerce it was not practicable to furnish the Continent of America with the quantity of arms and ammunition necessary for its defence, (the Ministry of Great Britain having been extremely industrious to prevent it,) you had been despatched by their authority, to apply to some European Power for a supply. That France had been pitched on for the first application, from an opinion that if we should, as there is a great appearance we shall, come to a total separation from Great Britain, France would be looked upon as the power whose friendship it would be fittest for us to obtain and cultivate. That the commercial advantages Britain had enjoyed with the Colonies, had contributed greatly to her late wealth and importance. That it is likely great part of our commerce will naturally fall to the share of France, especially if she favours us in this application, as that will be a means of gaining and securing the friendship of the Colonies; and that as our trade was rapidly increasing with our increase of people, and in a greater proportion, her part of it will be extremely valuable. That the supply we at present want is clothing and arms for twenty-five thousand men, with a suitable quantity of ammunition, and one hundred field-pieces. That we mean to pay for the same by remittances to France, or through Spain, Portugal, or the French Islands, as soon as our navigation can be protected by ourselves or friends; and that we, besides, want great quantities of linens and woollens, with other articles for the Indian trade, which you are now actually purchasing, and for which you ask no credit; and that the whole, if France should grant the other supplies, would make a cargo which it might be well to secure by a convoy of two or three ships-of-war.

If you should find Mons. De Vergennes reserved, and not inclined to enter into free conversation with you, it may be well to shorten your visit; request him to consider what you have proposed; acquaint him with your place of lodging; that you may yet stay some time at Paris; and that knowing how precious his time is, you do not presume to ask another audience; but that if he should have any commands for you, you will, upon the least notice, immediately wait upon him.

If at a future conference he should be more free, and you find a disposition to favour the Colonies, it may be proper to acquaint him, that they must necessarily be anxious to know the disposition of France on certain points, which, with his permission, you would mention—such as whether, if the Colonies should be forced to form themselves into an independent state, France would probably acknowledge them as such, receive their Ambassadors, enter into any treaty or alliance with them for commerce or defence, or both? If so, on what principal conditions? Intimating that you shall speedily have an opportunity of sending to America, if you do not immediately return, and that he may be assured of your fidelity and secrecy in transmitting carefully anything he would wish conveyed to the Congress on that subject.

In subsequent conversations, you may, as you find it convenient, enlarge on those topics that have been the subjects of our conferences with you; to which you may occasionally add the well-known substantial answers we usually give to the several calumnies thrown out against us.

If these supplies, on the credit of the Congress, should be refused, you are then to endeavour the obtaining a permission of purchasing those articles, or as much of them as you can find credit for.

You will keep a daily journal of all your material transactions, and particularly of what passes in your conversation with great personages; and you will, by every safe opportunity, furnish us with such information as may be important.

When your business in France admits of it, it may be well to go into Holland, and visit our agent there; Mons. Dumas, conferring with him on subjects that may promote our interest, and on the means of communication.

You will endeavour to procure a meeting with Mr. Bancroft, by writing a letter to him, under cover to Mr. Griffiths, at Turnham-Green, near London, and desiring him to come over to you, in France or Holland, on the score of old acquaintance. From him you may obtain a good deal of information of what is now going forward in England, and settle a mode of continuing a correspondence. It may be well to remit him a small bill to defray his expenses in coming to you, and avoid all political matters in your letter to him. You will also endeavour to correspond with Mr. Arthur Lee, Agent of the Colonies, in London. You will endeavour to obtain acquaintance with Mr. Garnier, late Chargé des Affaires de France en Angleterre, if now in France—or, if returned to England, a correspondence with him as a person, extremely intelligent and friendly to our cause. From him you may learn many particulars, occasionally, that will be useful to us.

JOSEPH REED TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, March 3, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I have not been favoured with any thing from you since my two last; but that never makes any difference in my writing, as your claims of friendship and gratitude upon me are superior to all other.

The Congress have made an appointment of Generals, as by the enclosed paper. Armstrong is ordered to South-Carolina, Thompson to New-York; the others keep their present situations. General Lee's destination is changed to Virginia, from undoubted authority that it will be a principal scene of action. The Congress have acceded to the proposition respecting myself: so that unless some new event, unforeseen and very important, should happen, I shall be with you this summer. I must beg your indulgence till I can get my family into some convenient situation, and settle my affairs. In the mean time I am forwarding your camp equipage, which I have extended, in many small particulars, beyond your order.

Arnold is to be intrusted with the affairs of Canada, Wooster having either resigned or been superseded, I know not which. Melchior is come from Quebeck in twelve days, where he left our little army, now strengthened to fifteen hundred men, in good spirits, and still pleasing themselves with the hopes of being masters of the town. I have not yet seen him, so that I can give you no further particulars; but I understand they are like to want battering-cannon and mortars. No arrivals of powder or arms since my last, or any account of our fleet, though, from their present cruising ground, we hope they will fall in with Lord Cornwallis and the transports.

Notwithstanding the act of Parliament for seizing our property, and a thousand other proofs of a bitter and irreconcilable spirit, there is a strange reluctance in the minds of many to cut the knot which ties us to Great Britain, particularly in this Colony and to the southward. Though no man of understanding expects any good from the Commissioners, yet they are for waiting to hear their proposals before they declare off. However, yesterday I was informed letters had been sent to France, to know what encouragement we might expect from that quarter.

Our coast is yet clear. It is a golden opportunity to make provision for the war, which I hope will not be lost. If the other Provinces had done anything like this, in the making of arms this winter, we should have been tolerably provided. We shall, by the 1st of April, have made four thousand stand since last October; every part done here. We are casting cannon, and there is more saltpetre made than in all the Provinces put together. Six powder-mills are erecting in different parts. The two near this city deliver two thousand five hundred pounds per week, and are now in very good order. Many, many attempts have been made to get a bounty for the New-England Troops, but without effect. The Congress are resolved that you shall abandon the lines, and give up their country to be ravaged, if they will not defend it upon the same terms as those insisted here; such as march to Canada only excepted.

The Assembly have it under consideration to raise two thousand men for the defence of this Province, but I doubt its taking; perhaps there may be half the number. I am told we can easily raise two or three more battalions, if we had arms, &c., for them. I do not think I shall bring any person with me when I come. Mr. Webb has long had an inclination to be in your family. If the post should be agreeable to him, and he is agreeable to you, I believe I should prefer him to any other.

The post is just going, so that I have only time to add, that I am, my dear sir, yours most affectionately,

JOSEPH REED.

To General Washington.

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, March 3, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: My destination is altered. Instead of going to Canada, I am appointed to command to the southward. There has been a great promotion of Brigadier-Generals: Armstrong, Thompson, Lewis, Moore, Stirling, and Howe, are the six. Four are to serve under my orders, viz: Armstrong, Lewis, Moore, and Howe. As I am the only General Officer, on the Continent, who can speak and think in French, I confess I think it would have been more prudent to have sent me to Canada; but I shall obey with alacrity, and hope, with success. Griffin has resigned, as he flatters himself he can do better in the commercial line. I have, in his room, appointed one of the sons of Lewis Morris, to whom I was under a sort of engagement. Lord Stirling will take the command until the arrival of Schwuyler. His Lordship is active and discreet.

In my last, I gave you my plan of defence for this city and environs; but from want of men, shall be obliged to leave it in a poor condition. A regiment of Associators are, I am told, ordered from Philadelphia. I have likewise sent for a battalion from the Jerseys; but, on the other hand, Ward's and Waterbury's Regiments will, I suppose, according to their laudable custom, leave the place the moment their time is expired, which is the 12th of this month.

I heartily pray that you may give Mr. Howe a handsome salute on his leaving Boston. I am not yet informed who is to take the command in Canada. No time, I am sure, is to be lost. As I am ordered away immediately, I must consign the affairs of New-York to Lord Stirling. I think he will acquit himself well.

I have nothing material to trouble you with at present, further than to assure you that I am, and ever shall be, dear General, yours most sincerely,

CHARLES LEE.

To General Washington.

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, March 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have this evening the honour of receiving your letter of the 1st instant, enclosing a commission to me of Brigadier-General in the Continental Army.

This instance of the good opinion which the Congress entertain of my zeal and attachment to the American cause, does me high honour, and I receive it from my country with that gratitude and satisfaction which will excite me to do everything in my power to deserve it. I wish I had more knowledge and experience, and was better qualified to execute the arduous task I am now appointed to. But the Congress may rest assured that, in every situation, I will endeavour to do the best I can, and execute their commands as far as it is possible.

I must beg leave to mention that the first battalion of New-Jersey Troops have not yet received their medicine-chest, although I have several times wrote to the Committee appointed for that purpose at Philadelphia. That regiment is still deficient in many articles, which are mentioned in the letters I transmitted to you on the 19th of February, and which will more fully appear by the returns I shall send you by the next post. I shall continue to pay the fullest attention to that battalion, until I receive further order from Congress.

I have the honour to be, your most obedient and most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

COLONEL STARK AND OTHERS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Winter-Hill, March 3, 1776.

SIR: We, the subscribers, hereby certify, that Captain Daniel Rogers has been employed as a Deputy Engineer under General Sullivan, of the works erected on Winter and Ploughed Hills, since the 16th day of July last, on a promise of reasonable satisfaction for his services. We have from time to time observed his conduct, and always see him alert and active in forwarding the works, and found him extremely serviceable in the department he acted in, and would recommend him to your Excellency for what wages your Excellency may think necessary for his past services.

JOHN STARK, Colonel.

JOHN NIXON, Colonel.

ENOCH POOR, Colonel.

THOMAS POOR, Lieutenant-Colonel.

ISRAEL GILMAN, Lieutenant-Colonel.

THOMAS NIXON, Lieutenant-Colonel.

JOHN MOOR, Major.

ANDREW COLBURN, Major.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOSEPH REED.

Cambridge, March 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favours of the 28th of January, and 1st and 8th of February, are come to hand. For the agreeable accounts contained in one of them, of your progress in the manufacture of powder, and prospect of getting arms, I am obliged to you, as there is some consolation in knowing that these useful articles will supply the wants of some part of the Continental Troops, although I feel too sensibly the mortification of having them withheld from me, Congress not even thinking it necessary to take the least notice of my application for these things.

I hope in a few nights to be in readiness to take post on Dorchester Point, as we are using every means in our power to provide materials for this purpose; the ground being so hard frozen yet, that we cannot intrench, and therefore are obliged to depend entirely upon chandeliers, fascines, and screwed hay, for our redoubts. It is expected that this work will bring on an action between the King's Troops and ours.

General Lee's expedition to New-York was founded upon indubitable evidence of General Clinton's being on the point of sailing. No place was so likely for his destination as New-York, and no place where a more capital blow could be given to the interests of America. Common prudence, therefore, dictated the necessity of preventing an evil which might have proved irremediable, had it happened. But I confess to you honestly, I had no idea of running the Continent to the expense which was incurred, or that such a body of troops would go from Connecticut as did, or be raised upon the terms they were. You must know, my good sir, that Captain Sears was here, with some other gentlemen of Connecticut, when the intelligence of Clinton's embarkation (at least the embarkation of the troops) came to hand. The situation of these lines would not afford a detachment. New-York could not be depended upon; and of the troops in Jersey, we had no certain information, either as to their numbers or destination. What then was to be done? Why, Sears and these other gentlemen assured me, that if the necessity of the case was signified by me, and General Lee should be sent, one thousand volunteers, requiring no pay, but supplied with provisions only, would march immediately to New-York, and defend the place till Congress could determine what should be done, and that a line from me to Governor Trumbull to obtain his sanction, would facilitate the measures. This I accordingly wrote in precise terms, intending that these volunteers, and such of the Jersey Regiments as could be speedily assembled, should be thrown into the city for its defence, and for disarming the Tories upon Long-Island, who, I understood, had become extremely insolent and daring; when behold, instead of volunteers, consisting of gentlemen without pay, the Governor directed men to be voluntarily enlisted for this service, upon Continental pay and allowance. This, you will observe, was contrary to my expectation and plan; yet, as I thought it a matter of the last importance to secure the communication of the North-River, I did not deem it expedient to countermand the raising of the Connecticut Regiments on account of the pay. If I have done wrong, those Members of Congress who think the matter ought to have been left to them, must consider my proceedings as an error of judgment, and that a measure is not always to be judged by the event.

It is moreover worthy of consideration, that in cases of extreme necessity like the present, nothing but decision can ensure success; and certain I am, that Clinton had something more in view by peeping into New-York, than to gratify his curiosity, or make a friendly visit to his friend Mr. Tryon. However, I am not fond of stretching my powers; and if the Congress will say, "Thus far, and no farther, you shall go," I will promise not to offend whilst I continue in their service.

I observe what you say in respect to my wagon. I wanted nothing more than a light travelling-wagon, such as those of New-Jersey, with a secure cover, which might be under lock and key—the hinges being on one side, the lock on the other. I have no copy of the memorandum of the articles which I desired you to provide for me, but think one dozen and a half of camp-stools, a folding table, plates and dishes, were among them.

What I meant, therefore, was, that the bed of the wagon should be constructed in such a manner as to stow these things to the best advantage. If you cannot get them with you, I shall despair of providing them here, as workmen are scarce, and most exorbitantly high in their charges. What I should aim at is, when the wagon and things are ready, (which ought to be very soon, as I do not know how soon we may beat a march,) to buy a pair of clever horses of the same colour, hire a careful driver, and let the whole come off at once, and then they will be ready for immediate service.

I have no doubt that the Treasury, by application to Mr. Hancock, will direct payment thereof, without any kind of difficulty, as Congress must be sensible that I cannot take the field without equipage, and after I have once got into a tent, I shall not soon quit it. I am, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

COUNCIL OF SAFETY OF GEORGIA TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS OF SOUTH-CAROLINA.

In the Council of Safety, Savannah, March 4, 1776.

The intimate connection between this and your Province, in a particular manner renders it necessary to acquaint you with the occurrences in the former, since the date of our last, to which, and the despatches preceding, we refer you.

Our dispositions, in the evening of the 2d, were such as appeared to our officers the most likely to prevent the landing of our enemy; and so as, if they should make their landing good, either above or below the town, to prevent their getting in; however, notwithstanding our vigilance, they, by collusion with the masters and others on board the merchant shipping, which hawled near the shore of Hutchinson's Island in the night time, got on board these ships, about four o'clock yesterday morning, to the number, as far as we are competent to judge from the observations we made and the intelligence we received, of between two and three hundred, where they effected to conceal themselves.

We had our fears respecting these shipping, and therefore kept a good watch upon them; but it was impossible for sentinels on this shore to descry them in boarding from the other, the vessels being betwixt.

Captain Rice, who commanded a boat of observation, was sent on board the shipping about nine o'clock, to order the rigging on shore, and was, without any noise or the smallest knowledge of us, kidnapped. This we did not know, till about half an hour afterwards: two sailors, under pretence of coming on shore for clothes, gave information of the troops being on board the shipping, and of Rice's being taken. About three hundred men were then immediately marched to Yamacraw, opposite the shipping, with three four-pounders, and threw up a breastwork. The armed Schooner Hinchinbrook, of — guns, with a number of men on board, which, with others, went up the Back river in the afternoon of the day preceding, about this time set sail down the South river, with intent, no doubt, of covering the landing of the troops from on board the merchant shipping; but being continually fired at by two companies of riflemen, who were placed in ambuscade, she was obliged to come very slow, and often came too, and returned a very smart fire, at every place where the riflemen fired from, until the tide was spent, and she could not get down. During the course of their firing, only one of our men got wounded, and that slightly, in the thigh; but on board, several were seen to fall.

In town we had exhibited a still more interesting scene; we found the officers and men clamorous about the capture and detention of Rice; and two gentlemen, Lieutenant Daniel Roberts, of the St. John's Rangers, and Mr. Raymond Demere, of St. Andrew's Parish, solicited and were permitted to go on board, to demand a surrender of Rice and his people. They accordingly divested themselves of their arms, and were rowed by a negro on board a vessel, in which were Captain Barclay, the Commodore, and Major Grant; and these officers, contrary to all the principles which cement society and govern mankind, immediately arrested our deputies, and yet detain them as prisoners. We waited with anxious expectation for near half an hour, when we demanded our deputies, (by the help of a trumpet,) without getting any other but insulting answers; whereupon we fired two four-pounders directly into them; and then they informed us, that they would send an answer in writing; which they presently after did, signed by Lieutenant Roberts and Mr. Demere, purporting that, if we would send two of the persons in whom the people most confided, they would treat with them.

Captain Screven, of the St. John's Rangers, and Captain Baker, of the St. John's Riflemen, chagrined, no doubt, (the former particularly, on account of his Lieutenant,) by the detention of our deputies, took about a dozen of riflemen in a boat, and rowed directly under the stern of Captain Inglis, in whose vessel were a great part of the soldiery, and, in peremptory terms, demanded the deputies; and were answered, after one shot from Captain Baker, by a discharge directly down upon them, of near two hundred shot, both from swivels and small-arms, which was kept up while they were in reach; the Captains and men in the boat, not one in the smallest degree confused, or even, perhaps, disappointed by the attack, fired their rifles, most of them three times, and, as they say, not without execution; and wonderful to tell, not a man of them killed; one man only received a slug in the fleshy part of his shoulder, which was immediately cut out, without the smallest inconvenience or danger. The spectators all declared, as we now do, that such a Providential deliverance has not yet been known.

This unmanly attack upon a few men, in an open boat, produced a general fire from our field-pieces and intrenchments, and as smart a return from two four-pounders and several swivels from the shipping, which lasted from about twelve o'clock to four; and although they often fired langridge, which continually whistled about our men, not a single man was even touched; but we have no doubt a number of the enemy met with a worse fate, as they were seen frequently to fall.

About four o'clock we called a council, and determined to have the vessels immediately burnt, and issued orders to Colonel McIntosh accordingly; whereupon, the Inverness, late Captain McGillivray, loaded with rice and deer-skins, was set on fire and cut loose, to the amount of fifteen thousand pounds sterling. Upon this the soldiers, in the most laughable confusion, got ashore in the marsh, while our riflemen, and field-pieces with grape-shot, were incessantly galling them. The shipping were now also in confusion; some got up the river, under cover of the armed schooner, while others caught the flame; and, as night approached, exhibited a scene, as they passed and repassed with the tide, which, in any other but the present times, would be truly horrible, but is now a subject only of gratulation and applause.

The ships of Captains Inglis and Wardel neither got up the river, or on fire. They were ordered on shore, and now are prisoners of Captain Screven, in the country, and their vessels brought close in to a wharf. They were permitted to write to Captain Barclay in the evening, to inform him of their situation, and to request an exchange of prisoners, which the latter peremptorily refused.

We have thus given you a particular detail of things, as they really happened, to prevent the belief of any erroneous intelligence, and from which you will be competent to judge of our situation.

Colonel McIntosh laid before the Board a resolution of your Congress, to aid us, accompanied by a letter from Mr. Lowndes; and we are very glad that you have determined to afford us further assistance. We wish it may arrive in time.

By order of the Council of Safety:

WILLIAM EWEN, President.

To the Honourable the Congress, or Council of Safety, for South-Carolina.

AQUILA HALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Harford Town, in Committee, March 4, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As the Convention of this Province has ordered to disband the companies of Minute-men, and that the Committees of the Counties pay off the said companies, for which purpose money will be wanting, as well as to comply with some contracts for arms that this Committee has agreed for, and for which long since the money was requested, but the amount has never yet been had for the enabling of this Committee to comply with the above, we would hope your Honours will furnish this Committee with four hundred pounds, by Mr. Thomas Hall, for the purpose aforesaid. Accounts of which, and for the faithfully laying out the same, shall be rendered to the next Convention of this Province.

Signed by order of the Committee:

AQUILA HALL, Chairman of Committee.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

GEORGE STRICKER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, March 4, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The man who had the blankets for sale in this town could not stay to know your answer to my letter. I have, therefore, taken them, as I knew of none elsewhere to be had. I hope you will excuse my conduct in so doing, as well as the liberty I have taken to give him an order on the Paymaster for the money. The blankets were already engaged, but he let me have them to oblige the Province.

The amount of money I have given an order for is eighty-nine pounds fourteen shillings, for seventy-eight blankets.

I am, gentlemen, with due respect, your obliged humble servant,

GEORGE STRICKER.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

CALVERT COUNTY COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Observation, Calvert County, March 4, 1776.

This Committee, agreeable to the request of the honourable Council of Safety, inform their Honours, that at Drum-Point, (near the mouth of Patuxent.) there are two dwelling-houses, with fire-places to each, and a store-house, and very near thereto a school-house, on the river side, which the proprietors are ready and willing should be used by Captain Beall's men; and this Committee offer it as their opinion, that that is the most proper place for the troops to be stationed at in this County. Signed by order:

E. JOHNSON, Clerk pro tem.

To the Honourable Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

PENNSYLVANIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO DR. FRANKLIN.

In Committee of Safety, Philadelphia, March 4, 1776.

SIR: In order to carry into execution the resolve of Congress, for the manufacturing of fifty tons of saltpetre into powder, the Committee of Safety have purchased a seat for erecting a powder-mill, which they intend to build in such manner as to manufacture about four tons per week; and they are of opinion it will be necessary to build a magazine for the secure keeping of the powder, as it is made at a suitable distance from the mill. This being a proper season for erecting the same, those gentlemen, who have the superintendence of the mills, will be able at the same time to oversee the building the magazine.

The Committee request you will please to take the opinion of the Congress relative to the erecting such magazine.

By order of the Committee.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

GEORGE ROSS, Chairman.

To Doctor Franklin.

SAMUEL TUCKER TO LORD STIRLING.

New-Brunswick, March 4, 1776.

MY LORD: Your letter of the 1st current I received this morning; and, as our Congress had adjourned last evening, I convened as many members of our Committee of Safety as were in this city, who unanimously advised the sending your letter to the Continental Congress, which I shall forward by the first good opportunity.

We have passed an ordinance for raising two Artillery Companies, to consist of sixty-four men each, officers included: one to remain in East, the other in West-Jersey; to be enlisted for twelve months, unless sooner discharged; to act occasionally in conjunction with our Militia; and have ordered six field-pieces for each division to be immediately purchased, with all the necessary equipments, &c.

Bergen County have agreed to accept payment for the seventy-nine stand of arms taken by Captain Meeker, which they have valued at four pounds ten shillings for each stand, and which our Congress have agreed shall be paid. I most sincerely wish your Lordship all manner of success in your arduous employments; and have the honour to be your most obedient, humble servant,

SAMUEL TUCKER.

To Lord Stirling.

P. S. Ship Blue-Mountain-Valley is condemned by Congress.

In Congress, New-Jersey, March 2, 1776.

The Congress proceeded to the determination of the prize-ship Blue-Mountain-Valley, now lying at Elizabethtown Point, lately seized by Lord Stirling, with a detachment of the Continental Forces and Militia; and it appearing, by the testimony of credible witnesses upon their oaths, that the said Ship, John H. Dempster, master, sailed from London some time last fall, laden with stores, shipped by order of the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, bound to the Port of Boston, or any other Port in America, the said cargo, by the bill of lading, dated the 30th day of November, 1775, to be delivered unto the Commander-in-Chief of his Majesty's Forces in America, or to his order; and the honourable the Continental Congress having, previous to the taking of the said Ship, resolved that all Transport Vessels in the same service, having on board any Troops, Arms, Ammunition, Clothing, Provisions, or Military or Naval Stores, of whatever kind soever, and all vessels, to whomsoever belonging, that shall be employed in carrying Provisions, or other necessities, to the British Army or Armies, or Navy, that now or shall hereafter be within any of the United Colonies, or any Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, for the use of such Fleet or Army, shall be liable to seizure, and, with their cargoes, shall be confiscated:

It is, therefore, Resolved, That the said Ship Blue-Mountain-Valley, with such of her cargo as was shipped by order of the said Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, directed, as by said bill of lading, to be delivered at the Port of Boston, or elsewhere, unto the Commander-in-Chief of his Majesty's Forces in America, or to his order, shall be, and the same is hereby, confiscated to the use of the captors, pursuant to the general directions for distribution resolved on by the said honourable Continental Congress.

Resolved, That the said Ship and Cargo be disposed of by any two agents or persons, to be chosen, the one by Lord Stirling, and the other by the Committee of Elizabethtown.

Resolved, That all the necessary expense and charge which have arisen by guarding and securing said Prize, and supporting the Seamen, be first deducted out of the nett proceeds of such sales.

Resolved, That the amount of the sales of the said Ship and Cargo (the expense and charge of guarding and securing the same, and supporting the seamen, being first deducted and paid thereout) be divided among the captors, as well as those of the Militia sent out by the Committee of Elizabethtown, as such of the Continental Forces as were employed in that service under Lord Stirling; that the said distribution be made among the officers, privates, and to the vessels employed in the said capture, in such manner as is usually distributed in the neighbouring Colonies, agreeable to the resolutions of the Continental Congress.

Resolved, That all such Goods, Wares, and Merchandises, on board said Ship, belonging to the Captain, Mates, and Seamen, as their, or either of their own private property, be reserved for the proprietors thereof, and delivered to them free of all cost and deductions.

Resolved, That the Captain and Seamen belonging to said Ship when seized, be suffered to go to any place they may think proper, his Majesty's Fleet or Army only excepted.

And this Congress recommend to the captors of said Ship to make some gratuity to each of the Seamen taken on board, to enable them to travel to some other parts in pursuit of business.

W. PATERSON, Secretary.

ROBERT OGDEN TO LORD STIRLING.

Elizabethtown, March 4, 1776.

MY LORD: I heartily congratulate you on your appointment to be Brigadier-General, and which will give every friend to his country great pleasure to see that posts of so much importance are filled by gentlemen of the first abilities, and so strongly attached to the common cause; sincerely wish all officers, from the highest to the lowest, may be advanced according to their abilities, merit, and valour; and none but such be employed in the service.

There are many fire-arms lost, or, at least, at present missing, that were lent (by the inhabitants of the town) to furnish Captain Meeker, and the parties under him, to assist your Lordship in taking the Ship Blue-Mountain-Valley. He has been applied to for the arms, but says he knows nothing about them, who had them, nor where to be found. His ignorance and high temper makes it difficult to treat with him; perhaps, though, fire in his constitution may be serviceable on a forlorn hope. It would be very kind if your Lordship would give orders to inquire whether there are any spare arms in the battalion, that do not belong to the men. Perhaps some, if not all, may be found and returned.

I am sorry to intrude so much upon your Lordship's time, but will take it as a particular favour if you could look over those papers sent from Thomas Bartow, Esq.'s, office; sign them, and send either to him or me. It has cost me twenty odd pounds for resurveying, and should be glad to have them recorded, let the event happen as it may with respect to these troublesome times; and I cannot flatter myself that your Lordship will have more leisure a month or two hence than at present.

I am, with great esteem, your Lordship's most obedient and humble servant,

ROBERT OGDEN.

To the Earl of Stirling.

GENERAL LEE TO THE PRESIDENT OF NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, March 4, 1776.

SIR: The letters I received last night from the Commander-in-Chief and General Greene, were, unfortunately, thrown into the fire; but, according to my best recollection, the reasons given by the General for surmising, or rather concluding, that it was the intention of the enemy to evacuate Boston, were these: That they had withdrawn their mortars and heavy cannon from Bunker's Hill and Charlestown; that their transports were hauled into the wharves; that some people, who had left the town lately, declared that the officers' baggage was sent on board; in short, it is, from every circumstance, concluded by those who are before the place, and those who have lately left the place, that they are soon to abandon Boston; and that, consequently, they will attempt to establish themselves here. May I, sir, take the liberty to express my uneasiness on a subject which is more properly a matter of consideration for the Congress. The liberation of the notorious enemies of liberty and their country, on giving bonds for their good behaviour, appears to me, in our present situation, extremely ill imagined. It is so far from a security, that it is rather adding virus to their malignancy. The first body of troops that arrive will cancel these bonds. Some vigorous, decisive mode must be now adopted, of discovering on whom you may depend, on whom not. The crisis will admit of no procrastination. I cannot, therefore, help wishing, for the common safety, and the honour of this Province in particular, that some test may be immediately offered, that we may be enabled to distinguish our friends from our foes. The latter must not, and cannot, be suffered to remain within your walls, to co-operate with those without in working your destruction.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To Colonel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress.

COLONEL GRAHAM TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Horne's Hook, March 3, 1776.

SIR: The Quartermaster of our regiment having declined serving any longer in that station, the Field-Officers have agreed to recommend Mr. James Cock as a person properly qualified for the office. If the honourable Congress should approve of him, I beg that his commission may be made out as speedily as possible, that so necessary an office may not be vacant.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

LEWIS GRAHAM, Lieutenant-Colonel.

To Brigadier-General Woodhull.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO COLONEL GRAHAM.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 4, 1776.

SIR: Your letter relative to a Quartermaster for your regiment was read. The Congress are of opinion that the Colonels of the different regiments should appoint their own Quartermasters, and give them a warrant. They recommend this mode to Colonel Drake as often as occasion may require it. I am directed to inform you of this.

I remain, sir, your very humble servant,

ROBERT BENSON, Secretary.

To Colonel Lewis Graham.

COLONEL SWARTWOUT TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, March 4, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I was just now informed that Lieutenant Lee, of Captain Rosekran's company of the Provincials, had sent in a letter to your honourable Board, setting forth that he made claim to part of Captain Clark's company of Minutemen, in my regiment. The true state is this, that is to say: Captain Clark raised the greatest part of a company of Minute-men, agreeable to the rules and regulations of the Congress; after which time, Lieutenant Lee tried to enlist some of the company, without being lawfully authorized, as will appear by your minutes; for Captain Clark had come here with his company before Lieutenant Lee had received his warrant for recruiting; so, consequently, what he had done before was void. And when Minute-men and Militia are called into active service, as we are at present, they are to be under the same rules and regulations equal to the Continental Troops, and, consequently, no more liable to have their men enlisted out of their regiment than any other. All I ask is an equal right with the rest of the regiments, agreeable to the rules of Congress.

A recruiting Lieutenant of Captain Barnum's company is returned, with seventeen men, to join the company. I expect daily the others to return, with their recruits, to join their companies. And if my men should thus be liable to be taken away, it will discourage the recruiting officers in the Minute service; but, however, when my regiment is discharged, am very willing they should enter into the Provincial service; but not till then, as they are at present of utility in carrying on the fortifications.

I am, gentlemen, with respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

JACOBUS SWARTWOUT, Colonel.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress of New-York.

COLONEL HAY TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Haverstraw, March 4, 1776.

SIR: I found it impossible to get the regiment of Minute-men completed out of my regiment, to go under the present officers. I was, therefore, obliged to promise them that they should have an opportunity of choosing their own officers, from Captains downwards. As soon as they had that promise, they cheerfully turned out. I must, therefore, request that the Committee of Safety will give commissions to persons that are chosen by the Minute-men that are now going down to New-York. If the officers who are chosen by their privates get their commissions, I am positive that I can get the Minute Regiment completed in a short time.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

A. HAWKES HAY.

To the New-York Congress.

N. B. Excuse this incorrect scrawl, as the men are now on their march, and I have not time to make a fair copy.

To the Honourable Representatives of the Province of NEW-YORK, in Provincial Congress assembled.

The Petition of DAVID SHADDEL, of the City of NEW-YORK, Coachmaker, humbly sheweth:

That your Petitioner, being well affected to the cause of his country, has on all occasions exerted himself, whenever called on, to the utmost of his power and abilities.

That on Sunday, the 18th day of February last, while he was assisting in removing the cannon from the Battery, he had the misfortune to have his hand and arm crushed in a terrible manner, so that he has ever since been incapable of earning anything for the support of his wife and family; and, what adds now to his unhappiness, is, that he has no prospect of getting better for some weeks.

That your Petitioner, for want of work these few months past, is so far reduced in his circumstances, as not to be able to support the increasing expenses which this accident has laid him under, without having recourse to the benevolence of the charitable and well-disposed.

Your Petitioner, therefore, humbly hopes that, as he now suffers in the cause of his country, this honourable Congress will take his case into their consideration, and grant him such relief as they in their wisdom shall think proper.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray,
&c.

New-York, March 4, 1776.

I do hereby certify that the foregoing account of the hurt
David Shaddel received on the 18th ultimo, is true.

JOHN CHARLTON.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO THE SEVERAL COLONELS OF THE MINUTE-MEN AND MILITIA OF THE COLONY.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 4, 1776.

SIR: This accompanies the resolve of Congress requesting you to hold your regiment in readiness to march at a moment's warning. We are apprehensive that the Ministerial Army at Boston may attempt to land in this Colony in a short time. Your zeal for the publick cause, we trust, will stimulate you, and the officers under your command, to use all possible diligence to comply with this resolution. We have only to add that no time should be lost in executing this order, and that you forthwith return to this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, the present state of your regiment, as to the number of men, arms, accoutrements, and ammunition; and, if the Minute Regiments do not compose one-fourth part of the Militia of your County, you are hereby ordered to cause the Minute Regiments to be completed, agreeable to the rules and orders of this Congress, of the 20th of December last.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONGRESS OF NEW-JERSEY.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 4, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: From the intelligence just received from General Washington, there is reason to believe that the Ministerial Troops at Boston are about leaving that city; and as it is probable they will attempt a foothold in some of the Middle United Colonies, we think it expedient that the Militia and Minute Regiments in the Colonies should be ordered to hold themselves in readiness to march on the first alarm. We have given the necessary orders in our own Colony for this purpose, and beg you would issue the like orders in your Colony.

We are, gentlemen, your humble servants.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress, at New-Jersey.

WILLIAM ELLSWORTH TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Kingston, March 4, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We, the Committee of Safety and Observation of the Town of Kingston, on the 29th day of February last past, wrote a letter to General Schuyler, at the request of Captain Elias Hasbrouck, and therein acquainted the General of the intention and inclination of Captain Hasbrouck to be continued in the service, and also the desire of this Committee to continue him; and the answer this Committee received is enclosed in this letter. And as it is agreeable to the Committee that the Captain should be continued in the service, (and you will see that in the General's letter there is no mention made of subaltern officers,) we therefore thought fit to raise the company with expedition, at the request of Captain Hasbrouck, and to recommend these persons, to wit: Moses Yeoman for Second Lieutenant, and Petrus W. Meyer for Ensign; and if these persons meet the approbation of the honourable Provincial Congress, we pray that their warrants be sent up immediately. Respecting the First Lieutenant, the Captain proposes to have him recommended from the Committee under whose District he lives.

We respectfully remain your most obedient humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

WILLIAM ELLSWORTH, Chairman.

To the President of the Provincial Congress in the City of
New-York.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED NORTH-CAROLINA, MARCH 4, 1776.

I now, my worthy friend, most sincerely and heartily congratulate you on the success of the American arms in this Province; and be assured that, let General Clinton land when he pleases, we are ready for him at all points.

Our natural situation gives us many advantages, and the worthy men in this country do not want spirit. Dunmore to the North, and Martin to the South, have given us full employment for some time past, and have already made the whole Province soldiers. It is altogether out of my power to describe the ardour that at this very hour prevails in this Province; almost every man, at an hour's warning, is ready to turn out in his country's cause. Colonel Moore is, by the Council, ordered to disarm all the Highlanders and Regulators, and to take all the ringleaders into custody, to send them to Halifax Jail, and to possess himself of their estates, and to make the return of his proceedings to the Provincial Congress, to be held at Halifax on the 2d of April next; which, it is hoped, will amount to something handsome. His Excellency Brigadier-General Donald McDonald I had the honour of seeing at Newbern. He is far advanced in life, being in the sixty-fifth year of his age. By this time, he is a close prisoner in Halifax Jail, as the Council expressly ordered him there.

The Committee of Safety of Virginia offered our Council assistance, much to their honour; and I verily believe South-Carolina would have offered every relief, had there been any necessity for it; but we had men enough to settle the account current with the Insurgents. Colonels Moore, Martin, Caswell, Polk, Thackston, Lillington, and Long, have great merit. Any one of these gentlemen, in this country, would be an over-match for a Howe, a Burgoyne, or a Clinton. Their knowledge of the country, and necessary modes of attack, would frustrate any attempt fallen upon by the characters last mentioned. The whole Province, in general, consider Regulars in the woods as an easy conquest, and I am firmly of their opinion. How small must Governour Martin feel himself, after promising Government two thousand men, not to have it in his power to supply the Ministry with a single man; and after having, with ostentatious parade, brought up a sloop-of-war and three armed vessels within half a mile of Wilmington, for the purpose of receiving the Regulators and Highlanders from Negro-Head Point, to sneak off with two vessels at a time, after hearing of the defeat of his emissaries; but nothing can equal his quixotism, but that of the Ministry, his masters.

In Colonel Moore's letter, you will observe he mentions a Captain Macleod killed; this man was Adjutant-General of the Highland Regulating Army.

Our troops under Colonel Howe are ordered into this Province immediately. Felix Kenan is a prisoner of ours; that infamous fellow is by this time a prisoner in Halifax Jail. James Hepburn was Secretary to his Excellency Brigadier-General McDonald. The great Colonel Cotton, we hope, by this time, is a prisoner in Halifax Jail.

After the Insurgents gave way, there never was such a scouting hardly ever known before. We expect next Friday to hear of the number of ringleaders taken.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE PROVINCIAL COUNCIL OF NORTH-CAROLINA, DATED NEWBERN, MARCH 5, 1776.

Governour Martin has been too successful in exciting an insurrection of the banditti among the Highlanders and Regulators. We refer you to a copy of Colonel Caswell's letter, and other enclosed papers, for the particular account of them. We have given orders that the persons and properties of the ringleaders should be secured, and that all who were in arms, or aiding and abetting, should be disarmed, and every other effectual measure pursued to prevent their giving Governour Martin any aid in case of the arrival of his expected reinforcements. We have everything to hope from the vigilance, skill, and activity of the officers, and the bravery, spirited, and patriotick behaviour of the troops on this occasion. A noble ardour appeared in every part of the country, through all ranks of people; insomuch that, in less than a fortnight, nine thousand four hundred men and upwards were embodied, and on their march against the enemy; more might have been raised, had they been necessary. We hear that the men-of-war are on their way to Wilmington; the inhabitants have removed all their valuable effects, apprehending that the Governour will prevail on the officers of the men-of-war to act the same tragedy there which Lord Dunmore lately played at Norfolk, to his immortal infamy.

We have ordered that the Provincial Congress should meet at Halifax the second of next month.

We have appointed Committees to confer with Virginia and South-Carolina, on the most proper mode of defence to be adopted by these Colonies the ensuing campaign.

We understand General Clinton is arrived in Virginia with the transports and troops from Boston, but have not yet any advice of the arrival of those expected from Great Britain.

One Mr. Achison, Midshipman of the Syren, with three sailors, were drove over Ocracock Bar in distress, who were taken prisoners and brought to Newbern; the Midshipman and one sailor are sent to Halifax as prisoners, the other two discharged in this town. It appears the Syren had taken a vessel of ours on the coast, and those men were conducting the prize to Boston, when they were forced over the bar.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BRIGADIER-GENERAL JAMES MOORE, IN THE CONTINENTAL SERVICE, TO THE HON. CORNELIUS HARNETT, ESQ., PRESIDENT OF THE PROVINCIAL COUNCIL, NORTH-CAROLINA, DATED WILMINGTON, MARCH 2, 1776.

On the earliest intelligence that the Tories were collecting and embodying at Cross-Creek, which I received on the 9th of February, I proceeded to take possession of Rockfish-Bridge, within seven miles of Cross-Creek, which I considered as an important post. This I effected on the 15th, with my own regiment, five pieces of artillery, and a part of the Bladen Militia; but as our numbers were by no means equal to that of the Tories, I thought it most advisable to intrench and fortify that pass, and wait for a reinforcement. By the 19th, I was joined by Colonel Lillington, with one hundred and fifty of the Wilmington Minute-men, Colonel Kenon, with two hundred of the Duplin Militia, and Colonel Ashe, with about one hundred of the Volunteer Independent Rangers—making our numbers, then, in the whole, about eleven hundred; and from the best information I was able to procure, the Tory Army, under the command of General McDonald, amounted to about fourteen or fifteen hundred.

On the 20th, they marched within four miles of us, and sent in, by a flag of truce, the Governour's Proclamation, a manifesto, and letter from the General, copies of which, together with another letter, and my answers, you have enclosed. I then waited only until Colonel Martin and Colonel Thackston, who, I had certain intelligence, were on their march, should get near enough to cut off their retreat, and determined to avail myself of the first favourable opportunity of attacking them. However, contrary to my expectations, I learned, on the 21st, that they had, the night before and that morning, crossed the North-west River, at Campbelltown, with their whole army, sunk and destroyed all the boats, and taken their route the most direct way to Negro-Head Point. I then despatched an express to Colonel Caswell, who was on his march to join us, with about eight hundred men, and directed him to return and take possession of Corbert's Ferry, over Black River, and, by every means in his power, to obstruct, harass, and distress them in their march; at the same time I directed Colonel Martin and Colonel Thackston to take possession of Cross-Creek, in order to prevent their return that way. Colonel Lillington and Colonel Ashe I ordered, by a forced march, to endeavour, if possible, to reinforce Colonel Caswell; but if that could not be effected, to take possession of Moore's Creek Bridge, whilst I proceeded back with the remainder of our army, to cross the North-west at Elizabethtown, so as either to meet them on their way to Corbert's Ferry, or fall in their rear and surround them there.

On the 23d, I crossed the river at Elizabethtown, where I was compelled to wait for a supply of provisions until the 24th, at night, having learned that Colonel Caswell was almost entirely without. Just when I was prepared to march, I received an express from Colonel Caswell, informing that the Tories had raised a flat which had been sunk in Black River, about five miles above him, and, by erecting a bridge, had passed it with their whole army.

I then determined, as the last expedient, to proceed immediately, in boats, down the North-west River to Dollison's Landing, about sixty miles from them, and to take possession of Moore's Creek Bridge, about ten miles from them; at the same time acquainting Colonel Caswell of my intentions, and recommending to him to retreat to Moore's Creek Bridge, if possible; but if not, to follow on in their rear.

The next day, by four o'clock, we arrived at Dollison's Landing; but as we could not possibly march that night, for want of horses for the artillery, I despatched an express to Moore's Creek Bridge, to learn the situation of affairs there, and was informed that Colonel Lillington, who had the day before taken his stand at the bridge, was that afternoon reinforced by Colonel Caswell, and that they had raised a small breastwork, and destroyed a part of the bridge.

The next morning, (the 27th,) at break of day, an alarm-gun was fired; immediately after which, scarce allowing our people a moment to prepare, the Tory Army, with Captain McCloud at their head, made their attack on Colonel Caswell and Colonel Lillington; and finding a small intrenchment next the bridge, on our side, empty, concluded that our people had abandoned their post, and in the most furious manner advanced within thirty paces of our breastwork and artillery, where they met a very proper reception. Captain McCloud and Captain Campbell fell within a few paces of the breastwork, the former of whom received upwards of twenty balls through his body; and in a very few minutes their whole army was put to the flight, and most shamefully abandoned their General, who was next day taken prisoner.

The loss of the enemy in this action, from the best accounts we have been able to learn, is about thirty killed and wounded; but as numbers of them must have fallen into the creek, besides many more that were carried off, I suppose their loss may be estimated at about fifty. We had only two wounded, one of which died this day.

Thus, sir, I have the pleasure to inform you, has most happily terminated a very dangerous insurrection, and will, I trust, put an effectual check to toryism in this country.

The situation of affairs, in this place, made it necessary for me to return here, which, at the special request of the Committee, I did last night, with my regiment. The large requisitions made by the men-of-war, who now lie just below the town, gave the inhabitants reason to apprehend everything that could be suffered from their disappointed vengeance. However, the Committee have most spiritedly determined rather to suffer the worst of human evils than afford them any supplies at all; and I have no doubt we shall be able to prevent them from doing any great injury.

In order to lessen, as much as possible, the expense incurred by this expedition, I some time ago directed Colonel Martin to disband all the troops under his command except one thousand, including the Regulars, and with those secure the persons and estates of the Insurgents, subject to your further orders, and then to proceed to this place, unless otherwise directed. However, as I do not think the service, just now, requires such a number of men in arms, I shall immediately direct him to disband all except the Regulars, and with those to remain in and about Cross-Creek, until further orders.

COLONEL CASWELL TO NORTH-CAROLINA CONGRESS.

Camp at Long-Creek, February 29, 1776.

SIR: I have the pleasure to acquaint you that we had an engagement with the Tories, at Widow Moore's Creek Bridge, on the 27th current. Our army was about one thousand strong, consisting of the Newbern Battalion of Minute-men, the Militia from Craven, Johnston, Dobbs, and Wake, and a detachment of the Wilmington Battalion of Minute-men, which we found encamped at Moore's Creek the night before the battle, under the command of Colonel Lillington. The Tories, by common report, was three thousand; but General McDonald, whom we have a prisoner, says there were about fifteen or sixteen hundred. He was unwell that day, and not in the battle. Captain MacLeod, who seemed to be the principal commander, with Captain John Campbell, are among the slain.

The number killed and mortally wounded, from the best accounts I was able to collect, was about thirty; most of them were shot on passing the bridge. Several had fallen into the water, some of whom, I am pretty certain, had not risen yesterday evening when I left the camp. Such prisoners as we have made, say there were at least fifty of their men missing.

The Tories were totally put to the rout, and will certainly disperse. Colonel Moore arrived at our camp a few hours after the engagement was over. His troops came up that evening, and are now encamped on the ground where the battle was fought. And Colonel Martin is at or near Cross-Creek, with a large body of men. Those, I presume, will be sufficient effectually to put a stop to any attempt to embody again. I therefore, with Colonel Moore's consent, am returning to Newbern, with the troops under my command, where I hope to receive your orders to dismiss them. There I intend carrying the General. If the Council should rise before my arrival, be pleased to give order in what manner he shall be disposed of. Our officers and men behaved with the spirit and intrepidity becoming freemen, contending for their dearest privileges.

RICHARD CASWELL.

To the Hon. Cornelius Harnett, President of the Provincial Congress of North-Carolina.

DONALD McDONALD, ESQ., LATELY CREATED BRIGADIER-GENERAL IN THE TORY ARMY BY GOVERNOUR MARTIN, TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL MOORE.

Head-Quarters, February 19, 1776.

SIR: I herewith send the bearer, Donald Morrison, by advice of the Commissioners appointed by his Excellency Josiah Martin, and in behalf of the Army now under my command, to propose terms to you as friends and countrymen. I must suppose you unacquainted with the Governor's Proclamation, commanding all his Majesty's loyal subjects to repair to the King's royal standard, else I should have imagined you would, ere this, have joined the King's Army, now engaged in his Majesty's service. I have therefore thought it proper to intimate to you, that, in case you do not, by twelve o'clock to-morrow, join the Royal standard, I must consider you as enemies, and take the necessary steps for the support of legal authority.

I beg leave to remind you of his Majesty's speech to his Parliament, wherein he offers to receive the misled with tenderness and mercy, from motives of humanity. I again beg of you to accept the proffered clemency. I make no doubt but you will show the gentleman sent on this message every possible civility; and you may depend, in return, that all your officers and men which may fall into our hands, shall be treated with an equal degree of respect.

I have the honour to be, in behalf of the Army, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

DONALD McDONALD.

To the Commanding Officer at Rockfish.

P. S. His Excellency's Proclamation is herewith enclosed.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL MOORE'S ANSWER.

Camp at Rockfish, February 19, 1776.

SIR: Yours of this day I have received; in answer to which I must inform you, that the terms which you are pleased to say, in behalf of the Army under your command, are offered to us as friends and countrymen, are such as neither my duty or inclinations will permit me to accept, and which I must presume you too much of an officer to expect of me. You were very right when you supposed me unacquainted with the Governor's Proclamation; but as the terms therein proposed are such as I hold incompatible with the freedom of Americans, it can be no rule of conduct for me. However, should I not hear further from you before twelve o'clock to-morrow, by which time I shall have an opportunity of consulting my officers here, and perhaps Colonel Martin, who is in the neighbourhood of Cross-Creek; you may expect a more particular answer; mean time you may be assured that the feelings of humanity will induce me to show that civility to such of your people as may fall into our hands, as I am desirous should be observed towards those of ours, who may be unfortunate enough to fall into yours.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
JAMES MOORE.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL MOORE TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL McDONALD.

Camp at Rockfish, February 20, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to my promise of yesterday, I have consulted the officers under my command, respecting your letter, and am happy in finding them unanimous in opinion with me. We consider ourselves engaged in a cause the most glorious and honourable in the world, the defence of the liberties of mankind, in support of which we are determined to hazard everything dear and valuable; and in tenderness to the deluded people under your command, permit me, sir, through you, to inform them, before it is too late, of the dangerous and destructive precipice on which they stand, and to remind them of the ungrateful return they are about to make for their favourable reception in this country. If this is not sufficient to recall them to the duty which they owe to themselves and their posterity, inform them that they are engaged in a cause in which they cannot succeed, as not only the whole force of this country, but that of our neighbouring Provinces, is exerting and now actually in motion to suppress them, and which must end in their utter destruction. Desirous, however, of avoiding the effusion of human blood, I have thought proper to send you a copy of the Test recommended by the Continental Congress, which, if they will yet subscribe and lay down their arms, by twelve o'clock to-morrow, we are willing to receive them as friends and countrymen. Should this offer be rejected, I shall consider them as enemies to the constitutional liberties of America, and treat them accordingly.

I cannot conclude without reminding you, sir, of the oath which you and some of your officers took at Newbern, on your arrival to this country, which I imagine you will find difficult to reconcile to your present conduct. I have no doubt that the bearer, Captain James Walker, will be treated with proper civility and respect in your camp.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
J. MOORE.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL McDONALD TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL MOORE.

Head-Quarters, February 20, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour by Captain James Walker, and observed you declared sentiments of revolt, hostility, and rebellion to the King, and to what I understand to be the Constitution of this country. If I am mistaken, future consequences must determine; but while I continue in my present sentiments, I shall consider myself embarked in a cause which must, in its consequences, extricate this country from anarchy and licentiousness. I cannot conceive that the Scots Emigrants, to whom I imagine you allude, can be under greater obligations to this country than to that King under whose gracious and merciful Government they alone could have been enabled to visit this Western region: and I trust, sir, it is in the womb of time to say, that they are not that deluded and ungrateful people which you would represent them to be. As a soldier in his Majesty's service, I must inform you, if you are yet to learn, that it is my duty to conquer, if I cannot reclaim all those who may be hardy enough to take up arms against the best of masters, as of Kings.

I have the honour to be, in behalf of the Army under my command, sir, your most obedient servant,

DONALD McDONALD.

To James Moore, Esq.

"That we should all be subdued by the month of May, by the King's Troops. That General Gage deserved to be damned; he had not let the Guards out to Bunker's Hill, and it would have settled the dispute at that time. That there was forty-seven thousand Troops expected soon to America, and it would be in vain to pretend to defend ourselves against them." All which the said William Bourk acknowledged, and further said, "he wished the time would happen this instant; but was sure the Americans would be subdued by the month of August."

Ordered, That Henry Young be appointed First Major of the Regiment of Militia for the County of New-Hanover, and that John Dubois be appointed Second Major and Adjutant in the same Regiment.

Resolved, That the Committee of the Town of Salisbury be allowed the sum of five Pounds ten Shillings for Express, and for conveying a Tory Captain to South-Carolina, being for money advanced; that the Treasurers, or either of them, pay the same, and be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Council be given to Colonel James Moore, and all the brave Officers and Soldiers of every denomination, for their late very important services rendered their country, in effectually suppressing the late daring and dangerous insurrection of the Highlanders and Regulators; and that this Resolve be published in the North-Carolina Gazette.

Resolved, That all persons who shall be disarmed by the Town and County Committees, and other suspected persons who have not taken up arms against this Colony, shall be required to take the following Oath, on pain of imprisonment, viz:

"I do solemnly and sincerely swear on the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, that during the present unhappy contest between Great Britain and America, I will not, under any pretence whatever, oppose, or take up arms to oppose, the measures of the Continental or Provincial Congress, or any Troops raised by, or acting under, the authority of either; nor will I directly, or indirectly, either personally or by letter, counsel, advise, or give intelligence to any of his Majesty's Governours, Generals, Officers, Soldiers, or others, employed by land or sea, to carry into execution and enforce obedience to the several acts of the British Legislature, deemed oppressive to these Colonies. I will not, by example, opinion, advice, or persuasion, endeavour to prejudice the people, or any of them, in favour of Parliamentary measures, or against those recommended by the General and Provincial Congresses, until it shall please God to restore peace and good understanding to the contending powers."

Resolved, That either of the Publick Treasurers draw on the Continental Treasury for two hundred and twenty-five Dollars, in favour of Samuel Johnston, Thomas Jones, and Thomas Person, Esqs., for their expenses to Virginia on the publick service, and be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

It appearing to this Council, that Lott Strange, master, and John Strange, owner, of the Sloop Kingfisher, have been guilty of importing certain British European Goods, contrary to the Continental Association,

Resolved, That the said Lott Strange and John Strange enter into Bond in the sum of five hundred Pounds, to the Committee of Perquimans County, for their future good behaviour, and that they depart the Port with their said Vessel in ballast, within one month from this day; and when the said Lott Strange and John Strange shall have given such Bond, then the said Committee is hereby directed to deliver up the said Sloop Kingfisher, with her tackle, apparel, and furniture, and other property belonging to the said Lott and John Strange.

Resolved, That Colonel Richard Caswell send, under a sufficient guard, Brigadier-General Donald McDonald, taken at the battle of Moore's Creek Bridge, to the Town of Halifax, and there to have him committed a close prisoner in the Jail of the said Town, until further orders.

Farquard Campbell was brought before this Council by Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Rhodes, under a warrant from Colonel Moore; and no sufficient proof appearing against the said Farquard Campbell,

Resolved, That he be allowed to depart at this time, and appear at the Provincial Congress the 2d day of April next.

The said Farquard Campbell then personally promised and undertook to appear at the time and place aforesaid, to answer such matters and things as he should be then and there charged with.

Resolved, That Captain Robert Rowan be empowered to summon and enforce the attendance of such persons at the next Provincial Congress, to be held at Halifax, on the 2d day of April next, as he shall think to be material witnesses against Farquard Campbell, of Cumberland County, respecting a charge against the said Farquard Campbell, of some conduct inimical to the cause of America and this Province, in the late insurrection of the Highlanders and Regulators.

CORNELIUS HARNETT, President.

By order:

JAMES GREEN, Jun., Clerk.

Williamsburgh, Virginia, March 5, 1776.

The Tories and tools of Administration are constantly crying out that the Congress is aiming at independence, and pretend now that they would wish to see America put into the situation it was in the year 1763. I say pretend, now, because now they find it impossible to bring America to the abject state of slavery they were willing to reduce her, and have no hopes of succeeding in their scheme of despotism, unless they can take advantage of our love of the British Constitution, and attachment to Great Britain, by alarming us with the thoughts of a separation, by raising a distrust in the Congress, and fears of an unsettled and imperfect republick, or, at the same time, by lulling us into a state of security, and flattering us with an expectation of an accommodation. That the Ministry (whatever Lord North may be supposed to mean by something he said to that effect) do not wish to see us restored to the situation we were in 1763, must be evident from their not embracing the offers of the Congress to accept of those terms; for if they desired it—if they preferred peace to war, and were willing to put a stop to the effusion of the blood of their fellow-subjects, they would have eagerly embraced the petition of the Congress, and made it the basis of an honourable negotiation, which must speedily have brought about a happy and lasting reconciliation. But the King, who had early imbibed principles of despotism, and who has found means to make himself absolute, even in England, by means of a venal Parliament and a servile army of sycophants, and who has lately tasted the sweets (it was but a taste) of an absolute monarch, in his Kingdom of Quebeck, was determined not to admit it as a basis of a negotiation, scorning to treat with Rebels; and declaring, from his throne, that we meant but to deceive and "lull him into a security, by professions of attachment and loyalty, whilst we were preparing for war." And from the King's speech, the world would suppose that we had so far got the start of him, in our preparations, that he was obliged to call in foreign troops to his assistance. His Majesty, does, it is true, most graciously say, "It may not be amiss to empower certain persons to pardon such offenders as shall repent and turn from their evil ways." But he says nothing like what his tools here have said; nor can there be the least foundation for the report, which was lately so industriously propagated, viz: That several of the obnoxious acts were repealed, and that Commissioners were on their way to Philadelphia, to treat with the Congress. Whoever will read the vote of the House of Commons, on Lord North's motion, of November 28th, and the resolve of the Irish House of Commons, on Friday, the 21st of November, and will also consider the great preparations England is making for a war, the arrival of men-of-war with transports here, and knows that Lord Dunmore is actually intrenching at Tucker's Mills, that he is daily recruiting his army of slaves, that there has lately been a dangerous commotion in North-Carolina, and that the English commander at Detroit has instigated some Indians to make an attack on our frontiers, who have actually scalped several people—I say, whoever knows and considers these things, must see that the story of Commissioners, repeal, and accommodation, was intended but to lull us into security, or to insult and mock us. It is therefore high time to look to ourselves; and if we cannot enjoy the privileges of Englishmen, when connected with them, let us instantly break off those fetters of affection which have hitherto bound us to them; and if England calls in foreign assistance, let us follow the wisdom of her example, and do so likewise.

TALBOT COUNTY COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee, Talbot County, March 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In answer to a letter from you, requesting our sentiments of a place the most proper for the Independent Company, appointed by the Convention, to be stationed in this County, we beg leave to propose Oxford, which, in our opinion, is the most convenient for that purpose.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL JOHN HALL.

[No. 29.]

Annapolis, March 5, 1776.

SIR: We hear that a forty-four-gun man-of-war and two sloops are on their way up the bay. The city is but weak, and we judge it necessary to have all the men drawn to town we can, for its defence. We should be glad you will give directions to all the companies and men in your battalion, that can be got ready, to repair, as soon as possible, to town. We should be glad to see you as early in the morning as you can.

We are, &c.

To Colonel John Hall.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONELS DORSEY AND WEEMS.

[No. 30.]

Annapolis, March 5, 1776.—Eight o'clock at night.

SIR: The Council of Safety have this moment received, by express, an account that a large ship-of-war and two tenders were, this afternoon, considerably above the mouth of Patuxent, and it is supposed they are now off Annapolis. Whether they entered into our river or to Baltimore, is not known. But be their destination to either place, it is absolutely necessary to have your battalion in readiness to march at an hour's warning.

We are, &c.

TO THE APOLOGIST.

Philadelphia, March 5, 1776.

SIR: Every fresh opportunity of defending injured innocence must afford an uncommon degree of pleasure to so generous a mind as that of the Apologist. Give me leave, sir, to lay before you another part of the conduct of our Assembly, on which to exercise your benevolence. I have long lamented their great inattention to the rights of their constituents; but, lest I should be esteemed a carper, or desirous of hurting their influence or utility, I kept it to myself until your appearance. But as the principles on which you form your apology are new to me, I make no doubt but you will be able to remove any uneasiness at what I think an usurpation of our rights, or an ignorance of our rank in society.

The whole period I mean to lay before you commenced with the summer of the year 1774, and will end with the day on which they shall relinquish the usurped and illegal claims; and I charge all upon our present Assembly—not because they began or will end the usurpation, but because they continue it, while it is fully in their power to remove it forever.

I hold it as a firm principle in my politicks, that the powers of legislation can only be conferred by the society at large, and that freemen never intrust their representatives with the right of transferring it. I also hold it equally firm, that the right of instructing lies with the constituents, and them only; that the representatives are bound to regard them as the dictates of their masters, and not left at liberty to comply with or reject them, as they may think proper. These are my data, and on these I found what I offer for your consideration.

In the summer of the year 1774, Committees were fairly chosen throughout the Province, and directed by their constituents to meet in Convention, and there fix upon a mode to have the Province fairly and fully represented in Congress. They met accordingly, and finally agreed that three out of their own body, and four out of the House of Assembly, should be Delegates for the Province. They further agreed to leave the final nomination of the whole to the House, and only to recommend the three out of their own body, by name, little suspecting that the House would ever set up claims inconsistent with the desires of their constituents. The Convention accordingly recommended three out of their own body, at the same time requesting that four out of the House should be added to them, the whole to receive their nomination from the House; but the Assembly not only rejected the three recommended by the Convention, but refused to admit the members of the Convention to hear their debates on the occasion; and publicly declared, that the request of their constituents was inconsistent with their privileges, and that they could not, in duty to their constituents, comply with their desires. This principle, then avowed and since acted upon, is, in my opinion, more destructive of liberty than any claim of Great Britain; for if representatives, chosen by ourselves and clothed with our authority, are, in consequence, to hold rights inconsistent with ours, farewell to liberty.

They refused to nominate the men of our choice, purely because they were our choice; for the very next year, when we ceased to hold them out as our choice, they nominated them, though, in so doing, they were obliged to contradict every principle on which they founded their former refusal. They thereby convinced us that they meant to hold prerogatives which would be as inconsistent with our interest as they were alien to the Constitution. I confess to you, sir, that the freemen tacitly betrayed their own cause in permitting them to do so. But this by-the-bye. I hope it will not interfere with your apology.

Finding we were fairly asleep, and not to be waked by this conduct, they have adopted their last plan as best answering their purposes; for by it they can have such a representation in Congress, and Committee of Safety, as they choose, and all power will finally be stolen out of the hands of the people. You, sir, I doubt not, are satisfied of this. If you are not, only converse an hour with any member of our Committee of Inspection, and he will tell you how much authority is left in their hands, though the only body legally chosen on the present occasion. Look around you, and you will see Delegates in Congress, and members in our Committee of Safety, whom the free choice of the people would not admit in our Committee of Inspection, not to say into the House of Assembly. Thus the right of election is fairly lost, and we may no longer complain of attempts to tax us without our consent; for if matters continue in their present channel, we shall not only be taxed without, but against our consent.

If my memory serves me, a worthy member of the then Assembly, on the 18th of June, 1774, pointed out to the freemen of this city, in the clearest and strongest terms, the danger of committing the choice of Delegates to the Assembly. But the eloquence of another prevailed; and to please one man, we then relinquished a right which will never be exercised to our advantage until we resume it. Our Assembly has as good a right to elect a King for us as to appoint one man to represent us in Congress or Committee of Safety; especially such as is not of their own body. I will boldly affirm, that they cannot retain that privilege but at the expense of our liberties. You have apologized, I acknowledge, for the kind of instructions given to their Delegates in Congress; but you have passed over what is infinitely more important—the right they had to instruct them at all.

You are a pretty good hand at framing apologies, and I assure you I start matters which may stand in need of them, purely for the good of my country, and from a desire to establish our liberties. You will do me the favour, therefore, to offer a proper salve for such proceedings, as I cannot think they were bound by their oaths to behave in this manner. But if you see these matters in the light I do, I trust you will join me in recommending to the House to adopt some plan, at the present sitting, whereby every person, who is to be our representative in any publick body, may be annually elected, as the members of the House are, by the freemen at large, and thereby be brought under their control, as they ought to be, but at present are not. This measure would be such an apology as would effectually remove all suspicion of danger or dangerous designs. If not, a Convention ought to do it. To leave it undone is, in effect, to give up our liberties.

THE CENSOR.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE TO THE SEVERAL COUNTY COMMITTEES OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia, March 5, 1776.

The Committee for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia have always been attentive to the important duty enjoined upon them by the resolution of the late Provincial Convention, to call another Convention when they may judge it necessary. But though many circumstances have occurred which seemed to invite a general conference, yet the Committee have been willing to hope that security against every impending evil would have been procured, without subjecting the Province to the trouble and expense, at this uncomfortable season of the year, of appointing Deputies, and attending in Convention. They would have been happy could they have found their expectation so fully answered as the exigence of the times required. On a review of the proceedings of the late sessions of Assembly, from a prospect of the very vigorous measures resolved upon by the British Administration, which the latest accounts assure us may every day be expected to take place; alarmed at the appearance of intrigue, by the appointment of Commissioners (as it is given out) to treat with the Colonies, though we have reason to believe they are invested only with an insulting power to pardon, (perhaps to corrupt and divide,) the Committee judged they could not acquit themselves to their own consciences, to you, and to the American interest, had they not given the Province an immediate opportunity of a conference, in which they might speak the unrestrained language of determined freemen, and act with that vigour which has ever been the characteristic of Pennsylvania, when free from the influence of partial counsels. The Committee were of opinion, at a late meeting, that a Provincial Convention ought to be called.

Among other subjects, which they proposed for consideration, they had the following in view:

As the opposition given to the present measures arises chiefly from the members representing the three interior Counties, who constitute a majority of the House, though two of them are inferior to several other of the Counties which have not half their number of members, the proceedings of the Assembly might more properly be said to be the proceedings of those three Counties than of the Province in general; to concert means therefore of effecting a more full and equal Representation, the Committee thought an object worthy your immediate attention; conducive to the strength and dignity of the House of Assembly; and essentially necessary to the safety of this Province in particular, and the United Colonies in general.

As the present unequal Representation is the ground of every other complaint, the Committee had this principally in view. There are others which are attended with immediate danger, and, we thought, required immediate remedy. To name them will be sufficient:

Our Military Association labours under the imperfections and injustice of the "Rules and Articles," though almost a year has been employed in framing and correcting them.

The providing of Arms, &c., has been first intrusted, and since continued, (notwithstanding remonstrances,) to persons who have in some instances so far neglected the duty as that they have it yet almost to begin.

The Military measures of the Province are under the direction of a Committee of Safety, many of the members not having the authority of the people, notwithstanding a power of so great importance ought not to be intrusted to others than their immediate Representatives.

The appointment of gentlemen as Delegates from this Province in Congress, who are not of the Assembly, and the instructions given to them, by which they are bound to disclose every, even military movement, and are prevented from the free exercise of their judgments as the necessity of the times may require, appear unsafe, as well as dishonourable; to have a direct tendency to countenance the illiberal insinuations of our enemies; to create jealousies and divisions among ourselves; and to mislead the neighbouring Colonies into a false opinion of the sense of this Province.

These, gentlemen, are the objects the Committee had in view to recommend to your attention. They also wished to confer with you on the means of giving the aid of the back Counties to the exposed parts of this Province on the navigable waters, should they be actually invaded, and their trade suspended, agreeable to your virtuous resolution at the late Convention. These being provided for, we doubt not the Province would sustain its part in the present unhappy, yet noble contest, with dignity to itself, and safety to the whole. And we rely that the united representation of the Deputies of the Province on that occasion convened, or such other means as their wisdom might have proposed, would have been effectual to give full relief.

But, gentlemen, we have further to inform you that, after having passed the vote for holding a Convention, the Committee had the pleasure of a conference with several of the members of the House; and they found, with great satisfaction, that those gentlemen indulged themselves in the hopes that a full and equal representation would be obtained, in consequence of petitions now before the honourable House, from several of the Counties, and that the other matters would be attended to. The Committee, therefore, have ordered us, their Committee of Correspondence, not to forward, for the present, their letters for calling the Convention; and have instructed us to communicate to you the foregoing information; and, also, that they have prepared petitions, to be signed by the inhabitants of this city, concurring in the prayer for a more equal representation, the event of which we wait.

By order of the Committee, and in their behalf, we are, gentlemen, your friends, &c.

THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Committee-Chamber, March 5, 1776.

Whereas some persons in this City, whose affluence ought to set them above the temptation of taking an advantage of the distresses of their fellow-citizens, have, within a few days, engrossed great quantities of Salt, Rum, Cocoa, Coffee, Pepper, Sugar, and Molasses, in order to sell them again at exorbitant prices, and thus add to the calamities of our country, while it is struggling under the oppressions of a bloody and vindictive Ministry.

Resolved, therefore, That this Committee will most steadily oppose such base and cruel practices, and expose the authors of them, of whatever rank and degree in life. For which purpose the District Committees are requested to make immediate inquiry into the grounds of this complaint, and report to this Committee, to-morrow evening, the names of those persons whom they find, or have good reason to suspect, of such practices, in order that justice may be done to our suffering country, and those persons meet with the infamy and treatment they deserve.

By order of the Committee of Inspection, &c.

PETER Z. LLOYD, Secretary.

GENERAL LEE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read and debated, March 9, 1776.]

New-York, March 5, 1776.

SIR: I received your commands on Sunday evening, and should have answered them immediately, but waited for the result of an application I had made to Waterbury's and Ward's Regiments, requesting them to remain here until they can be replaced by a certain number of troops from Philadelphia and the Jerseys. They have unanimously consented to stay till the 25th of this month, which is a fortnight longer than the term they were enlisted for. Before the expiration of this time, I am in hopes that some measures will be taken by the Congress, for throwing into the city, its environs, and Long-Island, a force sufficient to dispute the ground with any number of troops we have reason to expect; not that I would imply that those two Connecticut Regiments remaining here would be able to prevent the landing and lodging themselves in the island, of even five battalions of the enemy, should they choose to attempt it, but these two regiments will enable us at least to lay the foundation of the necessary works. I have ordered a regiment from the Jerseys, who will be here, I hope, in a few days. I shall not, sir, trouble you with a detail of our intended works, as I shall have the honour of paying my respects in person to the Congress in a very few days, for on Thursday it is my intention to set out.

I am in very little pain about the execution of what we have concerted, as it is committed to the hands of Lord Stirling, who shows much intelligence and activity. As this place will probably be the scene of a good deal of action, it would be prudent to add something to their present stock of ammunition. I find by their returns, that there is in the whole Colony, (that sent up to Fort Constitution included,) five tons and a half.

The numerous body of professed Tories in Long and Staten Islands, with not a few within the walls of the city, is a most alarming consideration. The measure adopted by the Provincial Congress, of obliging them to give bonds as a security for their good behaviour, can answer no purpose but that of rendering them more bitter and virulent. The first regiments of our gracious Sovereign's cut-throats which arrive here will indubitably cancel these bonds. I am well assured, indeed, that these bonds are made a publick joke of already by the worthy gentlemen who gave them. In short, the friends to liberty are, to a man, convinced that the Tories will take arms when encouraged by the appearance of any Royal troops. The delicacy of our situation, and the dangerous crisis of affairs, have therefore determined me to take a decisive step, which alone, according to my judgment, can secure us. I have offered a test, drawn up in such terms that, refusal or consent to take it, must be a criterion by which we may be able to distinguish those whose swords are whetted to plunge into the vitals of their country, and whose (if not drawn in defence of the common rights) may be expected to remain quietly in their scabbards. The first I have directed to be seized without further ceremony; and I should think myself highly criminal in omitting so salutary a step, before it is too late. Perhaps I judge wrong; if I do, I must myself take the shame of being reputed weak, rash, and precipitate. The intelligence I have received from General Washington will, at all events, justify in some measure my dispensing with forms.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

GENERAL LEE TO COLONEL ISAAC SEARS.

New-York, March 5, 1776.

SIR: As I have received intelligence from the Commander-in-Chief that there is the greatest reason to expect very soon at this place a considerable army of the enemy, it appears to me that I should be in the highest degree culpable, that I should be responsible to God, my own conscience, and to the Continent of America, in suffering, at so dangerous a crisis, a knot of professed foes to liberty and their country to remain any longer within our own bosom, either to turn openly against us in arms, (in conjunction with the enemy,) or covertly to furnish them with intelligence, and carry on a correspondence, to the ruin of their country. I must desire that you will offer the enclosed Test to the people of whom I send you a list. Their refusal might be considered an avowal of their hostile intentions. You are therefore to secure their persons, and, without loss of time, to send them up, as irreclaimable enemies to their country, to close custody in Connecticut. Richard Hulot is to have no conditions offered to him, but to be secured without ceremony. I am, sir, yours,

CHARLES LEE, Major-General.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Sears, Deputy Adjutant-General.

COLONEL NICOLL TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Fort Constitution, March 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This garrison is greatly in want of many articles at present, especially sauce, beef, soap, candles, drink, and fuel; neither have we had any fresh provisions for two months past, the want of which is a great discouragement to the men, as they work daily. We are also in want of pots, tramsels, bowls, and dishes, for the barracks, as there are none here but what the Commissioners claim, and say they must have, to carry to Pooploop's Kill. There must be a sufficient quantity of those necessities provided and sent here shortly, or the garrison will be in a bad situation when the Commissioners call for theirs. I should not have troubled you with these matters, but have wrote to Mr. Livingston, according to your directions, formally on that head, and received for answer, that Mr. Phelps, who was appointed to provide for this garrison, would be here in a short time, and make the necessary provision; but he has not attended yet, neither do I know when he will.

Enclosed you have an account delivered to me by the Commissioners, for powder, ball, and cartridge-paper, by them delivered to Captain Raymond, previous to my taking the command here; none of which he returned. You can deal with him, for them, as you think proper. Several of the Minute-men now in garrison are destitute of guns; neither are they able to procure them, by reason of their scarcity, and there is a number of good arms in store, but the Commissioners are not willing to let them go without orders, as they were directed to keep them safe in their custody. I think it would be prudent to let the men have arms and accoutrements, so as to be properly equipped, in order that they may be disciplined to the use of them, provided the commanding officer of any such deficient company will give his receipt for them, and engage to return them, when he is discharged from this garrison, as good as he received them.

I shall be able in a few days to make a return of the state of my regiment, having despatched the necessary orders for that purpose. It is absolutely necessary that a baker should be fixed here upon some certain principle, there having been no provision made by the Commissary for that purpose. While Captain Raymond commanded, he gave flour to a baker, who returned an equal weight of bread, and allowed him soldier's pay, with all necessary attendance; which I think is too much wages, amounting to ten or twelve pounds per month. I have partly agreed with the same man, who is a good baker, and now out of the service, for four pounds per month, but he requires to have his wood, and people to attend upon him, and I do not know what to do about closing the bargain. Would be glad of some instructions in the premises, or that a baker may be otherwise appointed.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

ISAAC NICOLL.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, March 5, 1776, Present:

An order was this day given to Jonathan Fitch, Esq., to furnish Provisions for the Brig Defence for a cruise of nine weeks.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, March 14, 1776, Present:

His Honour the Governour, Eliphalet Dyer, Jabez Huntington, William Williams, Jedediah Elderkin, Joshua West, Nathaniel Wales, Jun., and Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

Voted, That Mr. John McCleave, of New-Haven, be, and he is hereby, appointed Second Lieutenant of the Brig Defence, instead of Lieutenant Hopkins, resigned.

Voted, That Captain Joseph Thompson be, and he is hereby, appointed as a Lieutenant, to enlist thirty Men to carry on and finish the Works begun at Black-Rock, in New-Haven, and to serve as troops under command of said Thompson at said Works, or where they shall be ordered in defence of this Colony, until further orders. Said Lieutenant Thompson to appoint two Sergeants to assist him in said service.

Whereas, the Treasurer of this Colony is doubtful concerning his duty to receive the Continental Bills into the Treasury in discharge of publick Taxes, laid by Act of the General Assembly, to be paid in Bills of Credit of this Colony, or silver or gold; and thereon he hath made application to the Governour and his Committee, appointed to assist him in the recess of the General Assembly, for their advice. And, whereas, it is necessary to support the union of the Colonies, and the free circulation and credit of Continental Bills, that they be received in all payments. Thereupon it is,

Resolved, (By the Governour and his Council aforesaid,) That it is their clear and unanimous opinion, that the Treasurer take and receive the Continental Bills, so called, in all payments in the Treasury, and that he notify the same in the publick newspapers, that the Constables and Collectors of Taxes in this Colony may conform themselves accordingly.

Voted unanimously.

Orders made for Captain Edward Mott to repair with his Company to his station at Groton, and advise the Governour, from time to time, of his situation and proceedings, &c.

Voted, That Eliphalet Dyer and William Williams, Esqs., be appointed a Committee to repair to Philadelphia, and apply to Continental Congress for a remittance of Continental Bills due this Colony, and bring forward the sum received. To inform of the situation and circumstances of our two Regiments sent to New-York, and receive directions concerning them. To ask the loan of Cannon from New-York; and also desire the Colonels of the two Connecticut Regiments to remain there until further instructions. And to confer with our Delegates and others, on the matters relative to the state of the United Colonies, and the things needful for our defence and security, and to follow such instructions as are given them; and make report accordingly.

Voted, That Jabez Huntington and Benjamin Huntington, Esqs., be appointed a Committee to take the best advice they think proper concerning the mode of rigging the Row-Galley now building by Captain Lester, and order said Galley to be rigged accordingly.

And dismissed till next Tuesday.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, March 18, 1776, Present:

His Honour the Governour, Eliphalet Dyer, Jabez Huntington, William Williams, Nathaniel Wales, Jedediah Elderkirk, Joshua West, and Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

Called by special order of the Governour on receiving advice from General Washington, that the Troops were withdrawing from Boston, and bound, as he supposes, to New-York, and entreating that two thousand men from the frontiers of this Colony may be forthwith thrown into New-York, till he can march his Army there.

Samuel Bryant and Zebulon White were present, who had been sent for near Middleborough, &c., as Cannon Founder and Moulder, &c. The first demands two Dollars, and the other one and one-third Dollar per day, and to be supported. And having great necessity of them, and they affirming that they have had, and are offered the same near home, it is, therefore, and on that ground, agreed to allow them that pay and support. But it is agreed and understood, that if said Bryant does not succeed, he is to have no other allowance than his support. And they are desired and sent forward to Salisbury for the purpose of pursuing the business of making Cannon, &c.

It is Voted, That Colonel Joshua Porter be, and he is hereby, appointed chief Provider and Overseer of the works at the Furnace in Salisbury, and to do whatever shall be needful and proper to promote the publick service at that place, observing such orders as shall be given to him from time to time by his Honour the Governour and this Council, or the General Assembly of this Colony, and keep proper accounts, to be rendered when required. (And this sent in a Letter to said Porter by said workmen.)

In consequence of a Letter from General Washington to his Honour, of the 14th instant, informing that the enemy have embarked their Troops, and are now making a shameful retreat from Boston, and destined, in all probability, to New-York, a place, as he says, of infinite importance, both to them and us, and that much depends upon the priority of possession; and therefore entreating us immediately to throw two thousand men into that City, from the frontiers of this Colony, to maintain the place till he can arrive there with the Army under his command.

It is, on consideration, Voted and Resolved, as the unanimous opinion of this Board, That the emergency of the present case is fully within the meaning and provision of the law of this Colony providing for the relief and succour of any towns or places attacked by the enemy, or in danger thereof. And that the present is a very important case, and may in its consequences determine the fate of America. And that therefore his Honour the Governour be advised, and he is advised, to give immediate orders to the Colonels or present commanding Officers of the Fourth, Ninth, Sixteenth, Second, Seventh, Tenth, and Twenty-Third Regiments of Militia, forthwith to assemble their respective Regiments in whole or in parts, as they shall judge most proper, and unless a suitable proportion, as hereafter mentioned, shall freely and forthwith voluntarily, (as is hoped they will,) offer themselves, that they immediately detach the following numbers of able-bodied men from their respective Regiments, viz: From the Fourth Regiment, three hundred and sixty; from the Ninth, three hundred and sixty, and from the Sixteenth, one hundred and eighty men, inclusive of Officers, or very nearly, and not exceeding those numbers, to be formed into one Regiment or Battalion, to consist of ten Companies of ninety men each, including Officers, and to be under the command of Colonel G. Sellick Silliman, Lieutenant-Colonel John Mead, and Major John Chandler, and under such Captains and other Officers in the present Militia, or that have been lately in service, as the Field-Officers in the several Regiments from which they may be taken or drafted shall appoint or agree to. And that from the Second Regiment, two hundred and seventy; from the Seventh, three hundred and sixty; from the Tenth, one hundred and eighty, and from the Twenty-Third, ninety men, including Officers, or very nearly, but not exceeding that number, to be formed into one Regiment or Battalion, to consist of ten Companies of ninety men each, including Officers, and to be under the command of Colonel Matthew Talcott, Lieutenant-Colonel Jabez Thompson, and Major Silvanus Graves, and such Captains and other Officers as aforesaid, as the Field-Officers in the several Regiments from which they may be taken or drafted, shall appoint or agree to: and that said Regiments forthwith march, or repair by land or water to New-York, to be under the command of the Commander-in-Chief there, to assist in securing and maintaining that place until General Washington can arrive there with the Army under his command, and they be properly dismissed, which may be soon expected. And while in service they to be entitled to the same wages, &c., as the other Troops in the New-England Colonies are entitled to.

Jonathan Fitch, Esq., and Captain Samuel Squire, are appointed to make proper provision for the march and transportation of the Troops now ordered to New-York, by land or water, as shall be found best, and for their subsistence on their march or passage, if need be, keeping clear accounts to be laid before Congress.

And on consideration is granted to be erected at New-Haven, with condition and expectation that the matter be pursued and perfected with all possible despatch.

Colonel Doolittle objects, &c., and I am not willing, &c. And considered and advised that the Governour will please to propose proper instructions, &c., and lay them before the next meeting, &c.

Mr. Waters, one of the Engineers, came in, and discoursed about the matter of the Fortifications at New-London, &c., and urges to be excused from that service, from an apprehension that Colonel Mott and he should not agree, &c., &c.; but are not willing to release him, but advise that he go down directly, and assist in the best manner, &c., &c.

C. DUGAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, March 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour is now before me, desiring my baking the remainder of your flour as quick as possible, which I am not able to do, on account of the low price you have allowed: This last three months we have sunk considerable money in baking for you, owing to the great advance in the price of wood, wages, provisions, &c.; that we have been obliged to make an entire stop of baking your flour in my hands, which we are sorry for. At the time I began to bake for you, wood was bought from eight shillings to ten shillings per cord, and most other articles in proportion. We have been obliged all this winter to give from twenty shillings to thirty shillings for wood, and much such prices for everything else. However, the bearer, Mr. Hollingsworth, can inform you better than I can of the rise of almost every necessary of life, and the impossibility of baking now for you at three shillings per hundred. I imagine we have got baked, of your flour, about one thousand barrels, and have yet on hand about four or five hundred barrels, yet unbaked, which I wish was baked, as it is growing very bad.

I have a brig lying in Boston, New-England, that will carry about twelve hundred barrels of flour; a fine vessel, and well found; have a good man as master for her, that can be much depended on as to conduct and attachment to our cause. I would propose either selling her, or chartering to you; which, if we could agree, would have her ordered round immediately; and, as she is a small vessel, and counted a very fast sailer, do think we could get her round with considerable safety; for, if the King's ships were in our bay, of which she could hear at the Capes, must then go into Chincoteague, Sinepuxent, or some other inlet there.

You will please take this into your consideration, and give me an answer in two or three days, when I expect to be with you in Annapolis for that purpose; as, also, to see what is to be done with the rest of your flour in my hands. And am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

CUMBD. DUGAN.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

CALVERT COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

At Mr. Thomas Cleverly Dare's, on the Cliffs, }
Calvert County, March 6, 1776. }

Whereas a Man-of-War, supposed to be of twenty guns, or upwards, and two Tenders—one a Sloop, the other a Schooner—both armed vessels, have anchored off this shore yesterday afternoon, (the Man-of-War about six miles off, the Tenders close in shore, within one mile,) with design, as is suspected, that is inimical to this neighbourhood, having taken a New-England Vessel yesterday noon at the mouth of the River. The Committee consisting of the following gentlemen, viz: Colonel Benjamin Mackall, Major James Wilkinson, Messrs. Samuel Hance, Edward Reynolds, Walter Smith, Kenzy Johns, Dr. James Gray, Dr. E. Johnson, and Mr. James Heighe. Mr. Hance in the Chair; E. Johnson, Clerk.

Resolved, That at this time of imminent danger the Colonel of this County be empowered, and he is hereby empowered, to station any number of the Militia of this County as he shall think proper, not exceeding one hundred men, to watch the motions of the said Vessels, and to repel any force from them; and to empower the commanding officer, or officers, of the said guard to contract with any person or persons to supply with provisions the said guard.

Ordered, That the Clerk do inform the honourable the Council of Safety of these proceedings, by post or express, directly, for their orders herein.

Signed by order: E. JOHNSON, Clerk pro tem.

To the Honourable Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

JOSHUA BEALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

March 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have agreed with William Thomas to act as Adjutant to the Twenty-Fifth Battalion of Militia. If a commission is to be filled up for him, please to enclose it to me. I have not yet heard that any persons are commissioned as Majors to this battalion. Captain Andrew Beall, it seems, has applied for one, and, I am told, is so sure of getting a Majority, that he has quit the command of his company as Captain. We have had great confusion about the appointment of Field-Officers already. I ordered a meeting of officers yesterday, many of whom attended, and find, by them, that Andrew Beall would be a person very disagreeable, both to themselves and companies. Some of the officers declare they will not be commanded by him, and seemed desirous that I should recommend gentlemen for Majors. This might be giving offence to many, as I at this time do not know who would be most proper persons for that post. I can only give it as my opinion, that Thomas Williams and Richard Hall, who were the choice of the majority of the officers heretofore, would be the most likely to give satisfaction to the officers and men in general.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOSHUA BEALL.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

ROBERT TAYLOR TO JOHN HALL.

SIR: As the Council of Safety seem to be at a loss who to appoint as Majors to our battalion, I shall take the liberty of recommending two gentlemen to your notice, viz: Captain Thomas Snowden and Lieutenant Walter Bowie; they are both very worthy, and I am sure will give general satisfaction. It is said our Quartermaster, Mr. Wootton, will be advanced; if he should, Mr. J. Magruder would be exceeding proud to succeed him in that business. I have nothing to add, only that I am, sir, your most humble servant,

ROBERT TAYLOR.

To John Hall, Esq

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COMMITTEES IN FREDERICK COUNTY.

[No. 31.]

Annapolis, March 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You heretofore received from the Council of Safety an order to collect all the publick arms in your District, and return a state thereof. The publick service now requires that they should be sent down to Annapolis as soon as possible. We, therefore, request you to send whatever publick arms may be in your custody, or power, to us in Annapolis, by Captain Stricker's Company, or under a guard; and whatever expense may be incurred shall be fully reimbursed.

We are, &c.

To the Committees of Observation for the several Districts of Frederick County.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, March 6, 1776.

SIR: Since my last, I have had the honour of receiving your letters of the 24th and 30th of January, 9th, 14th, 18th, 21st, and 26th of February, which were communicated to Congress. On the settlements and adjustments of accounts, the Congress have not yet come to any determination; nor have they yet had time to contrive expedients for remedying the inconveniences mentioned in that of the 9th, which is referred to, and will be taken up, in a Committee of the Whole.

The Congress highly approve your care and attention in stopping Lord Drummond's letter, and entirely concur with you in sentiment with regard to his Lordship's officious and unwarrantable zeal.

The situation of the Middle and Southern Colonies hath engaged the attention of Congress. These are divided into two departments: the Middle, comprehending New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland, under the command of a Major-General and two Brigadier-Generals; the Southern, comprehending Virginia, North and South-Carolina, and Georgia, under the command of a Major-General and four Brigadier-Generals. As there is reason to think that the force of our enemies will be directed against the Colonies in the Southern Department, Major-General Lee is appointed to that command. The Brigadier-Generals are, John Armstrong, William Thompson, Andrew Lewis, James Moore, Esq., Lord Stirling, and Robert Howe, Esq. Of these gentlemen, General Armstrong is directed to repair to South-Carolina; General Lewis and General Howe to Virginia; General Moore to North-Carolina; and General Thompson and Lord Stirling to New-York. And that our affairs in Canada may be under the direction of an able officer, and General Schuyler's health not permitting him to go thither, or, if he could, as his presence is so necessary in New-York, the Congress have promoted Brigadier-General Thomas to the rank of a Major-General, and directed him to repair to Canada, and take the command of the Continental Forces in that quarter. I have accordingly enclosed him his commission, and am to desire you will give him orders to repair, with all expedition, to his post. To enable him to execute the purposes Congress have in view in Canada, they have ordered twelve battering-cannon to be sent from New-York, and have forwarded ten tons of powder. Of this article, we have lately received several supplies, and have some time ago ordered five tons and a half to be sent to you; which, if you have not already received, will, I hope, soon reach you. The Congress have also ordered ten tons more of powder to be sent to you, which will set out to-morrow or next day. Besides this, in the beginning of last month they ordered ten tons of saltpetre to be sent to Mr. Wisner's powder-mill, in the Colony of New-York; and on the 12th of the same month, ten tons to Mr. Livingston's mill, in the same Colony, and ten tons to the Council of Massachusetts, with a desire to have it manufactured into gunpowder with all possible expedition, and sent to you for the use of the Army under your command. Besides this, I have the pleasure to inform you that the powder-mills in this Colony are employed, and more mills are building, which will be employed; so that I have strong hopes we shall soon have a plentiful supply of that necessary article.

With regard to arms, I am afraid we shall, for a time, be under some difficulty. The importation is now more precarious and dangerous. To remedy this, a Committee is appointed to contract for the making arms; and, as there is a great number of gunsmiths in this and the neighbouring Colonies, I flatter myself we shall soon be able to provide ourselves without risk or danger. But we must, like other States engaged in the like glorious struggle, contend with difficulties. By perseverance, and the blessing of God, I trust, if we continue to deserve freedom, we shall be enabled to overcome them. To that Being, in whose hands is the fate of nations, I recommend you and the Army under your command.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. The enclosed letter I request the favour you will please order to be delivered to Mr. Cushing.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO MAJOR-GENERAL THOMAS.

Philadelphia, March 6, 1776.

SIR: The situation of Canada being, at this juncture, an object of the greatest importance to the welfare of the United Colonies, the Congress have been anxious to fix upon some General Officer, whose military skill, courage, and capacity, will probably insure success to the enterprise. In Major-General Thomas they flatter themselves they will not be disappointed. Accordingly, I do myself the honour to enclose your commission; and shall only add, that Congress have the firmest reliance on your exerting yourself to the utmost.

I beg leave to refer you to General Washington for the necessary instructions on your expedition; and am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Major-General Thomas.

ELBRIDGE GERRY TO JAMES WARREN.

Philadelphia, March 6, 1776.

DEAR SIR: An express goes off in a few hours for the camp, and affords just time to hint a few things, which I beg you will communicate to the honourable House.

It is of great importance that your Militia should be well armed and equipped; and powder is essentially necessary. Without it, what will be the distresses of the sea-coast frontiers, and how can they defend themselves? I have heard of my vessel in the service of the Colony, and am apprehensive of her being detained at St. Antonio, in Spain. I saw a letter from the master to the commander of a ship arrived in this place, and find that Captain Johnson was waiting for his crew, which had been despatched from Bilboa by Messrs. *Guad*** ten days before, and ought to have arrived in two or three days at most. He was very uneasy, and intended to get another crew if his own did not arrive soon; and I have since heard a rumour that the vessel is detained, which there is reason to fear. She had on board four hundred and thirty barrels of powder, or, in other words, twenty-one tons and a half; and, should she arrive, will clear for the Colony seven thousand five hundred pounds lawful, estimating the powder at five shillings per pound, which is low. But this is a trifling consideration compared with other advantages. Five tons were ordered to Cambridge about a week since from the Jerseys; since which, twenty-seven tons and a half have arrived here, with about five tons of saltpetre, and three hundred stand of arms. Ten tons of this powder is also ordered to the camp at Cambridge; but this will not equip your Militia. Pray let a petition be immediately preferred for the return of the powder which we have lent the Continent, and I apprehend it can be obtained—I mean the powder collected from the towns in the Massachusetts. Mr. Hunt can furnish a list of the most of them. I would beg one thing further, that you will not suffer any of your stocks of ammunition to be carried out of the Colony, or into the camp, without pressing necessity, or the desire of Congress. News is just arrived of five tons more powder imported into North-Carolina, and each Colony looks out for itself, as the times require it.

The Congress have this day preferred General Thomas, and made him a Major-General. He is ordered to proceed, without delay, to Canada; and General Lee is to go to the Southern Colonies.

We are obliged to the honourable House for the Journals and Acts of Assembly lately sent here, and hope that the other Journals will be forwarded when ready, and that one or more persons will be appointed to transmit weekly the doings of the Assembly, as great advantages will result to the Colony from this step. The file of letters, memorandum, and day-books of the Committee of Supplies, are much wanted in adjusting the Colony accounts. I understand they are left with Deacon Cheever.

I cannot help inculcating the necessity of attending to powder, and carefully preserving it; for, should the enemy remove, and the Army follow them, our Colony may be destitute of this article; and what a situation will it then be in? One thing further I will beg leave to hint: the Assembly, some time since, passed a resolve relative to fire-arms; and I cannot learn that any great number have been yet manufactured. Is it not necessary to inquire into the cause of it, and appoint a Committee to contract with individuals, who manufacture for a certain number in a convenient time? The Southern Colonies give a higher encouragement than we have offered; and it may be of great importance to follow their example. This the Assembly will decide.

Pray give my best respects to Major Hawley, Colonel Orne, Messrs. Sullivan, Cooper, Freeman, and all our other friends, believing me to be sincerely, sir, your friend and very humble servant,

ELBRIDGE GERRY.

To the Honourable James Warren.

P. S. Pray forward the enclosed letters.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Committee-Chamber, March 6, 1776.

The several District Committees having returned their Reports, relating to the engrossing Salt, Rum, Sugar, Spice, Pepper, Molasses, Cocoa, and Coffee, it clearly appears that the scarcity of those articles is artificial, and that several persons, whose names are returned to this Committee, but from tenderness to their families are not published, have formed a cruel design to add to the distresses of their suffering fellow-citizens and country, by collecting great quantities of and exacting exorbitant prices for the above articles; a conduct at any time shameful, but at a period of public calamity most barbarous and oppressive, more especially on the poor and middling ranks of life.*

Resolved, therefore, That this Committee are bound, in duty and justice to the inhabitants of this City and Province, to give an immediate check to such base and mercenary practices; and for that purpose have fixed the undermentioned prices as just, reasonable, and generous, respect being had to the publick as well as the seller of such goods; and if any persons shall be so lost to virtue, honour, and the publick good, as to demand greater prices for the above articles, now imported, than are hereinafter limited, or shall * PHILADELPHIA, March 7, 1776.—I was yesterday greatly disturbed by an incident which fell out in this city. A gentleman was brought before the Committee of Inspection, for refusing to take a Maryland Convention Bill. The Committee, on hearing the matter, were obliged to dismiss the complaint as without their commission. Every good citizen must be distressed with the contemplation of grievances they cannot find means to redress. Certainly these several Colonial currencies are of this sort. The great intercourse we are obliged to have with each other, from Georgia to Canada, renders these currencies very troublesome, I may indeed say distressing; and, notwithstanding the expense of striking a bank, sufficient to sink every penny of these emissions, I must beg leave to propose it to the consideration of the honourable Continental Congress, whether this grievance does not absolutely demand this sole, adequate, and effectual redress? A sufficient number of bills might be struck in Philadelphia, even of the lowest value judged necessary, and sent in sheets to each Colony, where Committees, of their respective Conventions or Assemblies, would sign each for themselves. Their respective proportions can be as easily settled by Congress as any other general charge; and should an overplus remain to some, after sinking all the bills they have emitted, they would have so much in bank for future emergencies. To this plan, if the establishment of a Mint were added, where the plate, with which many families abound, could be fitted for a ready exchange with foreigners, for commodities of which the most opulent will soon be in want, I flatter myself the salutary consequences would soon become sensible to every one. I shall trouble my readers with no arguments to enforce these measures, as the inconveniences on the one hand, and the advantages on the other, are too obvious to need them.

Though the Committee of Inspection cannot be accused of entire inattention to the publick safety, in the late villainous attempt made to injure us by a set of monopolists, I cannot think the sore has yet been probed to the bottom. A gentleman, some time since from Great Britain, informed me that, on a like occasion, the regrated commodities were forcibly taken from the monopolizers, and put into the hands of gentlemen of character, who sold them at a reasonable price to all men alike, and returned the money to the owners; and, by that means, that abominable practice has never since existed in that part of the country, the people being resolute to recur to the remedy as often as the disease appears.

"Resist beginnings, late is physick used,
When, by delays, the ills are deep infused."

refuse to sell such articles under false pretences of exportation, pre-engagement, or otherwise, in order to avail themselves of the scarcity of such goods, and enhance the price, this Committee do declare that they will expose such persons, by name, to publick view, as sordid vultures, who are preying on the vitals of their country in a time of general distress.

The Committee, therefore, do request all persons, of whom demands are made above the prices limited, or who shall be refused to purchase as above, immediately to make their case known to some of the Committee, when such offender, being convicted before a general meeting of the Committee, will soon experience what are the feelings and resentment of an injured and insulted people.

TO MESSRS. HALL AND SELLERS.

Philadelphia, March 6, 1776.

After premising, that in the following Essay you are by no means to expect a formal answer to the piece signed Rationalis, I would inform you, that in a company, where the important doctrine of Independency was pretty thoroughly agitated a few evenings ago, I gathered the plan of the moderate man to be for bearing arms and repelling the force that might be sent against America, till Great Britain would grow weary of the enterprise, and be willing to make up with us on equitable terms. This he urged to be necessary, for the reasons commonly produced to maintain that position: as our descent from Britain, our connection by blood, interest, language, laws, constitutions, religion, commerce, &c., with its inhabitants; our need of the national protection, if attacked by any foreign power, and the lulaby of our having been a very happy and flourishing people during our dependance upon the Parent State.

To all this was answered, that there were certain times when minor States, as well as persons, became capable to judge and act for themselves; that the obligations for parental care and protection could never extend so far as to entitle the former to oppress the latter in demands of an indefinite consideration for such a favour; and finally, that unless the minor State should at some certain time be allowed to have power to debate, and settle the quantum due for protection, and choose whether it comply with such certain terms, or give up the protection offered, they were by no means on an equal footing with natural persons, who, at a moderately early age, were at full liberty to leave their parents, and do the best they were able for themselves. America, it was observed, was not sent out a Colony at the charge of Great Britain, and, for all the protection afforded her, might well be esteemed an orphan instead of a child; and with all the clamour raised on that head, with intention to lull the people into a submission to the most ruinous exactions, were a fair account stated, it would be found that the balance in favour of America would amaze all mankind! It was further observed, that the efforts used to persuade the Americans they are in a state of perpetual non-age and dependance discovers something very different from maternal affection or common justice. If minors labour for parents, they are also supposed to be provided for in all things by them, and to become lords of all they possess at certain periods. Here the parallel fails respecting States, each of which is presumed immortal. It remaining, therefore, that the American States are neither the Provinces, Colonies, nor children of Great Britain, any more than of Holland, Ireland, or Germany, and that from their very settlement Britain meant rather to milk than suckle them; the pretended right to control their manufactures and commerce, to sell them the lands at a heavy purchase, and subject to an enslaving quit-rent, which were in great part gained by their own blood and treasure, is founded in presumption of superior force rather than solid reason. Luxury (and the search of ways and means to support it) is arrived to such a pitch in Britain, that the junto, who have usurped a tyrannick power, want Provinces to drain off wealth, as their patterns, the debauched Romans, had. Many are found so base as to be willing their countrymen should become tributary to such vultures, if they might have a small pittance for gathering the tax: yea, even on condition it were demanded at the point of the bayonet. Here is the true foundation of the claim of Great Britain, and here is the undeniable cause of the support this claim finds in America! What then are the honest, industrious, and independent freemen of America to do in this case? My guide I have so long followed tells us, declare independence immediately! Issue a manifesto, containing a full view of our rights, our grievances, and the unwearied applications we have made for their redress? Apply to the State, of whose readiness and power to assist us we have undoubted assurance. A neglect to improve the openings given us for that purpose may inspire those statesmen with resentment, and incite them to accept overtures from our enemies, and then we may indeed become Provinces! If we can withstand the tyrant of Britain without allies, we can, incontestibly, better withstand him with an ally that has ever commanded a very complaisant behaviour from him. This ally can wish for nothing more than such share of our commerce as will be convenient to both parties; and as that must be rather a gain than a loss to us, we must be stupid beyond conception to delay the measure. England has long protected Portugal, for a much less lucrative trade than we would carry on with France. Men must be very blind who cannot see the fairness, the openness, and safety of this obvious road to honour, wealth, freedom, and internal happiness. By how many ways does Divine Providence invite us to emancipate ourselves from a state which, remained in, would be the ruin of our posterity as certainly as they became human beings! Let prejudiced mortals dream what they may, and confound the ignorant with their jargon, freedom and dependancy are opposite and irreconcilable terms; and dependancy on a power over which we have no influence nor control, is slavery, or I am yet ignorant of the term. The petty tyrants of every country always wish to have the people dependant on such a power; for, under colour of authority from that power, they can carry on their oppressions, vexations, and depredations; and when they are expostulated with on the occasion, they are sorry indeed they are put upon so disagreeable a service, but what can they do? Such are their express orders! I am widely mistaken if nine-tenths of the clamour raised against American independency do not arise from that quarter. They tell you, "they had rather be governed by the mild and wise laws of Great Britain, than the decrees of an American mob." The truth is, neither they, nor their principals, wish to be governed by any laws that will effectually secure the liberty and property of the people from their ravenous clutches. If the people, by any means, obtain an adequate share in the legislature of this country, they know their visions of golden mountains, and millions of acres of tenanted soil, will all vanish, and themselves remain in the despised rank of their honest and contented neighbours. I am apt to think, however, that both principals and accomplices for once overshot themselves, and carried the matter too far for a safe and honourable retreat. Circumstances have strangely co-operated to open scenes which no human foresight could have viewed in their full latitude. And what is there now wanting to complete the triumph of the friends of human nature, but a little fortitude, patience, and perseverance.

All Europe must allow, that while America was in the greatest good humour with her old mother, a scheme was laid to keep up a large standing army in her capital towns, and to tax her at pleasure for the support of it. They see that, from time to time, the most fraudulent and violent measures have been taken to support their entirely unprecedented claim, till at last, drained of their national troops, they have applied for assistance to other nations. By the law of nations we were discharged from our allegiance the moment the army was posted among us without our consent, or a single farthing taken from us in like manner; either of these being fundamental subversions of the Constitution. It remains entirely with ourselves to have ample justice done to us. We have nothing to do but declare off, and appeal to the droit des gens. A very respectable power has given as unequivocal proofs as can be wished of her disposition to right us. Even the body of the people manifest the warmest desire to form a friendly alliance; witness the assiduous respect shown to a private gentleman, whom they only suspected to be a Delegate from the Congress. And on the other hand, what does all the hurry of appointing Commissioners, and no one knows what, on the other side the British channel, indicate? Besides the discoveries of Cassandra, I will venture to affirm, that our ambitious master at length begins to fear in good earnest, that the string drawn too light will break, and leave all his Colonies to make new bargains for themselves. Obstinate and mulish as he is, he cannot longer persuade himself that two such potent communities as France and North America will neglect such a fortunate opportunity to pay themselves the prodigious sums he has damaged them in a few past years. Ay, say some moderate men; that is our fear, that France will be for invading Canada or the Floridas, and thus we shall forever be involved in war. Nothing, I confess, is more probable, if France can have nothing to expect from us in an amicable and commercial way; but e contra, if we cast off her ancient enemy, there still remains Islands, which, from present appearances, she has some eye upon. From what has happened in the Mediterranean, it seems she is now no way skittish about affronting Oceana on her own element.

I cannot express my contempt of those wretches who say, let us by all means defend ourselves against the violence of Administration, till we bring them to reasonable terms, and then unite again, as we shall ever stand in great need of the protection of Great Britain. I verily believe a party among us feels much need of foreign protection; but a people who can make the proudest tyrant in Europe talk of Hanoverians, Hessians, Russians, Scotch-Dutchmen, and half an Eastern world, even while they are in the very infancy of preparation for defence, need not keep such a puling and whining about protection.

I must again exclaim, I cannot have patience with such inconsistent mortals, as dissuade us from accepting assistance from a power who has at present no possible claim upon us, nor can ever demand more than we voluntarily and expressly stipulate; and that when we are in actual war with a power, by themselves called the most formidable in Europe, and yet press us to fight that power alone, and bring her to terms, that we may enjoy her protection—if such do not wish to have us reduced, rather than protected by the arms of Great Britain, I am a novice in politicks.

One word concerning these august Commissioners we hear so much of every day. Those Americans who flatter themselves their mission bodes any advantage to the country in general, will find themselves as much deceived as they have hitherto been by any similar declaration. The true state of the case is simply this: Their efforts to subdue us to their absolute command, have sounded through every court in Christendom, yea, in all quarters of the world, and they cannot keep themselves from doubting of their success. Now a formidable armament is to come, and with them the Commissioners, to receive submission, and grant pardons on the most humiliating terms they can reduce us to, that they may let Europe know their great power in reducing their rebellious subjects to a sense of their duty. They are certain their time is short; they therefore aim to put as good a face upon the matter as possible, but at any rate to put an end to it for the present, still retaining so much acknowledged power as will sink us into slavery, whenever they find a proper opportunity to exercise it.

Finally, by the most unconstitutional, cruel, and unjust measures, they have driven us to arms; we have emitted millions on the credit of the United Colonies; those millions must be sunk by the power which issued them, or a fund of the like kind can never again be established in America. Had our enemies no other object in view than the discredit of the Continental currency, it would be sufficient to engage them to send a good number of emissaries, on any pretence which might give them opportunity to effect it. One deposit we have in our hands, which will solidly fund all the money we will need during the contest, which must inevitably be given up by the most favourable negotiation we can possibly flatter ourselves to expect. Surely a declaration of confiscation on one side, will warrant reprisal on the other. This is not only just in point of the present question, but absolutely necessary to keep the power of the Crown within any possible limits, which cannot be while it is possessed of millions of acres of land, which it may dispose of at pleasure.

All parties agree we must one time separate from Britain. Set us back to 'sixty-three, and we will be as lucky as a farmer who should have all his houses, fences, &c., destroyed, and the fields and meadows, cleared in that time, grown up again.

CANDIDUS.

NEWARK (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Newark, New-Jersey, March 6, 1776.

SIR: The resolve of Congress, of the 20th February, which Mr. Livingston did me the favour of forwarding to me, I laid before the Committee of this town the first opportunity after I received it.

The respectful deference which the Committee owes to Congress would have led them to have immediately sent the two prisoners to Philadelphia; but it appearing by the said resolution of Congress, that it was founded on the misinformation that the prisoners were not employed in the business for which they had liberty to stay, the Committee were of opinion that Congress would approve of their delaying to send them to Philadelphia, until the Congress should be truly informed of the state and particular circumstances of this matter.

Upon inquiry, the Committee found that Brown, one of the prisoners, was a brass-founder, and though he understood the brass-mounting for muskets, knew nothing of making gun-locks; that he and Thompson, the other prisoner, had, since Mr. Alling, their employer, had made his shop convenient for the business, been engaged each in their several occupations. That Alling, in consequence of the leave obtained from Congress, had contracted to supply upwards of two hundred gun-locks for the use of the United Colonies, which contract was in part executed, but he would be very unable to fulfil his contracts, if Thompson should be taken from him. That though the prisoners at first, from a dread of punishment in case they hereafter joined their regiment, seemed to choose to be employed about repairing arms only, yet they have since married here, and thinking themselves settled in this country, Thompson exerts himself in the gun-lock business, and Brown is making the mounting, &c. This circumstance of their marrying here also makes them very unwilling to remove, from the connection they now have in consequence thereof, with the inhabitants of this place.

If the Congress shall, after being informed of these circumstances, direct both, or either of these men, to be sent to Philadelphia, the Committee will, on receiving such directions, obey them without hesitation.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

By order of the Committee:

LEWIS OGDEN, Chairman.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

NEWBURGH COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Newburgh, March 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Elias Hasbrouck having laid before us General Schuyler's letter to the Committee of Kings-ton, and a copy of a letter from the Committee of Kingston to your honourable House, both purporting his raising a company for one of the regiments to be raised in this Colony, and in the letter from the said Committee of Kingston, it appears that the person to be appointed for the said Hasbrouck's First Lieutenant, is to be recommended by the Committee of the Precinct in which the said Lieutenant may reside. And Cornelius Hasbrouck, son of Colonel Hasbrouck, of this Precinct, being a person nominated by the said Captain Hasbrouck, we having taken into consideration the qualification of the aforesaid Lieutenant, and being perfectly acquainted with him, do hereby recommend him as a very worthy fit person. Therefore, pray you will favour him with a warrant as First Lieutenant to said Captain Hasbrouck.

And are, very respectfully, gentlemen, your most humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

ABEL BELKNAP, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of New-York.

I hereby certify that I am perfectly well acquainted with Cornelius Hasbrouck, above-mentioned, and can with propriety recommend him as a worthy person for a commission of First Lieutenant of Captain Hasbrouck's Company.

THOMAS PALMER.

To the President of the Provincial Congress now convened in the City of New-York.

R. HARPUR TO JOHN JAY.

Fishkill, March 6, 1776.

SIR: Captain Godwin informing me that Lieutenant Peter Rosa, a Second Lieutenant in Captain Belknap's Company, is, on condition of being admitted into the new establishment, capable of inlisting the greater part, if not all, of the said company, of which, requiring my approbation, I cannot refuse it, consistent with my opinion of the public good. The said company being well fledged already, makes it a very desirable object to retain them; and Mr. Rosa being well acquainted with them, puts it in his power to complete Captain Godwin's Company in a few days, which he will undertake to do on the terms of receiving a Lieutenantcy in said company, where, there being now a vacancy, I should wish he was placed.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

R. HARPUR.

To John Jay, Esq., present.

P. S. If you concur in opinion with me, please to signify the same in writing, and we shall hand it to the Committee of Arrangement at Esopus. Mr. Sacket writes me from King-street, that on the 1st instant, our Militia below had scoured Frog's Neck, took off about one hundred and fifty horned-cattle, and a large number of horses; that they had passed by one of the enemy's ships, within musket-shot of her, without receiving the least interruption.

Sir, yours as before,

R. H.

JOHN JAY TO R. HARPUR.

DEAR SIR: I am well content that the gentleman you recommend should have the vacant Lieutenantcy, provided his appointment will not do injustice to persons better entitled to it by former services; but of this, my being so long detained from the Committee of Arrangement, prevents my being a proper judge.

I am, dear sir, your obedient servant,

JOHN JAY.

Mr. Harpur.

THOMAS PALMER TO GENERAL LEE.

Newburgh, Ulster County,
Above the Highlands, March 6, 1776.

SIR: We this day arrived safe up the river (with the three vessels containing the cannon, shot, &c.) at Newburgh-Landing, which is seventy miles from New-York. Our passage has been attended with much difficulty and danger, on account of cold head-winds, and the river exceedingly full of ice. The vessels are now in safe harbour on the west shore; but on the landing opposite, on the east shore, the only place where the cannon must be landed, the flats are yet shut up with ice; but I conceive it practicable to cut a channel through to shore, which we shall attempt immediately; the carriages for the transporting the cannon are completed, and the horses ready to proceed as soon as the cannon can be landed. The bearer, Captain Brown, has been very useful and alert with his men, in bringing the vessels thus far safe; and as we can be supplied at this port with sufficient assistance for the further procedure with the cannon, I thought it prudent, with Captain Brown's advice, to dismiss him with his men.

I am, sir, with due respect, your most humble servant to command,

THOMAS PALMER.

To Charles Lee, Esq., &c., &c.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Albany, March 6, 1776.

SIR: Instead of one hundred and twenty sleds to convey the cannon and provision from Fort George, Ticonderoga, &c., to Canada, with the utmost efforts only seventy-six could be procured; the great scarcity of forage, and danger of going at this advanced season, deters them. The winter here is entirely broken up, and I believe Hudson's River will be clear of ice in a few days. It may be best, therefore, that the remainder of the troops from New-Jersey and Pennsylvania should embark at New-Windsor, or still lower down, if craft can be procured.

Only one company of Colonel Burrel's Regiment is gone past here. I greatly fear that the remainder will not be able to pass the Lakes on ice, unless a sudden change in the weather takes place. Some horses, and one man, have already been drowned on Lake George and Lake Champlain. It would be happy for us if the Lakes immediately opened, as I have got matters in such a way that I can immediately send on the troops by water; but, should the Lakes become impassable in any way, I must of necessity detain the troops at this place until they open, as well to save the expenditures of what pork we have at Fort George, as that they cannot be quartered there.

All the Six, and some other Indian nations, are now holding a conference at Onondaga. I expect they will soon request the like at this place. I dread their coming, as we have nothing for them; and unless something is given, they are always disgusted.

The sleds that left this with the last Pennsylvania Company, I am this moment informed, are returned, not being able to proceed farther than twenty miles from this, Hudson's River being broken up there, but as yet impassable.

I have not yet been able to discover that there is any truth that the Highlanders are enlisted; I shall continue my inquiries, and if the report has any foundation, I will make them prisoners.

On the 28th ultimo I sent General Wooster something above twenty-one hundred pounds in specie, which I have collected on my notes, payable in like money, on demand. We are greatly distressed for money for the current expenses of the day.

I am, sir, most respectfully, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

COLONEL HUNTINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Roxbury Camp, March 6, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I have two of your much esteemed favours since I wrote you last. You will have had before this the circumstances of our taking possession of Dorchester. We hoped our enemies would meet us there, but, as the weather was, it could not be. If we are not able to draw them out of their fastnesses, I do not see what we can do to get rid of them. Our offensive efforts, I imagine, affect them but little. We have been frowned upon in the loss of several of our largest mortars, the fine one taken by Manly, among the rest. I have all along expected some remarkable interposition of Divine Providence in our favour, that our dependance on all human means might appear vain. We have now such works on Dorchester Hills, as will put the bravery and art of our enemies to a severe trial, if they take them from us. Perhaps an attempt will be made to draw them out Chelsea side. Since our fortifications are increased, the necessity is increased of subduing or driving away the enemy, as it will require so great a number of men, and constant vigilance to maintain all the posts we now possess, which are all nearly alike important.

I heartily mourn the loss of that eminently learned and pious divine, Doctor Williams. You must be greatly affected at his death. No measure can be made of the friendship of so aged and valuable a man. I never knew what it was to sorrow, till my best earthly friend was taken from me. I devoutly wish that my improvement in goodness, love, and friendship to her parents and relations may bear some proportion to those qualities which shone in my lovely companion. That we may be prepared for the period of our continuance here, we must, for the enjoyment of our ascended Saviour, and in the highest degree, partake of the society of our departed ones.

I have not time to write to my dear son, but shall not neglect him long. If my life is spared, I will not fail to give you particulars of any occurrence worth communication. In mean time, I remain, with tenders of love and duty to you, mother, son, &c., yours most affectionately,

JEDEDIAH HUNTINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

JOHN LANGDON TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE ASSEMBLY.

Portsmouth, March 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have received advice of my having the repeated honour of being appointed one of the Delegates for this Colony to the Continental Congress.

Nothing can give me greater satisfaction than to have the approbation of your honourable House of having done my duty, as far as my poor abilities would admit of. I think myself under every tie of honour and gratitude to strain every nerve in my country's cause, at this important day, more especially when I receive such repeated honours from my country.

When I shall have finished the business in which I have the honour to be immediately employed by the Continent, or have it in such forwardness to leave, shall, when my duty calls me, attend in my place at the General Congress, where it will be my greatest pride to serve (in any way that may be in my power) this Colony in particular, and the Continent in general.

I lament that my abilities are not greater; all I can say is, shall employ such as I have, to the utmost, in the service of my country.

You will please, sirs, to accept my hearty thanks for the honour done me; should have done myself the pleasure of waiting on the honourable House in person, but my publick business, which calls for immediate attention, I hope will plead an excuse.

I am, with great respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN LANGDON.

To the Honourable the Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Assembly for the Colony of New-Hampshire.

THOMAS CONTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Upper Marlborough, March 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I beg leave to enclose you some accounts from gentlemen whose wagons and carts were employed in bringing the records to this place. The reason the gentlemen give me for their accounts being so high, the wagons, &c., were detained two days waiting for the records. If you approve of the accounts, be pleased to order the amount to be paid Mr. Richard Hall.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

THOMAS CONTEE.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

PHILIP THOMAS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Middle District of Frederick County, March 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By the return of the Committee of the Militia Companies in this District, you will observe that I was chosen Captain of a company, which I believe was one of the first raised in the Province, and placed in the Fourth Battalion; but my commission has never come to hand; and, to save your Honours the trouble of making one out, it is necessary to inform you that I decline serving in the above capacity, which I am induced to do for these reasons, viz :

I had the honour to command one of the oldest companies in the Province, and was recommended by the Committee to the Convention, as a proper person to be appointed Colonel of the Fourth Battalion. They being the representatives of the people, and a respectable body of men, I was impressed with a grateful sense of the favour conferred on me ; the more so, as it was unsolicited. But their recommendation, for reasons which I am in some measure at a loss to suggest, did not meet with the approbation of the Convention ; and a Lieutenant of a younger company, in another battalion, who was not recommended by the Committee to any office, was appointed, whose experience was not conspicuous, and whose assiduity in promoting the good of the cause we are justly engaged in, did not exceed my own. The First Lieutenant of my company was promoted to the appointment of First Major in the same battalion, by which means, was I to accept of the commission, I should be under the command of one who was formerly an inferior officer in a younger company, and of another who was an officer under me.

These reasons, I hope, will appear satisfactory to your Honours, and justify my resignation, especially as I find it impracticable for me, with honour under these circumstances, to render my country that service which I was inclined to do. I would not be understood (as it is far from my design) to cast reflection on the conduct of the Convention, or that I suspect them of being partial in the above appointments. I rather am inclined to believe it has proceeded from their being deceived by persons who they may have depended upon for information. In this opinion I am the more confirmed, from the many resignations of commissions, and from the complaints of the people, on account of the appointment of Field-Officers in this District.

I am, gentlemen, your very obedient servant,

PHILIP THOMAS.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

BENJAMIN RUMSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Joppa, March 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have received a letter from Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Hollingsworth, of the Head-of-Elk, in Cecil County, relative to the guns, in which he informs me that Mr. Johnson had acquainted him that I had some credentials or orders from the Council of Safety to him relative to the making of arms, and praying that, if I had, to despatch them forward by the first opportunity, as he had given the matter out ; that the workmen were dispersed, and must be collected again, which he was willing to do, out of a hearty wish to forward the service. I have wrote him, in return, that the Council had delayed to answer his letter until they should be ascertained of getting locks ; that the difficulty was in some measure removed, by the expectation of importing a quantity of them, and I did not doubt but the Council would answer his letter on their getting to Annapolis ; that it would be necessary he should have a pattern, as all the guns must be made of one bore, or caliber, and length ; but that, on inspection of my memorandums, I had it not in charge from the Council to make any agreement with him.

I have a letter also from my brother Colonel of the Second Battalion, in Cecil. Commissions for four companies in the battalion are, it seems, made out, the other four have none. This creates uneasiness ; and he cannot, although very desirous of it, review them. He says the people are much discontented at the right of election being taken away. There is a letter from Mr. Gilpin on that subject in one of the bundles. He writes, as well as I remember, that Mr. Ramsay had made out the commissions, and left them at Mr. Pealse's. Mr. Duvall promised to get them and send them up. It would answer good purposes, and avoid a good deal of confusion, to have the commissions in this battalion filled up. I enclose a commission resigned in Captain Stuart's Company, in the Eighth Battalion, with the name of a person endorsed that would be agreeable to the company to have for their Ensign, in the lieu of the Ensign resigned, and should be obliged to you to expedite his commission. There are a good many vacancies in the Eighth Battalion. As soon as they can be collected together, a list will be laid before you, in order that they may be filled up ; indeed, did I know how to do it properly, I would do it now, as I do not know how soon we may be called out to action, your advice to the Committee of Baltimore County of the 5th instant being laid before me last night, with the Brigadier's order to hold ourselves in readiness. The men are undisciplined ; they, therefore more especially require to be full officered ; but, as we may want time to do that, I am determined to march with what we have, and have wrote circular letters to my Captains to hold themselves and companies in readiness to march on the first notice.

I wrote yesterday to Mr. Garrett about the bayonets, and shall communicate his answer as soon as received. In conversation with one of the officers of my battalion, he informs me Mr. Purviance has made a requisition of the guns which were in the hands of the Minute Company in this County ; that twenty-eight had been sent, the other two have been carried off by two of the Minute Company who have inlisted in the regular service, and stationed at Baltimore ; he could not recollect their names.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

BENJAMIN RUMSEY.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

In Committee of Observation, for Worcester County, }
Maryland, March 7, 1776. }

In pursuance of the resolves of the Convention, Mr. Jesse Gray made return of his company of Militia, consisting of eight non-commissioned officers and fifty privates ; by which return it appears that said Jesse Gray is duly elected as Captain, Jesse Davis as First Lieutenant, James King as Second Lieutenant, and Elihu Hazzard as Ensign, of said company.

Signed per order :

R. DENNIS, Clerk.

JENIFER AND HOOE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Port Tobacco, March 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Conway arrived opposite the mouth of Port Tobacco Creek about two o'clock this morning, and it being calm, and an ebb tide, he came here for orders about eight o'clock. I sent him on board again immediately, to proceed up the Eastern branch of this river till his vessel was fast aground, and then to deliver the powder to the Committee of Bladensburg, if I am not there, without loss of time.

The letter from Mr. Harrison would have sent by express instantly, but Colonel Weare informs me he is pushing for Annapolis, and I concluded it would be as soon at hand by him.

Mr. Harrison writes me that Mr. Wicoff, of Martinico, has consigned some medicine to Jenifer & Hooe for sale. I have not received any directions from him about them, nor even an invoice. It seems his brothers at Philadelphia are to furnish directions about them ; and if I find they are such as the Province will want, I shall delay the sale till I advise you thereof. I imagine Conway will be at Bladensburg by this evening ; and some time to-morrow I shall be there to receive your orders respecting the further destination of the vessel, and the disposal of the powder.

There came with Captain Conway a French Captain and six sailors, by which means, after he clears our coast, going out, the English men-of-war cannot seize him, as he will show French colours, French papers, and a French crew. I scarcely had time to ask either of the Captains any questions, thinking it unsafe to let the vessel lie here a moment ; but if I find the Frenchman tolerably intelligent, I will bring him up from Bladensburg to Annapolis, as Mr. Harrison seems to think he may be a serviceable man, if encouraged. Scott, it seems, is seized ; but Mr. Harrison has hopes of getting the vessel and cargo again, under some little disadvantages. Captain Conway says there is a great many troops in Martinico ; the Epigales and tenders are watching every Island : he fell in with one, but gave her the slip in the night.

I am, gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant,

JENIFER & HOOE.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

In my last directed to you, I pointed out the consequences of an Independency, so far as it respects the States of Europe. The reasons on which I founded our safety from foreign invasions, I think, will scarcely be denied, or if they should, will not be easily confuted.

I hear but little said on that head at present. Perhaps it ceases to be a scarecrow, and is therefore taken down; but as it will never do for the enemies of our liberties to give up the point, it is only to hang up a more terrific in its stead. Intestine confusions, continual wars with each other, Republicks, and Presbyterian Governments, compose the bugbear of the day, and the very name of them frightens people more than the whole force of Great Britain. My present design is to remove this dreadful chimera from your imaginations, and to show you that nothing but a reluctance in you to independency, can ever be the cause of any such evils, and I earnestly crave your attention to the subject, and entreat you to weigh my reasons impartially.

In the first place, then, it never was, nor can it ever be, the interest of any civil society, to exalt any set of religious tenets above all others, or to unite the Church and State. Most of the wars which deluged the world in blood for centuries together, arose from this false policy. The priesthood of any sect in religion, with sorrow I repeat it, can easily be made the tools of tyranny and arbitrary power. To crowned heads they are useful; but where no such exist, there establishments of the kind are truly a nuisance. We have no establishment in this Province, and consequently little distinction of sects, all men living in good neighbourhood with one another, however different in religious sentiments. The States-General, even in the days of fiery persecution, soon found the necessity of effectually excluding religion from interfering in State affairs; and in our days, when that edge is totally destroyed, and mankind have learned to think more liberally, none can suspect anything of the kind, but those who labour incessantly to deserve it. And yet they have been hitherto disappointed, and I hope ever shall. I know the present Continental Congress, or any other assembly of men of sentiment and education in America, would as soon agree to subject the United Colonies to the King of Caffraria, or to the See of Rome, as to any one sect of religion now existing in the world. Doubtless, every sect will be permitted to enjoy its complete privileges within itself. But for any one to be allied to the State is absurd to imagine. Depend on it, they who hold it up to terrify you, believe no such thing. They cannot, unless they have taken leave of their senses. In the next place, war is not, nor can it ever be, our element. Trade and agriculture are the true sources of wealth and happiness to a society. The majority of no nation ever gained anything by war, except when in defence of their privileges. And even in that case, the retaining them is the utmost they can expect. An ambitious monarch, who prefers self-exaltation to the blood of his subjects, may be for war, because, as the war is carried on at the expense of the people, and he alone reaps the rewards of victory, he has a chance to be a gainer thereby. His subjects cannot, for they must not only fight his battles, but pay all the expense of the war. I set it down, therefore, that the representatives of a free people, if free from the influence of royalty, can never be for war, except when the rights of the society are invaded. Besides, the Colonies are at present nearly on an equality with respect to warlike knowledge, and will be completely so before the present war is at an end. There will therefore be no temptation on that score, and all the regular troops, as long as such are needful, will be in the pay of the Continent, and can never be employed by one Colony against another. Disband them at the end of the war, and settle them on plantations, or assist them in setting up their trades, and let your strength consist in a well-regulated Militia, and you will have done with war forever.

For freemen to prefer the chance of war to peace, liberty, trade, and agriculture, is as unnatural as to prefer wounds, bruises, poverty, and death, to health, riches, and all the pleasures and enjoyments of life. To see a society of farmers, tradesmen, and merchants, quit their peaceful employments, and make war upon one another, would be a phenomenon which the world has not yet beheld, and I will venture to say never will. God has placed us at the greatest distance possible from external oppressors, and he has placed our interest as far from internal ones.

Some men have an uncommon talent at making men forget what is before them, and calling off their attention from certainty to speculation; from truths supported by facts, to chimerical suppositions; and from what really exists, to what never can exist; and they can make many believe the one so firmly, that it is scarcely in the power of self-evidence to overcome their credulity. Hence it is that so many shudder at the thoughts of what shall happen to us after we are fairly let loose from Great Britain, and are frightened almost out of their senses on account of the divisions which will then disturb our internal repose.

I have heard it alleged by able politicians, that the reason which induced the Crown to give so many different Constitutions to the several Colonies was, that it might make a union of them impracticable. Be this as it may, it is certain that a union of our Legislatures in any opposition to the Crown, was impracticable. It was not, nor is it now, in our power to get any Governour on the Continent, except two, to give his assent to any bill for the purpose; and according to the Constitution of the Colonies, no act of our Assemblies can be deemed law without such assent. This shows the evil of a negative on the voice of the people. Now, though a constitutional union of the Colonies by their Legislatures was impracticable, and though the Ministry and their Tory friends exerted their utmost influence to prevent any kind of union, and to break it afterwards; yet it took place, and still continues, contrary to every expectation and endeavour of internal and external enemies. All Colony distinctions are now at an end; and cursed will he be who endeavours to revive them. Can any be so stupid as to believe that they who remain united without law, without authority, and without restraint, merely because they know it to be their interest, will break that union when it shall be established under a Continental Legislature, and supported by publick authority? The same interest and wisdom which joined us against such odds, will certainly keep us together when aided by constitution and law. The arts of peace ever form the true basis of human felicity; and while we remain free, that mutual intercourse which adds wealth to every social enjoyment, will be constantly preferred to the wild schemes of mad ambition, which purchase a few days' gratification to one, at the price of the lasting misery of thousands.

To imagine, therefore, that our remaining united until we had obliged Great Britain to acknowledge us an independent people, would be the cause of future wars among the Colonies, is as absurd and irrational as to imagine that harmony could produce discord. On the contrary, every cause of quarrel would forever subside. All the unlocated lands in America would be taken under the care of the Continental Legislature, and settled upon one general plan; which would prevent a thousand contentions, which must remain while they are in the gift of the Crown. Lands will then be equally open to all. America will be the country, and all of us as much one people as the inhabitants of any one Colony are at present. Let proper care be taken by the people at large, at the time of forming the Continental Constitution, to fix such an equal plan of representation on principles which will continue it so, as will make the general good the general interest, and to secure that motion to power and authority which is necessary to preserve it from corruption by a constant rotation, and war will be unknown in America.

I have shown in a former number, directed to the people of North America, the impossibility of a reunion with Great Britain, on the principles of the year 1763, if we mean to preserve our liberties. To be effectually secured from future mischiefs and machinations in case of a reunion, there must not be one Crown-Officer, either civil or military, left on the Continent, nor a British ship-of-war permitted to enter our harbours. From them our present distresses sprang, and by them they will be continued. And while any such is permitted to remain among us, we keep our enemy in our bosom, and the robber in our house. Be our doors ever so strongly bolted, it will add nothing to our security. Nothing but a division among the Colonies, when it shall be finally debated in Congress, whether we shall be independent or not, can be the cause of future wars to America. This is the single point on which our future happiness or misery will finally turn.

It is easy talking of a reunion, and permanent security to our liberties; and publick orators may say it is very plain. I am no Member of Congress, no Committee-man, nor in the secrets of either; but I will throw out some hints to both, which it might not be amiss to consider. Our welfare will greatly depend on the weight they have in the minds of those who are intrusted with our publick affairs.

He betrays an uncommon degree of ignorance of human nature who thinks that a cordial reunion can take place between Great Britain and any one of the United Colonies. Slaves have been known to prefer servitude to freedom, but this has always happened where their masters used them exceedingly well. The moment ill usage and a disregard of their interest take place, the happiness of such a dependence and connection is gone forever. Our connection can no longer exist on former principles. These principles did not, nor could not protect us. They once existed, and what good did they do us? Did they save us from our present troubles? I say, therefore, if a reunion takes place, it must be on the principles of unlimited dominion on the one hand, and absolute submission on the other. They will sooner treat with you as independent States, than grant you all that is necessary to secure your privileges while you acknowledge subjection. But granting they should be willing to grant absolute security, (which they never will,) the Colonies which have suffered least may reunite on these terms; others, I am confident, neither can nor will, until they are deprived of that foresight which distinguishes them from the lamb which licks the hand of the butcher. To imagine what three of the Southern, and four of the Northern Colonies can ever reunite on any other principle than that of absolute conquest, is folly in the extreme.

Blood once shed puts a final period to all other accommodations; and the exciting a slave to cut the throat of his master produces a similar effect. A spirit once kindled by blood, can never be cooled but by the same, or a total extinction of its fire. And God is so far from desiring or expecting a friendly reunion and connection in such cases, that he has continually declared the contrary in every dispensation since the murder of Abel, by constantly repeating, "that he who sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." I therefore repeat it, that a reunion of most of the Colonies is now become impossible. Can any of the New-England Colonies ever be cordially united to Great Britain? Can they ever approach their sea-coasts without viewing with horror and indignation the ravages of her fleets and armies? Can Virginia, the Carolinas, or even New-York, ever be content with Governours appointed by the Crown? The day they can contentedly submit to such appointments, or such reunion, the spirit of freedom will forsake these Colonies. Freemen will never grow on such a soil. When this takes place, Great Britain may convert her African into an American Company of Slave-traders, and send her ships to carry her white negroes to the West-Indies to work her sugar plantations. I have a better opinion of them than to think them ripe for such a metamorphosis. I therefore conclude they will fight for independency, and they will obtain it. On this account, an attempt of any of the Colonies to be reunited to Great Britain, would be a very unwise and unhappy measure. A war twice fought always costs less blood and treasure than once effectually gone through. There are some who, knowing that a Republick well regulated is ever unfavourable to that ambition which aims to be aggrandized at the publick expense, will make strenuous opposition to independency; and they would willingly disunite the Colonies rather than join in asserting it. To such I would throw out some cautionary observations.

1st. A division of the Colonies will not prevent the independence of those which stand out.

2dly. The Provinces which submit will return to trade and agriculture, and consequently lose the use of arms, while they that stand out will be expert warriors.

3dly. The Continent will be divided into two distinct Empires or Republicks—a Northern and a Southern. For, assure yourselves, Virginia will never submit, and the Carolinas (if not Maryland) will join her.

4thly. While there is land to settle, and two Empires on the Continent, war will be the consequence.

5thly. When Great Britain is so far reduced as to declare them independent, who will protect the submitting Colonies from the resentment of incensed warriors, whom they deserted? Such Colonies will finally be divided between the two powers.

The man who traces these hints fairly, be he who he may, if he means not to sell his right to America, will be a strenuous advocate for independency, and a united Continental Legislature.

SALUS POPULI.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO LIEUTENANT-COLONEL OGDEN.

Philadelphia, March 7, 1776.

SIR: The Congress, in consideration of your merit, and the services you have done your country, have thought proper to appoint you Lieutenant-Colonel in the first battalion of Jersey Troops. I do myself the honor to enclose your commission; and am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Ogden, New-Jersey.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONEL WINDS.

Philadelphia, March 7, 1776.

SIR: The promotion of my Lord Stirling to the rank of Brigadier-General in the Continental Army having occasioned a vacancy, the Congress, in consideration of your merit and attachment to the American cause, have appointed you to succeed him.

I do myself the honour to enclose your commission; and am, sir, your humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Colonel William Winds, New-York.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, March 7, 1776.

SIR: Since my last I have had the honour to receive your several letters of the 10th, 13th, 15th, 20th, 21st, 23d, 26th, and 27th February, which were immediately communicated to Congress.

I have the pleasure to inform you that the Congress highly approve the orders you have given to Colonel Warner. They have directed a quantity of steel to be purchased and forwarded to you by the Delegates of New-Jersey, and have ordered an account to be made out and sent to you of the money paid to the Pennsylvania Troops who have marched to Canada. Your other letters are under consideration; as soon as the Congress come to a determination thereon, I shall do myself the honour to transmit to you.

I am extremely sorry to find you recover health so slowly. I hope that your attention to publick affairs will not make you neglect the care necessary for perfecting your recovery. The Congress have the most anxious concern for you, knowing the important services you can render to your country at this critical conjuncture.

As there is reason to apprehend that our enemies intend to direct their operations in the ensuing campaign against the Middle and Southern Colonies, the Congress have thought proper, in order to prepare for their defence, to divide those Colonies into two departments: one to comprehend New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware Governments, and Maryland, under the command of a Major-General and two Brigadier-Generals; and the other, the Colonies to the Southward, under the command of a Major-General and four Brigadier-Generals. The Brigadier-Generals are John Armstrong, William Thompson, Andrew Lewis, James Moore, Esqs., the Honourable William Earl of Stirling, and Robert Howe, Esq. General Armstrong they have directed to repair to South-Carolina; General Lewis and General Howe to Virginia; General Moore to North-Carolina, and General Thompson and Lord Stirling to New-York. With regard to Canada, the Congress have superseded the orders formerly given to General Lee, and directed him to take the command in the Southern Department, and have promoted Brigadier-General Thomas to the rank of a Major-General, and ordered him to repair to the Province of Canada, and take the command of the Continental Forces there. But still they rely greatly on your efforts for perfecting the work so conspicuously begun, and so well conducted under your orders last campaign.

The supplies of provisions, military stores, &c., for the Army in Canada, must be procured in these Colonies, and sent across the Lakes. On these supplies being regularly sent will depend, not only the success, but the existence of the Army in Canada. For this reason I am directed to inform you it is the desire of Congress you should, for the present, or until you receive further orders, fix your Headquarters at Albany; there, without being exposed to the fatigues of the camp, until your health is perfectly restored, you will be in a situation to direct the proper arrangements for supplying the Army in Canada, and to superintend the operations necessary for the defence of New-York and Hudson's River (the security of which is a matter of the last importance,) and also the affairs of the whole Middle Department. The Generals under you will receive and execute your orders, and in case of necessity you will be ready to bring down to their aid the whole force of the Colony. I would just observe that it is the desire of the Congress that the soldiers be employed in erecting and throwing up the necessary works for defence, both in New-York and on Hudson's River.

The Commissioners will set out this week; they will call on you on their way to Canada; and I expect they will be invested with full powers, not only to settle the affairs of that Province, but to adjust those matters that have given you uneasiness.

With sincere and hearty wishes for your health and prosperity, I have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Hon. Major-General Schuyler, at Albany.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONEL HAND.

Philadelphia, March 7, 1776.

SIR: The promotion of Colonel Thompson to the rank of Brigadier-General in the Continental Army having occasioned a vacancy in the battalion of riflemen, in consideration of your merit and attachment to the American cause, the Congress have appointed you to succeed him.

I do myself the honour to enclose your commission; and am, sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Colonel Edward Hand, Cambridge.

JOSEPH REED TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, March 7, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I have now the pleasure of informing you that a vessel, long expected from France and Holland, arrived a few days ago with twenty-five tons of powder, three hundred stand of excellent arms, and fifteen hundred weight of saltpetre. We are hourly in expectation of further arrivals, but we must now soon expect some ships-of-war in our river, which, I fear, will cut off all further enterprises of the like nature.

I have been in doubt some time whether I ought to mention to you a continuance of one of your principal officers in a private trade, with which I remember you were much dissatisfied last fall; you can be at no loss to know who I mean. But the concern and uneasiness you then expressed induce me to think it my duty to mention it, that if it is carried on without your privacy you may take such measures to check it as may best answer the purpose, and least affect the gentleman concerned in his interest and reputation. It is no secret in this town that persons are constantly employed in purchasing up goods here which do not all go to the publick store, as the parties concerned have boasted of their great profits, amounting, in some cases, to two hundred per cent. Persons who come from the camp seem to be well acquainted with the mode in which it is carried on, and are not sparing of their remarks. I dare say, on a little inquiry, you will know whether some stores in Cambridge are not carried on under ostensible names, and from thence you will judge whether the reports we have here are well founded. This inquiry may be made without its appearing to be suggested by any one, as it is intended only for private use. And I should be very happy if it should turn out to be a mistake or misrepresentation.

I was mistaken in my last with respect to Wooster's coming home. I understand he is to remain at Montreal, and Arnold to have command before Quebeck.

We have accounts from Virginia that Clinton was arrived at Hampton, but seemed to be waiting for his reinforcements. Nothing further new, therefore, from that quarter. We have not heard a syllable from our fleet for a considerable time, but expect intelligence every hour.

Upon the arrival of the Act of Parliament authorizing the ships-of-war to seize all American vessels, and condemn them as lawful prize, application was made to Congress by several persons for letters of marque and reprisal; but they could not feel bold enough; though many of the most timid, and those who have hankered so much after reconciliation, seeing so little of a spirit of that kind in Great Britain, have come off very much from these sentiments, the result of old prejudices and new fears.

I have taken a house in the country, to which I propose soon to send my family, and am preparing what is necessary for the summer; but an affair of great importance in the Assembly will detain me some time, though I hope not long. We wait impatiently to hear from you, in consequence of the last accounts, as if there was a probability of a movement from Boston. I expect your tents to be finished this week. The other matters will also be got ready with all possible expedition.

Adieu, my dear General. Should there be any action or enterprise, God grant it may be a glorious one to you, and a happy one for our country.

Yours, most obediently and affectionately,

JOSEPH REED.

ESSEX COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Newark, March 7, 1776.

SIR: I am desired by the Committee of the County of Essex, to inform you that we are in great want of powder, and to beg that the honourable the Continental Congress would direct that we may be supplied. We look upon this County now to be the frontier of this Province; and in case of an invasion at New-York, we would gladly hold ourselves in readiness to march at a minute's warning to their relief; but at present it is impossible, some companies of our Militia not having any powder at all, and none anything like a sufficiency. There is a great and general uneasiness among the people on this account. They have cheerfully given their money agreeable to the ten thousand pound ordinance of our Provincial Congress, in hopes of getting powder for their defence, and now are much chagrined at the disappointment. We pray, therefore, the Congress would immediately take this matter into serious consideration, and grant such relief as they in their wisdom shall think best.

I am, sir, with due respect, your most obedient and humble servant,

WILLIAM BURNET, Chairman.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

PROVINCIAL CONGRESS TO NEW-YORK DELEGATES IN CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, March 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The late Provincial Congress having received information, on the 3d of August last, that Captain Patrick Sinclair was appointed Lieutenant-Governour and Superintendent at Michilimackinack, being a person of great influence with the Indians, and that he was then in this city on his way to that post, and thinking that it was imprudent to permit any gentleman under the influence of the British Ministry to go into the interior part of the country to exercise those offices, who might prejudice the Indians against the United Colonies, ordered him to be taken into custody, and sent him on his parole to Suffolk County, on Nassau Island, where he has since continued to demean himself unexceptionably. He has lately applied by letter (a copy of which you have enclosed) to this Congress for leave to return to Europe. As we do not choose to take a step of this kind without the advice of your honourable body, we beg you will lay the state of this gentleman before Congress, and let us have their directions thereon. We beg leave to suggest that Mr. Sinclair was not laid under restraint as an enemy to the country—no information was received of his entertaining sentiments unfriendly to the United Colonies, but to the contrary; and that he had invariably treated our Indian traders with the greatest humanity and politeness. For these reasons, and from the consideration that he was not looked upon as a prisoner of war, we wish the favour he asks may be granted.

We are, with esteem, gentlemen, your very humble servants. By order: NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

Huntington, February 29, 1776.

SIR: It being the practice of all nations to allow the subjects of the respective States at variance to retire, I trouble the Congress with this application, for being permitted to go to Europe, in the first vessel from New-York.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PATRICK SINCLAIR.

To the President of the Congress, New-York.

The foregoing is a true copy of the original, examined and compared by me, ROBERT BENSON, Secretary to New-York Provincial Congress.

RICHMOND COUNTY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Richmond County, March 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeably to your request of February 21st, we here send you the proceedings of the trials of Richard Conner, Esq., Isaac Decker, Minah Burger, and Abraham Harris, being returned from their confinement at Elizabeth-town. The Committee being this day assembled, proceeded to the trial of Isaac Decker, relative to a complaint against him for having carried provision on board the transport, and opposing choosing of Delegates; speaking against the Continental and Provincial Congresses, and their proceedings; and for having carried Cortlandt Skinner on board the man-of-war.

Samuel Dehart, one of the evidence mentioned in the accusation against said Isaac Decker, being examined on oath to each particular complaint, declared that the said Isaac Decker was not guilty of either of the above complaints, to his knowledge.

Joshua Mercereau, being the other evidence mentioned in the charge against Isaac Decker, did appear, but would not give his evidence when called for.

The Committee has, therefore, referred the matter till Friday the 15th March, for further examination.

N. B. Mr. Isaac Decker owns that he sent Mr. Cortlandt Skinner on board the ship Duchess of Gordon with his barge. And at the last election for Delegates, it appears, by the list of votes, that he voted for Deputies to be sent to represent this County in Provincial Congress, and has signed the General Association.

The Committee then proceeded to the trial of Minah Burger; and after having examined the evidence against said Minah Burger, the Committee took into consideration the charge and complaint alleged against him. On examination, it appeared to the Committee to be groundless and without foundation; and, therefore, discharged said Minah Burger from said complaint.

The Committee then proceeded to the trial of Abraham Harris, relative to a complaint against him for drinking damnation to Independency, and for having said he enlisted thirty men in Egg-Harbour for King and country.

Seth Johnson, one of the evidence to the above charge, being examined on oath, declared, that he was at the house of Isaac Decker, when Abraham Harris told him that he had enlisted thirty men at the forks of Egg-Harbour for King and country, by order of a gentleman in New-York; further the deponent says, the next day said Harris told him he was not in earnest; and further says not.

David Crane, the other evidence to the above charge, being examined on oath, declared, that he was at the house of Isaac Decker, and the deponent saw said Abraham Harris with a bowl in his hand, and drink damnation to all Independency; and heard said Harris say that he had enlisted men at Egg-Harbour for King and country, and that they were not far off; and further says not.

N. B. Said Harris is taken by the Sheriff, and now confined in Richmond Jail, on account of a debt. The Committee knows not by what means to bring him to trial; would be glad of advice.

The Committee then proceeded to the trial of Richard Conner, Esq.; but no evidence appearing against him, it was referred till Friday, the 15th instant.

For more particulars relative to the foregoing trials, and others, reference to the Journal of the Committee may be had.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants,

By order of the Committee:

CHRISTIAN JACOBSON, Chairman.

To the Provincial Congress of New-York.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Colony of NEW-YORK, in Congress convened.

The Memorial of ABRAHAM LOTT, Treasurer of the said Colony, humbly sheweth:

That by a law of the Legislature of this Colony, passed the 16th day of February, in the year 1771, one hundred and twenty thousand Pounds, in bills of credit, were ordered to be, and were accordingly emitted, and put out on loan; that the interest money arising therefrom should yearly be paid to the respective Loan-Officers, on the third Tuesday in April; and that one-tenth part of the principal sum should be paid in on the third Tuesday of April, in this present year 1776, and so on, one-tenth part annually, until the whole principal is paid off; which respective tenths are, by the said law, ordered to be annually sunk.

That the Memorialist has been informed by some of the Loan-Officers, they apprehend it will be impracticable, at this time, for the borrowers of the money to procure New-York currency to pay off the interest, and one-tenth of the principal sum borrowed, as none of that money now passes; and are totally at a loss how to act, whether to receive any money now current, or whether to insist on payment in the currency the law directs.

The Memorialist, therefore, in behalf of the Loan-Officers, as well as of himself, humbly requests the honourable Congress will be pleased to give it as their opinion, whether the Loan-Officers, and consequently himself, shall receive any money that now passes current in this Colony, or whether payment must be insisted on in the money required by the said law.

And the Memorialist, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

Treasury Office, New-York, March 7, 1776.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Albany, March 7, 1776.

SIR: Since my last of yesterday, I have received a return of our force at Quebeck, from which I have extracted the enclosed. I am, also, honoured with two letters from General Washington, of the 25th and 27th ultimo. He entreats me to purchase arms in this quarter for his Army. It would give me great happiness if we could comply with his request; but with all the pains taken, we have not hitherto been able to procure a sufficiency for the troops that will pass through, and go from hence to Canada. Governour Trumbull, by whom I am also honoured with a letter of the 1st instant, says: "I expect they (Colonel Byrell's Regiment) will need the arms and accoutrements you gave encouragement to supply them with." I will continue to purchase whatever can be procured, even at the high price we are obliged to give; but begin to be very apprehensive that a sufficient number cannot be procured, nor can we get any from New-York.

The heavy cannon from New-York are at Poughkeepsie, and preparations were making for transporting them by land, which would occasion a vast and needless expense, as they could not be sent from this place, if they were now here, nor from Fort George, until the lakes open. One of the Committee who had them in charge called upon me this day for my advice; which was, to leave them on board of the vessels, and to come up the river as the ice should give way. There is a prospect that the river will be navigable in a very few days.

Governour Trumbull has desired me to mention to Congress the necessity of appointing persons to liquidate the accounts of the taking of Ticonderoga, &c. It is really very necessary that it should be done. Perhaps the Committee of this city might be thought competent to it.

I should be happy if I could, with any propriety, render myself at New-York immediately; but until all is in a proper train for the Northern service, which cannot be until the lakes are open, I judge it would be prejudicial to the service for me to leave this, although I stand in great need of relaxation, as the frequent letting of blood, which is thought necessary for my disorder, weakens me much; but I am nevertheless much better than I have latterly been, and hope a change of air will perfectly restore me.

I have just received accounts from the posts above that the sleigh-men refused to carry the heaviest cannon I ordered from Fort George, &c.

The expense of ferriage, and the transportation by land from hence to Fort George, runs so amazingly high, that I propose to have the provisions carried partly by water; which will not only make some abatement in the expense of transportation, but lessen the charge we are at in maintaining the roads.

The bearer is Colonel Dongan; to his services, I have been informed, we are much indebted. His influence with the Canadians, and the assistance given by him during the siege of St. John's, have been frequently mentioned to me.

I am, sir, most sincerely, your obedient, humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

ISAAC SEARS TO GENERAL LEE.

Jamaica, March 7, 1776.

SIR: It is a duty that I owe to my commander to acquaint him of my proceedings in executing the order he gave me. Yesterday afternoon I arrived at Newtown, and tendered the oath to four of the greater Tories, which they swallowed as hard as if it was a four-pound shot that they were trying to get down. On this day, at eleven o'clock, I came here, when I sent out scouting parties, and have been able to catch but five Tories, and they of the first rank, who swallowed the oath. The houses are so scattered, it is impossible to catch many without horses to ride after them; but I shall exert myself to catch the greatest part of the ringleaders, and believe I shall effect it, but not in less than five days from this time. I can assure your Honour that there are a set of villains in this County, and believe the better half of them are waiting for support, and intend to take up arms against us; and it is my opinion that nothing else will do but removing the ringleaders to a place of security.

From your most obedient, humble servant,

ISAAC SEARS.

To General Lee.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOSEPH REED.

Cambridge, March 7, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 18th ultimo came to my hands by post last night, and gives me much pleasure, as I am led to hope I shall see you in my family again. The terms upon which you come will be perfectly agreeable to me; and I should think you neither candid nor friendly if your communications on this subject had not been free, unreserved, and divested of that false modesty which too often prevents the elucidation of points important to be known. Mr. Baylor seeming to have an inclination to go into the Artillery, and Colonel Knox being desirous of it, I have appointed Mr. Moylan and Mr. Palfrey my Aids-de-camp; so that I shall, if you come, have a good many writers about me.

I think my countrymen made a capital mistake when they took Henry out of the Senate to place him in the field; and pity it is that he does not see this, and remove every difficulty by a voluntary resignation. I am of opinion that Colonel Armstrong, if he retains his health, spirits, and vigour, would be as fit a person as any they could send to Virginia, as he is senior officer to any now there, and I should think could give no offence; but to place Colonel Thompson there, in the first command, would throw everything into the utmost confusion; for it was by mere chance that he became a Colonel upon this expedition, and by greater chance that he became first Colonel in this Army. To take him, then, from another Colony, place him over the heads of several gentlemen under or with whom he has served in a subordinate character, would never answer any other purposes than that of introducing endless confusion. Such a thing surely cannot be in contemplation; and, knowing the mischiefs it would produce, surely Colonel Thompson would have more sense, and a greater regard for the cause he is engaged in, than to accept of it, unless some uncommon abilities or exertions had given him a superior claim. He must know that nothing more than being a Captain of Horse in the year 1759 (I think it was) did very extraordinarily give him the start he now has, when the rank was settled here. At the same time, he must know another fact, that several officers now in the Virginia service are much his superiors in point of rank, and will not, I am sure, serve under him. He stands first Colonel here, and may, I presume, put in a very good and proper claim to the first brigade that falls vacant; but I hope more regard will be paid to the service than to send him to Virginia.

The bringing of Colonel Armstrong into this Army as Major-General, however great his merit, would introduce much confusion. Thomas, if no more, would surely quit, and I believe him to be a good man. If Thomas supplies the place of Lee, there will be a vacancy for either Armstrong or Thompson; for I have heard of no other valiant son of New-England waiting promotion since the advancement of Frye, who has not done, and I doubt will not do, much service to the cause.

I am sorry to hear of your ill-fated fleet. We had it, I suppose because we wished it, that Hopkins had taken Clinton and his transports. How glorious would this have been! We have the proverb on our side, however, that "a bad beginning will end well." This applies to land and sea service. The account given of the business of the Commissioners from England seems to be of apiece with Lord North's conciliatory motion last year, built upon the same foundation; and, if true that they are to be divided among the Colonies to offer terms of pardon, it is as insulting as that motion, and only designed, after stopping all intercourse with us, to set us up to view in Great Britain as a people that will not hearken to any propositions of peace. Was there ever anything more absurd than to repeal the very acts which have introduced all this confusion and bloodshed, and at the same time enact a law to restrain all intercourse with the Colonies for opposing them? The drift and design are obvious; but is it possible that any sensible nation upon earth can be imposed upon by such a cobweb scheme, or gauze covering? But enough.

March 9th.—Colonel Bull's still waiting to see a little further into the event of things gives me an opportunity of adding, that, from a gentleman out of Boston, confirmed by a paper from the Selectmen there, we have undoubted information of General Howe's preparing with great precipitancy to embark his troops; for what place, we know not—Halifax; it is said. The Selectmen, being under dreadful apprehensions for the town, applied to General Robertson to apply to General Howe, who, through General Robertson, has informed them, that it is not his intention to destroy the town, unless his Majesty's Troops should be molested during their embarkation, or at their departure. This paper seems so much under covert, unauthenticated, and addressed to nobody, that I sent word to the Selectmen that I could take no notice of it; but I shall go on with my preparations as intended. The gentlemen above-mentioned, out of Boston, say, that they seem to be in great consternation there; that one of our shot from Lamb's Dam disabled six men in their beds; and that the Admiral, upon discovering our works next morning, informed the General that, unless we were dispossessed of them, he could not keep the King's ships in the harbour, and that three thousand men, commanded by Lord Percy, were actually embarked for that purpose. Of the issue of it you have been informed before. I am, &c.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS

Cambridge, March 7, 1776.

SIR: On the 26th ultimo I had the honour of addressing you, and then mentioned that we were making preparations for taking possession of Dorchester-Heights. I now beg leave to inform you, that a Council of General Officers having determined a previous bombardment and cannonade expedient and proper, in order to harass the enemy, and divert their attention from that quarter, on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday nights last, we carried them on from our posts at Cobble-Hill, Lechmere's Point, and Lamb's Dam. Whether they did the enemy any considerable, and what injury, I have not yet heard, but have the pleasure to acquaint you that they greatly facilitated our schemes, and would have been attended with success equal to our most sanguine expectations, had it not been for the unlucky bursting of two thirteen and three ten-inch mortars, among which was the brass one taken in the ordnance brig. To what cause to attribute this misfortune, I know not; whether to any defect in them, or to the inexperience of the bombardiers.

But to return. On Monday evening, as soon as our firing commenced, a considerable detachment of our men, under the command of Brigadier-General Thomas, crossed the neck, and took possession of the two hills, without the least interruption or annoyance from the enemy; and, by their great activity and industry, before the morning advanced the works so far as to be secure against their shot. They are now going on with such expedition that, in a little time, I hope they will be complete, and enable our troops stationed there to make a vigorous and obstinate stand.

During the whole cannonade, which was incessant the last two nights, we were fortunate enough to lose but two men: one a Lieutenant, by a cannon ball's taking off his thigh; the other a private, by the explosion of a shell, which also slightly wounded four or five more.

Our taking possession of Dorchester-Heights is only preparatory to taking post on Nike-Hill, and the point opposite the south end of Boston. It was absolutely necessary that they should be previously fortified, in order to cover and command them. As soon as the works on the former are finished and complete, measures will be immediately adopted for securing the latter, and making them as strong and defensible as we can. Their contiguity to the enemy will make them of much importance and of great service to us.

As mortars are essential and indispensably necessary for carrying on our operations, and for the prosecution of our plans, I have applied to two furnaces, to have some thirteen-inch ones cast with all expedition imaginable; and am encouraged to hope, from the accounts I have had, that they will be able to do it. When they are done, and a proper supply of powder obtained, I flatter myself, from the posts we have just taken and are about to take, that it will be in our power to force the Ministerial Troops to an attack, or to dispose of them in some way that will be of advantage to us. I think from these posts they will be so galled and annoyed, that they must either give us battle or quit their present possessions. I am resolved that nothing on my part shall be wanting to effect the one or the other.

It having been the general opinion that the enemy would attempt to dislodge our people from the hills, and force their works as soon as they were discovered, which probably might have brought on a general engagement, it was thought advisable that the honourable Council should be applied to, to order in the Militia from the neighbouring and adjacent towns. I wrote them on the subject, which they most readily complied with; and, in justice to the Militia, I cannot but inform you that they came in at the appointed time, and manifested the greatest alertness and determined resolution to have acted like men engaged in the cause of freedom.

When the enemy first discovered our works in the morning, they seemed to be in great confusion, and, from their movements, to have intended an attack. It is much to be wished that it had been made. The event, I think, must have been fortunate, and nothing less than success and victory on our side, as our officers and men appeared impatient for the appeal, and to have possessed the most animated sentiments and determined resolution.

On Tuesday evening, a considerable number of their troops embarked on board of their transports, and fell down to the Castle, where part of them landed before dark. One or two of the vessels got aground, and were fired at by our people with a field-piece, but without any damage. What was the design of this embarkation and landing, I have not been able to learn. It would seem as if they meant an attack; for it is most probable that, if they make one on our works at Dorchester, at this time, they will first go to the Castle, and come from thence. If such was their design, a violent storm that night, and which lasted till eight o'clock the next day, rendered the execution of it impracticable. It carried one or two of their vessels ashore, which have since got off.

In case the Ministerial Troops had made an attempt to dislodge our men from Dorchester-Hills, and the number detached upon the occasion had been so great as to have afforded a probability of a successful attack being made upon Boston, on a signal given from Roxbury for that purpose, agreeable to a settled and concerted plan, four thousand chosen men, who were held in readiness, were to have embarked at the mouth of Cambridge River, in two divisions: the first under the command of Brigadier-General Sullivan; the second under Brigadier-General Greene—the whole to have been commanded by Major-General Putnam. The first division was to land at the Powder-House, and gain possession of Beacon-Hill and Mount Whoredom; the second at Barton's Point, or a little south of it, and, after securing that post, to join the other division, and force the enemy's gates and works at the Neck, for letting in the Roxbury Troops. Three floating batteries were to have preceded and gone in front of the other boats, and kept up a heavy fire on that part of the town where our men were to land. How far our views would have succeeded, had an opportunity offered for attempting the execution, is impossible for me to say. Nothing less than experiment could determine with precision. The plan was thought to be well digested, and, as far as I could judge, from the cheerfulness and alacrity which distinguished the officers and men who were to engage in the enterprise, I had reasons to hope for a favourable and happy issue.

The Militia, which were ordered in from the adjacent towns, brought with them three days' provision. They were only called upon to act under the idea of an attack being immediately made, and were all discharged this afternoon.

I beg leave to remind Congress, that three Major-Generals are essential and necessary for this Army; and that, by General Lee's being called from hence to the command in Canada, the left division is without one. I hope they will fill up the vacancy by the appointment of another. General Thomas is the first Brigadier, stands fair in point of reputation, and is esteemed a brave and good officer. If he is promoted, there will be a vacancy in the Brigadier-Generals, which it will be necessary to supply by the appointment of some other gentleman that shall be agreeable to Congress. But justice requires me to mention that William Thompson, Esq., of the Rifle Regiment, is the first Colonel in this department, and, as far as I have had an opportunity of judging, is a good officer and a man of courage. What I have said of these two gentlemen, I conceived to be my duty, at the same time acknowledging that whatever promotions are made will be satisfactory to me.

March 9.—Yesterday evening a Captain Irvine, who escaped from Boston the night before, with six of his crew, came to Head-Quarters, and gave the following intelligence: That our bombardment and cannonade caused a good deal of surprise and alarm in town, as many of the soldiery said they never heard or thought we had mortars or shells; that several of the officers acknowledged they were well and properly directed; that they made much distress and confusion. That the cannon shot, for the greatest part, went through the houses; and he was told that one took off the legs and arms of six men lying in the barracks on the Neck. That a soldier, who came from the lines there on Tuesday morning, informed him that twenty men had been wounded the night before. It was reported that others were also hurt, and one of the light-horse torn to pieces by the explosion of a shell. This was afterwards contradicted. That early on Tuesday morning, Admiral Shulldham, discovering the works our people were throwing up on Dorchester-Heights, immediately sent an express to General Howe, to inform him, and that it was necessary they should be attacked and dislodged from thence, or he would be under the necessity of withdrawing the ships from the harbour which were under his command. That preparations were directly made for that purpose, as it was said; and from twelve to two o'clock, about three thousand men embarked on board the transports, which fell down to the Castle, with a design of landing on that part of Dorchester next to it, and attacking the works on the Heights at five o'clock next morning. That Lord Percy was appointed to command. That it was generally believed the attempt would have been made, had it not been for the violent storm which happened that night, as I have mentioned before. That he heard several of the privates and one or two sergeants say, as they were embarking, that it would be another Bunker-Hill affair.

He further informs, that the Army is preparing to leave Boston, and that they will do it in a day or two. That the transports, necessary for their embarkation, were getting ready with the utmost expedition. That there had been great movements and confusion among the troops the night and day preceding his coming out, in hurrying down their cannon, artillery, and other stores, to the wharves, with the utmost precipitation, and were putting them on board the ships in such haste that no account or memorandum was taken of them. That most of the cannon were removed from their works, and embarked and embarking. That he heard a woman say, which he took to be an officer's wife, that she had seen men go under the ground, at the lines on the Neck, without returning. That the ship he commanded was taken up, places fitted and fitting for officers to lodge, and several shot, shells, and cannon, already on board. That the Tories were to have the liberty of going where they please, if they can get seamen to man the vessels, of which there was a great scarcity; that on that account many vessels could not be carried away, and would be burnt. That many of the inhabitants apprehended the town would be destroyed; and that it was generally thought their destination is Halifax.

The account given by Captain Irvine, as to the embarkation, and their being about to leave the town, I believe true. There are other circumstances corroborating; and it seems fully confirmed by a paper signed by four of the Selectmen of the town, a copy of which I have the honour to enclose you, which was brought out yesterday evening by a flag, and delivered to Colonel Learned by Major Basset, of the Tenth Regiment, who desired it might be delivered me as soon as possible. I advised with such of the General Officers upon the occasion as I could immediately assemble; and we determined it right (as it was not addressed to me or any one else, nor authenticated by the signature of General Howe, or any other act obliging him to a performance of the promise mentioned on his part) that I should give it no answer; at the same time that a letter should be returned, as going from Colonel Learned, signifying his having laid it before me, with the reasons assigned for not answering it. A copy of this is sent.

To-night I shall have a battery thrown up on Nuke-Hill, (Dorchester-Point), with a design of acting as circumstances may require, it being judged advisable to prosecute our plans of fortification as we intended before this information from the Selectmen came. It being agreed, on all hands, that there is no possibility of stopping them, in case they determine to go, I shall order look-outs to be kept upon all the headlands, to discover their movements and course, and moreover direct Commodore Manly, and his little squadron, to dog them, as well for the same purpose as for picking up any of their vessels that may chance to depart their convoy. From their loading with such precipitancy, it is presumable they will not be in the best condition for sea.

If the Ministerial Troops evacuate the town, and leave it standing, I have thoughts of taking measures for fortifying the entrance into the harbour, if it shall be thought proper, and the situation of affairs will admit of it.

Notwithstanding the report from Boston that Halifax is the place of their destination, I have no doubt but that they are going to the southward of this, and I apprehend to New-York. Many reasons lead to this opinion. It is in some measure corroborated by their sending an express-ship there, which, on Wednesday week, got on shore, and bilged at Cape Cod. The despatches, if written, were destroyed when she was boarded. She had a parcel of coal, and about four thousand cannon-shot, six carriage-guns, a swivel or two, and three barrels of powder.

I shall hold the Riflemen, and other parts of our troops, in readiness to march at a moment's warning, and govern my movements by the events that happen, or such orders as I may receive from Congress, which I beg may be ample, and forwarded with all possible expedition.

On the 6th instant, a ship bound from London, with stores for the Ministerial Army, consisting of coal, porter, and kroust, fell in with our armed vessels, (four of them in company,) and was carried into Portsmouth. She had had a long passage, and of course brought no papers of a late date. The only letters of importance or the least interesting that were found, I have enclosed.

I beg leave to mention to Congress that money is much wanted. The Militia from these Governments, engaged till the first of April, are then to be paid; and if we march from hence, the expense will be very considerable, must be defrayed, and cannot be accomplished without it. The necessity of making the earliest remittance, for these purposes, is too obvious for me to add more.

When I wrote that part of this letter which is antecedent to this date, I fully expected it would have gone before now by Colonel Bull, not deeming it of sufficient importance to send a special messenger; but he deferred his return from time to time, and never set off till to-day. These reasons I hope will excuse the delay, and be received as a proper apology for not transmitting it sooner.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the President of Congress.

To His Excellency GENERAL WASHINGTON, Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United Colonies:

In obedience to your Excellency's orders, we have considered the matters referred to us, and beg leave to recommend the following Signals to be given from Roxbury, in case of any movement of the enemy to distress our people at Dorchester-Hill.

Signal in case the enemy begin to embark: a flag on Roxbury Meeting-House. If they actually land at Dorchester, two flags, one over the other. In case the number of the enemy exceed two thousand men, a flag at the east, and another at the west end of that Meeting-House. In case a reinforcement in addition to the two thousand are seen embarking, a flag on the east, a flag on the west, and a flag in the middle of that Meeting-House. In case the enemy begin to retreat, three flags, one above the other. In case the enemy carry the works, the flags are to be struck.

We further beg leave to recommend to your Excellency, that should it appear from the signals at Roxbury, or in any other way, that an attack may be made upon Boston with good probability of success, we recommend that four thousand men embark at the mouth of Cambridge River—two thousand of them to be furnished from Cambridge, and two thousand from Prospect and Winter Hills; one thousand from each of those Hills. The two thousand from Cambridge to be commanded by Brigadier-General Sullivan, and the other two thousand by Brigadier-General Greene. The whole to be commanded by Major-General Putnam.

Signal for the embarkation: a pendant hoisted on Prospect-Hill.

The first division, under Brigadier-General Sullivan, to land at the Powder-House. The second division, under Brigadier-General Greene, to land at Barton's Point, or rather to the south of it. Those who land at the Powder-House, to gain possession of Beacon-Hill and Mount-Whoredom. Those who land at Barton's Point, to gain possession of Copp's Hill, and after securing that post, proceed to join the other division, and force the enemy's works and gates at the Neck, by which means the Troops from Roxbury may be let in to assist in the reduction of the town.

The two divisions to consist of eight Regiments of five hundred men each, the men to be chosen, the arms to be well examined, and the officers to be the best, most resolute, and experienced.

The three floating-batteries here to go in front of the other boats, and keep up a heavy fire on that part of the town where the landings are to be made.

ISRAEL PUTNAM,
JOHN SULLIVAN,
NATHANIEL GREENE,
HORATIO GATES.

Boston, March 8, 1776.

As his Excellency General Howe is determined to leave the town with the troops under his command, a number of the respectable inhabitants being very anxious for its preservation and safety, have applied to General Robertson for this purpose, who, at their request, has communicated the same to his Excellency General Howe, who has assured him that he has no intention of destroying the town, unless the troops under his command are molested during their embarkation, or at their departure, by the armed force without, which declaration he gave General Robertson leave to communicate to the inhabitants. If such an opposition should take place, we have the greatest reason to expect the town will be exposed to entire destruction. As our fears are quieted with regard to General Howe's intentions, we beg we may have some assurances that so dreadful a calamity may not be brought on by any measures without. As a testimony of the truth of the above, we have signed our names to this paper, carried out by Messrs. Thomas and Jonathan Amory, and Peter Johannot; who have, at the earnest entreaties of the inhabitants, through the Lieutenant-Governour, solicited a flag of truce for this purpose.

JOHN SCOLLAY,

THOMAS MARSHALL,
SAMUEL AUSTIN.

Roxbury, March 9, 1776.

SIR: Agreeably to a promise made to you at the lines yesterday, I waited upon his Excellency General Washing- ton, and presented to him the paper (handed to me by you) from the Selectmen of Boston. The answer I received from him was to this effect: "That as it was an unauthenticated paper, without an address, and not obligatory upon General Howe, he would take no notice of it."

I am, with esteem and respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

EBENEZER LEARNED.

To Messrs. Amorys and Johannot.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, February 27, 1776.

(Parole, Hancock.)

(Countersign, Adams.)

As the season is now fast approaching when every man must expect to be drawn into the field of action, it is highly necessary that he should prepare his mind, as well as everything necessary, for it. It is a noble cause we are engaged in—it is the cause of virtue and mankind. Every temporal advantage and comfort to us and our posterity depends upon the vigour of our exertions; in short, freedom or slavery must be the result of our conduct; there can, therefore, be no greater inducement to men to behave well. But it may not be amiss for the troops to know, that if any man in action shall presume to skulk, hide himself, or retreat from the enemy, without the orders of his commanding officer, he will be instantly shot down, as an example of cowardice—cowards having too frequently disconcerted the best formed troops by their dastardly behaviour.

Next to the favours of Divine Providence, nothing is more essentially necessary to give this Army the victory of all its enemies, than exactness of discipline, alertness when on duty; and cleanliness in their arms and persons. Unless the arms are kept clean, and in good firing order, it is impossible to vanquish the enemy; and cleanliness of the person gives health and soldierlike appearance. That no confusion may ensue when the troops are called to action, the General has ordered all the posts and guards of the lines and redoubts to be so fixed and regulated, as every officer and soldier may know his place and his duty; and to confirm the order and discipline, the General orders, that the officers and men who are to mount guard do parade every morning at eight o'clock, upon their regimental parades, where they are to be reviewed by the Adjutant in the presence of a Field-Officer, who is to see that their arms, ammunition, and accoutrements, are complete, and the men dressed in a soldierlike manner. The Adjutant is then to march them to the parade of the Brigade, and deliver them over to the Major of Brigade, who is very minutely to inspect the whole, and then march them to the grand parade, where the Brigadier, with the Field-Officers of the day, will attend, to see all the guards paraded and march to their several destinations. With the Brigadier will constantly mount his Major-of-Brigade, who is always to make up the guards upon the grand parade, and report all extraordinary-ries to his Brigadier-General. The Brigadier of the day will give his orders to the Field-Officers of the day, at what time he would have them to go the visiting and grand rounds, and half an hour before day, order all the guards to be under arms, and properly posted, visit the outposts, see that the guards are properly placed, and that everything is in good order for defence, in case of an attack. All officers commanding guards are to report to the Brigadier of the day, who is to report to the Commander-in-Chief. The guards to be made up on the grand parade are, Lechmere-Point, Cobble-Hill, Ploughed-Hill, White-House, main guard on Prospect-Hill, the South, North, and Middle Redoubts, Lechmere's Point Bridge, and the main guard for Cambridge and Winter-Hill. All other guards are to be sent from the Brigade parades, (the quarter-guards of the Regiments excepted,) who are paraded on their regimental parades.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, February 28, 1776.

(Parole, Harrison.)

(Countersign, Lynch.)

The commanding General at Roxbury will, as soon as possible, establish a detail of duty at that post, as similar to that in yesterday's orders as the circumstances of his command will admit; which, when fixed, is to be transmitted to the Commander-in-Chief for his inspection and approbation.

The Brigadiers-General to take especial care that all the Regiments belonging to their respective Brigades know their alarm posts, that they may instantly repair to them in case of alarm.

As the guards are most of them increased, the sentries are to be increased in proportion.

A communication must be made and kept up between post and post, that the rounds and patrols may pass conveniently in the night.

As the roads are so extremely dirty, and the ground so unsettled, his Excellency orders the guards, until further orders, to be paraded in the same manner, and upon the same parade, as they were this morning.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, February 29, 1776.

(Parole, Franklin.)

(Countersign, Carroll.)

The commanding officers of Brigades are to order all the spears in the several posts and redoubts to be examined, cleaned, and collected in the proper places, and make a return of the number fit for service in each Brigade, and where deposited.

Ensign Andrew Brown, of the Seventh Regiment of Foot, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Phinney was President, for "insulting and challenging his commanding officer, Lieutenant-Colonel Moulton." The court were of opinion that the prisoner was not guilty of the whole of the charge, but only of insulting Colonel Moulton; therefore, adjudge him publickly to ask pardon of Lieutenant-Colonel Moulton for the affront.

The General approves the sentence, and orders the execution of it to be as soon as possible, and the prisoner then to be released from his arrest.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 1, 1776.

(Parole, Arnold.)

(Countersign, Chace.)

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 2, 1776.

(Parole, Neilson.)

(Countersign, Adams.)

Upon any alarm, Colonel Patterson's Regiment is immediately to repair to Lechmere's, leaving one Captain, two Subalterns, two Sergeants, and fifty rank and file, in the work leading to the bridge.

Colonel Bond's Regiment is instantly to march to Cobble-Hill, and Colonel Sargent's Regiment to the North, Middle, and South Redoubts. This is to be considered as a standing order, until countermanded.

Generals Heath's, Sullivan's, Greene's, and Frye's Brigades are, in rotation, to march a Regiment an hour before day, every morning, into the works on Lechmere's Point and Cobble-Hill, five Companies of which to go to the former, and three to the latter; they are to remain in the works until sun-rise.

The Field-Officers for the guards at Lechmere's Point, Cobble-Hill, and Ploughed-Hill, are to consist of Lieutenant-Colonels and Majors, as those for the day are Colonels.

The commanding officers of Regiments who have neglected to see their men supplied with fascines, are immediately to order every non-commissioned officer and soldier to provide one good fascine, which is to be put under a sentry of the quarter-guard of the Regiment.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 3, 1776.

(Parole, . . . . .)

(Countersign, . . . . .)

No officer or soldier, under any pretence, is to be absent from his post, without leave in writing from his Brigadier-General, who is not to grant liberty of running backwards and forwards from hence to Roxbury, but in very especial cases.

As it is not unlikely but a contest may soon be brought on between the Ministerial Troops and this Army, the General flatters himself that every officer and soldier will endeavour to give such distinguished proofs of his conduct and good behaviour as becomes men fighting for everything that is dear and valuable to freemen, remembering at the same time what disgraceful punishment will attend a contrary behaviour. Every man's conduct will be marked, and rewarded or punished accordingly, and cowardice in a most exemplary manner. The Colonels, or commanding officers of Regiments, are to see that their several Regiments are properly told off, and the supernumerary officers so posted as to keep the men to their duty. Particular care is to be taken, to prevent their firing at too great a distance, as one fire well aimed does more execution than a dozen at long-shot.

All wood-cutting parties, &c., are to join their respective Regiments until further orders. The Quartermaster-General may draw the carbines out of the Commissary's stores, and put them into the hands of the carpenters, or such others as he shall think will use them to the best advantage, taking care to return them when called for. All arms in store fit for use, may be delivered out to the Adjutant-General's order.

The Brigadiers are to see that the arms in their several Brigades are disposed of to the best advantage, placing them in the hands only of such men as are fittest for duty; and that the spears are used as occasion shall require, to supply the defect of arms.

As it has been suggested to the General that many of the town's people, &c., influenced by a zeal for the cause of their country, are inclined to throw aid in case the Army should be called to action, the General desires that they will (to prevent any kind of confusion or disorder) join different Companies in the several Regiments, as they shall choose, or form themselves into a distinct corps, under officers of their own choosing, and put themselves under the immediate command of some Brigadier, that they may not be considered or act as an independent Company.

Two Companies of Colonel Thompson's Rifle Regiment are to march to-morrow evening to Roxbury, with their blankets, arms, and three days' provisions ready dressed. The officer commanding the party will receive his orders from the Adjutant-General.

Colonel Hutchinson's and Colonel French's Regiments are to march to Roxbury by sunrise on Tuesday morning, with their blankets, arms, and three days' provisions ready dressed.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 4, 1776.

(Parole, Hooper.)

(Countersign, Allen.)

The flag on Prospect-Hill, and that at the Laboratory on Cambridge-Common, are ordered to be hoisted only upon a general alarm; of this the whole Army is to take particular notice, and immediately upon those colours being displayed, every officer and soldier must repair to his alarm post. This is to remain a standing order until the Commander-in-Chief shall please to direct otherwise.

The several Surgeons of the Hospitals at Cambridge, and every Regimental Surgeon in the left and centre divisions of the Army, are directed to meet at five o'clock this evening, at Brown's Tavern, in Cambridge, to take directions from the Director-General of the Hospital relative to the immediate disposition of their sick, and in what manner they and their Mates are to be posted.

The College to be forthwith appropriated to the reception of the Regimental sick, and such as may be wounded; that suitable barracks at Prospect-Hill, or any other part of the camp which the Director-General of the Hospital shall advise, be got in immediate readiness for the reception of at least one hundred wounded, in case of need; and such a number of men as he may think sufficient be ordered to assist in carrying wounded men to the Hospital. Hand-barrows and other proper means to be provided for their removal.

Stephen Moylan and William Palfrey, Esqs., are appointed Aids-de-camp to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief. They are to be obeyed as such.

Thursday, the 7th instant, being set apart by the honourable the Legislature of this Province, as a day of fasting, prayer, and humiliation, "to implore the Lord and Giver of all victory to pardon our manifold sins and wickednesses, and that it would please him to bless the Continental arms with his divine favour and protection;" all officers and soldiers are strictly enjoined to pay all due reverence and attention on that day to the sacred duties due to the Lord of hosts for his mercies already received, and for those blessings which our holiness and uprightness of life can alone encourage us to hope through his mercy to obtain.

The Brigadiers-General Heath and Frye to send for their respective Colonels immediately, and with them appoint the officers and soldiers from each of their Brigades, to be selected for the command under the Brigadiers-General Sullivan and Greene; to direct that they be the best and most approved soldiers; that their arms, ammunition, and accoutrements are complete, and in proper order, and the whole to be ready to turn out upon the shortest notice. General Heath to report the names of the Colonels' and Field-Officers who are appointed for this service, to his Excellency as soon as possible.

On the above, I would remark, that many of the Surgeons have paid no attention to the General Orders, by neglecting to bring in their Returns; that, in general, they are but miserably supplied with Instruments, Bandages, Lint, Rags, &c., and much worse with Medicines; some having none at all, or next to none.

A Return of the Surgeons and Mates of Brigadier-General SULLIVAN's Brigade, examined agreeable to Orders, &c.
Isaac Spafford, Surgeon, of Colonel Nixon's, approved.
Caleb G. Adams, Surgeon, of Colonel Poor's, approved, but means to quit his place.
Mr. Green, of ———, Mr. Goss, of Stark's, both sick; therefore, not yet examined.
Mr. Parker and Nathaniel Breed, Mates, approved.
Nathaniel Burnap, Mate, not qualified.

One Mate declines examination; but his name is not come to hand.
JOHN MORGAN.

I have not yet had leisure to make out a list of Instruments, Bandages, and Medicines, necessary for each Regiment, but shall at first leisure. I have given directions in what manner the Hospital Surgeons are to assist the Regimental Surgeons at Roxbury, and would beg a few minutes' conference with his Excellency General Washington on the same subject in respect to Cambridge.

COLONEL MOREY TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.
Orford, March 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am to inform you that many difficulties have arisen since I left you, about raising this regiment of Colonel Bedel's—too many to mention at present. I shall only say that many independent companies have inlisted, which has occasioned the long delay of the companies, both here and Colonel Wait's party. Some recruiting officers from Colonel Warner's party have inlisted a considerable number of fine men; they had the money to pay down forty shillings bounty, only for about three months' service, which was much easier than to get men for one year. I am also to inform you that Captain Town, who told you and Colonel Bedel that he had his men all ready, has wholly failed, and taken sixteen pounds, (that is, two months' advance pay to himself,) as the Honourable Jonathan Blanchard will inform, &c.

Great difficulty on account of the want of guns, of which I have been obliged to buy many; and more must be bought, or they will be obliged to go without, which I should think would by no means do, although there were some few guns there last fall. By what I can learn, they will be taken up before our men can get to Canada. There is a regiment of Canadians raising in Canada. I find with the money I can buy about one hundred very good guns, which will cost nigh a thousand dollars. I have likewise to inform you that I have purchased, by Colonel Bedel's order, about seventy pounds' worth of medicines for the regiment. I have likewise a bill of Doctor Crane's for medicine, that Doctor Barker had for Colonel Bedel's Regiment last year, about twenty pounds, to pay; all which I shall lay before you,

&c., as soon as may be. I am ordered to provide two horses and a sleigh to carry the medicines to Canada. I am further to inform you that it is impossible ever to march the company without some advance pay, clothing, &c. I wish, gentlemen, I was master of words sufficient to describe the wants of the men to fix themselves for a long and tedious march, and to leave a small matter for the support of their families, while absent. I fully expect I shall want about two thousand dollars more before the regiment can be completed, for guns, &c. Lieutenants Grant and Thurbur marched off last week with a party of forty-four men, belonging to Captains Grant and Everett's companies. About forty more march to-morrow, and about as many now. None yet from Captain Osgood's company. All this way to march next week. I shall be obliged to send down for more money before the whole can complete their march, unless you think to send me a sum of money by some safe hand. I can assure you that no man has yet waited one hour for any business on my part, and I am fully determined they shall not. I have been careful to keep everything on my part ready. Nothing shall be wanting that is in my power to provide. All the guns that were brought I have got appraised, and what guns I have purchased, by them that are good judges of guns, &c. Money answers all things: if that be wanting, the voyage must of consequence fail.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,
ISRAEL MOREY.

To the Hon. Meshech Weare, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Safety of New-Hampshire.

P. S. Since I began the letter, Colonel Bedel came to Orford, and has wrote you on the affair, &c. Major James Richardson, or Colonel William Simpson, will wait upon you with this express, and wait your orders. You will please to take notice that the footing of Doctor Crane's bill for medicines last year is, - - - - £19 2s. 1d. This year, - - - - - 63 15 8 Doctor Aubury's bill for medicine, - - - - 8 10 0 A case of capital instruments will cost fifty dollars at Hanover, - - - - - 15 0 0 Doctor Barker's account, - - - - - 14 8 6 Sleigh and two horses, - - - - - 24 0 0 Cash taken by Captain Town, - - - - 16 0 0 One hundred guns will cost about, - - - 300 0 0 To be advanced to Colonel Bedel, - - - 300 0 0

You will observe that I have not had any money advanced on account of the above... You will likewise remember that the Committee of Safety are empowered to do what is needful on account of forwarding this regiment. And further, be glad of your opinion of Doctor Crane's bill, &c., as I am not a judge of such affairs.
I. M.

LACHLAN MCINTOSH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Savannah, in Georgia, March 8, 1776.

SIR: I did myself the honour to write to your Excellency the 16th ult., which, for want of conveyance, lies here still, as our Continental post is not well regulated this length yet. It is hardly worth troubling you with any report of our battalion, as I have heard from very few of our recruiting officers, and we have only between twenty and thirty men of them in town; but the transactions here since that time may deserve some notice. The men-of-war at Tybee, though still giving out they had no hostile intentions against this Colony, were encouraging our slaves to desert to them, pilfering our Sea-Islands for provisions, and our Governour broke his parole of honour, and went privately in the night with his family aboard the Scarborough, Captain Barclay, which gave us every reason to expect they meant to land at or near the town, destroy it, and carry off about twenty sail of shipping lying in the river, having, among other articles, near three thousand tierces of rice on board.

Between three and four hundred of our own Militia, and one hundred from South-Carolina, were all that could be got to defend an open, straggling, defenceless, and deserted town, with numberless avenues leading to it, and those men under no control or command whatsoever; and, to add to the anarchy and confusion we were in, our Council of Safety had not met for some time, having differed about the meaning of a resolve of the Continental Congress respecting the ships sailing the 1st of March. In this desperate state of affairs, I ventured to take the command of the Militia, lest the Colony should be tamely given up, though, I must acknowledge, with some reluctance; and, after examining very particularly, as I was unacquainted, around the town, I placed guards everywhere the enemy could land, and ambushes in the different roads leading to it, which made the duty very severe, and reduced our number in town greatly. In the mean time, the Cherokee, the two transports, the armed vessels and boats, came up the river within two and a half miles of town, near where we sunk a hulk in the channel of the river, and opposite to Brewton's plantation, where I placed a detachment of one hundred and fifty men, under command of Colonel Bullock, expecting they would attempt to land there. The enemy were parading with their boats for several days within gunshot of our sentinels, who, though they were ordered not to fire unless they were fired upon first, or they attempted to land, gave them several shot, but were not returned.

Our Council of Safety were got together, and resolved the shipping should not sail, and ordered they should be unriggered. The evening of the 2d of March, one of the transport ships, (the Schooner Hinchinbrook,) and Sloop St. John, of eight or ten guns each, with some boats, sailed in our sight up the North River, back of Hutchinson's Island, lying opposite to the Town of Savannah, but so far off that a little battery we had below the town, which played upon them, could do no damage to them. Expecting the enemy intended coming round Hutchinson's Island, and down the south side of it, to make their landing good at Yamacraw, (a village three or four hundred yards above the town,) I had three four-pounders carried there, a little battery erected in haste, and threw up intrenchments, and withdrew part of the guard at Brewton's, without weakening too much, or withdrawing any of our ambushes on that side, lest it might be a feint to deceive us. About the middle of the same night (as we were afterwards informed) the Commodore, Barclay, and Majors Grant and Maitland, with about three hundred men, as it was said, landed on the back of Hutchinson's Island, with some howitzers and field-pieces, and, with the assistance and contrivance of all our own seafaring people, and many from the town, crossed the Island and hid themselves aboard of our merchant ships, which were previously hauled close to the Island, a little above our battery at Yamacraw, for that purpose. Early on Sunday, the 3d, the two armed vessels, intending to cover the enemy's landing, had come round the Island, and, coming down on the south side, were attacked by parties of riflers ordered for that purpose, and kept smartly engaged on both sides most of the day, until they lost the tide and got aground; while two sailors, (Americans,) at the risk of their lives, stole ashore and informed me the enemy were hid on board our merchantmen, and had taken Joseph Rice prisoner, who was employed to unrigger them that morning. To confirm this intelligence, Messrs. Demeré and Roberts were ordered to go only alongside the vessels, and, without arms, to demand our fellow-citizen, Mr. Rice; but, to our astonishment, they were also forced on board and kept, which convinced us our information was true; and immediately our little battery of three guns began to play upon them, which they returned, and was continued very smartly with ball, langrage, and small-arms, from both sides for several hours. Our men were inflamed, particularly at our own people who had treacherously joined the enemy against us, and were eager to board them; but we had neither boats, sailors, or arms, proper for the attempt, and the oars of the few boats we had were previously stolen away. The general cry then was, to set all the shipping on fire; in attempting of which, many of our people showed great resolution and bravery; but, unfortunately, the first ship set fire to, (valued at twenty thousand pounds sterling,) was so large that she grounded before she got up to the others. Afterwards a sloop was fired, which burned two others, while the rest were cutting away, amidst the shot of our rifles and langrage, and slipping higher up the river, out of our reach, with the last of the flood. In the mean time, many of the soldiers hastily landed on the Island, in great confusion, running in the marsh in a laughable manner, for fear of our rifles, though far past their reach, until they got aboard a tire of ships higher up the river, and out of the reach of our guns, near the armed vessels. In this manner ten sail of our vessels went along with the enemy round the upper end of the Island (a channel never known before) with sixteen hundred barrels of rice, with the utmost anxiety and fear.

After being foiled in their scheme upon the town, the Commodore and Majors eagerly and repeatedly solicited a cessation of hostilities, for which they promised immediately to repair to Tybee, and not molest us again; which was at length granted them with seeming difficulty, though the truth was, we had no means of annoying them by water. The rest of the shipping we hauled close to the wharves, confined some of their Captains for acting against us, with our Chief-Justice and some Counsellors, until they released our fellow-citizens, Demeré, Roberts, and Rice, and send them up from Tybee, where our enemies are all now gone. Whether they intend to try us again or not, I am not able to inform your Excellency. In this, I think, they rather lost, than gained any reputation, and have done us great honour, by being the second Province on the Continent which they attacked, and were shamefully foiled. We had, in all our different engagements, but two white men and one Indian wounded slightly. They must have many both killed and wounded, though they acknowledge but six. Several were seen to fall.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

LACHLAN MCINTOSH.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esquire, Captain-General and Commander-in-Chief of all the Continental Forces in America.

P. S. The ships-of-war have taken all the rice (sixteen hundred barrels) out of the merchantmen that so treacherously went down with them, and put it aboard their two transport ships, without paying a farthing for it. They claim one-eighth for "wresting them out of the hands of the Rebels," as the Commodore's certificate expresses it; but I doubt they will keep the other seven-eighths also.

L. McI.

Williamsburgh, Virginia, March 8, 1776.

Yesterday thirty-two Members of the Assembly met at the Capitol, pursuant to adjournment; which not being a sufficient number to proceed on business, and no Representative of the King appearing, they thought proper farther to adjourn to the first Thursday in May next, when that honourable body will meet, as well as the General Convention, for the discussion of sundry important matters tending to the safety and well-being of the Colony, and of America in general.

At this time the saltpetre works at Warwick, Petersburgh, and Blandford, produce full two hundred weight per day; and two other works now erecting on James-River will increase the quantity to upwards of three hundred and fifty weight per day. A powder-mill is also erecting, which, when completed, will amply supply this Colony with that necessary article.

AMELIA COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Committee held for Amelia County, March 8, 1776: This Committee, taking into consideration the distressed situation of many of the Inhabitants of the lower Counties, who have been reduced to the real want of every necessary of life by the cruel hand of oppression, think it their indispensable duty to repeat their offers of friendship and assistance to as many of the friends to American liberty as may think proper to come and reside among us; and for ourselves, and for our constituents, we do assure all such that we will contribute everything in our power to make their residence agreeable.

Resolved, That these Proceedings be published in the Virginia Gazette.

JOHN BOOKER, JUN., Clerk.

Williamsburgh, Virginia, March 8, 1776.

In this enlightened age, whoever shall go about to impose shadows on mankind for substances, and names for things, must be something else than modest, and have other views than those of fairness and honesty. The present Ministry, notorious as they have rendered themselves for their attachment to those arbitrary principles in Government, in opposition to which our glorious ancestors fought, bled, and died, and by whose spirit and wisdom the liberty we enjoy has been rescued from former British tyrants; these Ministers, after repeatedly rejecting, with disdain, the most modest and pressing applications from every Assembly on the Continent for redress of intolerable grievances; after having vainly endeavoured, by force of arms, to enslave North America; expect now to effect, by fraud and division, what their acts and their arms have failed to accomplish. But let us, my countrymen, be on our guard against their delusive arts; let us continue to pursue that manly, sensible, and united conduct, which has hitherto baffled our insidious enemies, and which, persevered in, must finally accomplish the political salvation of America. The Ministry say they will not treat with the General Congress, because they are an illegal body. If that great luminary of law, Lord Coke, be right when he says, in the first part of his Institutes, "nothing that is contrary to reason is lawful," the converse of the proposition must also be true, that nothing can be unlawful that is reasonable. The appointment of a General Congress being founded on reason, cannot, therefore, be illegal; and this we shall find established, as well by the principles of just reasoning, as by the practice of our ancestors. It is agreed, by the best writers, that the end of Government is the security of property and personal liberty; that Kings and Governours being appointed by the people for these purposes, if they forfeit their trust by attempting the ruin both of property and publick liberty, the Government is at an end, and power reverts to the people who gave it. The illustrious Locke, and the glorious Revolution, incontestably established these principles; and the Government of England is now agreed to be founded on resistance to arbitrary sway. Let us apply this doctrine to North America, and we shall find that, for a series of twelve years, the property and liberty of every person here has been invaded by a variety of acts of Parliament, and proceedings of Government, for taxing us without our consent; for depriving us of trial by jury, in cases of both life and property; for transporting us to England to be tried for supposed offences committed here; for greatly extending the limits of one of the Provinces, and establishing an arbitrary Government therein; and, finally, by attempting to enforce these destructive measures by the sword, contrary to the plainest principles of the Constitution, of justice, of compact, and the usage of an hundred and sixty years, or the first settlement of North America by Englishmen; and in utter neglect and contempt of repeated modest petitions from every House of Assembly on this Continent. So atrocious an abuse of power, aiming at the ruin of more than three millions of people now existing, and the many more millions that are involved in future generations, justified the people of North America, upon the best established maxims of the Constitution, in the adoption of such measures as were fitted to insure the publick safety, and secure the end of all Government. A Congress was therefore appointed, consisting of Delegates from the Representatives of the people in every Colony, that, by a union of their councils and strength, the common safety might be effectually obtained. Those who deny this proceeding to be legal, do plainly deny the legality of the Revolution, and that title by which the King of England now holds his crown; for when the people of England were abused by similar exertions of despotick power, they assembled, by their Representatives, in 1688, not in Parliament, but in Convention, (or Congress, if you will,) and determined to banish the tyrant Stuart from the throne, and place thereon our glorious deliverer, King William, in succession to whom the present King now sways the sceptre of that country.

Thus you see, my countrymen, the appointment of a Congress is founded in reason, self-preservation, and the practice of England; but the present Tory Ministry, and their secret directors, object to this proceeding, not only because it is agreeable to the purest principles of liberty and the Revolution—both which they detest—but because the Congress, by their wise, spirited councils and conduct, have effectually baffled the Cabinet scheme for enslaving America. When Lord North proposed his clumsy plan of accommodation last winter, he declared, in the House of Commons, his design to conquer by dividing us; and, after an open declaration of his purpose, the Governours were directed to propose it to the different Assemblies. But America disdained the vulgar artifice, and referred him to that body (the General Congress) in which the Councils of America were centred, and which had already conducted the general business to general satisfaction. It must be evident to every thinking man, that if thirteen different treaties are set up, hopes, rewards, terrors, and all the infinite machinery of undue influence, may, and will be practised in negotiation, to set the different Colonies at variance, and thus, by division, to conquer and ruin America. It is very remarkable, that the only two Colonies (New-York and New-Jersey) that caught at the Ministerial bait of separate Assembly application, after the rising of Congress in 1774, had their petitions most contemptuously rejected; thus deservedly meeting that fate which will constantly attend departure from a wise, firm, and united conduct. These instances, together with the present proceeding of Administration, prove incontestably that they mean to disunite us, and nothing else. The General Congress, in their declaration of last summer, most solemnly declare: "For the protection of our property, acquired solely by the honest industry of our forefathers and ourselves, against violence actually offered, we have taken up arms. We shall lay them down when hostilities shall cease on the part of the aggressors, and all danger of their being renewed shall be removed, and not before." If the Ministry mean peace, why do they not accept this offer, and recall their fleets and armies? Yet you find they are increasing both in every part of North America. More ships-of-war and soldiers come, and are coming! We must, therefore, give up every claim to policy or prudence, if we doubt a moment of their design to push the war against us, under the fallacious guise of a treaty. If they had the smallest pretensions to sincerity or decency, would they offer a brave and free people terms of accommodation at the points of bayonets? Would they, after cruelly injuring and abusing us beyond the example of former times, insultingly commission persons to receive our submissions and repentance for defending rights which God, reason, and compact had given us? Would they content themselves with repealing two or three acts only of those numerous statutes with which they have afflicted us, still retaining the principle with the acts for taxing us without our consent? No, my countrymen, believe me; and observe what the great patriot, Lord Chatham, thought, when he proposed to mark sincerity by a removal of fleets and armies from North America, and by the repeal of all the obnoxious acts. Until you see this done, there will be no sincerity in the proffered treaty. The design is evidently to divide, in the first place; and, in the second, to gain time for levying and transporting armies for our subjugation; whilst, under the delusive prospect of accommodation, their forces now here are suffered to remain unmolested, to be inured to the climate, and the timely, vigorous efforts of America delayed and frustrated. When, therefore, they offer to treat with Assemblies separately, refer them to the General Congress; and, in the mean time, press the war with manly vigour and perseverance so long as hostile armies remain in your country; and hostile they must be if they remain at all. Common sense, common safety, honour, and the interest of the present and future generations, all loudly call on you thus to act; for if the Ministry are in earnest for restoring peace and doing justice, the united voice of America, in Congress, will most certainly and cordially embrace the offer.

SOMERS.

ALEXANDER WICKHAM TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Annapolis Guard-House, March 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am confined (as I understand) by your order. Should be glad to know what charge against me, as I am ready to answer. I have business of some consequence to do at Marlborough; therefore, if convenient to you, would take my trial this afternoon. I apprehend that in all criminal cases the culprit is so far indulged as to have a copy of the charge against him, and his accusers face to face.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

ALEXANDER WICKHAM.

To the Honourable Members of the Council of Safety of Maryland.

JOHN A. THOMAS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Leonardtown, March 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On Tuesday last, in the afternoon, I received advice that three armed vessels were in, and near, the Patuxent; that one of them had taken a vessel laden with flour, bound to Casco-Bay. On the above notice (as soon as it was possible) we marched down to the mouth of the Patuxent; but before we could do anything we were obliged to borrow all the arms from one company of the Militia, and those but very indifferent—indeed, so bad that it would be cruel to set men to work with them. The company from whom I borrowed the arms are at this moment in the greatest want of them, as we have certain intelligence of a man-of-war (a large armed sloop) being at this time riding in Potomack. The Militia are, through this County, in a most defenceless state; and my company, if possible, in a much worse one. I have therefore sent Mr. Steward up to you requesting to have the arms allotted for us. If you have them not, Mr. Steward says he can purchase them. Besides the arms, we want more ammunition; and it is impossible to do anything without them. This County being so particularly circumstanced, I entreat you to allow Mr. Steward to look out for arms for us. Under the exigency of affairs I submit it, whether it would not be better to form my company into two, and make them sixty-eight non-commissioned officers and privates, with the proper commissioned officers. If you should approve of this arrangement, I would take the liberty to recommend to your notice two young gentlemen who have entered cadets into my company, and who will fill (in my opinion) very well the stations of Third Lieutenants. I have stationed half my company at the mouth of Patuxent, and half (as soon as quarters can be got) will be stationed at the mouth of Potomack; this will put it out of the power of Mr. Ford to provide for them. I have therefore contracted for a considerable quantity of pork and bread, which will serve the men on Patuxent a month or more; and Mr. Neal goes off directly to the mouth of Potomack to get provisions and quarters for the troops there. As the exigency of affairs would not permit me to consult you, I have, in every step that I have yet taken, consulted the principal gentlemen of the place, who have unanimously agreed to the steps that I have taken; but if they are judged by you to be improper, I beg to be immediately advised, and you may rely that every order from you shall be strictly complied with. I mentioned in my last the necessity of having a horse for expresses and any other uses; I now see the necessity more than ever. The hiring of horses is attended with great delay, and frequently not to be got; I therefore request that you will let me purchase one. I know the publick will be advantaged by it. I also mentioned to you the necessity of having two drummers and fifers. Indeed, little can be done without them. I beg you will allow Mr. Steward to get them at any rate. If purchased, they are the servants of the publick, and their wages (if they live) will soon pay for them, though times are such that I hope you will not stand for trifles. Cartridge paper is indispensably necessary: I beg we may have some. Permit me to press you to consider the naked situation of the County, and to request that Mr. Steward may be allowed to look out for arms, &c. The money you ordered me is all expended, and the people not yet supplied, or near it, with clothes and blankets. I beg you will send me a sum of money immediately: the purchase of provisions, clothes, &c., exclusive of the money already received, will take at least between two and three hundred pounds. I hope I may not be stinted, for I have but little cash of my own; indeed, what I had has been expended in the service, and the publick is now considerably in my debt. The men are allowed rum and molasses, neither of which articles can be got here. I wish some method could be fallen upon to get us some. If you think proper to form two companies, I hope the gentlemen now in my company will not be overlooked; they well deserve your notice, and the two young gentlemen cadets; their names are Robert Chesley and Henry Carbery. For any particulars, Mr. Steward will wait on you, to give you any necessary information.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN A. THOMAS.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

CHARLES CARROLL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore Town, March 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On talking with the gentlemen of the Committee of Observation for this town, I find they will be much in want of provisions for the men now here, as the Commissary is not to be found. They have, I think, made a reasonable agreement to have the men supplied with victuals, ready dressed, at one shilling per head. At their desire I sent the enclosed letter to Colonel Thomas Dorsey. My reason for sending it to him was his having had orders to hold his men in readiness from the Council; I supposed, therefore, they would be prepared to march. They have here about three thousand pounds of powder; if more should be wanting I shall give them an order for some on Captain Gaither, as I recollect he has the keeping of some belonging to the Province. There was an immediate want of a Surgeon for the ship Defence; neither the Surgeon we had thought of or his mate being here, I therefore directed Dr. Wiesenthal to appoint Mr. Coulter, or some other, and to get all the lint, bandage, &c., he could, for the payment of which he should have an order.

Brigadier Buchanan finds himself much distressed for want of Field-Officers. As there is an immediate necessity for them, he would be glad if blank commissions, ready signed, could be sent up for one battalion. Think of it, and if it can be done, we will pitch on proper persons here. They are in want of lead—about fifteen hundred pounds will do. They will be glad if you will despatch a cart with it to Hammond's Ferry. They would be glad you could spare the large rifles.

I am, with respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

CHARLES CARROLL.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

CHARLES CARROLL TO COLONEL THOMAS DORSEY.

Baltimore Town, March 8, 1776.

SIR: I left the Council of Safety yesterday in the afternoon, after the man-of-war and her tenders had passed the mouth of our river. If any place is in danger of an immediate attack, I think it will be the town of Baltimore; and, on talking with their Committee of Observation, I find they have men enough, but they are very badly armed; I think, therefore, it will be proper that you march your battalion, or all the companies of men in it that have serviceable arms, with all expedition to this town, unless you have express directions from the Council of Safety to go with your battalion to some other place. They will confirm this order of mine. I am, &c.

CHARLES CARROLL.

To Colonel Thomas Dorsey.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CALVERT COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 37.]

Annapolis, March 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We approve very highly your conduct, and the spirited behaviour of the Militia. The man-of-war and tenders are past this harbour, and, we apprehend, are bound to Baltimore; but as there is no determining precisely their destination, and as possibly they may return more speedily than we imagine, and attempt a landing in your County, we recommend it to you to keep up a constant guard to watch your coast. We thank you for your information relative to a place for the station of the troops for your County, and request you will immediately provide the houses at Drum-Point, or so many of them as may be necessary, for the said troops, as we have ordered their station there.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Calvert County.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.—LETTER I.

MY DEAR COUNTRYMEN: The wisdom of some nations has been greatly commended, because they never enacted any new law, nor suffered any innovation in their ancient Constitutions, without first proposing the matter to the people, and giving them a full opportunity to express their approbation or dislike. It is true, we have never come up to the perfection of this rule; yet in the former happy days of the Province, it was a good and salutary custom among us, freely to discuss and examine all publick affairs, in conversation as well as writing, when occasion required. And although since the commencement of our present troubles, this rule could not always be observed, yet every unnecessary deviation from it has but added to the affliction of many real friends of America.

Grievous as the least restraint upon the press must always be to a people entitled to freedom, it must be the more so, when it is not only unwarranted by those to whom they have committed the care of their liberties, but cannot be warranted by them, consistent with liberty itself. Nevertheless we readily submitted to it, while any colourable pretext could be offered for requiring such a submission. Nay, we have done more—we have too quietly yielded to a few who have been claiming one power after another, till at length, encouraged by their success, and prostituting the cry of publick necessity to cloak an ambition which needs as much to be checked in the lowest, as the highest, they have now the astonishing boldness to aim at a total destruction of our charter Constitution, and seizing into their own hands our whole domestick police, with Legislative as well as Executive authority.

To prepare the way for effecting this most ruinous design, the majesty of the people of Pennsylvania has been grievously wounded in the persons of their legal Representatives, by repeated attempts to intimidate them in the discharge of the great trust committed to them by the voice of their country, and the most scurrilous misrepresentation of patriotick exertions, which have not been exceeded by any other body upon the Continent.

Since the press is at length become so free that such publications are thought tolerable on one side, it cannot but be judged reasonable that it should be equally free on the other side also, especially where charges are to be answered and innocence defended. At all risks I am determined to make the experiment, and to offer one appeal to the remainder of our ancient virtue. Nor need any persons be alarmed; for an indecent or angry expression shall not dishonour my pen, nor yet a single sentiment, which is not calculated to cement all parties in the Province, upon safe and popular grounds, more firmly than ever, in executing the resolves of Congress, and maintaining American liberty. So far as our Committees confine themselves to the purposes of their appointment, which are merely executive; so far as they are exerting themselves to effect what is well expressed in the Evening Post of last Thursday, to have been their original design, viz: “a faithful execution of the Association entered into by the Continental Congress, relieving and assisting those who may suffer by the suspension of trade; promoting reconciliation upon constitutional principles between Great Britain and her Colonies; the encouraging the manufactory of such articles as are necessary for our existence, clothing, defence; the preventing manufacturers or venders of goods and merchandise from selling the same at unusual or extravagant profit;” and holding up transgressors of every rank to publick censure, without fear or affection—so far, I say, they ought to have the thanks of their country, for generously bestowing their time and attention to its service, and ought to be supported by all good men. In this view they deserve the greatest commendation for their late vigorous endeavours to rescue their injured fellow-citizens from the avaricious gripe of engrossers and forestallers.

But if, instead of being confined to such purposes as these, any individuals of our Committees, who, I trust, will never amount to a majority, should, by the bait of power thrown out to them by designing men of this or any other Province, be led out of their line, to interfere in matters foreign to their appointment, I am persuaded, that when they seriously consider what may be offered on this head, they will perceive that such a conduct (as it never can be submitted to by the people of this Province) would give a more effectual stab to our domestick harmony, and to the publick cause, than all the efforts of all the disaffected persons in America can give.

In carrying on our great controversy with England, Pennsylvania has no need either to make the least sacrifice of its Constitution, nor yet to yield in zeal to the foremost of the Colonies. It has been our singular happiness from the beginning, that we have been able to grant, and have actually granted, as large sums for the common service as any of our neighbours, in proportion to our numbers; and that these grants have been made in a way to which the people were accustomed, and to which they have given their sanction, by re-electing the same men, since the contest with England had advanced into open war; thereby pledging themselves to submit to whatever mode may be adopted by future Assemblies for sinking the immense sums with which the Province is charged, as well as signifying the fullest approbation of the measures which have been concerted for our defence.

This great privilege which we enjoy, of giving our free unbiased voice annually in the choice of an Assembly, who, from that moment, by charter, become a constitutional body, vested with the authority of the people, and can meet when they please, and sit as long as they judge necessary—this privilege, I say, and the ease and quiet with which our publick business has been transacted during the present contest, have been the envy and admiration of our neighbours, who, enjoying no such perfection in their civil Constitutions, have been driven into the measure of Conventions, and forced to hazard the emission of money, and other acts of state, under disadvantages which need not be mentioned here, as we are yet happily free from them. Would any wise people, enjoying such a Constitution, ever think of destroying it with their own hands? Or does any other Colony, whose Assemblies can exercise their authority, ever think of committing the conduct of affairs to Conventions?

But suppose our Assembly really chargeable with any other culpable neglect of duty, with what face could those of our present Committee, who are so loud in their clamours against them, pretend to step into their seats? Were they chosen for that purpose? No! They were considered as chosen for the purposes already mentioned; and although they consist of a hundred members, they had not two hundred votes. Few people gave themselves any concern about the election, being well satisfied that any number of respectable citizens who would take the trouble of a Committee of Inspection, should be thankfully indulged with the office. But would this have been the case, had it been imagined that any among them would ever aspire at the powers vested in an Assembly, fairly and constitutionally elected, to represent two or three hundred thousand people? For, whatever may be pretended about the necessity of a Convention, it is certain, that if such a body were to meet, and could succeed in assuming the powers of Government, they must all at length be vested, for the sake of execution, in the hands of a few men, who consider themselves as leaders in the city of Philadelphia; and the Province in general have but little to say in the matter.

These are very serious and alarming considerations to many; and, therefore, after discussing a certain point of equal importance in my second letter, I will proceed in the succeeding ones to inquire into the justice of such complaints as have been made against the Assembly. In some instances, probably, these complaints may appear to be well founded. Where they are so, I shall be ready to confess it; and as perfection is not to be expected in the first hasty essays of any publick bodies, providing for new and unprecedented cases, I doubt not they will readily make such amendments as may appear necessary to themselves, or be suggested by reasonable men. In some instances, I shall show that they deserve publick thanks, for refusing to comply with some requisitions formerly made; and that others are now made, which they cannot assent to, without a manifest violation of our Constitution; such as blending the military and civil power, and giving Field-Officers, who may hold their places for life, the power of determining appeals, and discharging assessments, which is now safely lodged in the constitutional way, with Commissioners chosen by the people.

CATO.

INHABITANTS OF WESTMORELAND (PENNSYLVANIA) TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 12, 1776.—Ordered to lie on the table.]

Westmoreland, March 8, 1776.

SIR: The inhabitants of this town being sensible of the blessings of liberty, and desirous of taking a share in defence thereof, by risking their lives and fortunes in the service of the honourable Continental Congress; it seems they could think of no better way of testifying their attachment to the common cause than by meeting together this day, and making choice of us as their officers; desiring, at the same time, we should apply immediately to the honourable Continental Congress for commissions, that we may be in readiness to march if your Honours call for us, at the shortest notice. If your Honours please to honour us with commissions, as the people were pleased to choose us their officers, we will use our utmost skill and ability, in conjunction with the other troops in the Continental service, to subdue the enemies of American liberty. We have, therefore, despatched Mr. William Stewart, with copies of the instrument to which we have subscribed and bound ourselves by, with a list of the names of those who made choice of us, and by whom the honourable Congress will please to send such commissions, and instructions how to draw sustenance, money, clothes, and arms and ammunition for the men.

We are, sir, with due regard to truth, your Honours' obliged humble servants,

LAZARUS STEWART,
TIMOTHY SMITH,
DETHICK HEWIT,
PHINEAS PEIRCE.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

We certify that a company of men met together in Kingston District, in the Town of Westmoreland, on Susquehanna River, and in the Colony of Connecticut, and there chose Lieutenant Lazarus Stewart their Captain, Messrs. Timothy Smith, First Lieutenant, Dethick Hewit, Second Lieutenant, and Phineas Peirce, Ensign; and they have obliged themselves by an instrument in writing, to which they have signed their names, with the men who chose them officers, to march at the shortest notice, to any part that your Honours or honourable Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut, to which they belong, may direct, to defend the liberties and privileges of America; and do think them suitable persons to officiate in that station in which they have been chosen, and do accordingly recommend them to your Honours.

Given under our hands, this 8th day of March, 1776.

NATHAN DENISON,
JOHN JAMESON,
WILLIAM STEWART.

To the Honourable Continental Congress, at Philadelphia.

Westmoreland, March 6, 1776.

Whereas the inhabitants of this town have of late been invaded by a large number of Tories, which, by the blessing of God, we have repulsed, but, notwithstanding, are threatened with another invasion; and as we are also a frontier town, and liable to be attacked by the Indians, if a war should commence between them and us, we do think that it is our duty to be in readiness at an hour's warning, if an invasion should happen, to engage our enemies, invaders, or intruders; and we, the undersigners, do freely and with cheerfulness engage in the common cause as soldiers in the defence of liberty, under the direction of the honourable Continental Congress, or Colony to which we belong; and do freely and of ourselves incline to go with Timothy Smith and Lieutenant Lazarus Stewart, as officers over us; and we will submit ourselves to be ruled, governed, and ordered by them as officers, when they shall receive commissions for that purpose, either from our Governour, or the honourable Continental Congress; and we receive such bounties and moneys, clothes, &c., as shall be allowed to us as soldiers.

A DIALOGUE BETWEEN THE GHOST OF GENERAL MONTGOMERY AND A DELEGATE, IN A WOOD NEAR PHILADELPHIA.

DELEGATE. Welcome to this retreat, my good friend. If I mistake not, I see the ghost of the brave General Montgomery.

General MONTGOMERY. I am glad to see you. I still love liberty and America; and the contemplation of the future greatness of this Continent now forms a large share of my present happiness. I am sent here upon an important errand, to warn you against listening to terms of accommodation from the Court of Britain.

DELEGATE. I shall be happy in receiving instruction from you in the present trying exigency of our publick affairs; but suppose the terms you speak of should be just and honourable.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. How can you expect these, after the King has proclaimed you Rebels from the Throne, and after both Houses of Parliament have resolved to support him in carrying on a war against you? No; I see no offers from Great Britain, but of pardon. The very word is an insult upon our cause. To whom is pardon offered? To virtuous freemen. For what? For flying to arms in defence of the rights of humanity. And from whom do these offers come? From a Royal criminal. You have furnished me with a new reason for triumphing in my death; for I had rather have it said that I died by his vengeance, than that I lived by his mercy.

DELEGATE. But you think nothing of the destructiveness of war; how many cities must be reduced to ashes, and how many families must be ruined, and how many widows and orphans must be made, should the present war be continued any longer with Great Britain.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. I think of nothing but the destructive consequences of slavery. The calamities of war are transitory, and confined in their effects; but the calamities of slavery are extensive, and lasting in their operations. I love mankind as well as you, and I would never restrain a tear when my love of justice has obliged me to shed the blood of a fellow creature. It is my humanity that makes me urge you against a reconciliation with Great Britain; for if this takes place, nothing can prevent the American Colonies from being the seat of war, as often as the King of Great Britain renews his quarrels with any of his Colonies, or with any of the belligerent powers of Europe.

DELEGATE. I tremble at the doctrine you have advanced. I see you are for the independence of the Colonies on Great Britain.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. I am for permanent liberty, peace, and security to the American Colonies.

DELEGATE. These can only be maintained by placing the Colonies in the situation they were in in the year 1763.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. And is no satisfaction to be made to the Colonies for the blood and treasure they have expended in resisting the arms of Great Britain? Who can soften the prejudices of the King, the Parliament, and the nation, each of whom will be averse to maintain a peace with you in proportion to the advantage you have gained over them? Who shall make restitution to the widows, the mothers, and the children of the men who were slain by their arms? Can no hand wield the sceptre of Government in America, except that which has been stained with the blood of your countrymen? For my part, if I thought this Continent would ever acknowledge the sovereignty of the Crown of Britain again, I should forever lament the day in which I offered up my life for its salvation.

DELEGATE. You should distinguish between the King and his Ministers.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. I live in a world where all political superstition is done away. The King is the author of all the measures carried on against the Americans. The influence of bad Ministers is no better apology for these measures, than the influence of bad company is for a murderer, who expiates his crimes under a gallows. You all complain of the corruption of the Parliament, and of the venality of the nation; and yet you forget that the Crown is the source of them both. You shun the streams, and yet you are willing to sit down at the very fountain of corruption and venality.

DELEGATE. Our distance and charters will protect us from the influence of the Crown.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. Your distance will only render your danger more imminent, and your ruin more irretrievable. Charters are no restraints against the lusts of power. The only reason why you have escaped so long, is, because the treasure of the nation has been employed for these fifty years in buying up the virtue of Britain and Ireland. Hereafter, the seduction of the Representatives of the people of America will be the only aim of the Administration, should you continue to be connected with them.

DELEGATE. But I foresee many evils from the independence of the Colonies. Our trade will be ruined, from the want of a Navy to protect it. Each Colony will put in its claim for superiority, and we shall have domestick wars without end.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. As I know that Divine Providence intends this country to be the asylum of persecuted virtue from every quarter of the globe, so I think your trade will be the vehicle that will convey it to you. Heaven has furnished you with greater resources for a Navy than any nation in the world. Nothing but an ignorance of your strength could have led you to sacrifice your trade for the protection of a foreign navy. A freedom from the restraints of the acts of navigation, I foresee, will produce such immense additions to the wealth of this country, that posterity will wonder that ever you thought your present trade worth its protection. As to the supposed contentions between sister Colonies, they have no foundation in truth; but, supposing they have, will delaying the independence of the Colonies fifty years prevent them? No; the weakness of the Colonies, which at first produced their union, will always preserve it, till it shall be their interest to be separated. Had the Colony of Massachusetts Bay been possessed of the military resources which it will probably have fifty years hence, would she have held out the signal of distress to her sister Colonies, upon the news of the Boston Port Bill? No; she would have withstood all the power of Britain, and afterwards the neutral Colonies might have shared the fate of the Colony of Canada. Moreover, had the connection with Great Britain been continued fifty years longer, the progress of British laws, customs, and manners, (now totally corrupted,) would have been such, that the Colonies would have been prepared to welcome slavery; but had it been otherwise, they must have asserted their independence with arms. This is nearly done already. It will be cruel to bequeath another contest to your posterity.

DELEGATE. But I dread all innovations in Governments. They are very dangerous things.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. The Revolution which gave temporary stability to the liberties of Britain, was an innovation in Government, and yet no ill consequences have arisen from it. Innovations are dangerous only as they shake the prejudices of a people; but there are now, I believe, but few prejudices to be found in this country in favour of the old connection with Great Britain. I except those men only, who are under the influence of their passions and offices.

DELEGATE. But is it not most natural for us to wish for a connection with a people who speak the same language with us, and possess the same laws, religion, and forms of Government, with ourselves?

Gen. MONTGOMERY. The immortal Montesquieu says, that nations should form alliances with those nations only which are as unlike to themselves as possible in religion, laws, and manners, if they mean to preserve their own constitution. Your dependance upon the Crown is no advantage, but rather an injury to the people of Britain, as it increases the power and influence of the King. The people are benefited only by your trade, and this they may have after you are independent of the Crown. Should you be disposed to forgive the King and the nation for attempting to enslave you, they will never forgive you for having baffled them in the attempt.

DELEGATE. But we have many friends in both Houses of Parliament.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. You mean the Ministry have many enemies in Parliament which connect the cause of America with their clamours at the door of Administration. Lord Chatham's Conciliatory Bill would have ruined you more effectually than Lord North's motion. The Marquis of Rockingham was the author of the Declaratory Bill; Mr. Wilkes has added infamy to the weakness of your cause; and the Duke of Grafton and Lord Littleton have rendered the minority junto, if possible, more contemptible than ever.

DELEGATE. But if we become independent, we shall become a Commonwealth.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. I maintain that it is your interest to be independent of Great Britain; but I do not recommend any new form of Government to you. I should think it strange that a people who have virtue enough to defend themselves against the most powerful nation in the world, should want wisdom to contrive a perfect and free form of Government. You have been kept in subjection to the Crown of Britain by a miracle. Your liberties have hitherto been suspended by a thread. Your connection with Great Britain is unnatural and unnecessary. All the wheels of Government should move within itself. I would only beg leave to observe to you, that monarchy and aristocracy have in all ages been the vehicles of slavery.

DELEGATE. Our Governments will want force and authority, if we become independent of Great Britain.

Gen. MONTGOMERY. I beg leave to contradict that assertion. No Royal edicts, or acts of Assembly, have ever been more faithfully obeyed than the resolves of the Congress. I admire the virtue of the Colonies; and did not some of them still hang upon the haggard breasts of Great Britain, I should think the time now come in which they had virtue enough to be happy under any form of Government. Remember, that it is in a Commonwealth only that you can expect to find every man a patriot or a hero. Aristides, Epaminondas, Pericles, Scipio, Camillus, and a thousand illustrious Grecian and Roman heroes, would never have astonished the world with their names, had they lived under royal Governments.

DELEGATE. Will not a declaration of independence lessen the number of our friends, and increase the rage of our enemies, in Britain?

Gen. MONTGOMERY. Your friends (as you call them) are too few to divide, and too interested to help you; and as for your enemies, they have done their worst. They have called upon Russians, Hanoverians, Hessians, Canadians, Savages, and Negroes, to assist them in burning your towns, desolating your country, and in butchering your wives and children. You have nothing further to fear from them. Go, then, and awaken the Congress to a sense of their importance; you have no time to lose. France waits for nothing but a declaration of your independence, to revenge the injuries they sustained from Britain in the last war. But I forbear to reason any further with you. The decree has finally gone forth: Britain and America are distinct empires. Your country teems with patriots, heroes, and legislators, who are impatient to burst forth into light and importance. Hereafter, your achievements shall no more swell the pages of British history. God did not excite the attention of all Europe—of the whole world—nay, of angels themselves, to the present controversy, for nothing. The inhabitants of Heaven long to see the ark finished, in which all the liberty and true religion of the world are to be deposited. The day in which the Colonies declare their independence, will be a jubilee to Hampden, Sidney, Russell, Warren, Gardiner, Macpherson, and the other heroes who have offered themselves as sacrifices upon the altar of liberty. It was no small mortification to me, when I fell upon the Plains of Abraham, to reflect that I did not expire, like the brave General Wolfe, in the arms of victory. But I now no longer envy him his glory. I would rather die in attempting to obtain permanent freedom for a handful of people, than survive a conquest which would serve only to extend the empire of despotism. A band of heroes now beckon to me: I can only add, that America is the theatre where human nature will soon receive its greatest military, civil, and literary honours.

Friday, March 8, 1776.

LORD STIRLING TO COLONEL WARD.

Head-Quarters, New-York, March 8, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I write this letter to you in the utmost confidence of secrecy, and therefore no man but yourself is to see it. It is absolutely necessary to prevent the present communication between the Ship Phoenix, which lays off the west end of Long-Island, below the Narrows, and the people of that part of Long-Island; but more especially to take or destroy a certain Frank James, a pilot, who now assists Captain Parker, commander of the Phoenix, in decoying and taking vessels of great importance to the cause we are engaged in. There are some other pilots serving him in the same way, whose names I am not informed of, but are well known to the bearer, Mr. Christopher Duyckinck, who, with three or four other guides, will attend you for the purpose hereinafter mentioned.

I must desire you will pick out of your regiment two of the most alert officers, and two parties of about twenty men each, to be supplied with twenty rounds of ammunition, and three days' provision, and order them to proceed with the guides, to the place they will show them, to conceal themselves as much as possible from the people of the country, and to take such stations as are most proper for effecting the purposes above-mentioned; and to take and secure or destroy those pilots, or any persons belonging to the man-of-war. It will be best that the two parties march from your quarters to-morrow evening, a little before moon-rising, so that they may arrive at their station before daylight; and it will be absolutely necessary that the officers of each party consult with, and put the utmost confidence in, the guides assigned them. When the parties have taken their stations, they, if possible, should prevent any boats from leaving the shore, without firing, or by any means alarming the men-of-war or the country; and the shortest way of effecting this will be, for single men about daylight to examine the shore, and with their hatchets to cut a hole or two in the bottom of all the small boats they find there, and to remove to some secret place their oars, paddles, or sails. You will see the necessity of this matter being conducted with conduct, secrecy, and alertness, and I doubt not you will choose your men accordingly.

I am your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To Colonel Ward, Long-Island.

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 11, 1776.]

New-York, March 8, 1776.

SIR: I now send you the two returns I mentioned to you in my last; also, copies of three letters I wrote to the Convention of New-Jersey, at the request of General Lee; but as that Convention broke up last Saturday, before they could possibly have received either of the letters, and as they have now no Committee of Safety sitting, I have little hopes of any attention being paid to those letters, unless Congress would request Mr. Tucker, the President, to call a meeting of the Committee of Safety, and to keep sitting while the publick safety so necessarily requires it.

General Lee left this place yesterday evening, and I suppose will be at Philadelphia before this reaches you. The arduous task which has devolved on me, is almost too much for me, with the little assistance I have; yet the Congress may be assured I shall do everything in my power to carry on the service.

The two regiments here from Connecticut will not be prevailed upon to stay longer than the 25th instant. When they are gone, there will not be above five hundred men fit for service. Five thousand will be too few, I am afraid, properly to defend this place. The Third Battalion of New-Jersey Troops, I am told, is near complete. I shall direct Colonel Dayton to hold them in readiness to march to this place as soon as I know this is their destination.

March 9.—It was yesterday confidently reported that a large fleet was seen on the coast, coming into Sandy-Hook; but I have now reason to believe there is no truth in it.

I am your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

New-York, March 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Every hour furnishes new reasons to convince us that all intercourse between the inhabitants of this Continent and the men-of-war of Great Britain should immediately cease. This has induced General Lee to direct me to inform you that he thinks it will be of great importance to the publick cause that all communication should be cut off between any part of the Province of New-Jersey and Staten-Island, on the one part, and the men-of-war which now are, or hereafter may be, within Sandy-Hook, or any ship or vessel that has any connection with them, on the other part; and, in order the better to effect this for the present, he thinks it will be highly necessary that about four hundred Minute-men from New-Jersey be stationed on Staten-Island, near the watering place; who, besides the above purposes, should keep a constant vigilant lookout towards the sea, and inform the General of every arrival of ships, or motion of the men-of-war that may happen. This part of the service would be much facilitated if a few light-horse were employed to bring the intelligence by the way of Bergen Point and Paulus Hook. This party on Staten-Island would also effectually guard the Kills, and also the interior country, which is now open to the insult of a single barge. One company would be useful at and near Paulus Hook; one or two at Amboy; and two or three, or four, in Monmouth County, to guard the coast from Shrewsbury Inlet to the mouth of Raritan, in which should be included a party of light-horse on the Highlands of Never-sink.

The objects all these parties should most particularly have in view, are, to prevent any intercourse of the kind between the ships-of-war and the shore; to prevent the former from receiving wood, water, provision, or any refreshment whatever; and to give the General intelligence of every motion of the enemy, or appearance of ships at sea. If vessels laden with provisions are indiscriminately permitted to leave New-Jersey, they will, by the extraordinary price given by the commanders of the men-of-war and Governour Tryon, be allured to give them every refreshment they can want; yet it may be necessary that this place be supplied with provision from New-Jersey. It will, therefore, be requisite that the Congress of New-Jersey do commit the management of this matter to vigilant men whom they can depend upon.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To Samuel Tucker, Esq., President of the Congress of New-Jersey, at New-Brunswick.

New-York, March 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: From intelligence which General Lee has received this evening from the eastward, it is highly probable that the whole or a very great part of the Ministerial Army at Boston are already embarked, and on their way to this place. I am, therefore, commanded by General Lee to inform you it is his opinion that the whole (or such part as is ready) of the Third Battalion raised in New-Jersey for the Continental service do, as soon as possible, by companies, as soon as they can be completed, armed and accoutred, march to this place on the first intimation. Care will be taken to have boats ready to bring them over from Paulus Hook to the Hoboken ferries.

The General also desires me to repeat to you, that it may be of the highest importance that the arrangement of guards on Staten-Island, and the several places mentioned in my letter to you of yesterday, should immediately take place.

I must take this opportunity of informing you that the first Battalion of New-Jersey Troops is now deficient of at least two hundred stand of arms, which I should before have urged stronger for had it not been that I knew the difficulties your Congress were under in equipping and despatching Colonel Maxwell's Regiment to the northward. If we had been supplied with money for this purpose, we might, by purchase, have picked up in New-Jersey and in this place a sufficiency to complete them; but I never yet have had the command of a single dollar which has been allotted for that service. With money, we might still supply the regiment with many; and if Colonel Lowrey, who, I hope, is on his way to this place, does not supply money for this purpose, and for blankets, I hope the Congress of New-Jersey will pay attention to it. If Colonel Lowrey should fall in your way, I must beg the favour of you to let him know there is the highest necessity of his being here immediately.

Give me leave to add, that it is my opinion that it will, at this time, be highly necessary for the Congress of New-Jersey to continue sitting, or that they have a Committee of Safety to sit daily, until publick affairs are more certainly arranged, and that their deliberations and determinations never were more necessary than at this juncture.

I am your most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To Samuel Tucker, Esq., President of the Congress of New-Jersey.

New-York, March 5, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The critical situation that this part of the Continent is in obliges us to think of every circumstance that can tend to secure us against the machinations of our enemies. I have no doubt the Congress of New-Jersey will see the necessity of sending four or five hundred men to Staten-Island immediately, and of stationing some men at Amboy and the other places mentioned in my letter to you of the 2d instant. Another step seems absolutely necessary, which is, to prevent the disaffected, or what we very properly distinguish by the name of Tories, from assisting our enemies in doing us mischief, either in joining with them or giving them intelligence. General Lee has thought it expedient that the enclosed test be offered to all suspected persons in this Province, and to remove all such as will not subscribe to it; and intends to have it immediately carried into execution. The Congress of this Province cannot carry this measure into execution on Staten-Island without marching a body of men through New-Jersey, and many other inconveniences. The commanding officer of the troops I have proposed should be sent to Staten-Island should, therefore, be instructed to carry this measure into execution, and to secure all the live stock of suspected persons in such manner as will secure it from falling into the hands of the enemy. The like should be proposed in every part of New-Jersey exposed to an intercourse with the shipping; and General Lee orders me to inform you that it is his strenuous desire that the Congress of New-Jersey will carry the measure immediately into execution.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To Samuel Tucker, Esq., President of the Congress of New-Jersey.

THOMAS BELKNAP, JUN., TO GENERAL LEE.

New-Windsor, March 8, 1776.

PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: The Convention of the County of Ulster was pleased to recommend me, the subscriber, to the Provincial Congress in New-York, to raise a company of Riflemen at Wyoma and the back Mountains, referring the matter to their better judgment, and if your Excellency wants such a company of men in the Continental Army, it is the petition of your humble servant, that his Excellency would please to make it known to the said Congress as soon as his Excellency shall think proper, there being now a considerable number of bright Riflemen waiting to know whether the honourable Congress will send a warrant to inlist them or not.

His Excellency's taking the aforesaid matter into his consideration will oblige his most obedient humble servant at command,

THOMAS BELKNAP, JUN.

To His Excellency General Lee, Chief Commander of the Army at New-York, or the next commanding Officer.

This is referred to the Congress as worthy their consideration, whether Mr. Belknap may not be employed in one of the New-York Regiments.

LORD STIRLING TO ABRAHAM YATES.

New-York, March 8, 1776.

SIR: I now send you copy of part of the orders which I propose delivering out this evening, in consequence of what passed between the Committee and myself this morning.

I am your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To Abraham Yates, Esq.

COLONEL HASBROUCK TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Kingston, March 8, 1776.

SIR: I have received the commissions for the Field-Officers of the Northern Regiment in Ulster County, which we hereby return again to the honourable Congress. The reasons we all give, you will find by another letter of the same date signed by us. The reasons are, first: We know of no Northern Regiment in Ulster County, by that name. Second, by the subaltern officers their commissions are of a prior date than ours, and say they are officers of a company of foot in the First Regiment; and some, of the first, second, &c., company of militia of foot in Ulster County, and under no command of any Colonel. If we should accept of the commissions sent us, we should be officers, and have no men to command. And even if the commissions which were sent us did say that we should command the First Regiment in Ulster County, we should still be the youngest regiment in Ulster County, by the date of our commissions; for the others are dated in October last, and ours the 20th of February last. If we are to be arranged according to the dates of the commissions, then, consequently, we are the youngest regiment. There can be no propriety, in that case, in any degree; because all the other regiments are descended from the first. The whole County was under the command of one set of Field-Officers until the year 1756, and it was then divided into two regiments. Our regiment was called the First Regiment, and the other the Second; and both regiments are now again divided into two regiments, and this regiment to be the last regiment in said County. I cannot see for what reason it is done: it must be best known to you, gentlemen. If we should accept of the commissions sent by you to us, if the commissions even mentioned the First Regiment in Ulster County, and having a junior date, as it has, every subaltern officer and soldier we have under our command would be dissatisfied; because they will judge they are wronged in their ranks; for the First Regiment in Ulster County is of as old a standing as any in the Province, or near it. I am sorry that the regiment I have had the honour to command these twenty years, as Lieutenant-Colonel, is now so unsettled, and has not proper persons commissioned to command them, if their service should be required. But where the fault lies, let them answer for it. I know that Messrs. Dumond and Tappan, two of our late Delegates from Ulster County, have been very officious to procure or obtain commissions for several persons; and Messrs. Wynkoop, Cantine, and Palmer, for others, to serve their purposes. But this is not the time to be the occasion to breed discord amongst us—so brave a people as this part of the County of Ulster is esteemed, for to maintain, defend, and support American liberty. It is now the time to cultivate union and harmony among ourselves—to oppose and withstand the measures of a despotick tyrannical Ministry. I understand that George Clinton, Esq., is commissioned for Brigadier-General of the two brigades of Ulster and Orange Counties. How he comes to be promoted to so high a rank I must leave that with you, (I know he never was a corporal or sergeant in the Militia,) and how it was brought about to supersede so many brave officers in their ranks in the regiments. I very well know that he never was returned by a County Committee for a Brigadier. If our Delegates have done it, they must answer for it. I doubt very much if it had been left to a County Committee if he would have been returned for a Brigadier-General. And why is not the choice of a Brigadier-General to be made by the County Committee as well as the Field-Officers of the First Regiment in Ulster County? Doth it not appear strange that the neighbouring County of Dutchess hath appointed (as I am informed by one of the Delegates) Lieutenant-Colonel Ten Broeck for Brigadier-General for the brigade of said County, he being the oldest Lieutenant-Colonel of that County, and was promoted in his rank; and in Ulster County to pass by Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel, Major, and Captains, and put in George Clinton, Esq., who was, or hath never been, in the Militia, as is observed above?

I wrote to the honourable Congress the 6th of October last past, that I would accept of a commission if it was offered to me from the Congress at this critical juncture; that I was ready for defending American liberty; but that I would not be superseded in my rank. I wrote the same again the 15th December last past to the same purport by Mr. Cantine. Since George Clinton, Esq., hath the supreme command over the two brigades, and is to command me, if I accept of the commission, as well as all the other Colonels of the several regiments; so, consequently, I am superseded, and, therefore, I will accept of no commission to be commanded by any person who was heretofore of an inferior rank with me. And what gentleman of honour will accept of a commission from Congress if he is or may be superseded in his rank? He cannot expect promotion. If it enters but into the caprice of any of the Delegates of the County to promote a friend of his, of an inferior rank, above a Colonel, Major, or Captain, it may be done. If the honourable Congress judges it reasonable, for the reasons by me above given, will alter the date of the commissions you sent up to us, and, instead of Northern Regiment, call it the First Regiment. If you think proper send up commissions for those gentlemen recommended by the County Committee, and leave out my name if I must be commanded by Mr. Clinton, or any other superior of an inferior rank with me.

The gentlemen named by the County Committee, Johannes Snyder, Colonel, instead of my name, and Jonathan Elmendorf, Lieutenant-Colonel; Adrian Wynkoop, First Major; . . . . ., Second Major; Abraham A. Hasbrouck, Adjutant; John Van Dusen, Quartermaster. Send up the commissions as speedily as possible, that the regiment may be under a proper command.

I am, gentlemen, with great esteem, your most humble servant to command,

J. HASBROUCK.

To Colonel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress, held and convened at New-York, and all the Members thereof.

*To the President of the Honourable Congress of the Colony of NEW-YORK, in Congress now convened at NEW-YORK :
A Memorial of the present disorderly situation of the First Regiment of ULSTER County.*

GENTLEMEN: The First Regiment in Ulster County, as it has always been esteemed, has been for a long time kept in suspense by some misconduct or other, by whom, unknown to us, in appointing Field-Officers. We have seen some time last fall the commissions for the subaltern officers in the First Regiment in said County, bearing date in October last, and in some of the Captains' commissions, a blank left for a Colonel's name, others no blank left for a Colonel; one in particular, neither belongs to a regiment nor Colonel. These commissions were brought up by Mr. Egbert Dumond and Tappan, our late Delegates, and no commissions for Field-Officers of the Militia. Some time in January last, Mr. Dirck Wynkoop, Jun., and Cantine, two of our present Delegates, came home and brought commissions for Field-Officers of a Minute Regiment; but as yet no commissions for Field-Officers of the Militia. Here the cart was before the horse; for the Minute are to be raised out of the regiment of Militia, and no Militia formed for want of Field-Officers. Now lately commissions were sent up to the Chairman of the County Committee, for Field-Officers of a regiment called the Northern Regiment, in Ulster County. The said commissions directed to A. Hasbrouck, First Colonel; Johannes Snyder, Second Colonel; Jonathan Elmendorf, First Major; Adrian Wynkoop, Second Major, &c.; bearing dates the 20th day of February, 1776. How inconsistent! The subaltern commissions are of a prior date than the Field-Officers', even if they did belong to one and the same regiment. But another inconsistency: the subalterns, some belong to the First Regiment, others to nobody, and the Field-Officers are appointed for the Northern Regiment. Gentlemen, we are satisfied the arrangement for Field-Officers was returned in Congress some time last summer for the First Regiment in said County, and the very persons, (except Mr. Adrian Wynkoop, who the County Committee appointed to fill the vacancy of Colonel Hardenburgh declined,) were returned in Congress, who are now commissioned for the Northern Regiment. Gentlemen, for the truth hereof, we refer to the journals of your honourable House. Gentlemen, we appeal to your honourable Board; we presume there is a great error in the proceedings relative to the forming and completing the First Regiment in Ulster County. Whether it is owing to the Congress or our Delegates, we cannot determine. But we will affirm, that neither we nor the greater part of the subalterns, are the cause of it. We are ashamed that matters are carried on so irregularly, especially in these critical times, when necessity requires to have the Militia in readiness, and well disciplined.

Gentlemen, this is the state of the present situation of the First Regiment in said County. Now, if we should accept of these commissions, we have no regiment at all; for the Militia that was intended we should command, the Captains' commissions, as is said before, belong to the First Regiment in said County; and certainly there must be such, as the first in the County, and, in consequence, it would be a piece of ignorance in us to accept of a commission, and nobody to command. We presume the honourable Congress are advised by such as have not the present cause at heart, who would rather see disorder than good order and general union.

We are informed it is resolved by the Congress that officers should go in rank by succession. If that be the case, how is it possible that Colonel Hasbrouck should not be the First Colonel, in said County, and in the First Regiment, instead of Colonel of a Regiment never heard of, nor ever was? And if we should be dealt with agreeable to the resolve, and equal with our neighbouring County, without doubt Colonel Hasbrouck should be raised to a higher station; for he is the oldest Colonel, next to Colonel Hardenburgh, in the County of Ulster, and older than any in the adjacent County.

Gentlemen, we conceive if the commissions now sent up for Field-Officers for a Northern Regiment cannot be altered, and a prior or an even date given with commissions of the Field-Officers of the other regiments in our County, and the rank of the First Regiment in Ulster County; without that, what we in general claim our right, for all the other regiments in the County are descended from us; we see no prospect of getting the Militia in our part of the County under order. So, gentlemen, we shall rest the matter with your superior wisdom. Do as you think proper, gentlemen. We enclose herewith the commissions to you, and expect you will rectify the errors. And remain your humble servants,

JONATHAN HASBROUCK,
JOHANNES SNYDER,
JONATHAN ELMENDORF,
ADRIAN WYNKOOP.

Kingston, March 8, 1776.

COLONEL BEDEL TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Orford, March 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have mustered my men, but do not hear of Captain Osgood's. Part of three companies are marched, and the recruiting officers, with what money was advanced them, cannot well make out unless they can be provided with some on account. I have also been at a great expense on account of the Indians, who have been very sick; two of them are dead, and sent to Dartmouth College to be buried, and the rest marched off yesterday in good spirits. If you could advance me three hundred pounds, I believe it might be sufficient to help the officers, and the expense of the Indians, which runs high, and not yet paid; also, am obliged to purchase medicines, which are very dear; also, horses to carry the same, and baggage, which takes off money very fast. I shall proceed to Quebeck as fast as possibly I can send off my men. The proposal made by you to the Indians, in regard to making them a present, was forgot; if it could be sent should be glad. I shall be waiting the return of the express at Orford, where I shall march from; should be glad it might be directed for me there. You will also receive the opinion of Colonel Morey at this time, in regard to the advancement desired. Gentlemen, I am gratefully obliged to you for all former favours, and shall study to merit the continuance of them, all in my power.

I am, gentlemen, with the utmost regard and esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

TIMOTHY BEDEL.

To the Honourable Meshech Weare, Esq.

P. S. There must also be purchased one hundred firelocks at the least, otherwise the men cannot go.

DEPOSITION OF PETER SIMON.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT, NORTH-CAROLINA:

Peter Simon, of Rhode-Island, maketh oath on the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, that he was on board of a vessel bound from Dominica to Ocracock, and taken off Hatteras by the Sloop General Gage, George Stibbles master, and brought into Cape-Fear, about the 25th of February. That Captain Collet was on board the said sloop when this deponent was taken, and was very communicative with him, showing his papers and instructions, and informing what route he was to take, &c. That the said Collet said he expected to find General Clinton here with fifteen or sixteen hundred men, and that the General was to be reinforced in April with nine thousand. After this junction they were to march to Cross-Creek, by way of Waggamaw, and there join General McDonald. That there was only a sufficient number of men for a garrison to be left at Boston, and that twenty-five thousand men were to be landed in the Jerseys, between Philadelphia and New-York, in flat-bottomed boats, and that if they could not possess New-York, they were to destroy it. That the said Collet declared, that he would kill man, woman, and child, reserving all the young ladies for his private pleasures. That the night before last this deponent, with several other persons, made their escape, and came up to Wilmington; and further saith not.

PETER SIMON.

Sworn to before me, the 9th of March, 1776.

WILLIAM PURVIANCE,
JOHN COOKE, Secretary.

DEPOSITION OF WILLIAM RADDON.

NEW-HANOVER COUNTY:

William Raddon, of the City of Philadelphia, mariner, maketh oath on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, that he sailed from Philadelphia, the 11th of February last, as master of the Sloop Joseph, bound for South-Carolina or Georgia. That on the 13th following, he was taken by the Sloop General Gage, on board of which was Captain Collet, and brought into Cape-Fear. That Lieutenant Pitcairn informed this deponent, that every transport vessel that was to come from England was to bring one or more flat-bottomed boats. That this deponent has seen the deposition of Peter Simon, made this day, and was informed by Captain Collet of the several circumstances therein mentioned. That Lieutenant Osborne, of the Raven sloop-of-war, informed this deponent, that there were to be sixty sail of armed vessels, of different sizes, stationed on the coast, and twenty sail of twenty-gun ships and sloops-of-war were to be on the coast from England in April; and that bomb-ketches were to be brought out, to throw bombs into those places where ships-of-war could not go up, and were particularly intended against Philadelphia, because the Congress sits there; and that he made his escape with Mr. Simon and others.

WILLIAM RADDON.

Sworn to before me, the 5th of March, 1776.

WILLIAM PURVIANCE.

JOHN COOKE, Secretary.

William Raddon, within named, further deposeth and saith, that on or about the 27th of February, this deponent being then on board the Falcon sloop-of-war, Captain Lindsey, and Lieutenant Wright, who commands an armed sloop, declared that they had intended that night to go up to the town of Brunswick, with about an hundred sailors, to set the town on fire in front, station their men on the back of the town, and destroy man, woman, and child, that escaped from the flames; but the reason they did not put their design in execution was, that the sloop commanded by Lieutenant Wright got aground when she went out to examine what vessel the sloop General Gage was, and that afterwards Lindsey told Wright that the inhabitants had left the town, and therefore it was of no use to burn it.

WILLIAM RADDON.

Sworn to before me, the 5th of March, 1776.

JOHN COOKE, Secretary.

VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Williamsburgh, March 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The great length of the Potomack River, from its mouth to Alexandria, where men-of-war can go, and the probability of some attempts being made by the enemy in that quarter, make it prudent, in our opinion, to erect beacons or signals for communicating intelligence of their approach up the river, in a more speedy manner than can be done by land. We have, therefore, appointed Colonel Mercer, of the Third, and Colonel Peachey, of the Fifth Regiment, to examine the river, and to fix the different posts and mode of continuing these signals; but as we are aware that the course of the river will make it necessary that many of them should be set in your Province, we hope you will approve the measure, and name Commissioners on your part to co-operate with the above-named gentlemen in effecting it.

We hear of no more naval arrivals, and the former are quiet as to depredations on shore and up the river, confining themselves to seizures in the bay, when they have an opportunity. We have had no intelligence of General Clinton since he went out.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants.

For the Committee of Safety of Virginia:

EDMUND PENDLETON, President.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

J. A. THOMAS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. Mary's County, March 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Since my last, I have contracted for a number of gun-locks, which will be sent up by the post. In my last I mentioned my having stationed a part of my company at the mouth of Patuxent River, and the rest will go to the lower part of the County, on Potomack, as soon as provision can be made for them, which is here extremely difficult to be done. If I may be allowed, I will immediately go to the Eastern Shore, and get a quantity of pork and hogslard. I suppose fifty barrels of pork would be sufficient for my company until the fall, provided I could get a seine for each division of the company, and every mess furnished with a frying-pan. My company being stationed in a fish country, a great saving to the publick might be made by furnishing the men with materials for catching and dressing them.

If you think proper that I should look out for provision, be pleased to inform me by return of Mr. Steward, and give me leave to draw on the Treasury for the purchase money.

I hope it is now in your power to furnish us with more ammunition, and the arms allotted for my company. When we get the arms, be pleased also to supply me with a quantity of cartridge-paper. The men are in great want of hats and breeches. Be pleased to forward them to me as soon as possible. This County being in so very defenceless a situation obliges me to press you for the supply of arms, and I hope will sufficiently plead my excuse for so repeatedly pressing you for them. If you should employ Mr. Steward in any way, so that his return here will be impeded, be pleased to fall upon some method of advising me as soon as possible; a letter sent by Colonel Fitzhugh will quickly come to hand.

I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,

J. A. THOMAS.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. I am in great want of rum for the men; if it be possible, send me some.

CAPTAIN HASLETT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Caroline County, Choptank Bridge, March 9, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS, GENTLEMEN OF THE COUNCIL OF SAFETY: You will see by the enclosed that a vacancy has happened in my company, and for what reason. I would beg leave to request the favour of you to remove Mr. Christopher Driver from being Ensign to be First Lieutenant, and Mr. Robert Postlewait to be Ensign, for said company; all which I hope will turn out for good to the common cause.

I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

WILLIAM HASLETT.

To the Honourable the President of the Council of Safety of Maryland.

CHARLES CARROLL TO DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER.

Mount Clare, March 9, 1776.

MY DEAR MAJOR: I wrote to the Council yesterday morning, which I hope they have received. Since that, yours of yesterday evening came to hand, at three o'clock this morning; I immediately despatched it to the Committee of Baltimore Town. Mr. Purviance tells me he wrote you an answer.

We got the Ship Defence into the river this morning; and she has retaken Mr. Hudson's ship, which now lies in the river a little below her, under no great apprehension I fancy, of the Otter.

We had intelligence this afternoon that Squire had run on ground on the Bodkin-Point; I hope it may be true. If it should prove so, we may perhaps add one more ship to our stock. We are getting a tender ready, that will mount eight or ten carriage-guns, three-pounders. She, with the Defence, will, I think, be a match for the Otter and her companions. I am positive Nicholson and his ship's company think so—a set of finer or more spirited fellows I really never saw. And if we can, as I hope we shall, get the tender ready by to-morrow morning, they will push for an engagement, and I really am not in much doubt of success.

I cannot conceive that the Council of Safety can be prejudiced in the opinions of the gentlemen of Baltimore, by any insinuations against their conduct by Mr. Ruben, or any other person. I have not heard them say a single word against the Government sending Mr. Eddis on board the Otter, though I confess I wish some other person had been pitched upon; on the contrary, I believe they think the delay occasioned by that step was advantageous to them; I am sure I think it was very much so. I really find myself extremely fatigued with this constant hurry of business; indeed, I am almost ready to sink under it; however, I will push for Annapolis, if possible. The honest things are settled here.

I am, sincerely, dear Major, your affectionate, humble servant,

CHARLES CARROLL.

To the Honourable Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

JOHN CHEW TO CAPTAIN RICHARD CHEW.

March 9, 1776.

DEAR BROTHER: I am at my mother's now, moving her furniture. There is a man-of-war at the mouth of the river, and two tenders. I hope you will let me know by a line how the case is with you. My mother has sent a boy with six blankets.

From your affectionate brother, JOHN CHEW.
To Captain Richard Chew.

SAMUEL BIRKHEAD TO CAPTAIN RICHARD CHEW.

March 9, 1776.

DEAR SIR: As we are informed by a man from Mr. Stewart, this morning, that the man-of-war is gone to Baltimore, your friends here desire that you will return as soon as possible, if you can get off. We never have stood in so much danger as at this time, for we expect the man-of-war and her tenders that are below, to be on us every minute, and nobody to stand by us. Mr. Stewart has got all his company along the swamp; so we see no reason why we should not have ours too; and we pray and beg that you will return with all speed.

By the request of all your neighbours, from your ready friend,

SAMUEL BIRKHEAD.

To Captain Richard Chew.

P. S. All the families on the bay are moving away. We expect to be cut off every hour. S. B.

March 9, 1776.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

[No. 38.] Annapolis, March 9, 1776—10 o'clock.

GENTLEMEN: We received your letter just now, and are glad to hear the Ship Defence has got her guns, and that some of the powder and arms we expected had arrived at the head of Elk. We doubt not your doing everything for the best, in ordering them down. Our Commissary is not in town. We request you will appoint one pro tempore, and take care that nothing may be wanted in the provision way that may be thought necessary; and to put you in cash, have sent you, by Captain Hyde, one thousand pounds, currency.

Our information, before your letter came to hand, was, that the ship anchored short of the mouth of Patapsco, but that the tenders went forward. We have some companies out to guard the shore on this side of Patapsco, and along the mouth of Magoty River. As yet we have received no intelligence this morning we can depend upon from that quarter. We doubt not your exerting yourselves, on this occasion, for the publick service and your own preservation. Mr. Carroll is on the spot, and will order powder and lead from Major Gaither's, should any be wanted. We yesterday ordered Colonel Thomas Dorsey to march with the Elk-Ridge Battalion, and are making all necessary dispositions to prevent their landing, in case they should return to Annapolis.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL CHAMBERLAINE.

[No. 39.]

Annapolis, March 9, 1776.

SIR: A ship-of-war and two tenders went past this harbour yesterday afternoon, on their way, we imagine, to Baltimore Town. We apprise you of this, that you may immediately order your battalion to hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's warning. You will make the best preparation in your power; and as the communication may be cut off between the two shores, which may prevent our giving particular instructions, and as some efforts may be made to land among you, with a view of getting provisions, we desire you will order and direct them, as exigencies may require, and endeavour to repel any hostile attempts which may be made within your district. Mr. Thomas Smythe is now at Chestertown, and we request you will advise with him occasionally.

We are, &c.

To Brigadier-General Chamberlaine.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO ALEXANDRIA COMMITTEE.

[No. 42.]

Annapolis, March 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: A ship-of-war (which we take to be the Liverpool) and two tenders passed by the city up the bay yesterday afternoon, and came to anchor off the mouth of Patapsco, whence, we conclude, they are destined to Baltimore Town. They took a New-England schooner out of Patuxent on Tuesday, as they came up, and two or three other small vessels yesterday. We expect every moment to be informed from Baltimore, by express, of their movements, which we will communicate to you; but as, probably, they are gone there with a view to take what vessels they can meet with, and particularly our Ship Defence, and on their return may pay you a visit, we think proper to apprise you of their proceedings by this opportunity, that you may make the best preparation in your power for their reception, if they should venture up Potomack.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Alexandria.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

[No. 43.]

Annapolis, March 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: At eight o'clock on Tuesday night our two Pilot-boats returned to this place with intelligence that a man-of-war and two tenders were pushing up the bay; that, in the mouth of Patuxent River, they made prize of a New-England vessel, and that we might hourly expect them off our harbour. We immediately despatched expresses to Baltimore Town, and other parts of the Province, with orders for the militia to hold themselves in readiness to march. The high wind all day on Wednesday prevented these armed vessels proceeding up the bay. Yesterday, half-past three, P. M., they hove in sight, and pushed fast up the bay, having taken several small vessels on their way. The ship, which we imagine to be the Liverpool, came to an anchor last night off the mouth of Patapsco River; the tenders kept under sail. Early this morning the ship weighed, and, we presume, proceeded up Patapsco to take or destroy our Ship Defence, and a large ship loaded with wheat and flour, by permission of the Congress. Whether the Ship Defence, with a battery hastily thrown up, will be sufficient to defeat this hostile attempt, we cannot say; but we are confident if a landing is attempted, either at Baltimore Town, or this place, that the enemy will be defeated.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Safety of Virginia.

P. S. Nine o'clock, P. M. We have this moment received certain intelligence that the man-of-war is the Otter Sloop, with two tenders, one of six carriage-guns, and the other with swivels only; that they have taken the ship loaded with wheat and flour, which unluckily happened to be aground at the mouth of Patapsco; and that they are proceeding up the river to take or destroy the Ship Defence. Fresh provisions also, we believe, is their object.

We are, &c.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CHARLES CARROLL, ESQUIRE.

[No. 45.]

Annapolis, March 9, 1776.

SIR: We enclose you an order for Captain Stricker's Company to march down to Baltimore Town, instead of coming to Annapolis, if you think it necessary. When the man-of-war leaves Baltimore Town, and comes down this way, you will be pleased to order them to Annapolis. Nothing new has happened since writing you last night. Stricker has already been ordered here; your express may be directed to meet him.

We are, &c.

To Charles Carroll, Esquire.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN GEORGE STRICKER.

[No. 46.]

Annapolis, March 9, 1776.

SIR: If you should receive instructions, either from Charles Carroll, Esq., or the Committee of Observation of Baltimore County, to march to Baltimore Town, you are, with the utmost expedition, to proceed to that place, we having empowered them to order you there, if they should think it necessary. As soon as the ship-of-war sails from thence, you are to proceed immediately to Annapolis. Such baggage as may be necessary for you at Baltimore Town, you will carry with you; but the residue, with the spare arms, you will order to proceed directly here, under a guard.

We are, &c.

To Captain George Stricker.

THOMAS JOHNSON, JUN., TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Philadelphia, March 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Tibbett has this moment arrived. The vessel he went out in is sold, and he is in an armed vessel. He has only about two thousand pounds of powder, about six tons of lead, duck, osnaburghs, &c. The vessel is on her way to the city. We shall send forward the effects, as well as the powder borrowed from our Province by Virginia, which is ordered, out of a very scanty stock, to be returned.

I am, gentlemen, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

THOMAS JOHNSON, JUN.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND DELEGATES TO COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, Saturday Evening, March 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Immediately on receipt of a letter from Mr. Purbiance, by express, advising us of a man-of-war being in your bay, we applied to Congress for one ton of powder, which was readily granted. The Delegates of Virginia had sent off one ton in a wagon. This without solicitation they offered us, and we accepted, and have sent their order to the wagoner to proceed to Baltimore. We had an order for one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five pounds, due Maryland from Congress, and this day Captain Tibbett arrived from Statia with about one ton of powder for our Province. We have despatched the powder to Christiana-Bridge, as wagons are not to be had here, and have wrote to different gentlemen at the bridge and head of Elk, to assist in forwarding the powder to Baltimore Town.

We are, gentlemen, your very affectionate friends and servants,

THOMAS JOHNSON,
R. ALEXANDER.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

Philadelphia, March 9, 1776.

It is the opinion of many people among us, that the Congress should not declare the Colonies independent of Great Britain, without a previous recess to consult their constituents about that important question. But the complicated and increasing business of the Congress will not admit of such a recess. Would it not be proper, therefore, for their constituents to declare their sentiments upon that head as soon as possible? This may be done by the various Committees and Conventions on the Continent. Their votes or resolves should determine the question in the Congress. It was in this manner the Continent first declared their determination to resist by force the power of the British Parliament. The first Congress was nothing but the echo of Committees and Conventions. In the present important question concerning independence, the Congress should, as in the former case, only echo back the sentiments of the people. This can only be done through the medium of Committees and Conventions. The sooner, therefore, they are convened for that purpose, the better.

A LOVER OF ORDER.

SAMUEL TUCKER TO LORD STIRLING.

Trenton, March 9, 1776.

MY LORD: Since writing the enclosed, I received your favour of the 5th current. I have also received a letter from our Delegates, returning your letters of the 1st and 3d current, requesting me to lay them before the Committee of Safety, notwithstanding they must know that our Provincial Congress sent a letter by one of their Members to the Continental Congress, offering to raise two battalions more, or one, if they thought it most proper. Their answer was the following resolve, which I copied in my memorandums:

"March 1.—Application being made by the Convention of New-Jersey for two more battalions and two companies of Artillery, to be raised in that Colony, and the same being referred to a Committee, on the reports of the said Committee, the Congress did not agree to the raising any more battalions in that Colony.

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

The above resolve was received and read in our Convention the 2d instant, and two companies of Artillerymen only ordered to be raised at the expense of this Colony. What Mr. Livingston and our other Delegates can expect by referring your requisition back, I cannot say. Neither can I with any propriety convene the Committee, (who have already advised the sending your letters to the Continental Congress, of which I advised them,) as the members live seventy miles apart. I should be happy to be serviceable to the publick in general, or your Lordship in particular.

The Congress passed a law to regulate the conduct of all persons that may be suspected; to be carried into effect by the several Committees.

I have the honour to be, with due respect, your assured friend and humble servant,

SAMUEL TUCKER.

P. S. If any employment should offer for Major Phillips, he will be useful to you. The enclosed is his writing.
S. T.

JOHN HATHORN TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Goshen Precinct, Orange County, March 9, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: Whereas, some vacancies subsist in several companies of the Militia in the regiments of Goshen, Florida, and Warwick, whereof returns have been made to me by the members of the Committee who were appointed to preside at the election of persons to supply those vacancies in the respective companies; of which are the following:

In Captain Thompson's Company, in Goshen Regiment, returned to fill the place of Coe Gale and Daniel Everett, who are removed into the Minute Company, viz: William Thompson, Second Lieutenant, and Phineas Case, Ensign.

John Hopper, who was appointed Second Lieutenant in Captain Dolson's Company in Florida and Warwick Regiment, refuses to accept his commission. Returned in his place, Matthew Dolson, Jun., Second Lieutenant; and John Tebons, Ensign, in the room of Matthew Dolson, being advanced.

I also inform your Honour, that a mistake appears in the commission for the First Lieutenant of Captain Dolson's Company. The commission is come for Henry Bartolf, which should have been for Peter Bartolf, he being the person elected in the Company.

I pray that your Honour may issue the commissions agreeable to the above return.

I am your most obedient very humble servant,

JOHN HATHORN,

Chairman of the Committee of Goshen Precinct.

To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President of the Honourable Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York.

N. B. Have added another return that has this moment come to hand, of the appointing Martinus Decker Second Lieutenant in Captain Cartwright's Company in Goshen Regiment, in the place of Johannes Decker, he being appointed Major.

J. H.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Albany, March 9, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your favour of the 1st instant. I wish the Paymaster-General had it in his power to comply with my intentions of sending money to your Colony; but he has very little left in chest. An equal scarcity prevails in Canada; but there its consequences are more to be dreaded. The Canadians will not by any means take our paper money, and General Wooster is greatly distressed for specie. I have, with much difficulty, and by giving my own security, procured and sent to him about five thousand three hundred dollars; but vastly more was already due for the necessary contingencies of the Army. Cannot your Colony, my good sir, assist us with some gold or silver? If but a little, it will still be of great service. I have begged Congress to appoint a Committee to liquidate the accounts occasioned by the taking of Ticonderoga. The people unjustly blame me that they have not got their money. On the 6th of August, when I had been but nineteen days at Ticonderoga, I pointed out to Congress the necessity of paying the people, and observed that "many were most truly necessitous." The river and roads above are almost impassable, which I fear will cause a considerable detention of the troops here. General Washington, I find, is in great distress for arms. I fear I shall not have half enough, after Colonel Burrell's Corps is supplied, to arm Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment. We have a variety of difficulties to surmount; but perseverance, I hope, will bear us through. And may Heaven grant, that when our posterity may relate to each other the pain of the struggle, they may feel and reflect on the blessings of the event.

I am, sir, with great esteem and regard, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, March 9, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I am honoured with your letters of the 25th and 27th ultimo, which were delivered me on the 7th by Mr. Bennett. I feel in the most sensible manner the disagreeable situation you are in for want of arms. It adds to the pain this information gives me, that we are here in a similar situation, and unable to assist you. The New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and Massachusetts Troops, arrive here more or less without arms, or what may be deemed next to none. I have people in every quarter picking up the few that are to be had, at a most immoderate price, and after all I shall not be able to procure above half a sufficiency for Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment, which is raising to go into Canada. None are to be had at New-York; and how to arm the four regiments raising in this Colony, no mortal knows. Of a thousand stand the New-York Convention contracted for, six only have been delivered, and they do not expect more than thirty of the whole. I have sent to Schenectady, to Mr. Duncan; but I much doubt if he has any.

Twelve heavy cannon are on their way from New-York, and have got as far as Poughkeepsie, where they wait the opening of the river. But what will General Lee do with them in Canada, without either powder or ball for them. And I shall be in a similar situation at New-York, to which I am ordered by Congress, with the additional mortification of having men without arms.

I wish to be at New-York as soon as possible, if it was only on account of receiving better medical assistance. But what is to become of the Army in Canada, if I leave this before everything is put into such a train as that it may be properly supplied? They are now so short of provisions (although, if common care had been taken, there would have been a sufficiency to June) that I have been obliged to send between three hundred and four hundred barrels of pork in sleds, at the vast expense of seven and a half dollars per barrel.

Two Companies of Colonel Burrell's Regiment only have arrived here; one of them has gone on, and about half the Pennsylvania and Jersey Troops, all greatly deficient of their full complements. The troops that served last campaign in Canada are chiefly coming away, so that we shall not by any means have that respectable army which was intended by Congress.

I enclose your Excellency a return of the troops which were with General Arnold on the 22d ultimo. This is the first return I have ever received from that quarter.

March 10.—My messenger is returned from Schenectady; but no arms are to be had there.

The ice still continues in Hudson's River, but is not passable with horses and carriages. By the time it will be navigable, and the waters which are out subsided, the ice in the lakes will be too weak to venture troops on; hence I fear that no more men can get into Canada until the beginning of April.

I have this moment received a letter from General Wooster, of the 1st instant. He says not a word relative to Quebeck; complains of want of specie, and, indeed, not without reason, as he is greatly distressed, the Canadians absolutely refusing to take our paper money. And I have, with much difficulty, been able to procure only about two thousand one hundred pounds here, on my own security, which I sent him on the 28th ultimo. But five times that sum, and more, was already due for the necessary contingencies of the Army.

I enclose you copies of some papers, which will show how Colonel Allen was used.

The difficulty of procuring specie is such, that I fear the most fatal consequences from the want of it in Canada. This induces me to venture a question: Would it be improper to ask General Howe for the subsistence of the prisoners in our possession? If he should consent that they might draw on his military chest for it; the bills might all go in favour of an agent of Congress, and hence, we should have a very considerable supply.

We have many difficulties, my dear General, to encounter; but I have the strongest presentiment that we shall struggle through, and rise superior to our enemies. May God bless and protect you.

I am, most sincerely and respectfully, your Excellency's most humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. Since writing the above, I am honoured with yours of the 1st ultimo, by Lewis, the Caughnawaga Indian, together with a letter from Colonel Wade, advising me that some part of his regiment had marched on the 24th February, and desiring that provisions might be sent to Onion-River. I am extremely apprehensive that I shall not be able to procure sleds to go there. I shall, however, immediately send an express to Ticonderoga, and if horses cannot be procured, I will order the soldiers that are there to draw it by hand.

P. S.

Affidavits of WILLIAM BRADLEY, LEVI SOLOMONS, and JAMES MORRISON, concerning Colonel ALLEN's treatment.

I, the subscriber, being of lawful age, do testify and say, that a gentleman known by the name of Colonel Allen was brought on board the Gaspee man-of-war, then lying before the Town of Montreal, some time in the month of September, 1775, and, pursuant to the orders of Captain Ryall, who then commanded said ship, I put a pair of irons on said Allen's legs, which he wore for seven or eight days, during which he was kept by the Boatswain's cabin. Afterwards, the irons were taken off his legs in the morning, and handcuffs were put on his hands, which was the practice for some considerable time. Then only one leg was ironed in the night, and handcuffs in the day. Further saith not.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO JOHN ADAMS AND GEORGE WYTHE.

Lebanon, March 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received your letter of the 18th of October last, asking for an account of hostilities committed by the Ministerial Troops and Navy in this Colony, since the first of last March. I embrace the earliest time, after receiving the accounts, papers, and documents, officially authenticated, to enclose and furnish you with the materials requested.

I am, with great truth and regard, gentlemen, your obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.
To the Hon. John Adams and George Wythe, Esquires.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO JOHN ADAMS AND GEORGE WYTHE.

Lebanon, March 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Two accounts of loss by hostilities committed by the Ministerial Navy, which came to hand since my last, are enclosed. I do most sincerely congratulate you on General Washington's success, and on the shameful retreat of our enemies from Boston, which demand our humble admiration and praise of the Supreme Director of all events, for his marvellous interposition for our help. Tyranny and oppression have a natural tendency to move the Colonists to a separation from Great Britain. Nothing else could induce them to an event so distant from their thoughts or designs. Burning and destroying our towns, robbing our property, trampling on and profaning places dedicated to divine worship and service, and cruel treatment of the persons so unhappy as to fall into their hands, are injuries of the first magnitude. The prisoners in our custody meet generous entertainment. Is it not time the law of retaliation should take place? Every subtle art, as well as arms, are used against us. May God prevent their operations, and turn their counsels to foolishness; preserve and increase the union of his American people; grant them wisdom, and guide their publick councils.

I am, with great esteem and regard, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. JONATHAN TRUMBULL, Esq., Governour of the Colony of CONNECTICUT:

Whereas I, the subscriber, was, by the General Assembly, holden at New-Haven in December last, appointed and directed to procure a just and well authenticated account of the hostilities committed by the Ministerial Troops or Navy, whereby any damage has been done to the property of any person or persons in the County of Hartford, in said Colony, since March last, together with the proper evidence of the facts related, the number of the vessels, either inward or outward bound, which have been seized by them since that period, and, as near as may be, their value, with their cargoes on board when taken, and to make return thereof to your Honour: I now beg leave to report that, in obedience to said appointment and direction, I have made diligent inquiry after the damages done by the hostilities of said Troops and Navy, to the property of any person or persons in said County; and, upon such inquiry, do find that a large brigantine, called the Polly, the property of Messieurs Matthew Talcott, Esq., of Middletown, and Captain Jeremiah Wadsworth, of Hartford, both in said County, with a very valuable cargo, the property of said owners and sundry other persons in said County, was, on the 20th day of September last, taken in a hostile manner by his Majesty's ship the Nautilus, commanded by Captain John Collins, and carried into Boston, and there sold and disposed of to the use of the captors. That the mariners that were taken in said brigantine (except the master, Giles Sage, of said Middletown, and one of the seamen, Eleazer Treadwell, of Haddam, in said County, who found means to effect their escape) are yet detained in captivity, and have suffered very severe treatment, and that some of them have been compelled to fight against their country.

The value of said brigantine, with her furniture and appurtenances, as near as can be found, will appear from the annexed affidavit of Captain George Starr, of said Middletown, and said Giles Sage, the master, (who was taken prisoner in her,) and the particulars of her cargo. The persons to whom it belonged, and the value of each particular, will likewise appear from the annexed account, supported by the affidavit of said Giles Sage and Eleazer Treadwell; and the capture, with the subsequent proceedings of the captors, are stated and proved by the following depositions of Giles Sage and Eleazer Treadwell aforesaid.

I beg leave to add, that I do not find that any other damage hath been done by any acts of hostility to the property of any person or persons in said County, except in the capture and confiscation of said brigantine as aforesaid.

All which is humbly submitted by your Honour's most obedient and most humble servant,

TITUS HOSMER.

An Account of the Brigantine POLLY, Vessel and Cargo, GILES SAGE Master, taken by his Majesty's Ship the NAUTILUS, commanded by Captain JOHN COLLINS, on the 20th of SEPTEMBER last, and carried into BOSTON, and converted to the use of the Ministerial Army and Navy there; in which is contained the value of said Brigantine, the particular articles of which her Cargo consisted, with the names of the persons to whom each article in particular did belong; as follows, to wit:

COLONY OF CONNECTICUT, HARTFORD COUNTY, ss.

Be it remembered, that on this 4th day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, personally came and appeared before me, Titus Hosmer, Esq., one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for said County, Captains George Starr and Giles Sage, both of Middletown, in said County, and being duly sworn to declare the truth, upon their oaths depose and say: and first, the said George Starr saith, That in May last, at said Middletown, he carefully examined the Brigantine Polly, burden about one hundred and ten tons, then owned by Messrs. Matthew Talcott, Esq. and Jeremiah Wadsworth, with her appurtenances, being upon a treaty for the purchase of the same; and that he then judged her to be worth five hundred and fifty pounds, lawful money; and that he verily believes that, at the time she is said to have been taken (on the 20th of September last) by the Nautilus man-of-war, making proper allowance for her wear and tear on her voyage between said months of May and September, she was well worth five hundred pounds, lawful money; and further he saith not.

And the said Giles Sage, upon his oath, deposeth and saith: That, some time in the month of May last, he was appointed, by said Talcott and Wadsworth, master of their said Brigantine, the Polly; and on the 12th day of June last sailed in her from the port of New-London, with a cargo of horses, provisions, and lumber, shipped partly by said owners, and partly by sundry other persons, for Kingston, in the Island of Jamaica, in the West-Indies, where he arrived on the 6th day of July last; that he continued at Kingston from that time till the 20th day of August following, and in that time sold the cargo of said brigantine, and laid out the nett proceeds in the purchase of the produce of said Island, and other merchandise, and laded the same on board said brigantine, cleared her out at the Custom-house for New-York, and on said 20th day of August sailed from Kingston for New-York. The deponent further saith, that, on his passage from Kingston to New-York, on the 20th day of September last, being in soundings, and not far from land, about southwest from Long-Island, standing in for New-York, we fell in with his Majesty's Ship Nautilus, commanded by Captain John Collins, who immediately fired three guns at us to bring us to, and hoisted out her pinnace, and sent her with a number of armed men on board the brigantine, took said brigantine into his possession, and took this deponent and all his mariners, the mate excepted, out of said brigantine, and put a prize-master and seamen on board in their stead, and then stood away for Newport, Rhode-Island, with said brigantine in company.

This deponent also saith, that he judged said brigantine and her appurtenances, at the time she was taken as aforesaid, to be well worth five hundred pounds, lawful money; and that her cargo consisted of the several articles particularly enumerated and set down in the foregoing account on this sheet of paper; that the same were the property of the several persons therein mentioned, and that, to the best of his knowledge and belief, the same would have been worth the prices thereto set and affixed, amounting, in the whole, to twenty-five hundred and thirty-four pounds nineteen shillings and two pence, lawful money, had he been permitted to carry them into the port for which said brigantine was destined.

This deponent further says, that at Newport the mate, Josiah Lee, was, by order of Captain Collins, taken out of said brigantine, and confined in irons on board the Nautilus, and continued loaded with irons eleven weeks afterwards, and then was put on board his Majesty's ship the Boyne, and sent to England. The pretence for this severe usage was an information from a mariner put on board the brigantine, that two other of said mariners had solicited him to join with them to rescue said brigantine; and likewise told him that said Lee would join with them; which charge the accused seamen denied, and declared said Lee never did say anything to them upon the subject; and said Lee likewise denied that he had any knowledge of a design to rescue said brigantine, or that he had ever said anything upon the subject to any person whatsoever.

The deponent further says, that, after the arrival of said brigantine in the harbour of Boston, she was libelled before Nathaniel Hatch, Esquire, Deputy Judge of the Admiralty, and, after a long time, condemned; but for what cause this deponent is ignorant: it was, indeed, given out that some cotton-wool he had on board was not shipped agreeably to the provisions of the act of navigation; but of this the deponent was ignorant, he having cleared out said brigantine in Jamaica as he had usually done on former voyages, when no exception had been taken either in the West-Indies, or here in the Custom-houses on the Continent.

The deponent further says, that he continued and was detained in Boston till about the 10th day of December last, when, upon being informed by Captain Collins that he had orders from the Admiral to put him on board the Preston, then bound for England, as soon as the sales of the brigantine and her cargo were closed, he found means to make his escape to Dorchester-Point, and from thence returned home.

Finally, this deponent says, that the crew of said brigantine, when taken, consisted of Josiah Lee, mate; Eleazer Treadwell, Jabez Perkins, John Pike, John Hall, Noadiah Bailey, Jeremiah Fullerton, and this deponent; of which, said Eleazer Treadwell and this deponent have made their escape, and the rest are yet detained in captivity; and further this deponent saith not.

GEORGE STARR,
GILES SAGE.

Sworn the day and year above written, before me,
TITUS HOSMER, Justice of Peace.

COLONY OF CONNECTICUT, HARTFORD COUNTY, ss.

Be it remembered, that, upon this 2d day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, personally came and appeared before me, Titus Hosmer, Esquire, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for said County, Eleazer Treadwell, of Haddam, in said County, mariner, who, being duly sworn, upon his oath deposeth and saith: That, on the 28th day of May last, he shipped himself as a mariner on board the Brig Polly, Giles Sage master, owned by Colonel Matthew Talcott and Captain Jeremiah Wadsworth, upon a voyage from Middletown, in said County, to the Island of Jamaica, in the West-Indies, and from thence back again to New-York and Middletown, and soon after sailed in said brigantine from the port of New-London, and arrived at Kingston, in Jamaica; and, having lain there some time, he sailed again in said brigantine from Kingston for New-York; and that, in his passage to New-York, on or about the 20th day of September last, they fell in with his Majesty's ship the Nautilus, being near the land, which immediately fired three guns at us, and then sent her pinnace, with armed men, and took possession of said brigantine, and took the master and all the people that belonged to the brigantine, except the mate, and carried them on board the Nautilus, and put a prize-master and mariners on board said brigantine, and then stood away for Newport, in Rhode-Island, with said brigantine in company.

This deponent further saith, that the crew of said brigantine, at the time she was taken, consisted of the following persons, to wit: Giles Sage, master; Josiah Lee, mate; and Jabez Perkins, John Pike, John Hall, Noadiah Bailey, Jeremiah Fullerton, and this deponent, mariners.

This deponent also saith, that the cargo of said brigantine, at the time she was taken as aforesaid, as far as he knows and can remember, consisted of the following articles, viz: a large quantity of Jamaica rum and sugar, beef, pork, osnaburghs, duck, writing-paper, ginger, cotton-wool, checked linen, a large quantity of indigo, a negro, a gun, a spy-glass, which this deponent knows to have been on board, but has not any means in his power to ascertain the quantity or quality of the same.

This deponent further says, that the mate, Josiah Lee, at Newport, in Rhode-Island, was brought on board the Nautilus, and confined there, and laid in irons, upon pretence that he had conspired with two of the seamen of the Nautilus, on board the brigantine, to rise and rescue the brigantine, and run away with her, although he steadily denied the charge, and the informer was not reputed a person of good character by the crew of the Nautilus, and it was not pretended that he made any attempt to rescue the brigantine, or had done any one thing tending that way; the loading him with irons, this deponent thought to be very severe treatment, as there was no danger from him on board the Nautilus; notwithstanding, his irons were kept upon him till this deponent made his escape in October last.

The deponent further says, that soon afterwards the Nautilus sailed with said brigantine from Newport for Boston; and on her passage, near Beverly, ran aground, and was there attacked by people from the shore, when the deponent, and the other seamen taken out of the said brigantine, were ordered to the guns on board the Nautilus, and compelled to fire them upon the town, and the people on shore.

This deponent further says, that he was detained on board the Nautilus till towards the end of October, when he had liberty to go on shore in Boston, when he took an opportunity in the evening to make his escape in a boat to Dorchester-Point, and from thence returned home, leaving the rest of the crew of said brigantine on board the Nautilus, and said brigantine in the harbour of Boston; and further this deponent saith not.

ELEAZER TREADWELL.

TITUS HOSMER, Justice of Peace.

The following is an account of the loss sustained by two Ministerial Cruisers on the 6th day of September, 1775; (the one belonging to the Rose, James Wallace commander, the other to the Glasgow, Howe commander;) by Lemuel Brooks's Sloop Neptune, laden with Sugar and Salt, bound to New-York, belonging to John Brooks, of Stamford, in Connecticut, one-eighth part; Josiah Hubble, one-eighth part; Jonathan Boothe, one-eighth part; Benjamin Brooks, one-fourth part; Lemuel Brooks, three-eighths. Their personally appeared Lemuel Brooks, master of the Sloop Neptune; Eleazer Scott, mate; and George Raymond, mariner; and made solemn oath to the truth of the foregoing account, or invoice.

Sworn before me:

JOSEPH PLATT, Justice of Peace.

Norwalk, December 13, A. D. 1775.

PROVINCE OF NOVA-SCOTIA, HALIFAX, ss:

To all whom it may concern, by this public instrument of protest be it known and made manifest, That on the twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, before me, James Brenton, Notary and Tabeilion Publick, by Royal authority, admitted and sworn, and now dwelling at Halifax aforesaid, personally came Lemuel Brooks, late master of the Sloop Neptune, of, and belonging to, Connecticut, and made this his protest, in manner and form following, viz:

That, some time in the month of May last, he sailed in said sloop from New-Haven, in the Colony of Connecticut, bound to St. Martins, where he arrived and took on board a lading of sugars and of salt, from Saltertudas; that on the sixth of August last he sailed in said sloop from St. Martins with said cargo, bound to New-York; that on the sixth of September, being off Montauk-Point, on Long-Island, which bore from north about four leagues distance, he was boarded by two sloops, or tenders, belonging to his Majesty's Ships Rose, James Wallis, Esq., commander, and Glasgow, Captain Howe, commander, who took out his mate, and all his hands, which they removed on board the tenders; and the next day carried the said sloop into Newport, Rhode-Island, where this protestor was ordered on board the Rose, and examined in regard to his cargo, of which he gave a full account. That this protestor requested leave of Captain Wallis that he might be permitted to go on shore, which was absolutely refused him, and he was, thereupon, ordered on board his own sloop, where he was detained a prisoner until the eleventh, following, when he was forcibly taken out and put on board a schooner which had been seized, and was ordered to Boston; that, on the 12th of September, being in Boston Bay, in said schooner, the protestor was ordered and taken on board his Majesty's Sloop Hunter, Captain McKenzie, then bound to Halifax, where this protestor arrived on the twentieth instant, and was soon after his arrival allowed his liberty by said Captain McKenzie, and came on shore at Halifax, where the protestor now is; of all which the said Lemuel Brooks, the said protestor, hath desired me to make a publick act.

Wherefore, I, the said Notary, at the request aforesaid, have, and do hereby, solemnly protest against the said James Wallis and Howe, Captains of said Ships Rose and Glasgow, and all concerned in the seizing, taking, and detaining the said Sloop Neptune and her cargo, and for all unlawful restraint of the liberty of said protestor, and for all costs, damages, and expenses, that have or may accrue for and by reason thereof.

Thus done and protested at Halifax aforesaid, the day and year first above-mentioned, the said protestor making solemn oath to the truth of the premises.

J. BRENTON, Notary Publick.

Stonington, March, 1776.

SIR: Being appointed by the honourable General Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut, holden at New-Haven, (by special order of your Honour,) on the 14th of December, 1775, to procure a just and well authenticated account of the hostilities committed by the Ministerial Troops or Navy, whereby any damage has been done to the property of any person or persons in this Colony since March last, together with the proper evidence of the facts related, the number and value of the vessels, whether inward or outward bound, which have been seized by them since that period, and, as near as may be, their value, with their cargoes on board when taken, and make return thereof to your Honour; beg leave to report, that Mr. Nathaniel Shaw, of New-London, merchant, has lost a vessel and cargo, outward bound, estimated at one thousand two hundred and fifty-seven pounds fifteen shillings and five pence; and that Messrs. William Coit, Jabez Perkins, Joseph Williams, and Levi Huntington, of Norwich, in a vessel bound from New-York to New-London, have lost goods to the value of three hundred and seventy-six pounds four shillings and six and three-fourths pence; and that the damage done the buildings and goods by the attack from Captain James Wallace, at Stonington, Long-Point, amounts to thirty-three pounds lawful money; to which, if I may add the expense of one thousand of the Minute and Militiamen which attended the alarm, two days each, at one shilling and four pence per day, and travel, one with another, at one shilling and four pence, and one shilling and six pence per day for board of each man, we shall find it to be three hundred and fifty-three pounds two shillings and six pence; which believe to be less than the real expense amounted to; exclusive of twelve pounds four shillings and six pence, allowed by the General Assembly to Jonathan Weaver, Jun., for his support and expenses for doctors while confined with the wounds he received from the enemy at said attack; together with account of damage sustained by Mr. Brown, of Fisher's Island, in the Province of New-York, which then amounted to seven hundred and five pounds thirteen shillings and one pence, lawful money; accounts of all which, with affidavits thereto, I enclose; and am, with great respect, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

NEW-LONDON COUNTY, } ss.
STONINGTON, January 31, 1776. }
Personally appeared Mr. John Brown, of Fisher's Island, of lawful age, and (being duly sworn,) testifieth and saith: That he lived with his father, Mr. Benjamin Brown, the year past; and that, in the morning of the 7th of August last, Captain Wallace, of the Ship Rose, and some other ships-of-war and transports under his command, came to anchor at the west end of said Island; soon after which, Captain Wallace, with a number of armed men, came on shore, and applied to his father for a number of fat cattle and sheep; that Captain Wallace said, if he would let them have them at such price as this deponent and one Colonel Willard should agree for, all was well; but if that did not suit the deponent and his father, he, Wallace, said he would have them notwithstanding; and commanded them immediately to have said stock brought up and yarded; upon which this deponent, with others, (knowing themselves and the stock of said Island to be in the power of said Wallace,) went after the cattle and sheep, and brought them up and yarded them; that this deponent and Colonel Willard valued the eleven hundred sheep and thirty cattle at four hundred and thirty-two pounds fifteen shillings sterling; that the sheep were put on board the transports the 7th of August, and the cattle the day following; and that he expected Captain Wallace would pay his father for said stock, and that this deponent went on board the Spy transport with the account, to receive the money thereon; that when on board, the Captain of the Spy (H. Evans) gave him an order on his Excellency General Gage for the amount of said cattle and sheep; and that he received no other consideration whatever, and that no part of said order hath ever been paid. And this deponent further testifieth, that the within account of expense for removing the sheep, cows, &c., to the main, and the keeping them, is a true and just account, and that he thinks the damage his father sustained by the removing the stock from said Island (not being permitted to return them again) is as great as it is here estimated at, and that his father's damage is daily increasing, both by the expense of keeping the stock and in his not being permitted to feed and improve the Island as usual.

JOHN BROWN.

Cape Nicola Mole, April 2, 1776.

I, Samuel Perkins, of New-Haven, in the County of New-Haven, in the Colony of Connecticut, in New-England, depose and say: That on the second day of August last I sailed from said New-Haven on board the Sloop Polly, (of which I was then master,) owned by Michael Todd and John McCleave, of said New-Haven, bound on a voyage to Martinico, in the West-Indies. The cargo on board of said sloop consisted of twenty-one oxen, three horses, twenty-six thousand three hundred and a half hoops and staves, two thousand bunches of onions, with a quantity of hay, corn, oats, poultry, provisions, and a number of small articles which I cannot now recollect; that on the third day of said August, being off southwest from Block-Island, I was fired upon by the Kingfisher sloop-of-war, commanded by Captain Montagu, and in a few minutes boarded by the Kingfisher's boat, loaded with armed men, who in a few minutes forced me and my crew into the boat, and carried us on board the Kingfisher. After they had taken possession of my sloop, they towed her into Boston, where we arrived the seventh of said August. The cattle and other articles on board were taken possession of, and sold by order of Admiral Graves. After they had stripped the sloop of her sails, anchor, and other rigging, they set her up at vendue, and I suppose sold her, as they absolutely refused delivering her up to me, alleging that I was on a voyage to get powder; which was, in fact, the case; my getting powder being made by the Governour of Connecticut the condition of his dispensing with the embargo on the exportation of cattle.

I, Samuel Perkins, further depose and say, that the account made out, and attested to under oath, by Messrs. Todd and John McCleave, on the 15th instant, before Samuel Bishop, Jun., Esq., is an account of the cargo which was taken as aforesaid by said Kingfisher sloop-of-war. And further this deponent saith not.

SAMUEL PERKINS.

Wellfleet, January 26, 1776.

SIR: Being informed that you are one of the Committee appointed by the honourable the Continental Congress to receive an estimate of all losses, seizures, &c., by the King's Troops or Navy, &c., we take this opportunity of informing you of our misfortune, and have enclosed you a well authenticated account thereof; and are, with the greatest respect, sir, your humble servants,

HEZEKIAH DOANE & Co.

To the Honourable John Adams, Esq.

I, Elisha Doane, Jun., Master of the Schooner Hannah, burden about ninety-five tons, belonging to Hezekiah Doane, Esq., & Co., do testify and say, that, returning from a whaling voyage in said schooner off the back of Cape-Cod, on the seventh day of September last, was boarded and taken by the man-of-war the Savage, commanded by Captain Bromage, and carried into Boston, contrary to my inclination, and there detained until I had an opportunity of making my escape, and left my vessel there in the hands of the enemy, and have not seen or heard from her since; which schooner, with her appurtenances, (exclusive of whaling craft,) was worth at that time, according to the best of my judgment, four hundred pounds, lawful money.

ELISHA DOANE, JUN.

EASTHAM, January 26, 1776:

The above-named Elisha Doane, Jun, personally appeared before me, one of his Majesty's Justices of Peace in the County of Barnstable, and made oath to the above-written Deposition.

JOHN ATWOOD, Justice of Peace.

I, Elisha Mays, of lawful age, do testify and say, that, on the seventh day of September last, returning from a whaling voyage in Schooner Hannah, owned by Hezekiah Doane, Esq., and commanded by Elisha Doane, Jun., off Cape-Cod, discovering a man-of-war, myself, with several others, took the boat, and went on shore. After that, I saw the man-of-war's boat board said schooner, and saw said schooner stand away for Boston. And further saith not.

ELISHA MAYS.

EASTHAM, January 26, 1776:

The above-named Elisha Mays personally appeared before me, one of his Majesty's Justices of Peace for the County of Barnstable, and, after being duly cautioned, made oath to the above-written Deposition.

JOHN ATWOOD, Justice of Peace.

I, Simon Newcomb, of lawful age, do testify and say, that, as I was going from Wellfleet to Salem in a small schooner, burden about twenty-five tons, loaded with oysters, on the twenty-fifth day of July last, off Race-Point, we were boarded and taken by a boat from a man-of-war,

(the Falkland, commanded by Captain Lindsey.) and was carried into Boston, and there sold; and I myself detained on board a man-of-war for some time, and finally dismissed. And do further testify and say, that, according to the best of my judgment, said schooner, with her appurtenances, was worth at that time, (including her cargo,) fifty six pounds thirteen shillings and four pence, lawful money, and belonged to Mr. Zoheth Smith and others; and since I was taken, the man that was my partner is deceased. And further saith not.

SIMON NEWCOMB.

Eastham, January 26, 1776.

BARNSTABLE, ss.

The above-named Simon Newcomb personally appeared before me, one of his Majesty's Justices of Peace, and, after being duly cautioned, made oath to the above-written Deposition.

JOHN ATWOOD, Justice of Peace.

New-Haven, 8, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The 22d December last I wrote you, informing you of the loss we sustained on Noddle's Island; since which, I have been down to Boston, and find the Island much more damaged than I could have conceived of. Besides the buildings, &c., I mentioned, (the amount was £1,520,) they destroyed, cut, and burnt, &c., underwritten, viz:

25 large locust trees.

220 feet planed and painted fence, and with large gates before the mansion-house, red cedar posts.

500 feet board fence round the cow-yard.

170 feet board fence round the garden, red cedar posts, almost new.

13 fruit trees in the garden.

100 or more spruce spars, poles for fences.

45 lengths post and rails fence, 5 rails each.

78 lengths 3-rails fence, underpinned with stone; wall good.

2 pumps entirely destroyed.

1 pump much damaged.

234 feet open board fence round the sheep-yard.

A bridge burnt, and a wharf, where the store was burnt, much burnt.

1 horse-stable, omitted in my last, worth about twenty pounds sterling; (Mr. Williams says thirty pounds sterling; but I believe twenty is enough.)

GENTLEMEN: You may, if you please, make an addition to the sum of £1,520 of £100 sterling, for above loss and damages. And whereas we expect to be paid for those damages done by the Provincial Troops on the Island, we should be glad that, if it is in your power at present, you would please to give us part to begin to rebuild with now. The troops have left Boston. The longer delayed, the greater the damage; and conclude with wishing you grace and wisdom, health and happiness, here and hereafter.

From your obedient, humble servant,

THOS. GREENOUGH.

To Messrs. Deane, Adams, and Wythe, Esquires.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 9, 1776.

SIR: The important post of Dorchester-Hill, which has long been the object of our particular attention, and which, for various weighty reasons, I had hitherto delayed taking possession of, I have the pleasure to inform you is now so well secured, that I flatter myself it will not be in the power of the enemy to dispossess us. A detachment of twenty-five hundred men, under the command of Brigadier-General Thomas, on Monday evening last began the works there, which they have carried on ever since, without the least molestation from the enemy. For two or three nights previous to this, I thought it necessary to draw off their attention from the grand object, and accordingly ordered a brisk cannonade and bombardment of the town, which, as I have been since informed, had the desired effect; for they had no suspicion of our real design till Tuesday morning, when they discovered our troops in possession of the hill.

A Captain of a transport, who made his escape from Boston the night before last, informs me that three thousand men, under the command of Lord Percy, were ordered to dispossess us; but the weather being very tempestuous, or perhaps for some better reason, the expedition was laid aside. He also informs me that they were making every necessary preparation to evacuate the town. They have, indeed, been observed, for several days past, to be very busily employed in removing their cannon and ammunition; and yesterday, in the afternoon, the Captain's intelligence was confirmed by a flag of truce, sent out with a message from the Selectmen of the town, a copy of which I have the honour to enclose you. It seems very evident that they can no longer keep possession of the town, and are determined to take post or attack in some other quarter. Where that may be is at present altogether uncertain; but I thought it my duty to give you the earliest information of this important movement, that you might take proper measures for the security of your Colony. I have ordered their motions to be very narrowly watched; and if anything material should occur, you may rely on my giving you speedy notice.

I have also the pleasure to acquaint you that Captain Manly and others have taken another transport-ship, laden with coals, porter, &c., for the use of the Ministerial Troops at Boston. She brings papers to the 2d of December, but they afford no material news. An armed transport is also stranded on the beach of Cape-Cod. The most of her cargo (consisting principally of a few military stores) has been secured by the inhabitants; the master, two midshipmen, and a number of seamen, made prisoners. She was bound from Boston to New-York.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To His Honour Governour Trumbull.

[Letters of the same import with the above were sent to his Honour Governour Cooke, and to the President of the Assembly of New-Hampshire.]

COLONEL MOYLAN TO THE COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE AMERICAN FORCES STATIONED AT NEW-YORK.

Cambridge, March 9, 1776.

SIR: I have it in command from his Excellency General Washington to inform you that, in consequence of his determination to possess himself of the Heights at Dorchester, a cannonade and bombardment was begun on Saturday night last, on the town of Boston, continued on Sunday night, and on Monday night. A vast number of shot and shells were thrown into that town, under the cover of which the intended purpose was effected. On the enemy's perceiving, next morning, that we had taken post, they were all hurry and bustle, embarking their troops, as was expected, and wished to attack us; but the violent storm which came on that day prevented them, and disappointed us, who were prepared to give them a warm reception.

The possession of these Heights are preparatory to our forming a fort upon Nuke-Hill, which commands the south of Boston, and to which their shipping will be much exposed. This they seem to be well aware of, and are now making every preparation for moving off. Captain Irwin escaped from them the night before last, and assures us that this is their intention. It is corroborated by a message from the Selectmen in that town to his Excellency, a copy of which you have enclosed.

These informations will not prevent the General from proceeding in his advances to the town; so that, if they do not move off, he is determined to force them to a battle, by making that town so hot that they will have but little rest therein.

His Excellency has good reasons to imagine that New-York will be the place of their destination. He therefore desires that you will exert yourself to the utmost in preparing for their reception. He has ordered the armed vessels to be in readiness to attend their motions, and give him the earliest intelligence of the course they steer; by which intelligence his motions will be governed. If they steer west, you may expect a large reinforcement from this camp, and in all probability the main body will soon follow.

You will please to communicate this to the Provincial Congress in Convention, who, the Governour doubts not, will co-operate with you in using every endeavour to prevent their forming a lodgment before his Excellency can come or send to your assistance. The fate of America depends upon this campaign, and the success of this campaign will a good deal depend upon your exerting yourselves with vigour upon this occasion. I am, &c.

STEPHEN MOYLAN, Aid-de-Camp.

To the Commanding Officer of the American Forces at New-York.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Cambridge, March 9, 1776.

SIR: I have it in command from his Excellency General Washington to inform you that, in consequence of his determination to possess himself of the Heights at Dorchester, a cannonade and bombardment was begun on Saturday night last on the town of Boston, continued on Sunday night and on Monday night. A vast number of shot and shells were thrown into that town, under the cover of which the intended purpose was effected. On the enemy's perceiving, next morning, that we had taken post, they were all hurry and bustle, embarking their troops, as was expected, and wished to attack us; but the violent storm which came on that day prevented them, and disappointed us, who were prepared to give them a warm reception.

The possession of these Heights are preparatory to our forming a fort upon Nike-Hill, which commands the south of Boston, and to which their shipping will be much exposed. This they seem to be well aware of, and are now making every preparation for moving off. Captain Irwin, of Salem, who escaped from town the night before last, assures us that this is their intention. It is corroborated by a message from the Selectmen in that town to his Excellency, a copy of which you have enclosed.

These informations will not prevent the General from proceeding in his advances to the town; so that, if they do not move off, he is determined to force them to a battle, by making that town so hot that they will have but little rest therein.

His Excellency has good reason to imagine that New-York will be the place of their destination; but lest that should not be the case, it behooves every place where a fleet can lie, to be upon their guard. The General therefore recommends the utmost vigilance may be observed by the good people of your Province; and if they should make an attempt to land therein, he doubts not that every opposition will be given thereto, and an express sent off immediately, that he may come or send to your assistance.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN, Aid-de-Camp.

To the New-Hampshire Committee of Safety.

STATEMENT OF JOHN RODGERS, OF BOSTON.

After several fruitless attempts to leave the town, I became bound to General Gage (by liberating certain prisoners*) not to leave it; in consequence of which I entered into trade. About the 1st of January, 1776, came a permit, at ten o'clock at night, ordering me to leave the town by ten o'clock the next day. The connections I was then in rendered it almost impossible to obey the summons.

I then petitioned General Howe to postpone the permit a few days, but met with nothing but insults from Major Urquhart and others, Aid-de-Camps to the General. I then concealed myself for two days, until the vessel sailed on which I was ordered on board. In which time the Provost broke open my house, and plundered it in part, leaving it open for the soldiers to complete what he began; telling the neighbours he had orders from Head-Quarters so to do.

On which I wrote a letter to the following purport:

"GENTLEMEN: I shall esteem it a great favour if you will permit me to have ten minutes' conversation with you. I flatter myself I shall set my conduct in a more favourable light than I think it appears in at present to you, if I may form a judgment from the treatment I received from the Provost.

"I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

"JOHN RODGERS.

"To Major James Urquhart and Captain Balfour."

* Mr. John Gill, Printer; Mr. William Starr; and Peter Edes, son of Mr. Edes, Printer.

The answer was:

"We are surprised you keep yourself concealed. You may immediately go about and settle your accounts. No man shall hurt the hair of your head; nor has the Provost any order to trouble you."

On which I went out, but in less than four hours was insulted and committed to jail by order of Major Urquhart, as the Provost informed me; and in less than one hour after my confinement, my house was again broken open and plundered. After being confined seven days, was taken out by a file of soldiers, and put on board a vessel, not being allowed to go to my house for a second coat, waistcoat, or shirt.

Thus, my countrymen, every sub-villain acts his part, and procures his plunder on a smaller scale, as General Gage did on a larger: one violating his honour to a whole town, the other to an individual.

JOHN RODGERS.

MIDDLESEX, WATERTOWN, March 9, 1776, ss.

Personally appeared before me John Rogers, and made oath to the truth of the above Narrative by him subscribed.

HENRY GARDNER, Justice of Peace.

STATEMENT OF PETER EDES, OF BOSTON.

Watertown, March 13, 1776.

Mr. Rogers having published a narrative of the treatment he met with in Boston from General Howe and his banditti, he pleased also to insert an account of the humane procedure towards me by General Gage and his creatures, which will discover the principles those abandoned wretches who have commissions under the present Ministry, act upon.

On Monday, the 19th of June last, about nine o'clock, A. M., being in Edes & Gill's office, in Boston, three men belonging to the ships-of-war appeared round it; and having been previously informed of their pressing every person into the service who happened to fall in their way, I ran out of the shop by means of a back door, which conducted into the lane that led to my father's house. Thither I repaired; but the bloodhounds were immediately informed of my retreat, and speedily followed me, and the dwelling was almost instantaneously surrounded by sailors, and three officers. I soon was made a prisoner, and had the misfortune to find myself in the hands of the most unfeeling and worthless set of men; one of whom, upon first discovering me, cried out, "I have found the damned rebel." I supposed from this, that they thought they had found my father; at least, that they meant to scourge me for his political transgressions against them. The fellow had a cutlass drawn in his hand, and pulled me to the officers, one of whom was Captain Lindsey, of the Liverpool sloop-of-war, and who is son-in-law to Mr. Ralph Inman, late of Cambridge, now refugee in Boston. He asked me where Mr. Edes was. I answered, he was out of town. He replied (God bless his Christian soul) that I was a damned liar, and that I had better tell him. He repeated the question. I answered as before. He asked my name. I told him Edes. He asked if I was Mr. Edes, the Printer's son. I told him I was. Upon which, he ordered me with him, observing that he was commanded so to do. I said it was very well, and followed him, guarded by other villains; and determined, since I had got into the lion's paws, to humour every motion, lest I should be crushed in the contest. After we had got to New-Boston, he asked what my father had been writing to me. I replied nothing. He then asked what I had been writing to him. I answered nothing. He said I was right in saying so; but that he would be damned if he would believe me. We afterwards proceeded towards the Admiral's; and passing by my father's house, Lindsey discovered Mr. Starr with a firelock, upon which he ordered us to stop, for there was a trooper with a firelock. He was soon brought where I was, and both placed in the centre of a circle formed of six Jack-tars, whose long residence on board the ships-of-war had made them as hardened and inhuman as the Algerine galley-slaves, who were commanded like so many draught horses, to go on. Being a little animated, I said, Captain Lindsey, I should be much obliged to you, if you would carry me to the General's, and see whether he will release me, or to know what he will do with me. He retorted, with all the sea-bred superciliousness of a little Neptune, "I was not to go where I pleased, but that I should go where he pleased to carry me; and, (for he thinks no more of sending a man pell-mell to hell with curses and damnings, almost every word he speaks, than I did of praying to God to be relieved from such wretches' hands,) damn me, if I asked him another question, he would knock me down, by God." He then sent us to the Admiral's, with an officer and a few sailors.

When we were before his bruteship, he asked me my name. I replied Edes. He said I looked like a dirty villain, and ordered his officer to carry us to the Provost, with orders for him to hang us immediately. But looking round, he saw a sailor with a firelock; upon which he asked the officer if it was found with us. Being informed that it was, he ordered the officer to carry us to General Gage, and he would know what to do with us. I then thought we were left to a fine judge, indeed. When we came before his Excellency, Harry Rooke (one of his Aids-de-Camp) asked me how many more firelocks I had in the house. I replied, five or six more, for aught I knew; for I was ignorant of that one being there. He told me, by way of cordial, that I would wish I had given it up. Another officer called a Sergeant of the Horse, and ordered him to draw his cutlass, and carry us back to the Admiral's, but observed to him, if we offered to run, (and made a sign, though not a wonder, by drawing his hand across his throat.) We set off, but soon an officer overtook us, and gave orders to stop. A Sergeant commanded us to lay on the ground about a quarter of an hour, when another officer came, and acquainted us that we must go to the General's, which we did, and tarried about half an hour; after which, they called a Corporal, gave him a billet, and ordered a file of men to take us to the Provost, where we remained till the 3d of October; and to fall into the hands of a more worthless, infamous fellow, do not wish my enemies.

The 17th, 18th, and 19th days of June, we were carried before a Court of Inquiry. The two first days, no questions were proposed to either of us. The third, Major Urquhart, (son-in-law to the late Secretary Flucker,) asked me when I was taken up, my crime, and by whose orders. After answering him, he ordered us back to jail; and during the time of our confinement there, three-quarters of it was in a close prison. The treatment to us, as well as those taken at Bunker's Hill, was of the most extreme kind. Cruelty and inhumanity is exercised to no prisoners-of-war in any European country, or by any people, but that of Englishmen to their brethren. The allowance of provisions from the execrable Gage, was bread and water for sixty days, and that dealt to us with the hand next to want; and we were deprived of candlelight seventeen nights. I have heard those prisoners mentioned ask for bread, and the Provost replied, (Heaven bless him, if it be agreeable to eternal purpose,) "damn them, let them eat the heads of the nails;" a speech which scarce ever escaped the lips of an unfeeling barbarian against the Christians. And at another time, a prisoner, who, from his wounds, and the mangled operations of the Surgeon who attended him, (but whether from ignorance or party rage, I cannot say,) just approaching the ascent to eternity, had a religious book lent him to peruse in that serious hour, at which time Harry Rooke, one of the Aids-de-diable, observed it, wrested it from him, and said "it was damned religion had ruined the country." Thus they expect no peace themselves in death, and they even prevent such of us as happen to fall into their hands, of it likewise. "But for all these things, wilt thou not judge them, O Lord!"

PETER EDES.

N. B. One excessive hot day, the Sergeant of the guard (having more humanity than the Provost) gave us the liberty of the yard. The Provost came home, and seeing us there, asked the Sergeant the reason of it. He told him we were suffering for want of air, and he had let us out. Upon which he replied, "Damn them, let them die and rot; you have no authority to let them out;" and he immediately confined him with a Corporal. Several officers came one day, and asked how many there were in the room. We told them. Upon which, one of them said, "I wish, instead of four, there were four hundred, and I had the hanging of them all." A proper officer for such bloodthirsty villains. At another time, Ben Hallowell (one of the infamous Commissioners) came into the room where I was, and said (what the world is ready to say of him) I was a damned rascal, and ought to have been hanged long ago.

P. E.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN NORTH-CAROLINA TO HIS FRIEND IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED MARCH 10, 1776.

I have it in my power to give you a few lines by the express. Yesterday afternoon we received a letter from Colonel Caswell, giving an account, in a full manner, of a battle between his troops, Colonel Lillington's, (of Cape-Fear,) and the Highlanders and Regulators, about twenty miles above Wilmington, at Moore's Creek Bridge, which is between the Northwest and Northeast Rivers. The Insurgents had made many attempts to escape the vigilance of our troops, and get down to Governour Martin. Colonel Caswell was after them many days; at length they made an attempt to cross at this pass, about the break of day, on Tuesday, the 27th of last month.

Colonel Caswell had very wisely ordered the planks to be taken off the bridge, so that in passing it they met with many difficulties, and a very heavy firing came on. Our troops reserved their fire till within a small distance, which did great execution. Many passed the bridge. General McLeod and Captain Campbell were instantly shot dead. McLeod had nine bullets and twenty-four swan-shot through him and into his body. Twenty-eight more are killed and mortally wounded, and between twenty and thirty prisoners, amongst them his Excellency General Donald McDonald, who is on his way to us, and is expected here to-morrow. We had only two men wounded—one of them mortally. The Insurgents retreated with the greatest precipitation, leaving behind them some wagons, &c. They cut the horses out of the wagons, and mounted three upon a horse. Many of them fell into the creek, and were drowned. Tom Rutherford ran like a lusty fellow. He and Felix Kennan, of Duplin County, were in arms against us. They by this time are our prisoners, as is Lieutenant-Colonel Cotton, who ran the first fire. The battle lasted only three minutes. The Colonels Caswell and Lillington had under their command one thousand men. The Highlanders and Regulators sixteen hundred. The account is certain as to the number of the Insurgents; for Colonel Caswell had it from General McDonald himself. Colonel Moore sent off expresses to the main Army, consisting of between five and six hundred men, under the Colonels Martin, Polk, Thackston, and Long, in and about Cross-Creek, to secure the whole of the Highlanders and Regulators. Not a man of them has a probability of making his escape.

Governour Martin has threatened the destruction of Wilmington, if they do not supply him with provisions. The town has spiritedly refused to supply him with a single mouthful, notwithstanding the Cruiser and three armed vessels lay opposite it; and they have told the Governour he may do as he pleases, as they are determined to resist to the last.

They have a good battery there, and four hundred chosen men, under the command of a brave Irishman, (Colonel William Purviance,) who is determined to see it out with them. The women and children are sent out of town. The Tories are all secured in Wilmington Jail, to the number of twenty-five. Captain Parry, of the Cruiser, has meanly begged a few quarters of beef, which the town has refused him. And the vessels dare not begin the attack, though we daily expect to hear of an engagement, as they are starving.

It was humorous enough in the inhabitants of Wilmington, when the Governour haughtily demanded one thousand barrels of flour, after answering him fully on that head, that they went immediately into the insurrection. And what a hopeful situation he had reduced his friends to, that were surrounded by large, spirited, and powerful armies, who were determined to make short work with them.

The Negroes at Cape-Fear were never known to behave so well as they have lately.

Yesterday, two prisoners (a Midshipman and a common seaman) were sent out of this town to Halifax.

We have now in arms, to the southward of this town, nine thousand four hundred men. General Clinton, we expect to hear every moment is landed at Cape-Fear, with the troops under his command. As soon as we learned he had sailed from Virginia, sent off an express instantly to our commanding officer there, to be ready for him. The Governour of South-Carolina is at Cape-Fear. Clinton, Martin, and Lord William Campbell, are to settle the plan of operations as to the subjugating this Province, South-Carolina, and Georgia. To-morrow, we send off two gentlemen to South-Carolina. I do expect, the moment Clinton lands, this Province, Virginia, and South-Carolina, will march an army of twenty thousand men against him. You never knew the like in your life as to true patriotism. Not a man of any influence is left in the back country, nor on Cape-Fear. All, to a man, turned out upon the first alarm, in defence of their country.

JOHN HARRISON, JUN., TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Fredericktown, March 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your order, we have sent by the bearer, Lawrence Brengle, all the muskets we have that is in order, being eighty-four; and also fifteen hundred gun-flints. Mr. Brengle will lay before you an account for wagonage; what we have will be paid.

I am, gentlemen, in behalf of the Committee, your most humble servant,

JOHN HARRISON, JUN., Chairman.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

CHARLES CARROLL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Baltimore Town, March 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of last night gave me no small satisfaction; but we have, since receiving it, heard that a large ship and some small vessels are discovered from North-Point working up the bay. Whatever they may turn out to be, we shall here propose to receive them, as there are a great number of men in town. Colonel Dorsey has been directed to march back his battalion to Elk-River, but will keep them together at Elk-Ridge Landing till he hears from you by express whether they are wanted at Annapolis. Pray despatch your orders to him directly. I understand from you that you are at Annapolis sufficiently prepared to oppose the landing of any men from the Otter, or her tenders.

The Committee of Baltimore County had likewise, before receiving your letter, directed their Light-Infantry Company to march to your assistance. It is now countermanded; but they will most readily send you, on notice, any assistance in their power. As no orders have been sent to Captain Stricker to come to this town, I suppose he will continue his march to Annapolis. I am sorry to acquaint you that there is some probability that the powder and arms we expected from Philadelphia are seized by one of the tenders. In the great hurry and confusion, in order to furnish some of the Militia, many of the cartridge-boxes were delivered out to them, which perhaps may not be got again. We must not mind these small losses. It is the general sentiment of the people here that Captain Squire should not be supplied with provisions; and I hope he will not be permitted to seize the New-England sloop.

I am, respectfully, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

CHARLES CARROLL.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

JOSEPH BEALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Bladensburg, March 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, I had ordered my battalion to rendezvous about half-way between this and Queen-Anne. But as we yesterday evening and this morning received at this place fifty-one whole and one broken barrel and twenty kegs of gun-powder, and twelve muskets, I have altered the place of rendezvous to this town. As, by your orders, I am to hold myself in readiness to march at a moment's warning, I shall keep them, or such parts of them as can be tolerably armed, on duty till I receive your further orders thereon. I hope, by the return of this messenger, I shall receive your orders, as well with respect to my conduct in keeping the whole or a part of the battalion on duty, as likewise with respect to the disposition of the powder, as it may not be altogether safe to keep the powder near the navigable waters. If there should not be an immediate call for it, I think Snowden's Iron-Works would be a proper place to lodge it, as it will be nearly convenient to Annapolis, Baltimore, and this place.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,
JOSEPH BEALL.

To the Council of Safety.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN JAMES HINDMAN.

[No. 40.]

Annapolis, March 10, 1776.

SIR: Your request, with regard to Mr. Frazer, hath been complied with; he has got his commission made out. We have some linen and cloth, but, we doubt, not enough for the battalion and Independent companies; therefore get for yourself, if you can; if not, we will endeavour to supply you. Hats we will procure at Baltimore Town; blankets and guns you may get for yourself at reasonable prices. Our arms are very slow in coming from the northward, and few have been made. The man-of-war and her tenders are gone past this town towards Baltimore. You must be on your guard, and spirit up your company to attend their motions, in case they should attempt landing. We think you ought not to go to Philadelphia until this alarm is over.

We are, &c.

To Captain James Hindman.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL JOSHUA BEALL.

[No. 41.]

Annapolis, March 10, 1776.

SIR: A man-of-war and two tenders passed this harbour yesterday afternoon, and we imagine are destined to Baltimore. But as it is altogether uncertain what their designs are, and as we wish to put the Province in the best state of defence our circumstances will admit of, we request you will immediately meet your battalion, and hold them in readiness to march at a moment's warning, upon the further orders of the Council.

We are, &c.

To Colonel Joshua Beall.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DORCHESTER COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 48.]

Annapolis, March 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have received your letter, recommending the Town of Cambridge as the most convenient and proper place for the Independent Company of your County to be stationed at; and, as we approve of that place, we have ordered Captain Woolford to station his company there.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Dorchester County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN JOHN GUNBY.
[No. 49.]

Annapolis, March 10, 1776.

SIR: We approve of your conduct in providing houses, bedding, fuel, and utensils for your company, and enclose an order on the Treasurer of the Eastern Shore, in your favour, for one hundred and fifty pounds, to disburse the expenses you have incurred in these matters, and subsisting your recruits. If that is not sufficient, you shall be provided with a further sum.

We are not yet supplied with arms, and therefore cannot now furnish you; but will as soon as we are able. By the enclosed you will observe your company is to be stationed at Princess Anne, agreeable to the recommendation of the Committee of Observation of your County, for which we thank them.

We are, &c.

To Captain John Gunby.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CHARLES CARROLL.
[No. 50.] Annapolis, March 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Half-past three o'clock this afternoon the Otter, with her tenders, hove in sight. Half-past five a flag was sent with a letter to the Governour, a copy of which, with his answer, you have enclosed. We informed you last night that very little provision would fall to their share. This we confirm. We are well prepared to repel any attempt they may make to land. You will now have no occasion for Stricker's Company; therefore, if you have ordered him to Baltimore Town, countermand it. The President and Mr. Tilghman conferred with two officers that came on shore to attend the flag. They confessed one of their tenders was in great danger of being taken; but that Captain Squire bore away to prevent great effusion of blood: but we conceive that he will loiter about till he is reinforced. We perceive a small vessel making down the bay, and not unlikely with intelligence to the Kingfisher, who, the flag said, might be expected to relieve the Otter. Therefore you will be pleased to provide against the worst. We cannot sufficiently commend those brave sons of liberty who this day stood forth so gallantly in defence of their country. Be assured we shall afford them every assistance in our power; and are, yours, &c.

To Charles Carroll, Esq. and the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GOVERNOUR EDEN.
[No. 51.] Annapolis, March 10, 1776.

SIR: Your Excellency will be pleased to inform Captain Squire, that the time has been when we should have thought it an honour, and would with pleasure have supplied any of his Majesty's ships with provision; and are still not destitute of a hope that a time may yet come when we may enjoy that satisfaction.

We have always considered Captain Squire as a man of humanity and a gentleman; and as such, cannot account for the burning of a vessel in full view of the people of this city, as if meant to add insult to misfortune already too severely felt by the people of this Province, who were always attached to his Majesty and his family, and who cannot be reproached for defending themselves against any invasion of their native and chartered rights. We are willing to believe, and shall be glad of being confirmed therein, that this step was not in consequence of any order from him.

We are much obliged to your Excellency for the pains you have taken to preserve the peace of this Province, and that you will still exert your endeavours for the restoration of those happy days that we enjoyed under a constitutional dependance on the mother country.

We are, &c.

To His Excellency Robert Eden, Esquire.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CHARLES CARROLL.
[No. 52.] Annapolis, March 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We are much hurried. The hostile fleet have sailed down the bay, and we are confident they will return in two or three days; therefore prepare for your defence. We ordered part of Colonel Weems's Battalion at twelve o'clock last night to guard West-River; and at twelve o'clock to-day, which was the time the Otter was weighing anchor, ordered the remainder of that battalion to hasten down along the bay side, towards the mouth of Patuxent, and to show themselves ready to oppose any attempt at landing; and if they should land without a flag, to fight it out to the last with them.

The one thousand pounds you mention shall be sent by the first opportunity. We have a great deal to say to you, and shall be glad to see you to-morrow, or next day. We are all worn to the stumps.

Yours, &c.

To Charles Carroll, Esq. and the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County.

LORD STIRLING TO COLONEL DAYTON.

New-York, March 10, 1776.

SIR: You are instantly to use your utmost endeavours to put the Third Regiment of New-Jersey Troops in the Continental service into the best condition for marching you possibly can, and as well armed and accoutred as the time will admit of. There will be a necessity of their moving out of the Province of New-Jersey on Tuesday at farthest.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To Colonel Dayton, Elizabethtown.

LORD STIRLING TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

New-York, March 10, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: General Lee communicated to me your letter of the 29th February. Since the date of which, Congress have made a new arrangement of the commands in America, of which you will doubtless be informed before this reaches you. However, lest by any accident that should not be the case, I shall just recapitulate what our friend Duane writes me on the subject. General Lee is to command in the Southern Department, comprehending Virginia, the Carolinas, and Georgia. The Middle Department, (comprehending New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, the Lower Counties, and Maryland.) is under the command of yourself, with Thompson and myself, Brigadier-Generals. The New-England Colonies compose the Eastern Department; and Canada the Northern. Who is to command in the latter was not yet determined. In consequence of this arrangement, General Lee set out from this place on Thursday evening for Philadelphia, and has left me in a situation not a little perplexing, especially to a young beginner, as I now may call myself, after twenty years retirement from the busy scenes of life. It will require at least eight thousand men to put this place and Long-Island in any posture of defence by the month of May. We have not above eighteen hundred; of these, about one thousand Connecticut Troops will leave us on the 25th of this month; of the remainder, three hundred are Minute-men, from Dutchess County, without arms; so that we shall then be reduced to about five hundred. I have indeed ordered Colonel Dayton to get the Third Battalion of New-Jersey Troops in readiness to march as soon as possible. But before I order him to march to this place, I must wait to know his destination from yourself or Congress. The battalions raising in this Province I know not the state of, but I believe they are backward in their recruiting, especially those in this quarter. Their Field-Officers are not yet appointed.

I most sincerely wish you were here, for when Brigadier-General Thompson arrives, he will be equally at a loss what to do until we have your particular orders. However, as I have General Lee's ideas about the fortifying this place, I shall pursue the plan as far as possible until I receive further orders.

A copy of your letter to General Lee is sent to the Convention of this Province, in order that they may co-operate with you in the preparations for the campaign in Canada. It is high time the General who is to command in that department was on his way to it.

By General Lee's directions I have engaged in New-Jersey two companies of carpenters, each consisting of one Captain, one Lieutenant, and twenty-five men, designed for Canada;* but as I observe you have fifty ready to go at a

*You are hereby authorized and empowered to raise and enlist a Company of Artificers in the service of the United Colonies, which company is to consist of twenty-five men, all of whom are to be good able house-carpenters, ship-carpenters, boat-builders, or wheel-wrights, whom you are to command as their Captain and foreman. They are to have the pay and allowance and are to be equipped as specified in the subjoined articles. They are to enter into pay from the day they arrive at New-York, and are marched and reviewed by order of the General, with an allowance of three days for arriving at that place.

You and they are to follow such orders or instructions as you shall receive from myself or the commanding General in the Province of New-York or in Canada.

Articles and conditions on which a Company of Artificers is to be raised in the service of the United Colonies by CALEB BRUEN, as Captain thereof.

The company is to consist of one Captain, who is to be paid at the rate of one dollar per day; one Lieutenant, at three-quarters of a dollar per day; and twenty-five good able house-carpenters, ship-carpenters, boat-builders, or wheel-wrights, at half a dollar per day. They are to moment's warning I shall detain them at this place till further orders. They can, in the mean time, be very well employed at this place in building platforms and barriers.

March 11.—Last night three gentlemen landed here from on board a packet from England. The advice they bring over is, that seven regiments of Foot, amounting to about four thousand men, were ready to sail from Cork about the 6th of January, bound to the Southern Colonies; that Great Britain had engaged four thousand Hanoverians and six thousand Hessians for the American war, and were in treaty for ten thousand Russians; that the French Ambassador had declared to the English Ministry that while the quarrel between Great Britain and her Colonies was carried on with their own forces, the King, his master, would not meddle with it; but that if any foreign aid was introduced, he would no longer be an idle spectator. They then had not heard in England that the French had any troops in their West-India Islands. I think this looks well for us.

I have the honour to be your most humble servant,
STIRLING.

To General Schuyler.

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 15, 1776.]

New-York, Sunday Evening, 10 o'clock, March 10, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have just had with me three gentlemen who have landed here this evening from on board a packet boat, arrived at Sandy-Hook from England in nine weeks. Two of them you are doubtless acquainted with, Mr. William Temple and Mr. Dennie, of Cambridge; the other is a Mr. Rickson, who has letters to several Members of Congress, and other gentlemen at Philadelphia. They are to set out for Philadelphia to-morrow morning, and will give you the particulars of the news they are possessed of. What I can gather from them is, that seven regiments, consisting of about four thousand men, commanded by Lord Cornwallis, were to sail from Cork about the 10th of January for the Southern Provinces, to be joined and commanded by General Clinton; and that no other British Troops were destined to this Continent; that four thousand Hanoverians and six thousand Hessians were engaged to come out, and in treaty for ten thousand Russians; that the French Ambassador on this had declared that his Court did not want to interfere between Great Britain and the Colonies while she made use of her own force, but that if foreign troops were employed they could not be idle spectators. The gentlemen also say, that when they left London it was not known that any French Troops were embarked for, or arrived at, the West-India Islands. They say that the mail is an immensely large one, and, I suspect, well stored with materials preparatory to the arrival of the Commissioners, who are reduced in number to twenty, and were to embark about the middle of January. Their commissions and instructions were not to be completed till after the second meeting of Parliament. This mail I shall have my eye on, and endeavour to prevent any of its contents being dispersed without passing through my hands.

The Eastern post is arrived this evening, but has not brought a letter from any place farther eastward than New-London. Mysterious. But I dare say all right.

General Lee has doubtless informed the Congress of our situation here. Our whole number is about one thousand seven hundred effectives; of these, about one thousand (the Connecticut Troops) will leave us on the twenty-fifth of find themselves in a sufficiency of carpenters, ship-wrights, and wheel-wrights' tools. They are also to provide themselves with a good firelock, bayonet, cartouch-box, and proper belts and blankets, and sufficient clothing, all at their own expense; and, when occasion requires it, are to act the part of soldiers in either attack or defence, as well as artificers. They are, while in the service, to receive the full allowance of provision and rum allowed to the other artificers in the Continental Army, and to be allowed necessary transportation for their baggage. They are to be at New-York as soon as possible, and to enter into pay from the time of being mustered and received there, with an allowance of three days for their arrival at that place. They are then to obey the general orders, either in the Provinces of New-York, New-Jersey, or Canada. When discharged they are to be allowed a reasonable time to reach their homes, which is to be fixed as at Newark in New-Jersey.

In witness whereof each man is to sign these articles, dated the fourth day of March, 1776.

CALEB BRUEN.

I do agree to raise another Company of Artificers of the same number, and on the like terms with the above, this month; of the remainder, about three hundred are New-York Minute-men, without arms. It will, therefore, be highly necessary to order several regiments to this place as soon as possible. It will employ six thousand men for at least two months to complete the works necessary at this place, its environs, and Long-Island. The four regiments raising in this Province, I believe, are very backward in their recruiting. We scarce hear of them. No Field-Officers yet fixed. Nor have I heard of a single company mustered; and, consequently, none of them have joined the Army.

JOSEPH LINSLEY.

I am, sir, with the highest regard and esteem, your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

BENJAMIN SMITH TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Edgartown, March 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have only time to inform your Honours that, on the seventh instant, I, with a detachment of my company, with some gentlemen of this town, in number all about forty, with a small vessel, employed for the purpose, engaged and took the Ship Harriet, Weymsee Orrok, master, storeship, from London, bound for Boston, laden with coal, porter, and potatoes; and have sent the mate, (the Captain being wounded in the engagement,) with fourteen mariners, by Lieutenant Shaw, and have directed him to deliver them to the honourable Council. I am endeavouring to secure the property, by getting the ship to the main; which, having perfected, shall give immediate attendance for further direction in the matter; and, in the interim, remain your Honours' most obedient humble servant,

BENJAMIN SMITH.

To the Honourable Gentlemen of the Council for the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, Watertown.

BERIAH NORTON TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Edgartown, March 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: These are to inform your Honours that, about five o'clock in the morning of the 6th of March instant, the Sloop Francis, William Furniwill, Prizemaster, was shipwrecked on the south side of the Island of Marta's Vineyard. Said sloop was taken by the Ship Phoenix, of the British Navy, about the 15th of December last, as said prizemaster says, and was the property of William Lowther, Esq., merchant in New-York, and bound for Boston, by the way of Newport. The sailors being taken into custody, and also the vessel and cargo, the Captain forthwith made information to me. I went to the wreck, and appointed Major Dogget to take an inventory of her cargo; which is as followeth: about fifty hogsheads of tobacco, one hundred and ninety barrels of turpentine, three and a half thousands of staves, twenty-four half hides, &c., and the men ordered under guard of the sea-coast men. The next morning there was information in town that there was a transport ship at anchor near Nantucket-Shoals. I was not in town myself till the afternoon, when I found there was about thirty-seven men gone off to engage the ship, with a small sloop. About twenty-three of our men were those of the sea-coast, under Captain Benjamin Smith, the rest were of the Militia. They engaged her, and, after a smart skirmish, the Captain of the ship being shot through the thigh, struck to our Yankee Sloop, and are brought into Old-Town harbour. The Captain is in a fair way of recovery. Her cargo is about one hundred chaldrons of coal, one hundred butts of porter, thirty hogsheads sourkrout, potatoes, and sundry other articles. The officers and seamen are ordered to Head-Quarters by the sea-coast Captain, under the care of Second Lieutenant James Shaw.

I shall not enlarge any further on this subject, as I expect to be at Court within fifteen days. I would just remind your Honours that the resolve for removing the restraint to our trade hath not been published, to my knowledge; and, as we have suffered by it already, I must humbly beg your Honours to have it published as soon as possible, several persons having been obliged to unload their vessels that were bound here, on that account. I have only to say that the two gentlemen, (the prizemaster abovesaid, and Mr. James Christie, passenger on board the ship,) have behaved themselves with honour while in this town.

From your Honour's most obedient and very humble servant,

BERIAH NORTON.

To the Honourable James Otis, Esq., President of the honourable Council at Watertown.

N. B. These certify your Honours that Captain Richard Whetten, a worthy gentleman, lately appointed Captain of the First Company of Militia in this regiment, had the command, in taking the ship, as master. Benjamin Smith, within named, as Captain. But I expect to be down soon.

Your humble servant,

BERIAH NORTON.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CAMBRIDGE TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED MARCH 10, 1776.

We were last night disappointed in an attempt made to possess ourselves of Nuke Hill. We were too much elated with the advantages lately gained, and, I must think, imprudently laid out the ground in the open day, and in the face of the enemy. They took the alarm, and, as soon as it was dark, began a very heavy cannonade, which was kept up on both sides, without intermission, until sunrise. As the fire of the enemy was principally directed to the spot we intended to intrench upon, our people were obliged to be drawn off after losing three or four men.

As we are so near the town, every shot from our batteries must take effect. The tumbling I could distinctly hear amongst the houses; some of which this morning exhibit the dreadful havoc made by our last night's work. If the enemy remain much longer, I am of opinion we shall leave very little for Mr. Howe to reek his vengeance on in that devoted city.

There is less appearance this day of their embarkation than has been for some days past. Their sick and wounded, their heavy baggage, and chief part of their heavy artillery, are, by every account we get, already on board; so that I believe we shall soon draw near to you, as New-York will probably be their destination. If that should be the case, your gallant associates will have an opportunity of showing their spirit. We are likely to have a warm night of it. If anything material happens, and I am left in the land of the living, you shall soon hear it.

By His Excellency WILLIAM HOWE, Major-General, &c., &c., &c.

As linen and woollen goods are articles much wanted by the Rebels, and would aid and assist them in their rebellion, the Commander-in-Chief expects that all good subjects will use their utmost endeavours to have all such articles conveyed from this place. Any who have not opportunity to convey their goods under their own care, may deliver them on board the Minerva, at Hubbard's Wharf, to Creon Brush, Esq.,* marked with their names; who will give a

* The following draft of a Letter was found among the Papers of CREON BRUSH, who was taken in his flight from BOSTON to HALIFAX, and is published, that the good people of these Colonies may see the unwearied attempts of our implacable enemies to enslave them.

SIR: The movement of the troops from Boston to Canada is the only measure which assures success in the reduction of America to due obedience, which, I trust, sir, you will remember to have been an observation of mine to you in February, 1765. From the frontiers of that Province, the troops can, with great facility, possess the interior fertile country, which forms the great object of Rebel resources, and, by throwing the disaffected inhabitants in crowds upon an already exhausted and almost barren sea-coast, and keeping them confined there, they must be reduced by famine without a blow, provided a proper fleet is stationed on the coast of the Atlantic, to harass them on that quarter, and prevent foreign succours. The rivers, lakes, and streams connected with, and contiguous to, the River St. Lawrence, must be the channels through which this desirable object is to be accomplished—the River Kennebeck, whose source is near that of the River Chaudiere, emptying into the St. Lawrence River a few miles above Quebeck; the Sago River, which separates the Province of New-Hampshire from the Province of Maine; the River Merrimack, rising about latitude 43°; the River Connecticut, whose source is in about latitude 46°, near the Lake De St. François, in the River St. Lawrence; Hudson's, Susquehanna, Delaware, and Ohio Rivers, with the lakes forming those rivers and streams issuing into them. Far on the banks of these lakes, rivers, and streams, are the fertile lands; and the whole settlements in the interior parts are chiefly formed on them. You will be pleased, sir, to excuse the liberty I have already taken, and indulge me until I have before you the method I would pursue in taking possession of any capital river; which, if it furnishes a hint which may facilitate the operations on any certificate of the delivery, and will oblige himself to return them to the owners, all unavoidable accidents excepted.

If, after this notice, any person secretes or keeps in his possession such articles, he will be treated as a favourer of Rebels.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CHARLESTOWN, SOUTH-CAROLINA, DATED MARCH 11, 1776.

The Good Intent, Captain William Baker, of twenty-three guns, and two hundred and forty men, fitted out at this place, fell in, on the 18th instant, about twenty leagues from hence, with six transports, and one of the King's sloop-of-war of fourteen guns; when, after a stout resistance, the sloop was obliged to sheer off. Four of the latter were taken by Captain Baker, and were brought in here this morning; they have on board provisions, clothing, ammunition, &c. The two other vessels, with the sloop, are supposed to be gone to Boston.

THOMAS DORSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Elk-Ridge Landing, March 11, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received yours of yesterday by express, and, agreeable to order, shall dismiss my battalion of Militia, who were in readiness at this place to march to any part of the Province that your Honours or the General should request.

It gives me the greatest satisfaction that my conduct, as well as the other gentlemen, officers, and Militia, under my command, meets with your approbation.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

THOMAS DORSEY.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

ELK-RIDGE COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee, March 11, 1776.

The Committee of Observation in the neighbourhood of Elk-Ridge, reflecting on the necessity of having the sum of about two hundred pounds lodged in their hands to defray the expenses of the Elk-Ridge Battalion, in case the exigencies of the Province shall, at any time, require their marching to a distance to repel a hostile invasion by the British forces, beg that you will send them the said sum of two hundred pounds by Mr. Samuel Godman, and the Committee of Elk-Ridge will be responsible for the same. The Committee have already advanced about fifty pounds for the support of the Elk-Ridge Battalion, after being called on to go to Baltimore Town.

Signed by order: THOMAS DORSEY, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety, of Maryland.

JOSEPH GALLOWAY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

March 11, 1776, Seven o'clock, P. M.

GENTLEMEN: By the order of Colonel Weems, I am to inform you that the alarm given by Captain Chew is without the least foundation. The sloop-of-war and her tenders are at least fifteen miles below Fishing-Creek. Captain Chew discharged his company at twelve o'clock last night, after being other, I should esteem myself very happy. The plan I would lay down relates only to the River Connecticut—an object of the greatest consequence, as it forms the granary of Massachusetts-Bay and Connecticut. And I request you may believe, that what I advance is not founded on mere speculative knowledge, founded on maps, but from the actual experience of many years traversing that river, from its mouth to latitude 45°, where I had an opportunity of thoroughly inspecting its falls. On supposition, therefore, that the body of Regulars on this expedition consists of one thousand five hundred men, the like number of Canadians, and one hundred Indians, with arms and ammunition, and six small field-pieces, the whole to proceed together from Quebeck to Lake De St. François, with about one hundred and fifty horses, or more, if possible, and birch canoes sufficient to carry such provisions and light baggage as may be necessary, the distance from the Lake De St. François to the source of Connecticut River may be about six days' march; and in this the whole difficulty consists. However, the Canadians, who are good axe-men, covered by an advanced party, and Indian guides, might cut out such fallen timber as may lay across the path, and fill up such gulleys with logs and earth as would otherwise obstruct the march of the artillery. Immediately on entering the settled townships on Connecticut River, a printed paper, to the purport or effect following, might be distributed. [Here the letter ends.]

very much tired with their march from South-River, and down again. They are now under arms a little below Fishing-Creek, and will continue so till they are gone below Pattuxent.

Captain Makall's Company are ten miles below, and the alarm is all through Calvert that they are on their way down. They weighed about twelve o'clock, and came to again about four in the afternoon, as the wind was directly ahead.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient, humble servant,

JOSEPH GALLOWAY.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

Annapolis, March 11, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We received intelligence by our pilot-boats on Tuesday evening, that a ship-of-war and two tenders were under sail, on their way up the bay; and immediately issued our orders for their reception, which were observed with amazing expedition and punctuality. We are much indebted to the spirited, active, and good conduct of the regular officers and troops. The Militia moved with astonishing despatch; and as soon as the vessels hove in sight, our coast was lined with men. At Baltimore, the celerity of their movements exceeded description, and had very nearly proved more advantageous than they really have, for it was expected by the vessels, (the Otter of sixteen guns, a tender of six guns, and the other with swivels only,) that the ship Defence was altogether unprepared; which led them to conceive themselves in a state of security, which had like to have been attended with consequences very disagreeable to them.

The residue of our guns for the ship arrived only on Wednesday night, and on Thursday morning were mounted. On Friday night she was towed a little way down the river, and manned with a parcel of buckskin heroes, and other brave fellows. Several small vessels were crowded with men to assist in case of an engagement; which would have been dreadful, as we understand Captain Nicholson intended to grapple at once. She got under way very early in the morning, resolved to retake Hudson's ship, and engage the Otter, (which was four or five miles below,) if she proved to her relief. Hudson's vessel was guarded by the tenders. The morning was thick and hazy, and the Defence got nearer to them before she was discovered than was agreeable to them. They were much alarmed, (not having any idea our ship was in readiness to venture out,) and pushed off with the utmost expedition, leaving the ship and four or five small vessels, which had fallen into their hands. The tenders would probably have been taken, if the Otter, receiving a single gun, had not sent off men to double man their oars. The Defence stretched backward and forward below her prizes, and at length, seeing the Otter get under way, came to close by Hudson's vessel, and prepared for battle, expecting she was coming up to her; but, to the amazement of our brave countrymen, she bore away and anchored in the afternoon off Annapolis. Nicholson continued his station, thinking it imprudent to risk an action, as he had such a valuable prize under his care.

In the evening a flag was sent in. The gentlemen behaved very politely, and on some subjects were free and communicative. They know everything which is transacted here and to the northward. The flag brought a letter to the Governour, from Captain Squire, commander of the Otter, desiring provision for the sloop, and that a tender might be permitted, unmolested, to take a New-England sloop, loaded with bread and flour, which we had sent up the Severn. The Governour laid that letter before us. We refused a supply of provisions, and took no notice of that part of the letter which related to the New-England vessel, thinking it rather an insult; but ordered a guard of about fifty men to be immediately put over her.

We received two other flags in the morning—one of them for our answer, and the other with prisoners; who say they were treated with the greatest humanity and tenderness. The Otter and her tenders, with some prize vessels, sailed down the bay yesterday. But we expect they will return again soon, reinforced; as, from what we can collect, they are bent upon taking or destroying the Defence. Five thousand seven hundred and eighty-two pounds of powder is arrived in the Potomack, and safely landed at Bladensburg. You shall have a full state of facts relative to our late interesting situation, by the next post. This we give you in a hurry.

We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

TO THE PEOPLE OF NORTH-AMERICA ON THE DIFFERENT KINDS OF GOVERNMENT.

I beg leave to lay before you such objects as, if properly attended to, will enable you to secure that to your offspring, for which you at present contend, and put it out of the power of any set of men, however cunning and ambitious, to rise into power and importance at your expense. The subject which I propose to discuss, however ill qualified, is of very great consequence to America; it being impossible to make the best of our present advantages, unless old prejudices are effectually removed.

I wish it to be examined with care, and received with impartiality; as truth is my object, and the happiness of mankind, without regard to sect, party, province, or district, the end of my labour.

Pure Monarchy is that form of Government which is framed for the exaltation of the Prince alone, and his interest and grandeur are of primary consideration; the people are only of consequence so far as their welfare is involved in his. The grand monarch is the only being known to the Constitution; who, like the Divinity, (pardon the comparison,) derives every power from himself; from whom the other members of the community derive every privilege they possess, and on whose will they depend for their continuance. Aristocracy divides all the privileges of the State among the grandees of the nation; and constituting them the sole legislators and executors, lodges all power in their hands. Oligarchy distributes the powers of Government into a few hands, who are generally the leaders of so many factions, which exist in the State. In all these forms the people are but of small, if of any consideration; and the farther they diverge from pure Monarchy, the more intolerable they become. Popular Government—sometimes termed Democracy, Republick, or Commonwealth—is the plan of civil society wherein the community at large takes the care of its own welfare, and manages its concerns by representatives elected by the people out of their own body.

Seeing the happiness of the people is the true end of Government; and it appearing by the definition, that the popular form is the only one which has this for its object; it may be worth inquiring into the causes which have prevented its success in the world. In this inquiry it would ill become us to sit down contented with the accounts given by Royal ambassadors, or men of ambition, who can never arrive to the height they aspire to in a Republick. With such men, it is impossible for a Commonwealth to confer happiness on its members. Were they honestly to investigate the subject, perhaps they would alter their opinions. The necessity of mutual defence first gave rise to social connections, which were, consequently, of the military kind. Thus very great distinctions between the members of the same community were incorporated into the very Constitution of the State, and formed an insuperable obstacle to a perfect Republick. Every nation which has hitherto attempted to set up a Republick, entered on the measure too late. They were the convulsed remains of some Government erected upon military principles; and finding it hard to content those with the simple rights of freemen who were once possessed of all power, they too easily gave way to claims of a superior nature, whereby they admitted an interest separate and distinct from, and inconsistent with, the general welfare of the people. This interest forever clashing with that of the community, produced continual confusions, until the people, wearied out with the struggle, gave up to the aristocratical party, or blindly following some popular leader, in confidence of his attachment to their interest, gave all power into his hands, which generally ended in tyranny.

The inexperience of mankind was another cause of the decay of popular Governments. Being unacquainted with legislative representation, established on the principles of a free, uninfluenced, and general election, they met in large, and, consequently, tumultuous assemblies. This gave ambitious and designing men, to whom such a form of Government is always unfavourable, great opportunities of breeding disturbance, and creating factions, which generally terminate in its dissolution. Besides this manner of conducting publick affairs, not suiting extensive dominion, the privileges of the society were continually confined to the precincts of the capital; and as soon as their territories extended beyond these bounds, slavery took place; which, inducing the necessity of standing armies, laid a foundation for overturning itself. The feuds and animosities attendant on this mode of managing publick affairs, gave great opportunities to those whose ambitious designs were incompatible with the good of the society, to bring it into dislike and contempt. Far from trying to remedy any defects in the system, or to put an end to factions and disturbances, they used their utmost abilities and cunning to heighten the old, or excite new; until the minds of the people were so torn to pieces and worn out by feuds and confusions, that they were ready to submit to anything which could relieve them from their unhappy situation. Then artfully charging the troubles themselves had occasioned to the fault of the Constitution, they easily obtained such a change in its form as was more favourable to their designs.

Political writers, either mistaking the true causes of the uneasinesses which are found in ancient popular Governments, or willing to make court to Princes, have greatly contributed to bring the Republican forms of Government into discredit. This has been carried to such a length with many, that the mentioning a Democracy constantly excites in them the idea of anarchy; and few, except such as have emancipated themselves from the shackles of political bigotry and prejudice, can talk of it with patience, and hearken to anything offered in its defence.

One or all of the foregoing causes have, to one time or other, contributed to the destruction of Republicks; but of all others, the first has done most. Where two or more separate interests exist in a Government, there contention will remain until one becomes master. A nation must consist of all Kings, all nobles, or all simple freemen, to prevent such confusions, and preserve its privileges. Every attentive reader of history must perceive this. The history of the Roman Commonwealth, abating for its foreign wars, is little else but a relation of feuds, factions, and animosities, occasioned by the existence of a rank of nobles, whose interest was unconnected with the plebeians. They formed schemes, and adopted plans, to balance the powers, and reconcile the interests of these two ranks. But all to no purpose; tyranny at last destroyed them both. The irreconcilableness of these two interests did more to prevent the formation of a Republic in Great Britain, than all the ambition of a Cromwell; and, if I mistake not, Ludlow, in his Memoirs, charges its failure to this cause alone. Where no King is, that body must enjoy his power, or be annihilated: they must and will hang together. To a man of reflection, this will readily appear, and fully explain the reasons why a Parliament that dethroned a King, voted a House of Lords useless. They will be an everlasting plague to the society which has not a King; for they will always be aiming at kingly authority. And where there is a King, their dignity and consequence will flow from him, and they will be his tools, if he makes no attack on their peculiar privileges.

Two or more distinct interests can never exist in society, without finally destroying the liberties of the people. The best plans will fail in accomplishing this, until mankind shall have learned to do to others as they would be done unto. The whole wisdom of the British nation, at a time when its virtue and wisdom was at the highest, exerted its utmost efforts to form a perfect plan of political freedom, and to preserve and secure the rights of the three distinct classes, of King, Lords, and Commons; and it was thought they had effected it; but later experience has proved the contrary. The Crown of Great Britain is now as absolute in the legislature as the Crown of France, and were it not for the Habeas Corpus Act, and Trial by Jury, the consequences of offending it would be full as fatal.

Kings and nobles are artificial beings, for whose emolument civil society was never intended; and notwithstanding they have had the good fortune to escape general censure from the world, yet I will boldly affirm that nine-tenths of all the publick calamities which ever befell mankind, were brought on by their means. The protest which the Almighty entered against Kings, when the Jews demanded one, shows in what estimation they are held by the Divinity. Point me out the King that does not verify the description, and I will begin to suspect the divinity of the Bible. Wicked Kings and Governours make up the history of the Old Testament, and the chief part of the labour of the Prophets was to keep them within bounds. It is thought to be vastly in favour of Kings, that we are commanded to pray for them; but if the nature or design of prayer were attended to, it would certainly make against them. If the wickedest of men stand most in need of prayers, it is no wonder that so many clergymen are continually sending up petitions for Kings; but it is certainly much against them that all these prayers do them so little good.

Mankind never suffered so much during the existence of a Republick as they have suffered in the short reigns of many Kings. A Harry VIII. did more mischief to his subjects than any Republick ever did to its members, notwithstanding they were so illy constituted. But the true principles of republicanism are at present so well understood, and the mode of conducting such a Government so simple and easy, and America so fit for its reception, that a dozen of wise heads and honest hearts might, in one day, form a plan for the United Colonies which would as much excel any one now existing, as the British Constitution does that of Caffraria.

When I seriously consider this, and take a survey of the state of civil Government throughout the world, the modes whereby they acquired their present forms, and the causes which gave rise to them, I cannot help cherishing a secret hope that God has destined America to form the last and best plan that can possibly exist; and that he will gradually carry those who have long been under the galling yoke of tyranny in every other quarter of the globe, into the bosom of perfect liberty and freedom in America. Were the great men of the present day, and all those who choose to interfere in publick affairs, only to set before them the Godlike pleasure of conferring the most lasting and complete state of happiness human nature is capable of, in a state of civil society, on millions yet unborn, and the eternal reward which must attend the doing so much good; I cannot help thinking but contracted views, partial interest, and party factions, would sink under, and yield to considerations of so greatly superior a nature.

Few opportunities have ever been offered to mankind of framing an entire Constitution of Government, upon equitable principles. All modern authors on this subject agree, that mankind are entitled to freedom by birth, and that they are independent of, and on a level with, each other when they enter into society. This being the case, it is evident that where great distinctions exist in a community before its Constitution is formed, its members do not enter on equally advantageous terms; and it will be difficult, if not impossible to frame an equitable plan. Rome had her Patres, and Patres Conscripti, before she attempted it; and the consequence was, an eternal clashing of interest, which kept their Constitution so fluctuating, that they never could be said to have anything permanent, but their hatred to Kings; and this was the only stable principle which preserved the Commonwealth as long as it lasted.

Whenever any rank in society is invested with more than an equal share of the privileges and powers of that society, it must be at the expense of the other ranks. Men, naturally on a level, ought to remain so by the constitution of the society, if they will secure the liberty and welfare of the community, and every civil and necessary distinction, as that of legislator and magistrate; and the other civil officers should be so settled as never to remain long in one family, otherwise it will end in the enslaving of that people. All natural distinctions—such as weak and strong, wise and foolish; and every accidental or adventitious one—such as learned or unlearned, rich and poor; may safely exist in the community, without interrupting its peace and felicity; but every family distinction which a society creates, will finally prove destructive to that society. Princes of the blood, Princes of the empire, and Peers of the realm, ever have been, are now, and ever will be, the convenient and necessary tools of Royal tyrants, scattered up and down the community, for the more ready accomplishing his will who created them. All political distinctions ought to be the gift of the free people at large, and continually to revert to them at the end of the political year, to be renewed or otherwise, as they shall think proper.

Almost every civil Constitution now existing in the world is partly the spurious offspring of some former very defective one. Perhaps America is the only country in the world wholly free from all political impediments, at the very time they are under the necessity of framing a civil Constitution. Having no rank above that of freemen, she has but one interest to consult, and that interest, (blessed be God for it,) is the true and only interest of men as members of society.

SALUS POPULI.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, March 11, 1776.

SIR: Since my last, I have had the honour of receiving your letter of the 9th of February. The Congress have not yet come to any resolutions on your former letters.

The design of this is only to desire you to send Captain Morgan Connor, of the Rifle Battalion, to Philadelphia, the Congress having occasion to employ him in the Southern Department.

The Congress having promoted Edward Hand, Esq., to be Colonel of the Rifle Battalion, in the room of Colonel Thompson, whom they advanced to the rank of Brigadier-General; and James Chambers, Esquire, to be Lieutenant-Colonel of the same; I have forwarded their commissions accordingly.

I have the honour to be, with much esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL LEE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, March 11, 1776.

SIR: I beg leave to inform the Congress of my arrival, in consequence of their orders; and shall be happy if you will instruct me when, and in what manner I am to pay my respects to them, in order to receive their further commands.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, March 11, 1776.

SIR: The Congress have appointed three Commissioners to go to Canada, of which number I have the honour to be one. We purpose setting out one day this week. I take the liberty of mentioning this, as possibly a little previous notice may enable you more easily to make any preparation you shall judge necessary to facilitate and expedite our journey, which I am sure you will be kindly disposed to do for us.

A friend with us will make our company four, besides our servants. We shall either go in carriages directly to Albany, or by water, if the river is open, from New-York.

Hoping soon for the pleasure of seeing you, I now only add that I am, with the sincerest respect and esteem, sir, &c.,

B. FRANKLIN.

To General Schuyler.

P. S. The bearer, M. La Jennesse, has been considered by the Congress as a friend to the American cause, and he is recommended to your protection on his return to Canada.

B. F.

LORD STIRLING TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, March 11, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: General Lee left this place on Thursday evening last for Philadelphia, in his way for Virginia, where he is to command. This has thrown a heavy load on my shoulders, and very unexpectedly; but I am like soon to be relieved from it, as I hear Brigadier-General Thompson is to be here in a day or two.

The sudden departure of the post prevents my saying anything at present relative to the situation of this place; and will only inform you that, last night, three gentlemen landed here from on board a packet, nine weeks out from Falmouth. They say that seven regiments of Foot, amounting to about four thousand men, were embarked and ready to sail from Cork about the 6th of January, bound to the Southern Colonies. That Great Britain had engaged four thousand Hanoverians and six thousand Hessians, for the American service, and were in treaty for ten thousand Russians. That the French Ambassador at London had declared to the English Ministry, that his master did not mean to meddle with the quarrel between Great Britain and her Colonies, while it was carried on with its own force; but that he could not be an idle spectator if any foreign aid was made use of. (It was not then known in London, that the French had any troops in the West-India Islands.) That it was not likely any more British Troops would be sent out, for they had them not to spare.

If these things should be true, I am in hopes we shall have an easy summer's work to secure the whole Continent. The Commissioners, whose number is reduced to twenty, were to embark about the middle of January. It was said that they were to endeavour to treat with the Assemblies of Colonies separately, if possible; and even to retail out corruption to single towns or families; but if this could not succeed, they were to swallow the bitter pill, and treat with Congress.

Adieu, my dear General; the post waits. But yet, present my best regards to Mrs. Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Custis, Palfrey, &c.; and am, with the highest esteem and regard, your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To General Washington.

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, March 11, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Having been informed that Mr. Curtenius has applied to Congress for further proposals being made by both him and me, on a supposition that I had not attended to the tenor of the advertisement, I think it necessary to acquaint you what motives induced me to form that part of my offer which proposes that all expense of transportation be paid by the publick. I requested the favour of Mr. Lott to ask the Congress some questions that I thought absolutely necessary, which I delivered to him in writing. One of the questions was, "Where are the troops to be stationed?" The answer delivered to me, also in writing, was, "Wherever the General pleases." I could not, therefore, as a person possessed of the least degree of prudence, attempt to make any other proposals on that head than I did, at least within the bounds of moderation.

I am pretty well assured that Mr. Curtenius knew from Congress that the troops were to be stationed in New-York, King's County, and the Highlands. I therefore cannot but think that the Congress will readily consider my proposals the most reasonable, as the expense of transportation to those places cannot possibly exceed one half-penny per ration. I have the answers to the questions to Mr. Lott ready to produce to the Congress should they think proper to see them.

I thank the Congress for their kindness in appointing me Commissary of Provisions. When I engaged in that business, I understood that, while I remained in office, I was to transact all affairs in that department; and as I have lately understood that some other person has been employed to furnish what properly came within the line of my duty, and nothing left for me to transact but such business as, in all probability, many would refuse, I find it will answer no purpose to continue in that office. I therefore apprise the Congress that I do decline serving as Commissary. And lest the publick service should be impeded by my resignation, I will serve provision as usual, to supply the troops, this week, and shall be ready to deliver the provision, &c., to whoever the Congress shall please to appoint.

I have ordered my accounts to be made out, and am ready for an immediate settlement. I cannot conclude without declaring to Congress that the post I now resign was not at all solicited by me, and sincerely wish the appointment of a person who will give more satisfaction.

I am, with respect, your very humble servant,

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON.

To the New-York Congress.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Prospect-Hill, March 11, 1776.

SIR: Major Cudworth, lately discharged from Colonel Whetcomb's Regiment, has arrived, to join Colonel Bond's. He is agreeable to the Field-Officers, and satisfactory to the Captains and subalterns. The Major is a good, prudent officer, and left the former regiment only because there was not proper order and discipline maintained in it. I esteem him worthy the appointment; and if your Excellency's sentiments correspond with mine, should be glad he might receive an appointment to fill the vacancy in Colonel Bond's Regiment.

I am, with profound respect, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

NATHANIEL GREENE.

To General Washington.

TALBOT COUNTY COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee, Talbot County, March 12, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: It appearing to this Committee that it was the intention of the last Convention that non-enrollers should, previous to the 1st of this month, be informed of the alternative given them; and the proceedings of that Convention not being come to their hands until the 3d instant, (on which day they, by advertisement, gave public notice of the rule,) they conceive it would be extremely rigorous, and contrary to the sense, though agreeable to the letter of the resolve of Convention, to proceed immediately to levy fines on and compel the delivery of the arms of such non-enrollers. They therefore pray your advice in the premises with all convenient speed.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants.

By order:

JAMES LLOYD CHAMBERLAINE, Chairman.To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

JOHN McLURE AND JOHN E. HOWARD TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, March 12, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Being appointed by the Committee of Baltimore County to procure wagons to bring the arms from Philadelphia to your city, we now send you eight boxes of arms, and ten reams of cartridge-paper. We have an order for a ton of lead, which please to return by them.

We are, most respectfully, gentlemen, your obliged and obedient servants,

JOHN McLURE,
JOHN E. HOWARD.To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO TALBOT COUNTY COMMITTEE.

Annapolis, March 12, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Alexander Wickham was apprehended and brought before us yesterday, in consequence of a letter from Mr. Samuel Sharpe to Messrs. Wallace and Davidson, setting forth that the said Wickham was a person inimical to the liberties of this country, and was suspected of being on his way to Lord Dunmore. As the trial of Wickham before our Board would, at this time, interfere with business of great importance to the Province, and as the witnesses on both sides reside on the Eastern Shore, we have thought proper to send him, under the custody of Lieutenant Frazer, to your Committee, in order that you may try and determine the truth of the offence laid to his charge. You will therefore proceed to make the proper inquiry into this matter, and conduct yourselves therein as you shall judge most conducive to the publick good.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Talbot County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

[No. 54.]

Annapolis, March 12, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have impatiently expected information from your town of the arrival of the gunpowder and arms from Philadelphia; and having no regular intelligence from you, do not know they are safe, although we hear they are arrived. We request, if they are, you will secure the powder in the best manner, and immediately send down the arms in wagons, with what cartouch-boxes, belts, and gunslings can be spared, under a guard to this city.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAINS HENRY AND KENT.

Annapolis, March 12, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have received your favour of the 28th February, communicating the agreeable information that our letter of the 14th had given much satisfaction to you and your respective companies, and also that you had arrived at your station, after a long and fatiguing march, in good health and spirits; and are sorry it is not in our power to make provision for those gentlemen who, at your request, attended you in the character of physicians; however, we assure you we will represent the matter to the next Convention, and do not doubt they will take it into consideration, and compensate them for their trouble, and the services they may render. We will supply you, by the first safe opportunity, with what money we apprehend may be sufficient to defray the expenses of your march up, and furnish you with the Continental Regulations relative to wages and rations, as soon as we can procure them.

The assurances you give us, that you will endeavour to render all the satisfaction you can to the inhabitants of Northampton County, are very agreeable, as we are fully confident you will act correspondently to your profession, which will redound much to the honour of your Province, and reflect deserved encomiums on yourselves.

We are, &c.

To Captains Henry and Kent.

Baltimore, March 12, 1776.

To the Publick in general, and the Ladies in particular.

Our repose, which we have hitherto enjoyed in a preference to our neighbouring Colonies, is at last disturbed; and we are now called forth to our defence. The alacrity with which our brave countrymen assemble, and the determination to fight visible in every countenance, demonstrate that, if the enemy should be hardy enough to encounter them, we have reason to expect some wounds. The necessity of taking all imaginable care of those who may happen to be wounded in the country's cause, urges us to address our humane Ladies, to lend us their kind assistance in furnishing us with linen rags and old sheeting, for bandages, &c., &c., to be delivered to either Dr. Weisenthall, Dr. Boyd, Dr. Craddock, or any member of the Committee.

It is recommended to all the Printers in this Province to publish the above.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA TO A GENTLEMAN IN ENGLAND, DATED MARCH 12, 1776.

No doubt you feel anxious for your country, and will be pleased to hear how matters stand on this side of the water. I shall, therefore, begin to the northward, with Quebeck. The whole Province, except the city, submitted to the Continental Arms, under the brave General Montgomery, before the 1st of December; and, notwithstanding the severe climate, he marched with his men to join Colonel Arnold at Quebeck, before which he lay till near the last; when the time of many of his soldiers being expired, he resolved on an attack, in which he fell, as you will see by the papers. Since which, our people have kept up the blockade of the town with about five hundred men. The hardship those men have gone through is hardly credible, and too long for this letter. When the news of Montgomery's fall and defeat reached the other Colonies, it did not damp their spirits, but raised them. The Congress voted more regiments, which were immediately raised; and in two months from this defeat, two thousand new-raised troops joined General Arnold before Quebeck; and by the middle or latter end of March, that army will amount to five or six thousand men, when Quebeck will be again attempted. Boston is still in the hands of Howe; but we are in hourly expectation of hearing of their flight, as General Washington was to begin to cannonade it last week. We have two thousand men before it, and plenty of stores, which have arrived here this winter, the want of which has hitherto prevented our doing anything. The frequent threats of Ministerialists, and the late arrival of Clinton at New-York, have put that Province in a warlike posture. The women, children, and most of their valuable effects, are removed into the country; the town possessed and fortified by batteries and breastworks, and five thousand men who are constantly at work; so that in a short time it will be very strong. There are also fifteen or twenty thousand men ready to go to their assistance on a very short notice; so that every hour after the first twenty-four of any alarm will produce hundreds of well-armed men.

Rhode-Island is pestered by Wallace and his ships, who hardly ever lands but he loses more or less of his men. He carries on the war in a very piratical manner. Every now and then he lands to steal sheep, &c., at which time, if he can, he burns houses, and murders the helpless, not daring to wait; and as soon as he sees any of our armed men coming, he flies.

Pennsylvania is still unattacked, but preparing for the worst. Our river is defended by chevaux-de-frise sunk in the channel, (on which no less than three vessels have been sunk by carelessness of pilots;) a very large and strong chain; a battery; a twenty-gun ship; a large floating-battery, to carry twenty eighteen-pounders; and thirteen row-galleys, with an eighteen-pounder in their bows, and fifty men properly provided for in each; three battalions of Regulars; and from thirty to forty thousand Militia.

Nothing has happened in Virginia since the entire destruction of Norfolk; but they are there, as well as in North and South-Carolina, preparing for the most vigorous defence, and, by the month of April, will have thirty or forty thousand men ready to take the field, all which will act jointly or separately, as exigencies may require. Amongst these are a great number of riflemen. But where are your resources? say you. Money we have sufficient. By our industry abroad, we have got safely landed in different parts of this Continent (notwithstanding the low arts of the Ministry, and all their men-of-war) upwards of one hundred tons of powder, one hundred and fifty tons of saltpetre, and a large quantity of small-arms, which will supply us for the first part of the campaign. For the other, we expect to be under no obligations to any State on earth for the stores, &c.

At New-York we have a foundry, who has already cast fourteen or fifteen excellent brass field-pieces. We have a foundry for iron ordnance, from twenty-four-pounders to swivels. As to iron shot, we have plenty, and, on a pinch, could supply the whole world; and as for small-arms, we are not at the least loss, except for the locks, in which branch there will soon be a great number of hands employed. The means made use of to introduce the manufacture of saltpetre have met with the desired success; so that the women make it in many parts of the country. From the various accounts, we shall, by midsummer, have thirty or forty tons, or more, of our own manufacture. In one manufactory, they make fifty hundred weight per week. At Newbury, in New-England, they make at least one hundred pounds per day; in short, it is now as easy to make saltpetre as it is to make soft-soap.* As to brimstone and lead, the bowels of our country produce more than sufficient for a war of one thousand years.

In a short time we shall have at least thirty ships-of-war, from thirty-eight guns downwards, besides (if the Ministry carry on their piratical war) a great number of privateers. When you return, you will be surprised to see what the Mother of Invention has done for us. I really believe, if we are harassed for one year more, we shall not want anything from Europe.

The Ministry have often unjustly accused us of looking after independency; but what they pretend to "dread, their measures will, in a short time, bring forth." "Common-Sense," which I herewith send you, is read by all ranks; and, as many as read, so many become converted; though, perhaps, the "hour before were most violent against the least idea of independence." This summer's campaign will, I make no doubt, set "us free from the shackles of education;" and the King of Britain, instead of being the idol of Americans, will be of little more importance here than to frighten little children.

You will see by the papers that our people have opened their batteries on Boston, "which is destined to the flames." I wish I could convey to you a small idea of the ardour which inflames our young men, who turn out with more alacrity, on the least alarm, than they would to a ball.

I am yours, &c.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.—LETTER II.

As I propose to take my subjects as they rise out of the times, I shall leave to my next letter the further defence of our Assembly, to give room for a matter of very great importance, agreeable to what was hinted in the conclusion of my first letter.

The account which we have already received of Commissioners being appointed in England, and ready to embark for America, in order to negotiate a settlement of the present unhappy differences, has engaged the attention, and exercised the speculations of many among us. The powers with which they are to be invested, the manner in which they are to be received, how they are to be treated with, or whether they are to be treated with at all, have been canvassed agreeably to the different views or judgments of individuals.

Among others, a writer under the name of Cassandra, in the Pennsylvania Evening Post of last Saturday week, has held forth sentiments which I conceive highly disgraceful to America, and pernicious to society in general. He pretends to have satisfied himself (but upon what grounds I know not) that the sole view of the Administration in this commission is, to amuse and deceive—to bribe and corrupt us. And because he supposes all of us so very corruptible, he proposes, by way of prevention, to seize the Commissioners upon their first setting foot on shore, and bring them immediately, under a strong guard, to the Congress. I have too good an opinion of the virtue and good sense of my countrymen, to think they will pay any other regard to this advice than to consider the author as an enthusiast or madman.

The contest in which we are engaged is founded on the most noble and virtuous principles which can animate the mind of man. We are contending, at the risk of our lives and fortunes, against an arbitrary Ministry for the rights of Englishmen. The eyes of all Europe are upon us, and every generous bosom in which the pulse of liberty yet beats, sympathises with us, and is interested in our success. Our cause, therefore, being the cause of virtue, it will be expected that all our steps should be guided by it, and that, where the stock is so fair, the fruit will be proportionably perfect. Let us not disappoint these sanguine expectations by the smallest deviation from those liberal and enlarged sentiments which should mark the conduct of freemen; and, when the faithful historick page shall record the events of this glorious struggle, may not a single line in the bright annals be stained by the recital of a disgraceful action, nor future Americans have cause to blush for the failings of their ancestors.

I trust that there is not such another barbarian among us as Cassandra. I am sure there are none such among our savage neighbours. To what is it that he would persuade us? To receive with contempt, and treat with insult, men commissioned to negotiate with us about matters of the highest concern to America, and at least professing peace—persons clothed with the character of Ambassadors, which has been uniformly esteemed sacred by every nation and in every age!

Can a precedent be produced in any country, or at any period, which could be proposed for our imitation, or give countenance to such a proceeding? Let this writer turn over the volumes which establish the principles of the Law of Nations. Let him search the history of every State, both ancient and modern, civilized and uncivilized. He will find none so fierce and rude as not to reverence the rights of Ambassadors, and consider any insult of their persons as the grossest outrage that could be committed. Nay, let him inquire among the numerous tribes of Indians that surround our frontiers for some example to countenance him in his proposal. These untutored savages would startle at the question, and wonder that there could be a person so ignorant as not to know that publick messengers, with the calumet in their hands, are entitled to audience, respect, and hospitality. And shall Americans, glorying in their attachment to the rights of humanity, be the first to violate obligations which have been thus universally held sacred? No! Let us never give that advantage to those who have been striving to excite the indignation of mankind against us as faithless people, ferocious, barbarous, and uninfluenced by those humane sentiments and finer feelings which, in modern times, have, in some measure, softened the horrors of war. We know that such a charge is as malicious as it is groundless. Instances enough might be produced to refute it, since this contest was carried on by arms; and I trust no future ones will be found which might have a tendency to support it.

As we have long professed an ardent desire for peace, let us meet those who bring the terms, with that virtuous confidence which is inseparable from an upright conduct. Let us hear their proposals with patience, and consider them with candour; remembering how deeply the happiness of millions may be concerned in the issue. If what they offer be such as freemen ought to accept, my voice shall be for an immediate reconciliation, as I know of no object so worthy of a patriot as the healing our wounds, and the restoring of peace, if it has for its basis an effectual security for the liberties of America. If, on the contrary, the terms which may be offered should be such as we cannot accept, we have only to say so, and the negotiation will be at an end.

But this writer is greatly concerned for our virtue, lest we should be cajoled, deceived, and corrupted. I confess these fears appear to me so groundless, that I suspect their reality. Is it possible, in good earnest, to entertain so ill an opinion of those who have staked their lives and fortunes on this contest, as to believe that they will suffer themselves to be flattered out of their liberties, or induced to sell their birthright for a mess of pottage?

When I consider that this treaty is to be managed, on the part of America, by men delegated for their integrity and abilities by the voice of their country, I feel myself quite easy on that score. If the scheme of the Ministry be to try the arts of corruption where their arms cannot prevail, there are other and less suspicious ways of carrying it into execution than by Commissioners in the face of America, where they will have the eyes of all fixed upon them, and their conduct diligently watched and severely scrutinized.

Upon the whole, it appears that this writer is more an enemy to the business on which the Commissioners are to be sent, than really apprehensive for our virtue. He seems to have drank deep of the cup of Independence; to be inimical to whatever carries the appearance of peace; and too ready to sacrifice the happiness of a great Continent to his favourite plan. Among such writers, I pretend not to class myself; for I am bold to declare, and hope yet to make it evident to every honest man, that the true interest of America lies in reconciliation with Great Britain upon constitutional principles; and I can truly say, I wish it upon no other terms.

Why the many publications in favour of Independency (with which our presses have lately groaned) have passed hitherto unnoticed, I am not able to determine. But there are certainly times when publick affairs become so interesting, that every man becomes a debtor to the community for his opinions, either in speaking or writing. Perhaps it was thought best, where an appeal was pretended to be made to the common sense of this country, to leave the people for a while to the free exercise of that good understanding which they are known to possess. Those who made the appeal have little cause to triumph in its success. Of this they seem sensible; and, like true quacks, are constantly pestering us with their additional doses, till the stomachs of their patients begin wholly to revolt. If little notice has yet been taken of the publications concerning Independence, it is neither owing to the popularity of the doctrine, the unanswerable nature of the arguments, nor the fear of opposing them, as the vanity of the authors would suggest. I am confident that nine-tenths of the people of Pennsylvania yet abhor the doctrine.

If we look back to the origin of the present controversy, it will appear that some among us at least have been constantly enlarging their views, and stretching them beyond their first bounds, till at length they have wholly changed their ground. From the claim of Parliament to tax us, sprung the first resistance on our part. Before that unjust claim was set on foot, not an individual, not one of all the profound legislators with which this country abounds, ever held out the idea of Independence. We considered our connection with Great Britain as our chief happiness—we flourished, and grew rich and populous, to a degree not to be paralleled in history. Let us then act the part of skillful physicians, and wisely adapt the remedy to the evil.

Possibly some men may have harboured the idea of Independence from the beginning of this controversy. Indeed, it was strongly suspected there were individuals whose views tended that way; but as the scheme was not sufficiently ripened, it was reckoned slanderous, inimical to America, and what not, to intimate the least suspicion of this kind.

Nor have many weeks yet elapsed since the first open proposition for Independence was published to the world. By what men of consequence this scheme is supported, or whether by any, may possibly be the subject of future inquiry. Certainly it has no countenance from the Congress, to whose sentiments we look up with reverence. On the contrary, it is directly repugnant to every declaration of that respectable body. It would be needless to quote particular passages in proof of this, as they are to be met with in almost every page of their proceedings. I will refer to a few only, viz: their Resolves, March 5, 1775; their Declaration, July 6; their Address to the King, July 8; their Letter to the Lord Mayor of London; and more especially their Declaration for a Fast, June 12, in which, with the deepest marks of sincerity, they call upon all America to join with them in addressing the great Governour of the world, “humbly beseeching him to avert the desolating judgments with which we are threatened; to bless our rightful Sovereign,” &c.; “that America may soon behold a gracious interposition of Heaven for the redress of her many grievances, the restoration of her invaded rights, and reconciliation with the parent State, on terms constitutional and honourable to both.” Will any one be so hardy as to say, that either the appointment or observation of this solemn day was a mere mockery of Heaven and earth, or even that any American joined in it, who was not sincere? I trust not. But if multiplying authorities were of any use, I might add the sentiments of our own Representatives in Assembly, expressed in the Instructions to their Delegates; the sentiments of Maryland in similar Instructions; the Resolves of New-Jersey and New-Hampshire; nor shall the much injured Province of Massachusetts-Bay be left out of the catalogue, whose Provincial Congress, while yet bleeding with the wounds received at Lexington, thus addressed the inhabitants of Great Britain: “These are marks of Ministerial vengeance against this Colony, but they have not yet detached us from our Royal Sovereign,” &c., “trusting that, in a constitutional connection with the mother country, we shall soon be a free and happy people.” These were the sentiments of the Colony of the Massachusetts, signed by that great martyr to liberty, Doctor Warren, and soon after sealed with his blood.

The sentiments of sundry other Colonies might be shown to have corresponded with these; but this letter has already reached its full length. I shall take some future opportunity to examine the arguments which have been offered to induce a change of these sentiments; and, upon the whole, I doubt not to make it appear that Independence is not the cause in which America is now engaged, and is only the idol of those who wish to subvert all order among us, and rise on the ruins of their country.

CATO.

ALEXANDER McDONALD, AND OTHERS, TO JONATHAN SERGEANT.

Princeton, New-Jersey, March 12, 1776.

SIR: We take the liberty of addressing ourselves to you, as a gentleman to whom we are all, in some measure, known. We labour under some emharrassments, which we wish, through you, to have laid before the Congress; not doubting but they will take the same into consideration, and grant such relief as may remove our apprehensions; which have been such of late as to make it absolutely necessary, in our opinion, to know what we have to depend upon.

We are all of us from the West-India Islands, where, and in Great Britain, the chief part of our properties are vested. We came here for various reasons; but without the least idea of taking, or being forced to take, any part in the present unhappy dispute between Great Britain and these Colonies.

It has been our constant wish and endeavours to avoid giving offence to any persons whatever; nevertheless, we have lately been summoned before the Township Committee, to sign the Association, or give our reasons for declining it. The latter we readily complied with, alleging that we conceived the Congress could not mean the Association to extend to persons in our circumstances; the greatest part of whose properties, lying in other countries, could receive no manner of protection from the Association; but, on the contrary, might be exposed to forfeiture, if we did sign it, or take any part in the matter. The Committee seemed satisfied, but said they had no power to excuse us; and therefore bound us over to appear before the County Committee, by whom we might, perhaps, be referred over to the Provincial Convention. We have no doubt but that either of those bodies would admit the reasonableness of our excuse; yet such attendance is not only troublesome and vexatious in itself, but it impresses the minds of the people with unfriendly ideas of our principles; insomuch, that a servant of one of us, being sent to buy some necessaries for the family, was refused what he wanted, because, said the person, "your master is a Tory." Now, as the minds of the people are getting daily more and more inflamed, it is not improbable that they may, in time, refuse to supply us with all the necessaries of life, or even deprive us of what we have, under the notion of our being enemies to the liberties of America.

We therefore pray the Congress would take our case into consideration, and publish such resolves as may express the line of conduct expected to be observed to, and from us, and all peaceable West-Indians now residing on the Continent of America. We should have saved the Congress and ourselves the trouble of this application, by following the example of many others, (our friends lately from the West-Indies;) by withdrawing ourselves from the Continent; but the connexions we have formed in this country has endeared it to us, and made us very unwilling to tear the tender partners of our hearts from their families and friends, unless forced to it by dire necessity—the denial of safety and protection.

Should the Congress deem it improper to comply with our wishes in this matter, we then request they will allow us a reasonable time to settle our affairs, hire a vessel to carry us off, and grant us a safe pass from their ships-of-war and privateers.

We are, sir, your most humble servants,

ALEXANDER McDONALD,
GEORGE GILLESPIE,
J. W. SANDERS.

To Jonathan Sergeant, Esquire, one of the Delegates in Continental Congress.

CAPTAIN MACPHERSON TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read March 13, 1776.]

Philadelphia, March 12, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: The regard I bear to the liberty of my country prompts me to wish for an employment, under your direction, in a department in which I have acquired some knowledge by experience—I mean the naval service.

I beg leave to observe, that the command of a fleet has always been promised me by Messrs. Hopkins, Randolph, and J. Rutledge. Indeed, without such a command, I could not possibly act in the way I proposed to those gentlemen; which way was approved of by them. Nor was it disapproved of, after the alteration I made, by any but Colonel Gridley, whom I do not think infallible.

I think my inventions may be of service to this country. The fewer that know them, the less probability of our enemies' knowing them. But if the honourable Congress choose that a greater number of gentlemen of their body should have an opportunity of judging of them, I will discover the whole to as many as the honourable Congress is pleased to appoint; provided the gentlemen appointed come under the same obligation of secrecy that those gentleman already in the secret have done.

I beg leave to assure you, gentlemen, that a desire of revenging the death of my dear boy, who fell by the side of the gallant General Montgomery, has a less share in prompting me to this application to you, than a desire of defending and transmitting the liberties of this country unimpaired to posterity.

If your honourable body shall think fit to appoint me to the command of any part of the American Navy, when such an officer is thought necessary, my every nerve shall be exerted to an honourable and successful discharge of my office.

With real esteem, I am, honourable gentlemen, your most devoted, most obedient humble servant,

JOHN MACPHERSON.

To the Honourable Continental Congress.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO JOHN HANCOCK.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 12, 1776.

SIR: As we are informed, from undoubted authority, that Captain Parker, of his Majesty's Ship Phoenix, is now fitting out a Bermuda Brig, of eight or ten carriage-guns, and small schooner to carry four carriage-guns and forty men, and a brigantine of eight or ten carriage-guns, for the purpose of intercepting vessels between the Capes of Delaware and Sandy-Hook; and as we have already given orders for the immediate fitting out of an armed vessel for the protection of our trade, we think it necessary to acquaint you that such a one from Philadelphia will also be necessary, to be immediately ready to meet ours for this purpose; and that she be of such a draft of water as that she may run into Barnegat and Egg-Harbour. It is also necessary to be immediately informed by you what your Marine Committee regulations are respecting the wages, &c., of officers and men, that we may regulate ourselves accordingly.

We are, sir, your very humble servant,

By order: NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, President of the Continental Congress.

SAMUEL GALE (OF CUMBERLAND COUNTY, NEW-YORK) TO JOHN M'KESSON.

Fairfield, March 12, 1776.

SIR: The receipt of your letter of the 6th instant, by Mr. Sturges, gave me a good deal of pleasure. I imagined that the paragraph in which you expressed your cheerful willingness to be bound to Mr. Burr for my faithfulness as a prisoner, would have led him to have given me a conditional enlargement. Mr. Burr took advice on it, but it did not produce the effect which I expected; so I still remain in the disagreeable apartment.

It gives me some satisfaction to find that your Congress had no hand in my being taken or brought off; and I cannot but thank them for their proceedings on my last letter. I conceive them still more entitled to my hearty thanks, when I reflect that they proceeded in my behalf, knowing, at the same time, that I was one of those who did not hold Congresses in very high esteem—a reflection, I must own, that makes me view them through a more favourable medium than heretofore.

But while I thus freely confess that I have not held any assemblies in high veneration, except such as were called by regular writ, I can, with equal truth, say, that whoever construes the disliked expressions in my letter to Colonel Bellows, to relate to others than those of the County of Cumberland, gives it a construction which was not thought of by me when I wrote it. I am not of opinion that you, or many of your body, hold their proceedings in a much better light than myself; nor can I suppose that any one can think me blameable in forbidding a delivery of the records to any but myself, or deputy.

The duty (mentioned in my letter) under which I should be laid by such a delivery, was, as I took it, or else, as I mistook it, enjoined on me, in the most solemn manner, by oaths which the law required to be repeated, sworn to, and subscribed. However, I could not have exercised such duty without, at the same time, using all the means for averting every calamity that could thereby be produced; and even then, the exercise of it would (as I hinted in the letter) give me much pain—far more, I find, than my persecutors labour under, though they were not compelled thereby to by any duty.

For my own part, I do not recollect any order of Congress forbidding people's speaking or writing on any side or subject, nor any penalties being ordered to be inflicted therefor. It is true such may have been made without my knowing it, or they may have slipped my memory. Should that be the case, I would trouble you to inform me of the particulars of them.

Had I ever undertaken on the side of the Congress, and had betrayed my trust, I should have considered my present fate as merited. Or, on the other hand, if I had been employed in what is by some called "Tory Plots," my present fate might have been considered as a means of preventing their being effected. But neither of these is even pretended to be the case. The letter for which I am persecuted, was written to a gentlemen whom I knew to be of opposite sentiments to myself. Yet the openness and integrity of my own heart forbade me to suspect evil from the hands of one who had, only a few months before, expressed a regard for my person.

Had there been an order of the Congress for my being taken and brought off by the military, or had there been a previous declaration for a general use of the law martial, I should then have been somewhat, though far less, surprised at my present situation than I now am; but, as neither of these was the case, I must frankly acknowledge my entire inability to reconcile it with the principles of liberty, however easy the solution of such a problem may be to those who have acquired a profundity in politics.

I am pretty much of opinion that my imprisonment must be owing to some whose zeal carries them beyond the line, and prompts them to an enmity with the persons of men. Soft and generous treatment has often converted the erroneous; but the history of mankind will furnish few, if any, instances of good effects being wrought by persecution; and if I may judge of myself by the general nature of mankind in all ages, a continued persecution may be but too likely to excite a spirit of revenge in that breast in which it hath not hitherto found any harbour.

It is quite probable, as you observe in your letter, "that ill-treatment and abuse, unmerited in my office, might have tended to confirm me in my mode of thinking." I look on my present fate to be a continuation of the same "ill-treatment," and instigated by some of the same persons; and I am far from being the only one who suspects that some of them have yet more hidden designs in view. Should you discover anything of that kind, I make no doubt but you, and every other good man, would endeavour effectually to baffle it. But how it could be effected at this distance is not easy to see; and before it could be known at New-York, it might be past remedy; which is one reason for my wanting to be at New-York with as much expedition as may be.

You may, perhaps, imagine these apprehensions to be entirely groundless; but give me leave to assure you that I can fully convince you, (and will do it on oath, if you still doubt it,) from circumstances which are known by few, if any, in New-York, even of those who think with me on the matter, that there is sufficient reason for such apprehensions. However, whether I return to New-York or not, may the Almighty's will be done! I flatter myself that that nobleness of heart which characterizes the freeborn Briton, that spirit in which malice or revenge hath never reigned, added to a conscience serene and clear, will enable me to pass through the various mazes and labyrinths of persecution, torture, or death, with all the patience and resignation of a martyr. And should the apprehensions which I have mentioned grow into realities, I shall say, with Balaam, "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

Permit me to request that you would remember my best compliments to all my acquaintance, and to those of your members (whether known or unknown) who voted for an inquiry into my affair.

And give me leave to subscribe myself, with the best wishes of happiness to yourself, and all mankind, (my persecutors not excepted,) sir, your most obedient servant,
S. GALE.

To Mr. McKesson.

P. S. I should be glad to hear from you shortly, as I shall otherwise sue out a habeas corpus from the Supreme Court of this Colony, to know by what legal authority I am detained here.
S. G.

COLONEL LENT TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Orangetown, March 12, 1776.

SIRS: Agreeable to your order, I have desired the officers under my command to hold their respective companies in readiness, at a moment's warning, and now enclose to you a return of the regiment under my command. The fourth man are in readiness, and are returned to the Major of Minute-men out of my regiment.

I am, with respect, sirs, your most obedient servant,

ABRAHAM LENT.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York, or the Committee of Safety at New-York.

N. B. The reason of your finding only two companies of Militia in the return, is owing to one company turned out for Minute-men.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Albany, March 12, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday, the Sub-Committee of this City and County delivered me two papers, of which the enclosed (Nos. 1 and 2) are copies. No. 3 is a copy of my letter to Sir John Johnson on the occasion. Should I find, on further inquiry, that the charges against him are supported, I propose despatching a messenger to the Six Nations, to advise them of his conduct, and of my intentions not to suffer him to remain in Tryon County. I could wish to have the opinion of Congress before I take this step with Sir John, and will defer it until then, if it can be done with safety to our cause.

We shall be able to procure a sufficiency of Indian goods in Canada, if the traders are not permitted to go from thence. The more I reflect on the consequences of permitting them to go, the more I am convinced they ought not. The Indians that will suffer most by the restraint, will be the more remote ones; and we may inform them that they owe their misfortune (as they really do) to our enemies; and they may probably second our operations, by attacking Detroit, or at least by coming down to that place in such numbers as to destroy great part of the provisions for the subsistence of the garrison, and that of Niagara.

By a letter from Lieutenant-Colonel Wade, of the 29th ultimo, which I received on the 11th instant, I find that part of the New-Hampshire Regiment was marched on the 24th ultimo. Immediately on the receipt of Colonel Wade's letter, I despatched an express to Ticonderoga, with directions for forwarding provisions to Onion-River, where I am apprehensive the men will arrive, and suffer, before the provisions. I am sorry that I had not more early intelligence of their marching.

The fat cattle in the western parts of Massachusetts and Connecticut are all engaged for the Army at Cambridge; so that my intentions to supply the Army in Canada by the way of Onion-River, cannot be carried into execution.

The ice has not yet left Hudson-River at this place, but is now only passable with great danger. Carriages are so very difficult to be got (on account of the scarcity of forage and extreme deepness of the roads) to forward on the troops, that I fear the whole will not be able to cross the lakes on the ice.

I dare not yet purchase any working cattle to send to Ticonderoga, as the little hay I have been able to procure will not suffice to feed them until they can get grass. I shall, therefore, as soon as the heavy cannon come up, and Lake George opens, send the working-oxen from my farm at Saratoga, with forage to convey the cannon and stores across the Carrying-place, and replace them out of those that must be bought for the spring and summer's work at Ticonderoga.

I should be glad to know what allowance Congress has made to the officers who are prisoners. I have advanced money to many of them, to enable them to pay for their quarters, as I did not choose any longer to discharge the bills that were brought in, they being so enormously high. When I get the directions of Congress, I shall ascertain what may be due from them to the publick, or from the publick to them.

I find that the gentlemen of the Pay-Table of the Colony of Connecticut, and I, have differently construed the resolutions of Congress of the 19th of January last. They pay four dollars as a bounty to a soldier, although he does not furnish himself with any kind of arms. I have allowed no bounty at all to such of Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment as came without arms, and have only advanced a month's pay to enable them to purchase clothing. Be so good as to transmit me the opinion of Congress on this matter as soon as possible.

I am, sir, with the sincerest esteem and respect, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., &c., &c.

DEPOSITION OF ASA CHADWICK.

Congress Town, March 6, 1776.

TRYON COUNTY, ss :

Personally appeared before me, John Collins, Esq., one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for said County, Asa Chadwick, of lawful age, sound in mind and memory, and, being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, depose and saith: That on the 4th day of March, instant, he, the deponent, was at Johnson-Hall, at Johnstown, in company with Sir John Johnson, Baronet, who said he was sorry that he, the deponent, had such a bad neighbour. The deponent asked who. The said Sir John replied, Esquire Collins, who, I am informed, is raising a company in that settlement, which will be the worse for you all; for I have sent to the Indians, and have received for answer, that they, the said Indians, will be down within six weeks, and that they will fall on the back settlements, and will scalp a great many people, and you will see the blood running on the ground. And he, the said Sir John, said this would come to pass within six weeks, otherwise he, the deponent, might call him a liar. And the said Sir John further informed me that he had lately received letters from a gentleman in Canada, who informed him that the Indians are coming down in the spring from that country, to cut us off. Further saith not the deponent.

JOHN COLLINS, Justice.

EXTRACT FROM THE MINUTES OF THE ALBANY COMMITTEE.

Albany Committee-Chamber, March 11, 1776.

An Affidavit was laid before this Board, of one Asa Chadwick, taken before John Collins, one of the Justices of the Peace of the County of Tryon, setting forth, among other things, the discourse Sir John Johnson had with the deponent, discovering thereby that he had invited the Indians to act hostilely against the friends of this country: Thereupon,

Resolved, That, as Sir John lives out of this County, and is at present under parole to General Schuyler, the said Affidavit be laid before the General, for him to act thereupon as he shall see convenient.

Extract from the Minutes.

MATTHEW VISCHER, Secretary.

[No. 3.]

Albany, March 12, 1776.

SIR: The Sub-Committee of this City and County have put into my hands two papers, of which the enclosed are copies.

The charges contained in the deposition of Chadwick against you are not only of an extremely criminal nature, but, if true, such a conduct is utterly inconsistent with your written and verbal declarations, and a breach of the honorary engagements you lay under, than which nothing ought to be more sacred.

Unwilling, however, to be charged with an unbecoming precipitation in the measures that may be necessary for me to adopt on the occasion, I shall defer taking any until I can have an opportunity of a more minute inquiry; and that it may not labour under the odious epithet of an ex parte one, I must beg of you to be present when it is made, which will be on Monday, the 18th instant, at ten o'clock in the morning, at the house of the widow Vernon, in this city. In an affair in which your character as a gentleman and a man of honour is so nearly concerned, I cannot make the least doubt of your compliance with this request. Should you decline coming down, you may easily judge of the inference that will be drawn.

I am, &c.,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To Sir John Johnson, Baronet.

WINTHROP SARGENT TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Gloucester, March 12, 1776.

SIR: This is to acquaint your Excellency that, last Sunday, Commodore Manly, with Waters, Tucker, and Ayres, took a ship from London, James Watts commander. The contents of her cargo you have enclosed, with two letters for General Howe. They had the misfortune, it being a very dark, thick night, to run ashore upon the rocks, about three miles from the harbour of Gloucester. She is bilged, and most of the cargo will be lost. Commodore Manly damaged his vessel very much; lost his bowsprit, but is refitted. I shall do all in my power to save what I can of the cargo. I should be glad to know what I shall do with the Captain and sailors, as they have no ship to keep on board.

I remain your Excellency's very humble servant,

WINTHROP SARGENT.

To His Excellency General Washington.

MESHECH WEARE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Exeter, March 12, 1776.

SIR: We are favoured with your Excellency's advices by Mr. Moylan's letter of the 9th instant, and acknowledge ourselves extremely obliged by this early intelligence of your spirited and interesting operations against the Town of Boston, to which we heartily wish the utmost success you can possibly expect. We do also gratefully acknowledge the goodness of your intentions, that, upon the first discovery and notice given, if any of the troops from Boston, on leaving the place, might appear on the coast to attempt a landing, you would come or send immediately to our assistance.

Our Assembly have very readily determined upon the most effectual measures in our power for the defence of the sea-coast, and, in particular, Piscataqua Harbour. But we must beg leave to remind your Excellency of a matter of the utmost consequence to us: our magazine of powder being very low, (not exceeding twelve barrels,) we are under the necessity of asking the return of the supply of powder made by this Colony last summer for the Continental service; and that you would please to order us the like quantity, or what can possibly be spared for our use. The supplies we have sent for to the West-Indies, &c., and been some time expecting, are not yet arrived.

In behalf of the Council and Assembly, I am, very respectfully, your Excellency's most humble servant,

MESHECH WEARE,

President of the Council, Colony of New-Hampshire.

To His Excellency General Washington.

ADDRESS OF THE MAYOR, ETC., OF THE CITY OF CORK, IN IRELAND.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Sheriffs, Common Council, Merchants, Traders, and principal Inhabitants of the City of Cork, humbly approach your Royal presence, to declare our abhorrence of the unnatural rebellion now carrying on in North America by many of your Majesty's deluded subjects.

We were in hopes your Majesty's paternal admonitions, and the restraining laws made by your Majesty and your Parliament, would have brought these infatuated people to a sense of their duty without shedding of blood; but we are sorry to find that your Majesty's clemency hath made them more daring in their lawless attempts; and that, under the cloak of liberty, they have exercised every species of licentiousness; not only making offensive war against your Majesty, but plundering the property of your Majesty's peaceable subjects, who are resident amongst them, and driving them from their habitations.

As your Majesty, thus circumstanced, is obliged to make use of the power of your Empire to reduce, by force of arms, this dangerous rebellion, we, on our part, do most cheerfully engage, with our lives and fortunes, to stand by and support your Majesty's person and Government, as well against these insurgents, as against all other enemies whatsoever.

Given under the common seal of the said City of Cork, the thirteenth day of March, 1776.

COMMITTEE OF CHESTERTOWN (MARYLAND) TO COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Chestertown, March 13, 1776.

SIR: It appears, from the best information that can be obtained, that a return of the ship-of-war, with reinforcements, may soon be expected, and their business being avowedly to get fresh provisions, they will probably make the attempt on the most defenceless Shore. On the last alarm, a very considerable spirit was manifested by every company in the County; but spirited as they are, their resistance must be very ineffectual without the proper means.

Most of the small number of good arms in the County are supplied to the Minute Company now under duty in Virginia; and, on an examination into the arms at present in the County, scarcely any company of Militia have above thirty guns of any kind, and most of these are unfit for any service. The two companies of this town cannot produce above twenty good arms. In this truly defenceless state of this County, and we believe of this Shore in general, the Committee for Kent County humbly submit it to the consideration of your Board, whether it will not be advisable for you to order the arms imported by Captain Tippett to this place, for the use of Captain Veazey's and the other Independent Companies on this Shore, and to order back our Minute Companies from Virginia. The Committee having delivered out, to the orders of the Convention and of your Board, most of the publick powder under their care, and the whole being but a very small quantity for the use of this Shore, think a supply of that article necessary. The Committee presume you will hardly think it advisable to trust the arms and ammunition on the water after the late alarm, and as they can conveniently have such part as you may think proper to order here brought by land without any trouble to your Board, they would only wish to have an order for the delivery in Philadelphia. The Committee beg leave further to represent to you as their opinion that, as the Brigadier-General for this district is very distant, and as no Field-Officers are yet appointed for the two battalions of this County, in case of an attack some temporary power ought to be vested to direct the operation of the several companies. They submit it to your wisdom to determine whether this temporary power might not be lodged by you in their body, who, you may depend, will exercise it for the good of the country in general to the utmost of their power and abilities. Captain Veazey has now got all his company collected here, and no provision has been made for them by the Commissary. The Committee think it their duty to mention this circumstance, that you may give the necessary orders therein. In the mean time the Committee will co-operate with Captain Veazey, and do everything in their power to supply the men with provisions.

Signed per order.

W. HALL, Clerk of Committee.

CAPTAIN FAUNTLEROY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

March 13, 1776.

Enclosed is a commission of Mr. John Hynson. He has resigned, as his removal out of the neighbourhood has made it inconvenient to attend as Ensign, and the company have elected James Black, Sen., in his room, as Ensign of the said company of Militia.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
JOHN FAUNTLEROY.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

If you do not choose to gratify the company in their choice, Richard Koone, son of William, Ensign, is, in the Captain's judgment and mine, a more suitable man for the place.

RICHARD MASON.

To the Council of Safety of Maryland.

March 4, 1776.

SIR: I must give up my commission, as I have moved out of the neighbourhood, and hope you will excuse me, as nothing but the inconvenience of attending obliges me to give up the commission. I send up the commission by your boy, and hope this will excuse me from attending, by you and the company; and I am extremely obliged to them all for their good will, and acknowledge myself indebted a handsome treat to the company, which shall be performed the first opportunity. So conclude your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN HYNSON.

To Captain John Fauntleroy.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee, Baltimore, March 13, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am directed to inform you that Messrs. John Smith, Benjamin Nicholson, Captains Nicholson, Boucher, and myself, have this day examined the state of the batteries already made and making at Whetstone and Fell's Point, and have reported the same to the Committee. They are induced to believe and hope that there is every rational prospect of securing the town of Baltimore, in case the Otter returns with any other frigate that can come up this river. And as the Ship Defence may be so stationed as to support the batteries and boom at Whetstone, it will be of the greatest importance, for the preservation of both the town and ship, that she should not be ordered out of this harbour. The attention of our workmen being entirely engaged since last week on the batteries at Fell's Point, the boom is, of consequence, less forward than it otherwise would have been. But to avoid every possible hazard of its being too late, it is agreed (with the advice of Captain Nicholson) to sink all the vessels now collected at Whetstone-Point; which will serve the purpose, until the boom, now executing, is completed. We have got the vessels all valued and ballasted, and persons are appointed to begin sinking them to-morrow.

The battery at Whetstone will be ready to mount several guns in a few days; even now it can be used on emergency. At Fell's Point, the breastworks, fit for nineteen or twenty cannon, will be nearly completed to-morrow. General Buchanan has ordered away the Militia of Harford this day. Our worthy friends of York County have raised a select company of riflemen, commanded by Mr. Joseph Donaldson, to be held in readiness to march to our assistance on any emergency. The Committee beg leave to submit to your consideration, whether, as you have no artillery at Annapolis, it would not be advisable to station Captain Fulford's company of Matrosses in this place; that gentleman's knowledge as a gunner may be of much service to us. Either one or two wagon loads of powder, sent us by our Delegates on the first alarm, are arrived in town this evening. We shall calculate on another visit from the vessels of war, and use every means in our power to be prepared for it.

I am, with great respect, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

SAMUEL PURVIANCE, JUN., Chairman.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO HARFORD COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 56.]

Annapolis, March 13, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have received your favour of the 10th instant, and send you the four hundred pounds. We think it proper that an account of the disbursements should be rendered to the Council of Safety, and not to the next Convention, as you apprehend; and, therefore, request you will furnish us with it as soon as you can make it convenient.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Harford County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

[No. 57.]

Annapolis, March 13, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have a narrative, which will fully inform you of the transactions of the Otter sloop-of-war, and her tenders, which have lately paid us a short visit.* They are much chagrined, we believe, at their losing a large vessel belonging to Mr. Hudson, that was loaded with provision, by order of the Congress, and had been made a prize of but a day or two before, and at their disappointment in accomplishing their design of taking the Ship Defence, which, by all accounts, they made sure of effecting, and was their grand object. Just before they weighed anchor, a flag came on shore with some prisoners, who said they had been treated with great humanity; and, in return, it was thought proper to compliment the officer with two quarters of beef. As soon as they can get a reinforcement, which we imagine they are gone after, we expect to have another and more important visit, and are making the best preparations in our power. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Safety of Virginia.

RICHARD HENRY LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, March 13, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I was in Virginia (from whence I am but just returned) when your favour of the 26th December came here; and now I have but a moment, before this gentleman goes off, to thank you for it, and to cover a letter from your * ANNAPOLIS, March 14.—The publick will expect some account of the alarm occasioned by the man-of-war and her tenders. The following is the most perfect we can give at present. On Tuesday, the 5th of March, about seven in the evening, we received information that a man-of-war and two tenders were coming up the bay, and had taken a New-England schooner lying at the mouth of Patuxent. The wind blew hard at S. W., and the general expectation was that they would be at this place in a few hours. The necessary dispositions were made to receive them in case they thought proper to land; and expresses were despatched to Baltimore Town, and other parts of the Province, to communicate the intelligence. Between twelve and one on Tuesday night the wind shifted, and came on a violent gale at N. W., and so continued all day on Wednesday; during which time we had not any certain information where the vessels were. On Thursday, there was a light breeze up the bay. About two o'clock the vessels hove in sight, and at half past three came opposite this city, with some prizes, and stood up the bay. Off the mouth of this harbour they burnt a shallop loaded with oats, and in the evening anchored near the mouth of Patapsco. On Friday night we received intelligence that the vessels were the Otter sloop-of-war and two tenders; and the general opinion was confirmed, that they were going to Baltimore, to take or destroy the Ship Defence. On Saturday we expected to hear of an engagement, and the rather, as at Baltimore the celerity of their movements exceeded expectation. The Defence being got ready on Friday night, was towed down the river, manned with a number of brave fellows, all of whom were Americans in their hearts, and most of them by birth: several small vessels attended, crowded with men to assist in case of an engagement, which, in all probability, would have been a bloody one. Captain Nicholson got under way early on Saturday morning, resolved to retake Hudson's ship, (a large vessel the Otter had made prize of, loaded with wheat and flour,) and to engage the Otter, if she moved to assist the tenders which guarded the prize. The morning was thick and hazy, and the Defence got nearer to them than was expected before they discovered her, bearing down upon them. Those on board the tenders appeared much alarmed, and pushed off with precipitation; and, on a signal given, more hands were sent by the Otter to assist in rowing them off; which was effected with difficulty. Three or four small prize vessels were abandoned, besides Hudson's ship. The Defence having manned the prize, and seeing the Otter get under way, clued up her courses and prepared for battle, expecting her to come up; but the Otter having lain about two hours, as if wanting Captain Nicholson to come down, at length bore away, and, in the afternoon, came to anchor off this port. Captain Nicholson continued his station some time; and, having performed this gallant action, returned with the prizes to Baltimore. On Sunday morning the Otter sloop and her tenders made sail, and went down the bay, having restored several prisoners taken in a vessel in the mouth of Patapsco. The Regulars, Militia, and the people in general, behaved with the greatest spirit and alacrity.

brother, with the proceedings and ordinances of our last Convention.

General Clinton had left Virginia before I did, and was gone to one (but which we do not know) of the Carolinas. General Lee is now here, on his way to the southward, where he is to take the direction of our and the Carolina Troops. I shall write you fully in a post or two. In the mean time, beg my compliments to your lady, and Mr. and Mrs. Custis.

I am, dear sir, your most affectionate friend,

RICHARD HENRY LEE.

To General Washington.

WILLIAM HOOPER TO SAMUEL JOHNSTON.

Philadelphia, March 13, 1776.

MY DEAR FRIEND: I had a sight of your last to Mr. Hewes. I am glad to find that you are in the land of the living. Life was never more called transitory than in the present uncertain state of things. He makes a very wild wager who bets upon existence for six months to come.

I am happy to hear that my family are well; would to God I was with them. The commotions in Canada are alarming. I wish the accounts we have of the success of the friends of Government against them, may be true. I hope you will not be lulled by their promises into a delusive security. The little regard they have had to their past promises, is a bad earnest for their future punctuality.

We are kept in most surprising ignorance of the present state of North-Carolina. When we leave the Province, our friends seem to consign us to oblivion; and give us the important trust of defending their liberties, without affording us such intelligence of their situation as is absolutely necessary to put it in our power to do it effectually. We anxiously wait the return of Cheer, the express.

Twenty Commissioners have sailed from England, to treat with Assemblies, Counties, Townships, in America—in the last instance, with the Continental Congress, when they have tried every other expedient unsuccessfully. Amherst and Lord Howe are of the number. The King would not, for a long time, consent to treat with the Congress, but was at last prevailed upon. They are to contend for much, and be content with little. Their creed is Divide et impera. Heaven grant that America may have virtue to resist their lures. I most earnestly wish peace and reconciliation upon terms honourable to America. Heaven forbid that I should submit to any other.

The enclosed will give you the state of the Army in and out of Boston. Howe is leaving it with his troops, and we suppose is bound to New-York. Pray make my best respects to your lady and family, and all my good friends near you. I am yours affectionately,

WILLIAM HOOPER.

To Samuel Johnston, Esq., Edenton, North-Carolina.

N. B. What I say of the Commissioners, I have only on report; take it for so much.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO WILLIAM HOOPER.

Cambridge, March 6, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I mentioned to General Washington the letter mentioned in the memorandum you left with me. He bids me say, he sent it into Boston the next day after it came to his hand, and has never heard anything from it since.

You know an attack was intended by us on Boston, when you were here. Last Saturday night our people began a cannonade and bombardment on the town, from Cobble-Hill, Lechmere's Point, and Lamb's Dam. Sunday night it was continued by us, and warmly resented by the enemy. They sent us shot and shells, five to one. The first night we burst one thirteen-inch and two ten-inch iron mortars; and on Sunday night, with the third charge, the brass thirteen-inch likewise burst.

We have been extremely unlucky in this way. On Monday night our people went upon Dorchester Neck, on the second large height back of Nook's Point. They had a strong party, more than three hundred teams, to carry on all necessaries for their works. They marched on by seven o'clock in the evening; and when the march began, a signal was made, and the cannonade and bombardment were renewed with redoubled vigor. This proved a diversion to the enemy from Dorchester Hills; and we imagine they never discovered our party there till eight o'clock in the morning, by which time they were well covered. We expected an attack yesterday, at twelve o'clock, and were prepared for it—our floating-batteries, boats, &c., all ready to carry four thousand men into the town, if they had made a vigorous sally against our Dorchester party; but we were disappointed.

Last night we had a most violent gale of wind at south, by which the enemy's ships have suffered much, (the particulars not known,) and this day the weather is fresh. It has not been in their power to attack us. By to-morrow, we shall be so well prepared for them at Dorchester, that they may come if they please. If they do not, we shall soon move forward upon Nook's Point; and then, if we can get powder, we shall endeavour to warm their den.

We have not had a deserter or prisoner, nor an inhabitant escaped from town, to give us any information from thence. I dare say we have done great mischief among them. I was on Lechmere's Point on Saturday night. The thirteen-inch mortar was directed at the Province-House, and the shells went very near it, I believe.

We have had two men killed: one on Lechmere's Point, by the bursting of a shell; the other at Roxbury, by a cannon-ball. No more killed. Colonel Mason, of the Train, slightly wounded by the bursting of a mortar; and a few others; none badly.

The Militia, and owners of teams in this neighbourhood, have behaved admirably on this occasion. A fine spirit prevails in general. I wish I could say the like spirit, and activity, and ability, were universal.

I am extremely sorry to hear of the danger of Mr. Lynch. I revere his character, and most sincerely wish his recovery.

Colonel Dyer* writes me that he saw you, and that you were gone on rejoicing. I hope ere this you are safe in Philadelphia, which I shall be glad to be ascertained of from yourself.

I am, with respect and esteem, dear Sir, your most humble servant,

JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. William Hooper, Esq., in Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

P. S. Colonel Mifflin is pretty well recovered, and sends his compliments, in which Mrs. Mifflin likewise joins him.

LORD STIRLING TO THE COMMITTEES OF ESSEX, ETC.,
NEW-JERSEY.

New-York, March 13, 1776.

By intelligence received from General Washington, the King's Army at Boston is actually embarked, and there is the highest reason to believe that they are destined for this place. I must, therefore, request that the County of Essex will immediately assemble their Militia, and pick out three or four hundred of their best men, and send them here to assist in fortifying and defending this place.

Be pleased to forward the enclosed to the Committee of Morris County.

I am your most humble servant, STIRLING.
(To Chairmen of the Committees of the Counties of Essex, Middlesex, Morris, Somerset, Sussex, and Hunterdon.)

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 15, 1776.]

New-York, March 13, 1776.—Two o'clock, P. M.

DEAR SIR: The express, which will deliver this to you, a few minutes ago brought me despatches from General Washington, containing the very important intelligence which will be communicated to you. I have laid these letters before the Congress of this Province, and have requested them to appoint a Committee instantly to confer with me on the steps necessary to be taken for the defence of this city and Long-Island. I propose to employ all the inhabitants, and every person in town, immediately, in assisting at the works; to call in three or four hundred men from each of the Counties of this Province and New-Jersey; to order the Third Battalion of New-Jersey Troops, and six companies of the Second Battalion of Pennsylvania, to stop here till further orders, which will not much retard their march to Canada, as they can go from hence to Albany by water. I shall do everything else that I can think of for the safety of this place.

I am, sir, your most humble servant, STIRLING.

To the President of Congress.

* This, and all the before-mentioned, were open, defenceless towns, which, by the laws of war, should always be spared.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL ALLEN TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
[Read March 15, 1776.]

New-York, March 13, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to acquaint you that, on my arrival here, I waited on Lord Stirling, to request his assistance in procuring sloops to convey the troops from Dobbs's Ferry to Albany. This business being effected, I was this day preparing to set off for Albany, when I received the following orders from Lord Stirling:

"New-York, March 13, 1776.

"SIR: You are hereby ordered to direct all the companies of the Second Battalion of the Pennsylvania Troops, of which you are Lieutenant-Colonel, which are not yet embarked for Albany, to proceed immediately to this city, where quarters shall be provided for them. You are to remain at this place till further orders.

"STIRLING, Brigadier-General.

"To Lieutenant-Colonel Allen, of the Second Regiment, Pennsylvania."

Agreeably to the above, I have despatched a messenger, with orders to the different companies, as they arrive at Hackensack, immediately to march to this place, where I shall anxiously expect to be honoured with your orders.

This unexpected delay, at so critical a season of the year, has given me much uneasiness; but my business is to obey orders, and not to judge of the propriety of them.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

WM. ALLEN.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

N. B. Your despatches for General Schuyler are to be forwarded to-morrow morning by Lord Stirling.

PETER T. CURTENIUS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, March 13, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeably to your request, we have made a second calculation, and will engage to furnish all the troops that shall be quartered in this city, King's County, and Fort Constitution, for one year, from the 1st day of April next, at eleven pence per ration per day, provided the Congress will furnish us, at their expense, with sufficient stores at each place, and advance us a sufficient sum to lay in a stock of provisions. The ration to consist of the following kinds and quantities of provisions, viz: One pound of beef, or three-quarters of a pound pork, or one pound of salt fish, per day per man; one pound of flour or bread, per day; three pints of pease or beans per week, or vegetables equivalent; one pint of milk per day, or at the rate of one-seventy-second part of a dollar, or an equivalent in beef, pork, or butter; one quart of spruce beer or cider, per man per day, or nine gallons of molasses per one hundred men per week; half a pint of rice, or one pint of Indian meal, per man per week; three pounds of candles, to one hundred men per week; twenty-four pounds of soft, or eight pounds of hard soap, for one hundred men per week.

As to wood and straw, it is impossible to reduce them into rations; therefore, will engage to furnish them the year round, at twenty shillings per cord, and straw at three pence per bunch, exclusive of the carting, provided it is at your risk, after we have delivered it to the Barrackmaster, whose receipt shall be our voucher. This will be a proper check on us, that we do not charge too much; and, also, a check on him, that he does not give credit for too little. If all the wood was to be delivered at the barracks, and there issued out, we could make a calculation; but, after it is there, it must be carted to the different houses in the town, where the soldiers are quartered, in loads, three-quarters, and half loads; therefore, it would be best that the Barrackmaster pay the cartage, and render you an account of it.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,
CURTENIUS & ETTING.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
[Read March 22, 1776.]

Cambridge, March 13, 1776.

SIR: In my letter of the 7th and 9th instant, which I had the honour of addressing you, I mentioned the intelligence I had received respecting the embarkation of the troops from Boston, and fully expected before this that the town would have been entirely evacuated. Although I have been deceived, and was rather premature in the opinion I had then formed, I have little reason to doubt but the event will take place in a very short time, as other accounts which have come to hand since, the sailing of a great number of transports from the harbour to Nantasket-Road, and many circumstances corresponding therewith, seem to confirm and render it unquestionable. Whether the town will be destroyed, is a matter of much uncertainty; but it would seem, from the destruction they are making of sundry pieces of furniture, of many of their wagons, carts, &c., which they cannot take with them, as it is said, that it will not; for if they intended it, the whole might be involved in one general ruin. Holding it of the last importance in the present contest that we should secure New-York, and prevent the enemy from possessing it, and conjecturing they have views of that sort, and their embarkation to be for that purpose, I judged it necessary, under the situation of things here, to call a Council of General Officers, to consult of such measures as might be expedient to be taken at this interesting conjuncture of affairs: a copy of the proceedings I have the honour to enclose you.

Agreeable to the opinion of the council, I shall detach the Rifle Regiment to-morrow, under the command of Brigadier-General Sullivan, with orders to repair to New-York with all possible expedition, and which will be succeeded the day after by the other five in one Brigade; they being all that it was thought advisable to send from hence till the enemy shall have quitted the town. Immediately upon their departure, I shall send forward Major-General Putnam, and follow myself with the remainder of the Army, as soon as I have it in my power, leaving here such a number of men as circumstances may seem to require. As the badness of the roads at this season will greatly retard the march of our men, I have, by advice of the General Officers, written to Governor Trumbull by this express to use his utmost exertions for throwing a reinforcement of two thousand men into New-York, from the western parts of Connecticut; and to the commanding officer there, to apply to the Provincial Convention or Committee of Safety of New-Jersey, for a thousand more, for the same purpose, to oppose the enemy, and prevent their getting possession, in case they arrive before the troops from hence can get there, of which there is a probability, unless they are impeded by contrary winds. This measure, though it may be attended with considerable expense, I flatter myself will meet with the approbation of Congress.

Past experience, and the lines in Boston and on Boston Neck, point out the propriety, and suggest the necessity, of keeping our enemies from gaining possession, and making a lodgment. Should their destination be further southward, or for Halifax, (as reported in Boston), for the purpose of going into Canada, the march of our troops to New-York will place them nearer the scene of action, and more convenient for affording succors.

We have not taken post on Nuke-Hill and fortified it, as mentioned that we should in my last. On hearing that the enemy were about to retreat and leave the town, it was thought imprudent and unadvisable to force them with too much precipitation, that we might gain a little time, and prepare for a march. To-morrow evening we shall take possession, unless they are gone.

As New-York is of such importance, prudence and policy require that every precaution that can be devised should be adopted to frustrate the designs which the enemy have of possessing it. To this end, I have ordered vessels to be provided, and held ready at Norwich, for the embarkation and transportation of our troops thither. This I have done with a view not only of greatly expediting their arrival, (as it will save several days marching,) but, also, that they may be fresh, and fit for intrenching and throwing up works of defence, as soon as they get there, if they do not meet the enemy to contend with; for neither of which would they be in a proper condition, after a long and fatiguing march in bad roads. If Wallace, with his ships, should be apprized of the measure, and attempt to prevent it by stopping up the harbour of New-London, they can but pursue their march by land.

You will please to observe that it is the opinion of the General Officers, if the enemy abandon the town, that it will be unnecessary to employ or keep any part of this Army for its defence, and that I have mentioned, on that event's happening, I shall immediately repair to New-York, with the remainder of the Army not now detached, leaving only such a number of men here as circumstances may seem to require. What I partly allude to is, that (as it will take a considerable time for the removal of such a body of men, and the divisions must precede each other in such order as to allow intermediate time sufficient for them to be covered and provided for, and many things done previous to the march of the whole, for securing and forwarding such necessities as cannot be immediately carried, and others which it may be proper to keep here,) directions might be received from Congress respecting the same, and as many men ordered to remain for that and other purposes as they may judge proper. I could wish to have their commands upon the subject, and in time, as I may be under some degree of embarrassment as to their views.

Congress having been pleased to appoint Colonel Thompson a Brigadier-General, there is a vacancy for a Colonel in the regiment he commanded, to which I would beg leave to recommend the Lieutenant-Colonel, Hand. I shall also take the liberty of recommending Captain Hugh Stevenson, of the Virginia Riflemen, to succeed Colonel Hand, to be appointed in his place as Lieutenant-Colonel, (there being no Major to the regiment since the promotion of Major Maggaw to be Lieutenant-Colonel of one of the Pennsylvania Battalions, and who is gone from hence.) He is, in my opinion, the fittest person in this Army for it, as well as the oldest Captain in the service, having distinguished himself at the head of a Rifle Company all the last war, and highly merited the approbation of his superior officers.

Colonel Mifflin informed me to day of his having received tent clothes from Mr. Barrell, of Philadelphia, to the amount of seven thousand five hundred pounds, Pennsylvania currency, and applied for a warrant for payment of it; but as our fund is low, and many necessary demands against it, which must be satisfied, and our calls for money are, and will be exceedingly great, I could not grant it, thinking it might be convenient for payment to be made in Philadelphia, by your order, on the Treasury there.

I have the honour to be, with much respect, sir, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the President of Congress.

At a Council of General Officers, held at General Ward's Quarters, Roxbury, March 13, 1776, Present:

His Excellency General Washington; Major-Generals Ward and Putnam; Brigadier-Generals Thomas, Sullivan, Heath, Greene, Spencer, and Gates.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief informed the Council that, from the appearance of the Ministerial Fleet and Army, the intelligence he had received from sundry persons who had escaped from Boston, and from frequent observations, he had reason to believe that the troops were about to evacuate the town; and that, in all probability, they were destined for New-York, and would attempt to possess themselves of that city; by which means they would command the navigation of Hudson's River, open a communication with Canada, and cut off all intercourse between the Southern and Northern Colonies.

His Excellency then demanded the opinion of Council, whether, under the present circumstances, (i. e. before the town was wholly evacuated,) it would be advisable to march any part of the Continental Army now before Boston, to New-York.

The Council were of opinion that it will be proper that five Regiments, with the Rifle Battalion, should be detached immediately to New-York. The Rifle Battalion to march to-morrow, and the others to follow as speedily as possible. That his Excellency be advised to write to the Governor of Connecticut, to desire he would immediately send two thousand of the Militia of his Government to New-York; and that one thousand be requested from the Convention or Committee of Safety of New-Jersey, in order to reinforce the troops already stationed there, until the detachment from this Army shall arrive.

His Excellency likewise demanded the opinion of Council whether, if the Ministerial Troops should totally abandon the town of Boston, it would be necessary to continue any part of the Continental Army for its defence.

Resolved, That if the Ministerial Troops should totally abandon the town of Boston, it will be unnecessary to employ any part of this Army for the defence and security of the same, as the Militia of the Province will be adequate thereto.

The opinion of Council was also demanded by his Excellency, whether, if the Ministerial Troops should continue in the harbour of Boston, it would be advisable to fortify Nuke-Hill, in Dorchester.

Resolved, That if the Ministerial Troops should continue in this harbour to-morrow, it would be advisable to fortify Nuke-Hill the next night, at all events.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 9, 1776.

(Parole, Morris.)

(Countersign, Allen.)

The General earnestly expects every officer and soldier of this Army will show the utmost alertness, as well upon duty, as off duty; as, by that means, not only the utmost power, but the utmost artifice of the enemy will be defeated. The Regiments which have not drawn their clothing from the Quartermaster-General, are commanded to do it immediately.

The Regiment and Companies of Riflemen are to hold themselves in readiness to march at an hour's warning. The whole Army to prepare to be ready to march when commanded.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 10, 1776.

(Parole, Tilghman.)

(Countersign, Mercer.)

There was a mistake in the Orders of the 6th instant: General Heath being ordered for the command therein mentioned, instead of General Greene, who is appointed for that command.

That there may not be the least pretext for delay, (as the General is determined to march the whole, or any part of this Army, the instant occasion shall require,) his Excellency desires that not a moment's time may be lost in preparing for the march. The Colonels will pay particular attention to the clothing of their men. To prevent any unnecessary preparations, the General informs the officers and soldiers, that it is his desire and expectation that they encumber themselves with as little baggage as possible, as, apart from the enormous expense to the Continent, teams cannot be procured for superfluous articles; it will be well if sufficient can be found to answer all requisite services. The nature of the service we are engaged in is such as requires Light Troops, ready at all times, and upon all occasions, for forced marches; the less baggage, therefore, officers and men are encumbered with, the better.

The recruiting service is to be continued; but the recruits, and all the men upon furlough, are to join their respective Regiments immediately.

The General being desirous of selecting a particular number of men as a Guard for himself and baggage, the Colonel, or commanding officer, of each of the established Regiments, (the Artillery and Riflemen excepted,) will furnish him with four, that the number wanted may be chosen out of them. His Excellency depends upon the Colonels for good men—such as they can recommend for their sobriety, honesty, and good behaviour. He wishes them to be from five feet eight inches high to five feet ten inches, handsomely and well made; and as there is nothing in his eyes more desirable than cleanliness in a soldier, he desires that particular attention may be made in the choice of such men as are neat and spruce. They are all to be at Head-Quarters to-morrow, precisely at twelve, at noon, when the number wanted will be fixed upon. The General neither wants men with uniforms or arms; nor does he desire any man to be sent to him that is not perfectly willing and desirous of being of this Guard. They should be drilled men.

The General desires that those Colonels who have not furnished the arrangement of their officers, will do it forthwith, under the inspection of the Brigadiers, who are to certify the same. He also requires the Brigadiers to see that the returns are made, that the commissions may issue.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 12, 1776.

(Parole, Niagara.)

(Countersign, Thompson.)

An abstract of the pay of the commissioned officers of each of the established Regiments, for January, to be delivered, as soon as possible, to the Adjutant-General, signed by the Colonel, or officer commanding each Regiment.

The Director-General and Surgeons of the Hospital to proceed in the examination of the Regimental Surgeons and Mates; who are required to attend for that purpose at such time and place as may be appointed, of which they will receive timely notice. When the examination is finished, report is to be made of the same, that commissions may be made out for those who are approved of as duly qualified.

The Colonels, in making out the pay abstracts for their officers for January, are to be careful to see that each officer is charged only from the day of his being appointed.

The General Court-Martial, of which Colonel Phinney was President, is dissolved.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 13, 1776.

(Parole, Fairfax.)

(Countersign, Kent.)

A General Court-Martial to sit to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock. All evidences and persons concerned, to attend the Court.

The Rifle Regiment, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Hand, and the three Rifle Companies under the command of Captain Stephenson, are to be ready to march to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock. A copy of their route, with their orders, will be delivered to Lieutenant-Colonel Hand and Captain Stephenson this afternoon.

As the Ministerial Troops in Boston, both from information and appearance, are preparing to evacuate that town, the General expressly orders that neither officer or soldier presume to go into Boston, without leave from the General-in-Chief at Cambridge, or the Commanding-General at Roxbury. As the enemy, with a malicious assiduity, have spread the infection of the small-pox through all parts of the town, nothing but the utmost caution on our part can prevent that fatal disease from spreading through the Army and country, to the infinite detriment of both. His Excellency expressly commands every officer to pay the exactest obedience to this order.

If, upon the retreat of the enemy, any person whatsoever is detected in pillaging, he may be assured the severest punishment will be his lot. The unhappy inhabitants of that distressed town have already suffered too heavily from the iron hand of oppression! Their countrymen, surely, will not be base enough to add to their misfortunes.

After Orders. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, orders that the Rifle Battalion, with Stark's, Webb's, Patterson's, Greaton's, and Bond's Regiments, be immediately relieved from duty, and hold themselves in readiness to march on Friday morning next, except the Rifle Battalion, which marches to-morrow.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO COLONEL BEDEL.

March 13, 1776.

SIR: We received your letter, dated at Orford, the 8th instant; and, as the Court was sitting, took the contents under consideration; and are very sorry the inlisting and marching of the men are so much slower than we were made to expect. As to the expenses of the Indians, we are told General Washington undertook, and settled with you, about that matter. Any particular Colonies making any considerable present to them, we think needless, as the Continental Congress have appointed Commissioners to transact those affairs; and what is given by them, we must pay our proportion of. As your Regiment this year is raised for the Continental service, and immediately under their direction, we cannot think it necessary to carry anything with you for stores more than will last you to Canada, as we are well assured by the Continental Congress every requisite will be sent there to supply the Army; and are informed they are all gone forward some time. The wages are to be paid off there monthly, which we trust will supply the officers and soldiers' necessities. We expect you will march as soon as possible, to take care of the men gone forward; and we wish you all the prosperity and success the noble cause you are engaged in can merit.

We are, &c.

To Colonel Bedel.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COPPER COIN.

In the House of Representatives of New-Hampshire, }
March 13, 1776.

Voted, That a Committee be chosen, to join a Committee from the honourable Board, to confer upon the expediency of making Copper Coin, and make a report to this House.

Voted, That Captain Pierce Long, Jonathan Lovell, Esquire, and Deacon Nathan Balden, be the Committee for the above-mentioned purpose.

Sent up for concurrence.

P. WHITE, Speaker.

In Council, eodem die.—Read, and Mr. Clagett and Mr. Giles added on the part of the Board.

E. THOMPSON, Secretary.

The Committee humbly report that they find it expedient to make Copper Coin for the benefit of small change. And as the Continental and other bills are so large, that William Moulton be empowered to make so many as may amount to one hundred pounds weight, subject, when made, to the inspection and direction of the General Assembly before circulation; also, we recommend that one hundred and eight of said Coppers be equal to one Spanish milled Dollar; that the said Copper Coin be of pure copper, and equal in weight to English half-pence, and bear such device thereon as the General Assembly may approve.

WYSEMAN CLAGETT, Chairman.

ROYAL HIGHLAND EMIGRANTS.

Edinburgh, March 14, 1776.

An officer of the regiment of Royal Highland Emigrants, who is just come from Boston, to carry over arms and clothing for that regiment, informs us that, before he left Boston, in the beginning of February, the number of men raised for that regiment exceeded eight hundred; besides which, there were recruiting officers in certain parts of America, inlisting men; so that there is little doubt of the regiment being now complete. Thus has this regiment been raised under every disadvantage, in an enemy's country, the seat of war, and attended with great trouble, risk, and expense to Colonel Maclean and the other officers.

The following, we hear, are the gentlemen (mostly from half-pay) who are to command the twenty companies of which the regiment consists: Lieutenant-Colonel, Allan Maclean; Majors, John Smith, Donald Macdonald; Captains, William Dunbar, Alexander Macdonald, John Nairn, Norman Macleod, Colin Campbell, Allan Macdonald, Alexander Campbell, Duncan Campbell, Murdoch Maclean, Alexander Fraser, Malcolm Fraser, ——— Maclean, Ronald Mackinnon, Donald Macleod, ——— Grant, Allan Macdonald, Donald Macdonald.

JOSEPH SIM TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Prince George's County, March 14, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I find I was mistaken in my information to you respecting the Nottingham Company; indeed, the circumstances had escaped my memory. The choice of officers that had been made was well known to be disagreeable to the company in general, and many had declared if those gentlemen were promoted they would not continue in the company. It was therefore thought best to give the people a new election; which was the sole reason why there was no appointment in Convention. On the second meeting of the company for the purpose of choosing their officers, the gentlemen I mentioned to you, and which I was desired to do by them, were named; however, since receiving your letter enclosing Captain Bowie's commission, they have had, and lately, a full meeting of the company; and, in order to reconcile and satisfy all parties, they have agreed, and that with the consent of Messrs. Dorsett and Hoye, (and of which I am particularly requested to inform you,) that Mr. Robert Bowie be appointed First Lieutenant, Mr. William N. Dorsett Second Lieutenant, and Mr. Tho- mas Hoye Ensign. This, I am well assured, will give general content. But if Mr. Bowie should not be appointed First Lieutenant to this company, I am satisfied they will be in the utmost confusion; and as it is entirely agreeable to Messrs. Dorsett and Hoye, who desire nothing more than their first appointments, I shall hope to receive their respective commissions by the return of this post.

I am, gentlemen, with great regard, your most obedient servant,

JOSEPH SIM.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DANIEL BOWLEY.

[No. 58.]

Annapolis, March 14, 1776.

SIR: We have given the bearer hereof (Mr. William Houston) an order on Captain Tibbett for two thousand pounds powder and all the small-arms, with the accoutrements thereto belonging, that have been imported for this Province, in the Brig Wild Duck, which we desire you will have complied with; and any assistance Mr. Houston may want you will please to give him. In a few days you will have our full directions respecting the other goods imported for the Province in the said brig. In the mean time we would have you purchase, for account of the Province, all the private adventures of powder imported in the said vessel, at such price as our Delegates in Congress may advise, whom we desire you will consult thereon; and send the same to Baltimore Town, in the safest and most expeditious manner you can.

We are, &c.

To Mr. Daniel Bowley, Philadelphia.

TIBERIUS TO CATO.

Philadelphia, March 14, 1776.

Cato, if the designs which you, in your first letter, have laid to the charge of Committees are conceived or adopted by them, they are indeed very dangerous bodies of men, and you have done nobly in exposing them. But, sir, you ought to go further, and support the charge by facts, otherwise the accusation will not gain much credit upon the word of an anonymous author. What are the facts upon which the following charges stand? viz:

That a few have been aiming to destroy our Charter Constitution, and seize the Executive, as well as Legislative authority of the Province. In what instance, and by whom, has an attempt been made to intimidate our legal Representatives, or their patriotick exertions been misrepresented, and treated scurrilously? Upon what ground do you rest your charge against Committees of design to step into the seats of the Assembly? And wherefore have you intimated that baits of power have been thrown out by the people of this or some other Province, to lead individuals out of the line of their duty?

For these things you are answerable to the publick; and if you have ground for the charge, speak out, and speak boldly—do not be affrighted; the danger of speaking truth is not so great as you seem to fear. Use yourself to it, and you will soon be convinced, by experience, that there is little risk in it—the danger lies wholly in the uttering of falsehoods.

As to the account you give of the election of the Committee, it is evident you are mistaken; for wickedness itself, with a single grain of common sense mixed with it, would not have misstated the fact where it is well known, as you have done. It could have answered no purpose. And, as you may have occasion to mention these things again, give me leave, sir, to remind you that, on the 18th of June, 1774, a Committee was appointed by the publick voice for the purpose of taking into consideration the general state of publick affairs, and sat, with the Committees of the Counties, in General Convention; where the whole state of our publick affairs, (so far as related to the present controversy,) was considered and determined upon. The Convention recommended the continuation of Committees throughout the Province; and authorized the Committee of Philadelphia to call another Convention when they should judge it necessary. In consequence of this recommendation, an election was advertised by the Committee first chosen, to be held on the 12th of November. Hereupon, a question arose on the mode of election—whether it should be by publick voice, poll, or ballot. And it was determined at a publick meeting, called for that purpose, that it should be by ballot. Two tickets were, by the then two parties, made out, printed, and handed to the publick for their examination and amendment. At the day of election five hundred and seventeen voters, besides the voters from the District of Southwark, gave in their votes; and, upon counting them off, there appeared to be four hundred and ninety-nine for one ticket, with very few exceptions to any one name; and eighteen only for the other ticket—a majority so clear and so evident, that there could not be a doubt how the election would go; which rendered it unnecessary for the voters to turn out so generally as they otherwise would have done. As the conduct of the Committee then chosen had the approbation of all the friends to the present opposition to the wicked measures of Great Britain, at the two following elections few alterations were made, and the persons proposed were so generally approved, it would have been unnecessary to have voted at all, but for the formality and name of the thing. You are also greatly mistaken in the number of voters for the present Committee, and I would set you right herein, if it were at all material in the case. But if you know anything of our elections, you must know that the circumstance of having but a few voters is common in our elections, even for Assemblymen and Burgesses, where there is little or no change proposed, or where the new candidate has the voice of the people generally in his favour. You are undoubtedly right in your observation, that attempts of unjustly acquiring power should be equally restrained in the lowest as in the highest; and the observation points out the necessity there is for the middle class of men constantly to watch both these orders, and rigorously to exert themselves in the defence of liberty; for upon their conduct will for ever depend the liberty of mankind.

But if your other charges and insinuations are as unjust and groundless as the insinuations respecting the Committee, whatever declarations of regard to order, Government, Charter rights, and liberty, which you may make; and whether your complexion be black, brown, or fair, your conduct and sentiments will resemble a modern (more than an ancient) Cato, who will consent to live a slave rather than to die free.

TIBERIUS.

PLAIN HINTS.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

Nothing can be more surprising than the great chain of events which have taken place in the American Colonies within the small compass of a few years. Possibly no instances occur in the history of mankind in which the universal opinion has been more frequently opposed. It is no wonder, then, that we now find ourselves at a loss where to fix. That the King can do no wrong; that the interests of Great Britain and the Colonies were the same—reciprocal and inseparable; that she could not injure us without injuring herself, and therefore we were safe; that she was a tender parent, in whom we might confide implicitly; that she was the grand support of freedom and the Protestant religion; that the King was imposed upon by his Ministers; that a change in Administration would rectify evils complained of; that the abilities and weight of our friends in Parliament would prevent extremities; that our friends throughout the nation would return a better Parliament than the last; that the act declaring their right to tax us in all cases whatever would not be carried into execution, but remain a harmless letter; that the several repeals and seeming alterations in their plan of conduct proved a relinquishment of any evil intentions; that the power of Britain was such as we could not oppose through one single campaign; that our Provincial Troops could not face the regularity and discipline of British forces; that we have no resources to carry on a war; that jealousies and opposition of interests would ever prevent a junction of the Colonies;—these, and a thousand other opinions in succession, have taken full possession of us; and, after a little while, we have found ourselves obliged to relinquish them. They were the grafts which might be expected to grow from that attachment to, and veneration for, the idea we had been taught to form of the wisdom, justice, and tenderness of Britain. It has also been supposed that we are so connected with, and dependant on, Great Britain, that repeated injuries, committed with an avowed intent to do them, and more; and that plundering, murder, executions, and conflagrations—in short, that all the havock of halters, fire, sword, and famine—cannot destroy the debt of gratitude and justice we owe to that State, or make it our interest to dissolve the connection.

Let us examine this matter. Possibly the facts on which this opinion is founded may bear the inquiry not much better than the facts referred to above.

It is said we are indebted to Great Britain for the settlements of the Colonies. The truth is, when they were discovered, it was the effect of accident, concurring with the disposition of the hardy adventurer. The settlement was made by persons who had no great reason to be obliged to King or Parliament—they were persecuted at home, and retired from mankind to a wilderness. There they suffered much, and risked all. If they obtained grants from the King, it could be only of security from further oppressions of his hand. More he could not grant. Even this was, for a while, refused. The land was inhabited by natives to whom God had given the property and dominion. Of these natives the property was bought by the settlers, who cleared the country, cultivated the soil, and grew and prospered in the arts and in Government, without any expense to the King or Parliament of Britain. It is said we are indebted to Great Britain for protection from our foes. It should be said, we have to charge Britain with all the foes and wars we ever had. In the infancy of the Colonies, they were thought of little value, not worth contending for. The very settling of them has been treated with neglect and contempt. Then they were in no danger. When their consequence afterwards became more apparent, (and, indeed, from their first origin to the present time, they have been so much advanced in population, wealth, and every advantage, as to be under no apprehensions from any of their neighbours; and had they, at any intermediate period, extended their trade generally to all parts of Europe, it is possible that the interest of every part in our commerce might have prevented any one power from oppressing or injuring us;) even Britain herself would have found it her interest to protect our peace and trade. But our forefathers were fond of the pageantry of a King, and attached to the country that gave them birth. They chose the King of England to be their supreme head, and flattered themselves that, though they were persecuted at home, yet, that he would leave to them peace, liberty, and safety, in the wilderness. Thus we have been involved in every British war. Even a dispute in Hanover was sufficient to deluge America in blood; and, till the year 1756, no war had any particular reference, in its principles, to American interests. Nor ought we to be charged with even that. However, the Parliament of Britain has done us the justice to acknowledge we then overdid our proportion, and they have refunded accordingly. In all instances, our coasts have, by them, been left unguarded, and our frontiers defenceless. When France and Spain scoured our shores because we were connected with Britain, we have been left without a single ship-of-war. When we trafficked with the Indians back for their land, or for peace, or repelled their incursions, it was at our own expense, though, in many cases, they were set on us by the foes of Britain. Shall any commercial advantages which we have enjoyed be urged as a ground of gratitude or retribution? Let the most zealous advocate for continual dependance on Britain point out a single instance of preference given by that Court to the American trade if he can; and while he hunts the rusty records in vain for any such, let him not turn over, unnoticed, the numberless acts passed to restrict our free commerce, to clog with impositions and duties, to discourage manufactures and employments for our poor, and to give advantages, at our cost, to the lordly West-Indians. In a few words, the Colonies have paid more to Britain, in a course of trade, (by giving a greater price for goods of inferior value, &c., than if they had gone to other European markets,) than any claims the British partisan can feign.

It is said that, under this connection and dependance, we have grown and thriven. That we have thriven amazingly, is true. The present state of these Colonies is the admiration of all who have given attention to the progress of mankind, of arts and sciences. But was it because our trade was restricted? Was it because we have never, as men, had the full improvement of our lands and property in our power? Was it because, as societies or Governments, we had not the full and complete powers of legislation among ourselves? Let this account be fairly stated. Let us only make an experiment of an open trade for half the time we have shackled ourselves with confinement to, as it were, one port. Let us try what improvements we may be drawn into by a general correspondence with the whole world—with people who will require from us every different article our lands, our different climates, can produce; and from whom may be had directly, at first hand, every requisite for us. Let us have access to the lowest and best market for every commodity. Let this be the case but for half the time the Colonies have already existed, and the doubts, and struggles too, concerning independence, will be at an end. Let all those people who are now groaning under oppression and poverty in Europe know that America has become an asylum for the injured, and is capable of giving encouragement to the industrious and skilful in every art and business of life; and perhaps the most sanguine expectations would fall vastly short of the multitude of honest, active, and ingenious citizens who would, in a few years, flock into this country. America has been hitherto little known abroad. Even our brethren in Britain (whom we left but a few years ago, and with whom we have a constant intercourse) know but little of us and our situation. The other parts of Europe must have been inconceivably less acquainted with it. The case is now greatly altered. Our late transactions have attracted the attention even of the common people of most of the European States. The lovers of liberty abroad have their eyes turned towards us. Even to the head of the Rhine, it is said, they applaud our virtuous efforts, and wish us success. The fruits of our success they will wish, with us, to enjoy. A free and general intercourse will throw the doors of information and opportunity open. Possibly it might not totally depopulate the Old World, but, without doubt, it would multiply the millions now in this new one. Let it be granted we have grown under the connection and dependance contended for: are we, therefore, involved in a debt even of gratitude? Be it so. What obligations, then, is Britain under to us? Our connection with them has been acknowledged to be of the utmost consequence to their trade—to their well-being. This is the language of their best writers on commerce, and of almost every act of Parliament in which America is mentioned. Before they had Colonies, what was their fleet? How great was their dependance on other nations for the most necessary articles to carry on a war, even for their own defence, and for their manufactories? It has been said by themselves that one person in America supported four in Britain. Allow one in Britain to be supported by every person in America, and so striking an instance cannot be named in which we have received benefits from her. It is not necessary to depreciate the advantages derived from the connection; let it be only understood that they have been reciprocal, and, at least, equal on the part of Britain. This destroys the idea of any debt or any duty. As of inferiors, if a religious submission to this connection has rendered our growth and prosperity less flourishing than they would have been in a general connection, it can only be compared to the situation of a tree in a little earth between two rocks, which, though it looks fair, and grows to a certain size, yet, had it been able to spread its roots, and imbibe the nourishment of an extended soil, might soon become the largest tree in the forest.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO CONFER WITH GENERAL LEE.

[Brought in March 14, 1776.]

The command of the passage of the Sound must be ours. This, I imagine, is already effected by the works thrown up at Horn's Hook; but as a further security, batteries and a redoubt must be erected on the other side, either on Montresor's Island, or on the continent of Long-Island, as the Engineer and succeeding General shall determine. These additional works are not solely meant to shut up to the enemy the passage through the Sound, but to secure a free, open, and easy communication to our own troops, between the continent of New-York and Long-Island. As the city of New-York is almost environed by navigable waters, it is undoubtedly very difficult to fortify it against a powerful sea armament; but still I am of opinion that, although troops cannot easily be prevented landing under the guns of their shipping, they may be prevented lodging themselves in it, or converting it into a great place of arms, as they have done Boston.

The East-River, I am almost persuaded, may be secured in such a manner that their ships will scarcely venture into it, or at least they cannot keep their stations when in. A battery for this purpose is planned, and in some forwardness, at the foot of the Jews' Burying-Ground. To protect this battery from the near approach of ships, (which, when close, are always supposed to be an overmatch for batteries level with the water, and in a low situation,) guns in barbet, placed on the heights of the Jews' Burying-Ground, when in correspondence with a battery I have ordered on an opposite commanding knoll in Long-Island, will certainly be sufficient. These two fires will likewise be crossed by a third, of a very considerable range, from a work in the front of our intrenched camp on Long-Island; which work is likewise answered by a battery sunk in a cellar on the opposite wharf. Such is our plan with respect to the East-River.

Having attentively examined the fort and great batteries under it, and considered whether they could be of any possible use to us, I am of opinion that, as ships of great burden can approach so near the latter, it will be dangerous, if not impracticable, to support them. The fort cannot, for the same reason, be defended. But although it is not possible, in our hands, to render it a fortification of offence against the enemy, it might, in their possession, be converted into a citadel, to keep the town in subjection. These considerations have induced me to throw down the North-east and North-west Bastions, with the communicating curtain; so that, being entirely open behind, and a commanding traverse thrown across the Broadway, with three guns mounted, it is impossible for the enemy to lodge themselves in and repair the fort.

The North-River is so extremely wide and deep that it is in vain to think of any means to prevent the men-of-war commanding the navigation of it; but it does not appear to me that they have it in their power to annoy dangerously the town, much less to destroy it. It is true an accidental shell may do great mischief; but the effects of their cannon are not, I think, much to be apprehended, for there is a most fortunate ridge or eminence, which not only serves as a screen of protection for the town, but on which any number of batteries may be erected, to keep the ships at a distance.

I must observe, once for all, that New-York, from its circumstances, can with difficulty be made a regular tenable fortification; but it may be made a most advantageous field of battle—so advantageous, indeed, that if our people behave with common spirit, and the commanders are men of discretion, it must cost the enemy many thousands of men to get possession of it. The streets must be traversed and barricaded, so as to prevent their coming on our flanks; and three redoubts thrown up on the three eminences: Judge Jones's, Bayard's Hill, and either Lispennard's or Halderman's house, on Hudson's River. But these measures are not to be confined to the town. The whole Island is to be redoubted in certain regular steps, if I may so express it, quite to King's Bridge. These redoubts, redans, or fliches, are easily thrown up, and are no expense.

The leading roads from Hudson's River, whence the enemy can alone approach, must be obstructed to artillery. King's Bridge must be strongly fortified, to preserve the communication free and open with Connecticut, on which Province you can alone depend for succors of men; for the breadth and depth of the North-River renders the communication with Jersey too precarious.

The possession and security of Long-Island is certainly of still greater importance than New-York. I have accordingly marked out a camp, fortified by a chain of redoubts, mutually supporting each other, and which, also corresponding with the batteries on the New-York side, will prevent the enemy's entering or remaining in the East-River. This camp is intended to contain four or five thousand men. Upon the whole, for the defence of Long-Island and New-York, eight thousand, at least, regular troops, will be necessary.

With respect to the fort on Hudson's River, in the Highlands, I must refer the Congress to the report of Captain Smith, who was sent up to examine, and who is extremely capable to judge and advise.

I have now, in a military capacity, to the best of my recollection, mentioned every circumstance relative to the defence and security of New-York and Long-Island. But I think it my duty to observe that all these measures will be totally fruitless unless some precautions are taken with respect to the professed enemies of American liberty, nested in the very spots where they can do the greatest mischief—Queen's County and Staten-Island. The bonds they have given are too ridiculous to be mentioned. The Association they have signed they consider as forced upon them; and, consequently, null. When our troops are obliged to remain inactive from want of arms; when, from this deficiency, the Canada expedition is at a stand, and New-York and Long-Island left open to the invasions of the enemy, is it not a most dangerous neglect and omission, or rather unaccountable infatuation, to suffer considerable bodies of avowed foes to be possessed of arms for your destruction? What possible advantage can result from such a false delicacy? I would therefore humbly propose that the inhabitants of Staten-Island should, without loss of time, be disarmed, and their arms delivered to some regiment already raised, but unfurnished with muskets.

I do not imagine that the disarming the Tories will incapacitate them from acting against us, as they can easily be supplied by the ships. I should, therefore, think it prudent to secure their children as hostages. If a measure of this kind (hard as it may appear) is not adopted, the children's children of America may see the fatal omission.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONELS SHEA, MAGAW, IRVINE, AND DAYTON.

Philadelphia, March 14, 1776.

SIR: The state of New-York requiring an immediate reinforcement, I have it in command from Congress to direct you immediately to march your battalion to New-York, and put yourself under the commanding officer of the Continental Troops there. For expediting your march, you are to send forward one or two companies at a time, and let the rest follow at the distance of one day's march.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

(To Colonel John Shea, of the Third Battalion of Pennsylvania Troops, Philadelphia; Colonel Robert Magaw, of the Fifth Battalion of Pennsylvania Troops, Philadelphia; Colonel William Irvine, of the Sixth Battalion of Pennsylvania Troops, Carlisle; Colonel Elias Dayton, of the Third Battalion of New-Jersey Troops, Elizabethtown.)

LEWIS OGDEN TO LORD STIRLING.

Newark, March 14, 1776.

MY LORD: On receipt of your letter last evening, the Committee of this town immediately gave orders for making a detachment of one hundred and fifty men from the Second Regiment of Militia, of this County, to be marched to New-York, for the service requested by you. We also sent a deputation from our Board to the Committee at Elizabethtown, to inform them what we had done, and request that they would furnish one hundred and fifty men; they have agreed to do it. Our men will be ready to march tomorrow, or next morning at the farthest. We have written by this conveyance, to the New-York Provincial Congress for information whether quarters, provisions, and pay, are provided; and as soon as we get their answer that such provision is ready, our men will march.

I am, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient servant.

By order of the Committee:

LEWIS OGDEN, Chairman.

To the Right Honourable William Earl of Stirling, Brigadier-General of the Continental Troops at New-York.

STEPHEN CRANE TO LORD STIRLING.

Elizabethtown, March 14, 1776.

MY LORD: Your Lordship's letter of yesterday is before us; in answer to which, we beg leave to observe, that this Committee have no right to send a detachment of our Militia out of the Province. Besides, had we this right, your Lordship knows the defenceless state of this Colony. The arming the two battalions in the Continental service hath drained us of our best arms; and in case a descent should be made on New-York, we should be liable to continual incursions of the enemy.

I am, my Lord, your most obedient humble servant.

By order of the Committee:

STEPHEN CRANE, Chairman.

To Lord Stirling.

COLONEL DAYTON TO LORD STIRLING.

Elizabethtown, March 14, 1776.

MY LORD: Your letter of the 10th instant I received yesterday, and shall continue to use my utmost endeavours to put my regiment into the best condition for marching as soon as possible. The companies of Captains Bloomfield, Dickison, and Potter, have passed muster; the other companies (at least some of them) I have, are nearly full. The scarcity of arms in this Province (a difficulty of which your Lordship is well aware) will much retard the equipping of this regiment. The Militia are now more than ever unwilling to part with their arms, and few of the soldiers, I fear, are supplied. Major Barber and myself, when at Philadelphia, informed the Congress, by a memorial, of this difficulty, and prayed for a small supply of arms, which at that time had arrived there; but did not succeed. I intend to make a second application, in which I hope to be successful.

I beg leave to assure your Lordship of every exertion in my power to equip the regiment in the most speedy manner, as also to congratulate your Lordship on your late promotion—a promotion which, I doubt not, gives universal satisfaction, but especially, my Lord, to your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

ELIAS DAYTON.

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Stirling, New-York.

DAVID MATTHEWS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

SIR: I enclose you a letter from Mr. Francis Dashwood, Secretary to the Post-Office, directed to me, requesting that I would procure a permit for him, John Antill, and Henry Bull, to go on board the Swallow packet. If the Congress think proper to grant such a permit, and will be pleased to send it to me, I will deliver it to Mr. Dashwood.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

DAVID MATTHEWS.

To Colonel Woodhull.

General Post-Office, New-York, March 14, 1776.

SIR: I received the enclosed from Mr. Foxcroft yesterday evening, and request you will be pleased to procure us some means of getting on board, that the inhabitants may have their letters, which they otherwise cannot.

I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

FRANCIS DASHWOOD, Secretary.

To David Matthews, Mayor of the City of New-York.

N. B. Clerks belonging to the office: John Antill, Esq., and Mr. Henry Bull. F. D.

On board the Swallow Packet-Boat, March 13, 1776.

SIR: On receipt of this, I desire you will immediately come on board, with the Clerks of the Office, to assist in sorting and taking an account of the letters, in order for their immediate delivery.

I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN FOXCROFT.

To Francis Dashwood, Esq.

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

DEAR SIR: In consequence of a message I sent yesterday afternoon to the Convention of this Province, a Committee was appointed to confer with me on the necessary measures for the defence of this city, the result of which is contained in the enclosed papers. From every circumstance, it appears probable that General Washington will not have occasion for more powder than what he was possessed of when the express left him, and the six tons which passed through this place last week, and some small parcels arrived at Eastern ports. The quantity of powder at this place does not exceed three tons.

These considerations, and the probability of a visit from the enemy, have induced me to stop seven tons of powder which arrived here yesterday evening, under the care of George Tudor, on its way to Cambridge. This measure is the occasion of my sending this express, in order that, if I have done wrong, it may be rectified as soon as possible, and another provision of powder be made for this place. However, not much time will be lost by this measure; for the powder is in a most shameful condition—the casks, many of them, have their heads stove in, and the staves all racked asunder. One half of it would be lost before it could proceed fifty miles in its present state. I have ordered the whole of it to be put in good, dry, tight casks. I now also send a copy of the orders I have issued since I received General Washington's letter, which will best show the steps taken for the defence of this place. I intended this morning to have begun the fortifications on Bayard's Hill and at the Hospital; but the storm at present prevents our proceeding. As soon as the weather permits, those works, and barricading the streets, will employ us.

I am, most respectfully, your most obedient humble servant,

STIRLING.

Regulations agreed to for the defence of the City of NEW-YORK, between Lord STIRLING, General of the Continental Troops, and a Committee of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of NEW-YORK.

Lord Stirling has already ordered Colonel Dayton, with the Third Regiment of New-Jersey Troops, and also six companies of the Second Battalion of Pennsylvania Troops, immediately to proceed to this city. He has also written to the Chairman of the Committees of six Counties in New-Jersey, to send at least three hundred picked men, well accoutred, from each; and has informed the President of the New-Jersey Congress of the intelligence received from General Washington, concerning the embarkation of the Ministerial Troops at Boston, and requested him to give us all possible assistance, on the supposition that those troops are destined hither. He has also ordered all the artillery to be put in the best order possible.

THINGS TO BE DONE.—1st. That all the inhabitants capable of fatigue be immediately employed on the fortifications of this city, as well as all the Negro men in the City and County of New-York.

2dly. To this end, that the commanding officer of each corps draw out his respective corps, and parade on the common at nine o'clock to-morrow morning, without arms, but provided with as many intrenching tools as they are possessed of, and that they take care to have all the Negro men in their respective districts turned out, provided in the same manner.

3dly. Lord Stirling informs the Committee of the arrival of a quantity of powder in this city, and that another quantity of powder is soon expected, both directed by the Continental Congress for the service of the Army at Cambridge. It is agreed that the forwarding the said powder be deferred till further orders of the Continental Congress; and that an express be immediately despatched to them by Lord Stirling on the subject.

4thly. It is agreed that it be recommended to the Provincial Congress to issue an order to the General Committee of New-York, to make immediate report of all the provisions and iron in town, and to prevent the exportation of either of those articles from the City and County of New-York, till further orders.

5thly. The Provincial Congress immediately authorize Dr. John Jones and Dr. Treat to purchase all the necessary Hospital medicines, and medicinal stores, and apparatus, in this city, which they shall think necessary, and make report of their doings without delay, and possess themselves of all the Hospital stores in the possession of Mr. Commissary Curtenius.

6thly. The Provincial Congress to issue immediate orders to the Committee of King's County, to order the inhabitants of that County to give assistance in fatigue to Colonel Ward, by turning out for the service at least one half of their male inhabitants, Negroes included, every day, to work at the fortifications in that County, and to take with them their spades, pick-axes, and hoes, and to begin work on Friday next.

8thly. That the Provincial Congress issue an order to the Committee for Cow-Neck and Great-Neck, for a like number of horsemen from Queen's County, to keep a look-out at Thomas Cornwall's, at Rockaway, for the same purposes.

9thly. That orders issue to the Colonels of the regiments in Orange, on the South side of the mountains, to draft out of their regiments one hundred men, to be immediately sent to this city, armed and accoutred in the best manner possible.

10thly. That the like orders issue to the Colonels of Westchester, for two hundred men, for the like purposes.

11thly. That the like orders issue to the Colonels of Dutchess, for two hundred men, for the like purposes.

Head-Quarters, March 15, 1776.

Ordered, That the Commissary of Artillery Stores do direct cartridges to be filled, to complete ten rounds for all heavy cannon fit for service, and twenty rounds for the field artillery. That all the case-shot that can be got for the several sizes be collected, and a return thereof be made.

That Captain Badlem do direct as many of the cannon as possibly can be completed, to be furnished with every necessary service.

Mr. Anthony Griffiths is appointed to direct the Laboratory, and he is to employ as many of the most expert persons he can procure, as he thinks necessary to carry on that department.

Ordered, That all the boats be suffered to pass and repass as usual.

The Town-Major, to-morrow morning, is to remove the prisoners, Vernon O. Craig, at the lower Barracks, and Gidney, Purley, Van Hazen, and White, from the upper Barracks, to close confinement in the city Jail, and to place four sentries around the prison from the upper Barracks for their security.

The Brigade Major of the New-England Troops is to increase the guards at the upper Barracks in proportion, to answer the above purpose.

All orders from the Head-Quarters are, by the Town-Major, to be communicated to the Chief Engineer and commanding officer of Artillery. An orderly man from the Artillery is to attend each of them.

All Field-Officers are to attend the parade; and whatever party consists of two hundred men, are to be inspected and attended to by a Field-Officer; who is requested to see the men of his party are kept alert at their duty, and to execute the work designed, which will be communicated through the Chief Engineer.

New-York, March 13, 1776.

SIR: You are hereby ordered to direct all the companies of the Second Battalion of the Pennsylvania Troops, of which you are Lieutenant-Colonel, which are not yet embarked for Albany, to proceed immediately to this city, where quarters shall be provided for them. You are to remain at this place till further orders.

STIRLING, Brigadier-General.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Allen, of the Second Regiment of Pennsylvania Troops.

ORDERS.

The commanding officer of every corps of the troops in this city, by whatever denomination they are distinguished, are to parade to-morrow morning at nine o'clock, in the common, without fire-arms, but with all the shovels, spades, pick-axes, and hoes, they can provide themselves with. All the male Negroes in town are to parade at the same time and place.

It is intended to employ one-half of the inhabitants every other day, changing, at the works for the defence of this city; and the whole of the slaves every day, until this place is put in a proper posture of defence. The Town Major is immediately to disperse these orders.

Four cannon, of thirty-two-pounders, two of eighteen-pounders, and two of twelve-pounders, are, to-morrow morning as soon as possible, to be sent over to Long-Island for the defence of the works there, to be placed as the Chief Engineer (Colonel Smith) will direct.

Four cannon, of thirty-two-pounders, to be placed at the battery at Coentie's Wharf.

Four cannon, of twelve-pounders, to the battery near Trinity-Church.

Four cannon, of thirty-two pounders, at the battery at the ship-yards.

The two brass field-pieces at Horn's Hook are to be sent to this town.

The streets are to be barricaded.

Bayard's Hill is to be fortified.

The Hospital is also to be fortified. Both these in the manner concerted by the General with the Chief Engineer.

The Chief Engineer is to attend the parade to-morrow morning, and distribute the men for fatigue as he judges most proper for these purposes, without further order. They are to be distributed in the same manner every day.

Lieutenant-Colonel Winds is appointed Colonel of the First Regiment of the New-Jersey Troops in the Continental service, and is to be obeyed accordingly.

It is highly necessary for the preservation and safety of this city that the utmost good order be observed. The troops are positively to be in their quarters according to the former order at tattoo-beating. The inhabitants of this city are desired at night to preserve the utmost quietness and good order in their walks through the city, lest the guards should mistake any other behaviour for an alarm. The alarm-posts in this city are to be as follows: The four companies of the First Regiment of New-Jersey, in the lower Barracks, are to assemble under cover of the parapet in their front; the four companies of the same regiment, in quarters, are to assemble in Dock-Street, between the white Guard-house, near the Exchange, and the lower Barracks; Colonel Waterbury's are to parade in the common, in the front of the Artillery. All the other troops in town are to assemble in the front of Trinity-Church, and there to wait for further order. The Artillery are to parade within the works in the front of Bridewell. As it is found that a number of people who, out of curiosity, come to look at the works carrying on, it is very inconvenient, and impedes the service. It is hoped they will suspend their curiosity; and the sentries are to be ordered that none but commissioned officers, and others who have real business, be suffered to go within the lines of the works.

[Morning Orders.]

Head-Quarters, New-York, March, 14, 1776.

The badness of the weather induces the General to suspend all labour abroad for this day. If the weather is favourable, they are to turn out to-morrow morning. In the mean time the Militia officers are to give their different corps full notice thereof.

Half-after ten o'clock.—As there is an appearance of clear weather, the whole are to parade at one o'clock, and proceed to the works designed them.

As the Provincial Congress have directed the Committee of King's County to order the inhabitants of that County to give assistance in fatigue to Colonel Ward, by turning out for the service at least one-half of their white male inhabitants, and the whole of their male Negroes every day, to work at the fortifications on Long-Island, and to bring with them their spades, pick-axes, and hoes, and to begin to work on Friday morning next; Colonel Ward is desired to take charge and direction of said inhabitants, and to employ them in the best manner he can in executing the works laid out and to be laid out by the Chief Engineer.

Ordered that two of the upper middle rooms of the New Bridewell be allotted for the Laboratory, under the direction of Mr. Anthony Griffiths; and that he receive the powder, from time to time, as he shall want it, for filling all the cartridges ordered from Mr. Norwood, the Provincial Commissary of the stores. Colonel Smith's orders for anything in his department as Chief Engineer, and Captain Badlem's orders in his department, as commanding officer of the Artillery, for necessities in each, are to be complied with by the Storekeepers and Commissaries in the Provincial as well as Continental service.

The carpenters in the Militia, not yet employed in the publick works, are directed to parade by themselves on the right of their respective regiments, that they may be distributed at the several barricades.

All the commissioned officers willing to take the direction of building a barricade, are desired to meet Colonel Smith, the Chief Engineer, at the City-Hall to-morrow morning, at seven o'clock, and he will mark out their work for them.

Mr. Curtenius is to furnish spikes, and to deliver them, and tools accordingly, to the direction of the Chief Engineer.

As James Gilliland is, by the Provincial Congress, promoted to a commission in the Artillery, Hugh Walsh is appointed to take care of the working tools in his room.

Mr. Griffiths, Director of the Laboratory, is, as soon as possible, to get one hundred thousand cartridges made up, and put in boxes of one thousand each, to be ready to deliver to the regiments as occasion may require.

Head-Quarters, March 15, 1776.

The guards and parties of fatigue are to-morrow the same as ordered for this day.

The Barrackmaster is to provide quarters for four companies, consisting of three hundred men, from Essex County, in New-Jersey, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Ward, which are expected in this city to-morrow. The Quartermaster (Mr. Samuel Hays) is to apply to Mr. Abraham Livingston, the Continental Commissary of Provisions, for provisions for them.

Head-Quarters, March 16, 1776.

As Colonel Drake's Regiment of Minute-men consists of one hundred and eleven private men present, and yet have no less than four Field-Officers, two Captains, and thirteen other commissioned officers, and twenty-non commissioned officers, it is unreasonable to put the Continent to the enormous expense of maintaining so many officers for the use of so few men; it is therefore ordered that one Field-Officer, two Captains, four Lieutenants, two Ensigns, the Adjutant, and Quartermaster, eight Sergeants, eight Corporals, or two Drums or Fifes, and no other officer, do remain with that small part of the regiment; the other officers are to return to their County, in order to complete their corps. Colonel Swartwout and Lieutenant-Colonel Humphreys are to observe the same rule in proportion to their numbers, and they are all of them to send into Head-Quarters returns of their respective corps present.

For assembling the parties of fatigue the drums and fifes are to beat the Pioneer's March, and no other march whatever.

All the troops, as they arrive in town from the different parts of the Province, or from New-Jersey or Pennsylvania, are to be reviewed by Colonel Sears, and a return to be made of them agreeable to one delivered for that purpose; and, according to which, they are to receive provision from the Deputy Commissary-General of Provisions. The Town Major and Barrackmaster are to attend and see them furnished with necessities.

The commanding officer of every corps is requested to pay high attention to the cleanliness of their men, particularly in their quarters, which should be cleansed out at least twice a week; and are by no means to suffer heaps of filth to accumulate, especially in cellars, which, as the warm weather comes on, may be the cause of the most dreadful diseases.

Head-Quarters, March 16, 1776.

The guards and fatigue to-morrow the same as yesterday. Captain Pearson's Company, from Newark, is to take their part of service, both in guards and fatigue.

There is to be no conversation or communication suffered between the prisoners under guard in the city Jail, or in any other close confinement, and any person whatever, without leave from the commanding officers.

Head-Quarters, March 17, 1776.

Ordered, that a Captain, two subalterns, and fifty men be picked out of Colonel Winds's Regiment, who are daily to attend at the Laboratory and on the Commissary of Stores at the Bridewell.

Colonel Waterbury's Regiment to supply a sergeant and ten men to attend Mr. Commissary Hughes to Turtle-Bay. Colonel Smith's servant is to attend.

Such corps in town as have good Armourers or Cutlers, are desired to let them work with such Master-Cutlers in town as will be recommended by the Provincial Committee of Safety. The regulation of this matter is particularly referred to Colonel McDougall.

Lieutenant-Colonel Allen is desired to direct the companies of the Second Battalion of Pennsylvanians to proceed to Albany, according to the orders they formerly received from Congress. The guards and fatigue as usual.

New-York, March 17, 1776.

SIR: You have doubtless received all the intelligence which I have from General Washington, relative to the motions of the Ministerial Troops at Boston, and the situation of our troops which surround it. That General Howe intends to move this way with his Army, I think is highly probable. Many little manœuvres of Governour Tryon and the men-of-war near this place lately, seem to confirm it. I am taking every step in my power to be prepared for their reception, by fortifying every advantageous ground near this city and on Long-Island. But whatever may be the designs of General Howe, it appears from all intelligence received, that the Ministry are determined to make an effort to gain possession of this city; and I have therefore the orders of Congress, by all possible means to provide for the safety of it. I have also their direction to apply to the neighbouring Colonies for such part of their Militia or Provincial Troops as may be necessary, until the Continental Troops, destined for this service, do arrive here. The two regiments from Connecticut now here and at Long-Island, deserve the thanks of the publick for their good order, industry, and alertness; and I sincerely wish they could be prevailed on to stay while their services are necessary, as it would save time and pay to a prodigious amount, in the Continental service. But I understand many of them are farmers of property, who have families at home, and want to be there to mark out the work of their farms for the ensuing season. However, I will, with the Colonels Waterbury and Ward, endeavour to prevail with as many of them as possible to stay until they are relieved by others from your Colony, of which returns shall be sent to you as soon as possible. In the mean time I think it is highly necessary (and, I doubt not the least, your Excellency will carry it into execution) that recruits be raised to complete those two regiments to at least six hundred privates each; and that another regiment of the like strength be raised in your Colony if possible, on condition of serving the campaign, or as long as the service requires, and to be armed, accoutred, and clothed, as well as time will permit, and to march to this place as soon as possible.

I shall only add, that with the highest esteem and regard, I am your most obedient humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable Joseph Trumbull, Esquire, Commander-in-Chief of the Province of Connecticut.

COLONEL WINDS TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS

New-York, March 14, 1776.

SIR: I yesterday received yours of the 7th, enclosing a commission to me as Colonel of the First Battalion of New-Jersey Continental Forces. I beg you will return my thanks to your honourable House for the confidence they have placed in me, and assure them, as far as my abilities will admit my services shall never be wanting.

I think it my duty to acquaint you, that although neither I nor the regiment have the least personal objection to Mr. Ogden, who, I am informed, is appointed my Lieutenant-Colonel; yet a universal uneasiness has taken place with every officer in the regiment at his appointment, as they look upon themselves as slighted and injured by it.

If I might make use of the freedom, I would ask it as a particular favour to myself and the regiment, that this young gentleman's merit might be rewarded in some other way; as I am fearful myself and my regiment will otherwise be less serviceable to the general cause than I could wish.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most humble servant,

WILLIAM WINDS.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, President of the Continental Congress, at Philadelphia.

ALBANY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Albany, March 14, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Committee of the City and County of Albany to transmit you the enclosed resolves.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

MATTHEW VISCHER.

"Albany Committee-Chamber, March 1, 1776.

"Resolved, That Mr. Thomas Williams, Jun., be recommended to the honourable Provincial Congress for Quartermaster to the regiment to be raised in the Counties of Albany, Tryon, and Charlotte.

"Also, Resolved, That Mr. Peter A. Fonda be recommended for Adjutant to said regiment.

"Extracts from the Minutes:

"MATTHEW VISCHER, Secretary."

LORD STIRLING TO CAPTAIN WARNER.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

SIR: You are hereby authorized and required to take the person of James Boyd into your custody and bring him to this place, and have him before the Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety, with the evidence you have against him.

STIRLING, Brigadier-General.

To Captain John Warner.

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

SIR: Having received a deputation from Walter Livingston, Esquire, to act as Assistant Deputy Commissary of Stores and Provisions within certain limits, I think it necessary to acquaint the Congress thereof, and that I mean to act in that station until an order is produced from the Continental Congress to the contrary. All the troops in the Continental pay, be they from what place they may, fall within the limits of my appointment.

I remain, with much respect, your humble servant,

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON.

To the President of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York.

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON'S PROPOSALS FOR SUPPLYING THE ARMY IN THE COLONY OF NEW-YORK.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

The subscriber is willing to contract for the furnishing good and wholesome provisions, soap, and candles, agreeable to the rates allowed by the Continental Congress, at ten and a half pence per ration, and to give security for the performance of the contract; to furnish fire-wood at twenty shillings per cord, and straw at thirty shillings per hundred sheafs.

The provisions to be delivered in New-York. The expense of transportation, if it should so happen that the communication by water be cut off, to be borne by the publick. The Congress to advance the sum of £ . . . .

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON.

To the President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.

JACOB BAMPER TO JOHN McKESSON.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I am very sorry that I am so troublesome to you; but my inclination is so bent on going into the Army, that if you will be so kind as to recommend me to the gentlemen of the Congress for a Captain's or Lieutenant's commission, I will take it as a particular favour, and will do my best endeavours to serve in defence of my country. The reason of my troubling you is, because I know that a gentleman like you can do a great deal towards getting a commission for me. I dare to say that I can get a company in a little while; and remain your humble servant,

JACOB BAMPER.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress, held for the Province of NEW-YORK:

The Petition of WILLIAM GANDELL, of the City of NEW-YORK, Mariner, humbly sheweth:

That your Petitioner was born in, and still is an inhabitant of the City of New-York, and has followed the sea, both as master and mate, out of this port for some time last past.

That your Petitioner is well affected to the cause of his country, and is out of employ on account of the distressed times; and seeing no probable way of getting into business again to maintain his wife and children until matters are accommodated; and your Petitioner understanding that there is a vacancy for a Lieutenant in one or more of the Artillery Companies raised in this City, as also Masters and Lieutenants in the vessels on the Lakes, and likewise in those that are building up the North-River, he offers himself as a proper person to fill up either of the said vacancies.

Your Petitioner, therefore, humbly prays that this honourable House will take his case into their most serious consideration, and grant him a commission in either of the above-mentioned vacancies, as they in their wisdom shall think most proper. And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE OFFICER COMMANDING AT NEW-YORK.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 14, 1776.

SIR: I have stronger reasons, since I last wrote you, to confirm me in my opinion that the Army under General Howe is on its departure. All their movements pronounce it; but, lest it should be a feint, I must continue on my guard, and not weaken my lines too much, until I have a certainty of their departure. It is given out that they are bound to Halifax; but I am of opinion that New-York is the place of their destination. It is the object worthy their attention; and it is the place that we must use every endeavour to keep from them; for, should they get that town and the command of the North River, they can stop the intercourse between the Northern and Southern Colonies, upon which depends the safety of America. My feelings upon this subject are so strong, that I would not wish to give the enemy a chance of succeeding at your place. I shall, therefore, despatch a regiment and some independent companies of riflemen this day; and to-morrow, or as soon as it conveniently can be done, five more regiments will set out from this camp. I cannot part with more while the enemy remains in sight; but I have written to Governour Trumbull to send you two thousand men as soon as he possibly can. If you can get one thousand from New-Jersey, with the Militia of the country called in, (if not repugnant to the Congress,) I think you can make a sufficient stand until I can, with the main body of this Army, join you, which you may depend upon will be as soon as possible after I can, with any degree of certainty, tell their route. The plan of defence formed by General Lee is, from what little I know of the place, a very judicious one. I hope, nay, I dare say, it is carrying into execution with spirit and industry. You may judge from the enemy keeping so long possession of the town of Boston, against an Army superior in numbers, and animated with the noble spirit of liberty—I say you may judge by that how much easier it is to keep an enemy from forming a lodgment in a place, than it will be to dispossess them when they get themselves fortified. As I have in my last told you that the fate of this campaign (of course the fate of America) depends upon you and the Army under your command, should the enemy attempt your quarter, I will dwell no more thereon; though the vast importance of the subject would make an apology for repetitions needless.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Officer commanding the American Forces at New York.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LEE.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 14, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am indebted to you for your three several favours, which I should have acknowledged sooner, had not the great hurry and bustle we have been in for several days past prevented. You have doubtless heard, before this time, of our being in possession of Dorchester Hill, which important business was executed in one night, without any loss. The enemy were thrown into the utmost consternation when they perceived, the next morning, what had been effected the preceding night, and made preparations to dislodge us. Three thousand men, under the command of Lord Percy, were drafted for this service; but a very heavy storm of wind and rain frustrated their design—in my opinion the most fortunate circumstance for them, and unfortunate for us, that could have happened, as we had everything so well prepared for their reception, that I am confident we should have given a very good account of them.

I was just about to congratulate you on your appointment to the command in Canada, when I received the account that your destination was altered. As a Virginian, I must rejoice at the change; but as an American, I think you would have done more essential service to the common cause in Canada. For, besides the advantage of speaking and thinking in French, an officer who is acquainted with their manners and customs, and has travelled in their country, must certainly take the strongest hold of their affection and confidence.

You mention nothing of the guard that went with you from hence. Mr. Palfrey tells me you intend to take them with you. As it will create great confusion in the regimental accounts, and they can be of no great service to you, I must beg you will let them remain at New-York, where they will be soon joined by their respective regiments. I am much pleased with your plans for the defence and security of New-York. What you may leave unfinished, I shall order the commanding officer to complete as soon as possible. Lest the enemy should meet with favourable winds on their passage, and get there before our Army, I have written to Governour Trumbull, desiring him immediately to forward two thousand men, and have also requested one thousand from the Jerseys. This, with the force already there, I hope will be able to keep the Ministerial Army at bay until I can arrive with the main body. I most sincerely wish for your increase of health, and every blessing, and am, dear sir, your most affectionate friend and humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Lee.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MESHECH WEARE.

Cambridge, March 14, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 12th instant I just now received, and beg leave to assure you that the approbation which your honourable Council are pleased to express of my conduct respecting the operations against the town of Boston, afford me the highest satisfaction.

I am exceedingly sorry that it is not in my power, at this time, to comply with your requisition for powder, and to make a return of what was generously lent for the Continental use. The low state of stock of that article will not allow me to spare the smallest quantity; but, hoping that I may get a further supply before long to enable me to do it, I shall be much obliged if you will favour me with an account of what you have furnished, that it may be replaced as soon as circumstances will admit of it.

I am, sir, with much respect, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable Meshech Weare, President of the Council of New-Hampshire.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Winter-Hill, March 14, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose you a list of the regiment under Colonel Waldron, with the arrangement of the officers, and desire you to forward the commissions as soon as possible. I have the satisfaction to inform you that Colonel Waldron's was the first complete regiment on the spot; and is by far the largest and best that came from either Colony. His Excellency consented to keep the nine companies, rather than break them. They are allowed, by all who do duty with them, to be excellent officers and soldiers—always willing to do their duty with the utmost cheerfulness. They are quiet, peaceable, and obedient; and though much fault was found with my proceedings in selecting the officers, I must now take the liberty of boasting of my judgment in the choice, and can call the whole brigade to witness in my favour.

I hope, gentlemen, the cruel and ungenerous reflections upon my conduct, thrown out by some persons among you, did not proceed from that envious disposition, which too often proves the destruction of an infant State struggling for freedom. I sincerely wish that those zealots, who thought I had taken too much upon myself, had exerted themselves to fill up the Canada Regiment with as many good men as I have got in this, and not have left us to lament the want of assistance to our distressed friends in Canada, and to view with concern a regiment not half completed, which ought to have marched three weeks ago. I am now ordered to march for New-York in a few days: those persons will then have no more fear of the destruction of their liberties from a person who has spent more money, undergone more fatigue, and oftener risked his life, than any other person in your Province; and all this to secure that freedom which those gentlemen would persuade the world I am endeavouring to destroy. Gentlemen, I wish your Colony all possible happiness, and would do everything in the power of man to secure its freedom, and even feel a disposition to serve those few inveterate foes of mine that yet remain among you, and convince them that no person would do more in the cause of freedom than your most obedient servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety.

CAPTAIN SALTER TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE ASSEMBLY.

Fort Washington, March 14, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeably to your instructions, I have posted a guard on Fort-Point, at New-Castle, with orders frequently to go up to the top of the Light-house, and diligently to observe if any ships appear sailing towards this port; and, on discovery of the same, to make me acquainted, that I may transmit the information, without loss of time, to your Honours or the General.

I had, previous to your instructions, consulted with Captain Eliphalet Daniels, and agreed with each other the proper signals in case of the approach of the enemy; and on the same account each fort has erected a flag-staff, and proper signals to be given, which will alarm both town and country in case of any surprise; but shall, gentlemen, send you up the speediest despatch, should any enemy appear. Our signals for an alarm will first be by firing a four-pounder from Captain Daniels's fort towards the town, and then to be answered by me.

I am, with every degree of respect, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

TITUS SALTER.

TO THE PEOPLE OF VIRGINIA.

Much has been said concerning the independence of the Colonies; and some people have been made to believe that such a state is not desirable, and that we should wish for no more liberty than we enjoyed in 1763. But let any man consider that, at that time, we were restrained from making nails and hats, and might, with equal justice, have been hindered from building houses, or making stockings; that we were cruelly and wantonly restricted in our trade—in some instances, as it were, merely to show that we were the slaves of Britain. Although the English cannot make wine, raise silk, grow olives, citrons, oranges, or lemons, yet we were forced to buy these articles of them only, and were not suffered to purchase them of the French, the Spaniards, or Italians; and although all Europe, to the northward of Cape Finisterre, had been starving for want of grain, and we had it in our power to supply their wants, yet we were not permitted to do it. Our tobacco trade was wholly engrossed by English merchants; they alone had the privilege of selling this invaluable article of our commerce to the Dutch, French, Spaniards, Portuguese, and to the different States up the Mediterranean. The King nominated all officers, civil and military; had the power of repealing all our laws, however necessary to our security and happiness; and the present King has wantonly and cruelly exerted that power in repealing an act of our Assembly, for obliging ships to perform quarantine; and another for preventing the further importation of slaves, by laying heavy duties on such as should be imported. The King, by his instructions to his Governours, could dissolve our assemblies at pleasure, without assigning any reason for so doing, as he has frequently done. He had a right to keep any number of troops or ships in our Colonies; which right he will never give up. He could build forts on our frontiers, and garrison them as he pleased. This was our situation in 1763; and yet some people are weak enough to wish to be left as we were then, as they express it. But, good God! were we not abject slaves? We wanted but the name. Indeed, we were treated with some small respect; and it was not till 1763 that we were openly insulted and treated as slaves. The English have certainly looked upon us as slaves, or they would have carried on the war in a manner more becoming the character of their nation. They seem to think—as the masters of slaves in the West-Indies do—that no method is unjustifiable by which they can suppress an insurrection; nor any punishment too severe to be inflicted on revolted slaves. Our masters in Britain, though they made us labour and toil for their emolument, yet did not attempt to take from us the little we had been permitted to earn for ourselves. In this respect, they were as indulgent to us as we are to our poor slaves; but this they evidently looked upon as an instance of their indulgence, moderation, and forbearance; for they have declared in both Houses of Parliament (and the Royal sanction has been given to the declaration) that they had, have, and of right ought to have, a power to make laws to bind us in all cases whatsoever; that is, that they are our Kings, Lords, and Masters. Well, then, may Lord North and General Burgoyne say, that they ask no more than that America should be in the situation she was in 1763. The truth is, the Ministry do not wish that we were more enslaved now than we were then; but they earnestly wish we would be as passive. Since this is the case, and we have not only been long oppressed, and, of late, grievously so, but have also been attacked by sea and land; our towns and private houses plundered and burnt; our property snatched from us; our countrymen dragged from their very beds to piratical boats, and hurried on board men-of-war; our negroes taken from our plantations, and many encouraged to leave their masters, and take up arms against them—several hundreds of whom are now in arms against us—and when we know that all of these have been invited to do so; when we know that an act of Parliament was passed to encourage the Canadians to attack us, and that a skilful and artful General was sent amongst them to lead them on upon us; and when we know what pains have been taken to prevail on the Indians to ravage our frontiers, (for no one is a stranger to General Carleton's, Dunmore's, and Connolly's plots.)—I say, since we know these things, who that is not a slave indeed—who that has any feelings, or the least spirit, is there amongst us that would hesitate a moment to declare he will no longer submit to such hard restrictions on his trade; that he will not suffer himself and his posterity to be so cruelly insulted and oppressed; and that he will be revenged of his inhuman plunderers and butchers? Who, when he finds it necessary to carry on the war we have entered into—a most just and holy war, and in which Heaven has peculiarly favoured us—who, I say, can hesitate a moment to make use of all the assistance he can procure to prosecute it with vigour? And can the war be carried on with any prospect of success without a trade, by which not only specie may be procured for the payment of the troops, and defraying all other expenses, but for the sinking of a load of paper money, which, in time, without an exchange for specie, must become of no value? A trade is absolutely necessary to procure clothes, blankets, nails, and even arms and ammunition, and as necessary to enable the planter and farmer to pay off their proportion of the taxes which must, in a few years, be collected; as well as to enable them to pay their mutual debts, and maintain their families. Foreigners ought, therefore, to be immediately invited to trade with us; but this they cannot openly do without engaging in the war against Britain; and it is not worth their while to incur the expense which must attend a war, unless they can be certain that they shall always enjoy the benefit of the trade for which they enter into the war. If they were once assured of this, there is no doubt we should enjoy, not only the benefit of a free and full trade, but should engage in our quarrel powerful allies—allies who are not only able to revenge us of our enemies, but who would do it with pleasure, to gratify their own revenge. England deserves this at our hands: she who, by our assistance, was raised to the highest pitch of glory to which any nation ever arose, has spurned at us; has levied a cruel war against us, calling in to her assistance Russians, Hanoverians, Canadians, Indians, and Negro slaves. I say, she deserves that we should declare ourselves independent of her, and call in to our assistance the French and Spaniards; and if we do this, we shall soon be amply revenged on her for her ingratitude and cruelty, and shall completely humble her pride, and exalt ourselves to a state of eminence and glory, and become the envy and admiration of mankind.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. V.

If our trade should be opened to France, Spain, and the Mediterranean, we should not only find a better market for our tobacco and grain of all sorts than we have ever yet met with, but we should readily procure all the necessities we may want; and the trade would introduce numbers of useful manufacturers and various artists. But, as it has been observed above, this trade cannot be procured without declaring ourselves independent States; nor the war prosecuted effectually without a trade, or, indeed, without a maritime ally. What friend to his country, or even to his family, would scruple a moment to declare for independence? If a powerful fleet and army should suddenly invade our country, and get possession of the lower parts of it, wasting it with fire and sword, and should totally put a stop to our trade, and, at the same time, should supply their armies from hence with provisions of every sort, and enable them to make a complete conquest of some other Colony, we should then wish we had called in the assistance of the French and Spanish fleets; or if, whilst we are most dutifully whining after our mother country, France should choose not to wait any longer for offers from the Congress, but should agree with England to share the plunder of America, what should we say for ourselves? But, God be praised, France has waited with patience; and it is not yet too late to ask assistance of her; and she seems prepared to give it; and, if she does, England must desist from her cruel plan of enslaving the Colonies, and will think herself happy to come in for a share of their extensive trade. So shall peace and harmony be restored to these distracted countries, which will become great and flourishing in commerce, arts, and sciences, and will flourish as long as they enjoy freedom, and practise virtue.

AN AMERICAN.

March 15, 1776.

G. MASON AND JOHN DALTON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fairfax County, Virginia, March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Being employed, by the Committee of Safety for this Colony, to fit out three armed cruisers and two row-galleys, for the protection of Potomack River, we have, in consequence thereof, bought three sloops, the largest of which (called the American Congress) will mount fourteen carriage-guns, six and four-pounders, and be manned with about ninety men. We are now raising the company of Marines, which will be completed in a few days. She has most of her guns mounted. The shot are now casting at a furnace in the neighbourhood; and if we had powder, she would be very soon fit for action. We wrote to our Delegates at the Congress, to purchase for us, in Philadel- phia, twenty barrels of powder, and forward it to us by land, to serve until we could get a larger supply; which they promised to do, so soon as it could be procured there; but none has yet come to hand, and we are very uneasy lest some of the enemy's cutters should come up this river, to destroy our vessels before they are in a posture of defence. As this equipment will be as beneficial to the inhabitants on the north side of the Potomack as to those on this side, we doubt not the disposition of your Board to promote it; and, under these circumstances, we take the liberty to apply to you for the loan of ten barrels of the powder lately imported for your Province in Captain Conway's vessel, now in the Eastern Branch of the Potomack, which shall be replaced out of the first powder we receive from the northward, or elsewhere. If ten barrels cannot be spared, even five or six barrels would be very serviceable, and might answer our purpose until the supply we expect from Philadelphia arrives.

We beg the favour of an immediate answer, and hope that the urgency and importance of the business will excuse the trouble we have taken the liberty to give you.

We are, with much respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

G. MASON,
JOHN DALTON.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

BENJAMIN MACKALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Calvert County, March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I left the mouth of Patuxent on Wednesday, where I saw Captain Thomas, who requested me (as he had no materials then to write with) to inform the Council of Safety that he thought a Virginia Pilot-Boat, which was stopped by our guard some days ago, would be very useful either for conveying the troops from Calvert to St. Mary's, or taking any small tenders which might come in our river; that the owner was very desirous of selling her; and that he would take a reasonable price, sooner than return to Virginia, as he was apprehensive of being taken. If you should be of opinion that such a vessel will be of any advantage to the Province, hope you will inform me or Captain Thomas by the first opportunity.

The Committee of Observation of this County met on Monday last, in consequence of your last letter, and empowered me to appoint a number, not exceeding one hundred men, to watch our coast; and as the man-of-war and tenders then lay at anchor off the cliffs, I thought it necessary to station a guard of seventy-eight men, exclusive of officers, to prevent their landing. Those men continued under arms till Wednesday, when I discharged all but two Lieutenants and twenty-five privates, who are now stationed at Drum Point, there to remain until Captain Beall's Company of Regulars comes down. The man-of-war and tenders passed the mouth of Patuxent on Tuesday evening.

I am, with great respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

BENJAMIN MACKALL, 4th.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

JAMES MURRAY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Cambridge, March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: From the sudden alarm which the sloop-of-war and her tenders have this week occasioned, it was thought necessary to order the Militia of this County on duty, to guard the frontier on the bay shore, &c., which they cheerfully complied with; but previous thereto, were under the necessity of making application for arms and ammunition. We were in hopes that, when it came to the test, we should find many of them prepared with private property in ammunition; but in this we find we were deceived. There remained with us a barrel of powder and some ball, sent from Newtown last fall by the Council of Safety, which we have distributed, though it appears to be very indifferent, and not such as we think men ought to hazard their lives with. This has gone but a small way in supplying the companies.

The people grow exceedingly clamorous. We have been under a necessity of distributing what little we have of private property; but the whole put together would scarce make three rounds apiece for the companies. To what lengths they may go, if not supplied, we cannot say; but fear when they find that, upon repeated applications, they are not supplied with the means of defence, they may despond, and tamely submit to such ravages as these barbarians may think proper to commit. From the late conduct of the men of our County, we have not the least doubt of their spirit and firmness, and are fully satisfied they will make a bold and resolute stand in defence of the liberties of their country, if properly furnished with arms and ammunition.

We are daily in expectation of another visit from the enemy, and have therefore thought it our indispensable duty to lay the weak and defenceless state of our County before you; not doubting but that, on your being thus truly informed of our situation, you will immediately order us such a supply of arms and ammunition as may be necessary for the defence of the County; as without it, we shall be under the dreadful necessity of submitting to such depredations as our enemies may think proper to commit.

It is currently reported and believed here, that the arms and ammunition for this Province are arrived at Philadelphia; and if this report is true, and we cannot, in our distressed situation, be more expeditiously supplied, we would undertake, by your directions, to send a wagon or two to Philadelphia for arms and ammunition, if you think proper to give an order for the delivery of them to us.

Captain Woolford has now upwards of eighty men of his company enlisted. They are a daily expense to the Province, and, in their present situation, of no real service, there being but one man of the whole that has a gun.

We beg leave to report to you, that Mr. Thomas Ennalls, nominated as the Supervisor of our Saltpetre Works, has refused to act. We have advertised for another, and as soon as the vacancy is filled, shall inform you.

We are, gentlemen, with regard and esteem, your obedient humble servants.

Signed by order of the Committee of Observation:

JAMES MURRAY.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. We have given Captain Woolford an order on Captain Robinson for the Province arms, which he received from the Committee of Observation of Kent County; and we hope soon to be able to completely arm his and the other Independent Companies stationed on your Shore.

Upon the late alarm, some powder was given into the hands of the Militia on this side the bay; and we fear it will be difficult to collect the greatest part of it again, and that too much of what remains with the people will be lost to the publick. We recommend it to you, therefore, to deliver to the Captains on the water side as much as you may conceive will be sufficient, (taking their receipts,) with orders not to distribute it among their respective companies until there is a real necessity; and to keep the residue in some convenient part of your County, where, upon any emergency, the other companies may be readily supplied.

JONATHAN BEALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Prince George's County, March 15, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Permit me to trouble you with these lines, on the arrival of gunpowder in Potomack, for the publick use, and to inform you of the great desire and expectation of the people that a part of it will be allotted to the use of this County, (particularly the Potomack part of it,) where the people much wish to be provided, as well as may be, from the apprehension of an armed force soon proceeding up the river to Alexandria, which, you know, lies about opposite to the centre of this County, on the Potomack side. We have five companies on this river in the Piscataway District, and four or five in that of Bladensburg.

The wisdom of the Council of Safety will direct the quantity, and how to be ordered in the disposition; but I will take leave to submit, whether it may not be thought best to have it lodged under the direction of the Committee of Observation at Bladensburg and Piscataway, presuming it will not be thought proper to deliver it into the hands of the people, for obvious reasons. I think there are some of the Captains on whose undoubted care dependance might be had; but I fear there are some others whose prudence on such occasions may be doubtful. This causes me to think of its being under the direction of the Committee of Observation in each neighbourhood where it is lodged, as the most proper method.

The people had begun to be somewhat dispirited, on account of want of arms and ammunition, especially the latter. There is an obvious change since the arrival of this powder, (the article most wanted,) from the expectation of their being furnished therewith. This being done, I make no doubt the inhabitants in these parts will prove as spirited as in any part of the Province.

They are on a sudden more active in getting their fire-arms in order, on this prospect of getting powder. We are busy casting bullets and buckshot, of which I believe we can make out fifteen or sixteen hundred pounds. We are also tolerably well off for gun-flints, the Committee having, last summer, purchased all the lead and flints they could lay their hands on. I am in hopes we can manage to have better than half of our people provided with fire-locks; but several of them can only be used for want of better. I wish we could be happy enough to be better furnished; but we must do the best we can. I know the gentlemen of the Council of Safety, and with a real pleasure can say I have a confidence in them, and that they will do the best in this, as well as every other part of their duty. I freely express these sentiments to the people. Your candour will not think there is any flattery in this declaration—there is really none. But I think it not at all improper to express myself freely, and shall do so more from your last letter. The information you there mention to have received from this County, I think must have a very slight foundation. Should the Council think it convenient to allot a pound of powder per man for the numbers in the several Potomack Companies, I believe it would have a great and good effect on the spirits of the people. As the companies on the Patuxent lie less exposed, there may not be thought so great an allowance necessary as on Potomack, where we must expect any attack on these parts most likely to be.

I would wish to be understood as to my sentiments of the powder being lodged under the direction of the Committees of Piscataway and Bladensburg, not to mean jointly; but that a part be lodged with each place, under the direction of those of the Committee of Observation in each neighbourhood, that no obstruction to the use, when required, may take place. But after taking the freedom to trouble you with so much, I submit the whole to the determination of the Council.

Please offer my best compliments to the worthy members of your able Council, and be assured (to you and them) I am, with real esteem, dear sir, your obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN BEALL.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

I hope to hear of your recovery from your late lameness. Several gentlemen, deserving attention in this County, have asked my mentioning them to the Council, as desirous of acting as officers in any other regular force that may be raised in this Province, either Continental or Provincial. The names follow, viz:

Luke Marbury, John Addison, Hezekiah Wheeler, Thomas Dent, John Beanes, William Duwall, Walter Cox, John Burgess. The three first are Captains in the Militia, and hope to have not a town commission. As above, &c.

M. GIST TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Having sundry accounts open against me for iron pots, ammunition-chests, making hunting-shirts, repairing houses for barracks, guard-house, &c., &c., the amount of which I cannot as yet ascertain, I have to request your order on the Treasurer for one hundred and fifty pounds, to discharge the above bills, which shall be accounted for by, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

M. GIST.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

N. B. The bearer, Lieutenant Winder, waits upon you for the order

M. G.

WILLIAM LUX TO DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER,
Baltimore, March 15, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Captain Nicholson is very desirous of having twenty Riflemen among his Marines, and has sent to Frederick, where he is likely to succeed. Of course he will want the rifles. They will cost six pounds apiece. Please to consult your Council, and let me know immediately, as Captain Brown has an offer of ten very fine ones, and the others can be got at Frederick.

I congratulate you on the arrival of the brig Wild Duck. I suppose you will want our part of the cargo. Mr. Bowley is gone to Philadelphia. As soon as I hear from him, I will wait on you, unless you come to Baltimore, which I believe is safest.

I am, honourable sir, your obedient and faithful servant,
WILLIAM LUX.

To the Honourable Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN NICHOLSON.
[No. 59.] Annapolis, March 15, 1776.

SIR: The spirited and prudent conduct which you manifested in repelling the late hostile attack on the persons and properties of your fellow-citizens, and defeating the designs and attempts of our invaders, give us real satisfaction, and entitle you to our thanks. We, therefore, with pleasure return them to you, and desire you will also communicate them to the volunteers that accompanied you, and the officers and men under your command, as our acknowledgments are likewise due to their gallantry.

We are, &c.

To Captain James Nicholson, Commander of the Ship Defence.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.
[No. 60.] Annapolis, March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have requested Mr. Bowley to purchase, on account of this Province, the private adventures of powder imported in the Wild Duck, Captain Tibbett, lately arrived in Delaware, at such price as you may advise. We therefore desire your assistance in that matter; and are, gentlemen,

Yours, &c.

To the Deputies of Maryland in Congress.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO NEW-JERSEY COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: From the intelligence lately received both from Boston and England, there is but too much reason to believe our implacable enemies are determined to bend their force against New-York, and endeavour to possess themselves of that important post.

The Congress have therefore thought proper to order Colonel Dayton's Battalion thither, and rely that you will exert your most strenuous endeavours in arming and forwarding them. But lest the enemy should come before our troops are prepared to receive them, or in case they should come with a superior force, the Congress have empowered the Continental commander to call in the aid of the Militia of that and the neighbouring Colonies, agreeable to the enclosed resolve; and I am directed to request you to hold your Militia in readiness to march in such numbers, and at such times, as he may desire.

The alertness and zeal you have hitherto shown, render it unnecessary to use any arguments to enforce this request. I trust, by the blessing of God, our united and spirited exertions will baffle the designs of our enemies; and, notwithstanding all their attempts, secure and preserve the liberties of our country.

I am, with respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable the Convention or Committee of Safety of New-Jersey.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As it is now apparent that our enemies mean to prosecute this cruel and unjust war with unrelenting fury, and as every intelligence assures us that they mean to bend their force against your Colony, I would not do you the injustice to suppose there will be any occasion to use arguments to stimulate you to exert your most strenuous endeavours to expedite the raising and arming the battalions ordered to be raised in your Colony for its defence.

Enclosed I send you the commissions for the Field-Officers. If any of them are provided for in Canada, they are to continue there, and others will be elected in their room. Such of them as are in Canada, and unprovided for, have orders immediately to repair to their respective regiments. Lest our enemies should come upon you before the Continental Troops can be in readiness to receive them, or in case they should come with superior force, the Congress have thought proper to empower the Continental commander at New-York to call to his assistance the Militia of your Colony, and that of Connecticut and New-Jersey, agreeable to the enclosed resolve. And I have it in command to request you to hold your Militia in readiness to march in such numbers, and at such time, as he may desire.

The Congress have ordered five tons of powder for the use of the troops employed in your defence, which will be forwarded with the utmost expedition.

The Colonel of the Third Battalion is not appointed, for reasons that will be mentioned by your Delegates, to whose letter I beg leave to refer you.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable the Convention of New-York.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO LORD STIRLING.

Philadelphia, March 15, 1776.

MY LORD: I had the honour of receiving your letters of the 12th and 13th, which were immediately laid before Congress.

Whatever may be the designs of General Howe, it appears, from all the intelligence received, more than probable that the Ministry will make an effort to gain possession of New-York. It is therefore the desire of Congress by all possible means to provide for the defence of that place. They have the satisfaction to find, by the report of a Committee appointed to confer with General Lee on that subject, that though the City of New-York cannot easily be made defensible against an attack by sea, yet it may be made an advantageous field of battle, and that, by works thrown up in proper places, the enemy may be prevented from gaining possession of it, and making it a place of arms. It is therefore the desire of Congress that you would exert the utmost diligence in erecting the works and perfecting the defences agreeable to the plan he left you.

By the enclosed resolves, you will perceive the Congress have voted eight thousand men for the defence of the Colony of New-York. Three battalions and a company of Riflemen from Pennsylvania, and one battalion from New-Jersey, are ordered to join you with all expedition. Colonel Irvine's Battalion and the Rifle Company are said to be completely armed. The rest are not so well provided as could be wished; but by the resolve for taking the arms out of the hands of the disaffected and non-Associators, it is hoped they may be soon supplied. As the tempest approaches, and threatens to burst upon them, I flatter myself the Convention of New-York will strain every nerve in speedily raising and arming the four battalions ordered to be raised there for the defence of their Colony.

Until these battalions can be got ready, the Congress approve your calling some Militia to your aid; and I am directed to request the Governour of Connecticut, and the Conventions of New-York and New-Jersey, to hold their Militia in readiness to march in such numbers, and at such times, as may be desired by the commander of the forces at New-York. This large power, I have no doubt, will be exercised with the greatest discretion as the exigence of affairs may require. The Congress have a just sense of the importance of defending New-York; but as they conceive this may be done by the means pointed out, they would not have the measures interrupted which are taken for accomplishing their views in Canada. I have it, therefore, in command, to direct you to order the troops destined for Canada to proceed on their march agreeably to their former orders.

I have the honour to be, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Right Honourable Lord Stirling, at New-York.

The enclosed letter for Governour Trumbull, I beg the favour you will immediately forward to him by a fresh express, and return to me the man I send to you as soon as your despatches are ready.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Philadelphia, March 15, 1776.

SIR: The intelligence received from sundry quarters puts it beyond a doubt that the Ministry have their eyes upon New-York, and mean by their troops to make a diversion there. Whether this will be done by General Howe, or by forces coming from Britain, is uncertain. But as that is a place of great importance, the Congress are anxious to devise means for its defence. For this purpose, they have ordered a number of battalions to be raised; but for want of the supplies expected from abroad, those that are raised are very deficient in arms. Measures, however, are taking to procure arms for them in another way. In the mean time, (lest an attack should be made before our forces are prepared to receive them, or in case the enemy should come with a superior force,) the Congress have thought it prudent to empower the Continental commander at New-York to call in the aid of the Militia from that and the neighbouring Colonies. And I have it in command, to request you, agreeably to the enclosed resolve, to hold your Militia in readiness to march in such numbers, and at such times, as he may desire.

The importance of the service, and the distinguished zeal you, sir, and the good people of your Colony, have discovered in this glorious struggle, give the strongest assurance that you will comply with this request, and exert your utmost efforts to repel our hostile invaders, and prevent them from gaining possession of a post from which they may so much annoy these Colonies.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem, honourable sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Governour Trumbull, at Lebanon, Connecticut.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO LORD STIRLING.

Philadelphia, March 15, 1776.

MY LORD: I had the honour of writing to you this morning. Since the express set off, I have received your letter of the 14th, which was immediately communicated to Congress. In consequence of which, I have it in command to direct you to send forward the powder destined for Cambridge, unless you have received express advice from General Washington that the enemy's fleet and army have quitted Boston, and sailed out of that harbour.

The five tons of powder which I mentioned in my letter of this morning, to be intended for the troops under your command, will be sent forward with all possible despatch.

I have the honour to be, my Lord, your Lordship's obedient humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Lord Stirling, at New-York.

JOSEPH REED TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, March 15, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: This morning your express arrived, with an account of the interesting events which have taken place since this month began. I beg leave to congratulate you on appearances so favourable to the interests of our country, and your own character; not that, in my opinion, it was the least clouded by your inactivity, as the causes were well known; but it is certain that enterprise and success give a brilliance and lustre, which cannot be unacceptable to a good mind. We shall be very anxious for further accounts, as these have left you at a critical period of suspense, when we are led to expect some very important change may soon happen.

I shall be careful of your confidential account of your Council of War. I wish the event may prove me mistaken, but I am strongly possessed with an idea that some members of your Council never will concur in any measure which leads to danger; and I think you will make less and less use of them in that way every day you are with them.

Thomas, I presume you know, is made a Major-General, and ordered to Canada, where old Wooster was throwing everything into confusion, and a superior officer was necessary to keep the peace. I do not much like their thus taking away the men on whom you may most trust; but your camp is considered as a school, and I fear the service will require all their separated attention and ability. I wrote you before, that General Lee was ordered to Virginia, Armstrong to South-Carolina, and Thompson to New-York.

We have everything to fear from the southward: a cursed spirit of disaffection has appeared in the back parts of North and South-Carolina, which, if not subdued before the forces arrive from England, will prove a most formidable piece of business, especially when connected with the hosts of Negroes in the lower part of the country. Instead of painting their strength and power of resistance in ostentatious terms, as is the fashion of some folks, the gentlemen of that country acknowledge their weakness, and dread the consequences. I am really concerned for old Armstrong; I think the climate will destroy him.

You have had much reason to think the Congress neglect your camp in the article of ammunition; but I hope by the time this reaches you, ten tons of our last importation will be in your camp. The vessel brought but three hundred stand of arms, but they are the best yet imported.

If Howe should leave Boston, we expect he will make for New-York; and, at all events, we look upon that as one of the scenes of the summer business: in the former case, I find it supposed you will move southward. By General Lee's account, no dependance is to be put on their professions, and the late delegation from Congress came back with a very slender opinion of their conduct, which is timid and trimming to the greatest degree. I am glad you have informed me how the matter stood with the Connecticut men. I had no doubt but the step you took was founded upon necessity, which would justify the directing troops to be raised; but I found it gave an alarm to some folks, and I believe I hinted it in a former letter; but your state must, and, I doubt not, has given perfect satisfaction. I have thought it a duty I owe you to mention anything of this kind occurring, as your distance might otherwise prevent a suitable explanation.

Most of your camp equipage will be completed this week, or the beginning of next. I shall obey your commands with respect to the wagon and horses. There will be no difficulty about the money, should the Treasurer here have any scruples, as I shall advance it, and we can settle that when we meet. I had ordered the tables, and several other things which appeared to me to be necessary, though not in your order. I hope, when you see them, they will prove agreeable. I have consulted economy as much as I thought consistent with your rank and station. Most of our workmen are such strangers to these things that they are very slow and tedious. Two of the tents are finished, and the other just completed. I am never happier than when I am on your business, so that you may depend upon it that I shall spare no pains to have them done in the best manner, and forwarded with the greatest expedition.

The destruction of the mortars is very extraordinary; there certainly must be some want of skill in the management of them.

I suppose old Putt was to command the detachment intended for Boston, on the 5th instant, as I do not know any officer but himself who could have been depended on for so hazardous a service. Should Howe decamp, I cannot say I should much regret that day's passing over so quietly, as, if the troops had behaved well, there would have been a great loss; and, if ill, would have ruined your whole plan.

We have some accounts from Virginia, that Colonel Henry has resigned in disgust at not being made a General Officer; but it rather gives satisfaction than otherwise, as his abilities seem better calculated for the Senate than the field. We have no very late accounts from thence. A man-of-war and some tenders lately went up to Baltimore, and gave them an alarm, which drove all their women, children, and valuable effects, out of town; but we have heard nothing since.

Poor Frye! Heaven and earth was moved to get him in—he was everything that was great and wonderful; now, I suppose we shall hear no more of him.

Not a syllable yet from our fleet—it is four weeks to-morrow since they left our Capes. Should they fall in with the twelve men-of-war conveying the transports to Virginia, it is all over with them; and we think there is very great danger of it. My next must certainly give some intelligence.

Now for our own news. The packet arrived last week at New-York, and in her came passenger Mr. Robert Temple, (owner of the late beautiful farm below our lines.) He came to town last night. The report is, that, in papers under his buttons, he has brought a letter from Arthur Lee, advising that the Commissioners were coming out instructed to settle the dispute; to get from us as much as they can; but, if peace cannot be had on their terms, to make it on ours. I mention it to you as a report; for to me it seems so inconsistent with all that we have seen and heard, that I do not believe a word of it. I shall get more certain intelligence soon of his business; and it shall make a part of my next letter. We every moment expect to hear of these gentry's arrival; they are, if possible, to treat with the Assemblies, but if that cannot be obtained, then with Congress. A little time will show what we are to expect from this new project. For my part, I can see nothing to be hoped from it, but it has laid fast hold of some here, and made its impression on the Congress. It is said the Virginians are so alarmed with the idea of independence, that they have sent Mr. Braxton on purpose to turn the vote of that Colony, if any question on that subject should come before Congress. To tell you the truth, my dear sir, I am infinitely more afraid of these Commissioners than their Generals and Armies. If their propositions are plausible, and behaviour artful, I am apprehensive they will divide us: there is so much suspicion in Congress, and so much party on this subject, that very little more fuel is required to kindle the flame. It is high time for the Colonies to begin a gradual change of Delegates; private pique, prejudice, and suspicion, will make its way into the breasts of even good men, sitting long in such a council as ours; and whenever that is the case, their deliberations will be disturbed, and the publick interest of course suffer.

We have made a very great change in the councils of this Province, and I hope a favourable one for the common cause, having introduced seventeen new members at once into the House of Assembly. The increase of representation is in those parts of the Province where the spirit of liberty most prevails, and, of consequence, our measures will partake of it.

We have had a vessel load of linens, on account of Congress, arrived within these few days past; but I do not hear a word of tents. What our Army is expected to do without them, I cannot conceive.

Lord Stirling has stopped some of our troops bound to Canada, as it is not possible to keep the Connecticut people beyond their own time. General Lee, with great difficulty, induced some of them to prolong their stay two weeks, which I believe was more than could be done with you.

Mr. Deane, of Connecticut, is gone to Europe; his errand may be guessed, though little is said about it. The French vessels begin to find their way to our ports, two or three having come in this spring; but their cargoes are chiefly West-India goods; a little, very little powder, merely as a cover.

Since writing the above, I have conversed with some gentlemen who have seen Mr. Temple. I find he only brings two letters, written by Doctor Lee to himself, and that his information of the powers of the Commissioners is not built on any certain authority, but rather his own conjectures. He says the Ministry are resolved on peace if to be had: they are willing to treat with Congress, but the King would not hear of it. The difficulty of recruiting is very great in England, Scotland, and Ireland—scarce a man more to be had on any terms. I send you a morning paper, containing the current news. My respectful compliments, with Mrs. Reed's, to Mrs. Washington; and am, dear sir, most sincerely and affectionately, yours.

JOSEPH REED.

JOHN SMITH* TO THE CONGRESS.

March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am once more obliged to apply for an enlargement, on some terms, or an alleviation of this rigid confinement. An application before this from me, I am told, has not been laid before you. Mr. Dewees gave it to John Hancock, Esq., last month. I was hopeful that gentleman would have laid it before the Congress, and flatter myself he will still do me that favour. Painful as my present situation is, complaining is equally so; and as you must now be sufficiently acquainted with every circumstance of it, I would choose to avoid repetitions. An imprisonment like this cannot be intended merely as a confinement; it is much more—it is a punishment, by its long continuance, of the severest kind, and greatly aggravated by want of health, air, and exercise. If meant as such, I would be exceedingly glad to know the crime alleged for the cause of it, as punishing a person without informing him for what, is very inadequate to its intention. In this light I cannot but view it, being deprived of the small liberties allowed to all prisoners whatever, even common soldiers. Mr. Cameron and I are now the only persons suffering in this cruel manner. What should render us so particularly and personally obnoxious, I for my own part, am greatly at a loss to guess; but I am now hopeful that the gentlemen of the Congress will consider this distressing situation, and, for the present, grant me the same indulgence as the other prisoners have. On these terms I will engage in the mean time not to correspond, unless with the approbation of some of the Committee, or in such manner as may be prescribed to, gentlemen, your obedient and very humble servant,

J. SMITH.

To the Gentlemen of the Congress.

NEWARK (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE.

Committee-Chamber, Newark, March 15, 1776.

The Committee, taking into consideration a Petition from a respectable number of inhabitants of this Township, and persuaded of the expediency of preventing undue advantages being taken by reason of the scarcity of sundry articles, in consequence of the present contest with Great Britain, have resolved to regulate the prices of West-India product, to be sold in this Township, as follows, to wit:

West-India Rum, 6s. 3d., New-York currency, per gallon, or smaller quantity.
Jamaica Spirits, 7s. 9d. per ditto.
 Molasses, - - 3s. 2d. per ditto.
 Country Rum, - 4s. 0d. per ditto.
 Coffee, - - - 1s. 3d. per lb. or smaller quantity.
 Chocolate, - - 2s. 0d. per ditto.
 Loaf-sugar, - 1s. 6d. per ditto, by the loaf.
 Lump-sugar, - 1s. 4d. per ditto, by ditto.
Muscovado do. 4s. 9d. per ditto.
 Salt, - - - 5s. 0d. per bushel.
 Pepper, - - 6s. 0d. per pound.

In adjusting which, the Committee, being of opinion that the prices here must, of necessity, be governed by those fixed at New-York, have considered the late restrictions by the Committee there, as a proper basis; and have allowed such additions thereto, for the retailers here, as are reasonable for their loss in gauging, waste, small drafts, &c., freight, cartage, and a compensation for buying and selling. And it is hereby recommended to all venders and retailers of the above articles, that they neither demand nor receive therefor any greater prices than are ascertained by the above regulations, during the continuance of the above-mentioned restrictions in New-York.

And it is Resolved, and hereby Declared, That, on proof being made to this Committee of any person having, after the publication hereof, contravened, or in anywise acted in defiance of the said recommendation, the delinquent shall be exposed by name to publick view, and as an enemy to * "Determined never to acknowledge or submit to the authority of the Congress, unless by compulsion, I was much at a loss in what manner, or for what purpose to address them; and I concluded only to request, that they would either render my confinement supportable, or order me to immediate execution, which I infinitely preferred to my present situation of being destroyed by inches. This I transmitted to them by the jailer, written with a pencil upon the back of a common playing card."

ESSEX COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE TO LORD STIRLING.

Newark Committee-Chamber, March 15, 1776.

My LORD: With Captain Josiah Pierson, the bearer, comes the first company of the Militia of this County that is ready to march. We have divided the three hundred men agreed to be sent to your assistance into four companies. The other three companies, we expect, will march to-morrow, so as to be in New-York to-morrow evening. We have agreed to send only one Field-Officer with this detachment, who is Lieutenant-Colonel Ward. We hope you will not only be pleased with the appearance, but also with the conduct of this detachment.

Agreeably to the request of the New-York Provincial Congress, to send a Quartermaster, we have appointed Mr. Samuel Hayes to that post. He has been an Adjutant for some time past of the battalion in this town.

By order:

WILLIAM BURNET,
Chairman of the County Committee.

To Lord Stirling.

My LORD: Since writing the above letter, and just as we were despatching it, we received a copy of a letter sent to your Lordship by the Chairman of the Elizabethtown Committee, and also a letter from their Clerk, from which we are afraid no men will come from Elizabethtown, which was to send one hundred and fifty—the half of the number proposed. However, we shall endeavour to prevail with them to furnish their quota, and hope we shall succeed.

LORD STIRLING TO COLONEL DAYTON.

New-York, March 15, 1776.

SIR: I wrote to you some days since to get your regiment in order for marching as soon as possible. You are now hereby required to march the regiment to this place by companies, as soon as you can arm and accoutre them, making the companies complete with arms and accoutrements, one out of the other, and then immediately to despatch them.

STIRLING.

To Colonel Dayton, commanding the Third Regiment of New-Jersey Troops in the Continental service at Elizabethtown.

LORD STIRLING TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, March 15, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: On Wednesday last I received Mr. Moylan's letter of the 9th, and immediately sent forward to Philadelphia the express who brought it. I communicated the intelligence to the Provincial Convention then sitting. We have ever since been taking every measure in our power to secure this place and Long-Island, in such a manner as will prevent the enemy from making any lodgment in either of them. The Convention has very cheerfully and spiritedly come into every measure I proposed to them, as you will see by the enclosed paper, which will best inform you of the steps we have taken. Three hundred and seventy half-barrels of powder arrived here yesterday from Philadelphia for your camp; but the casks are in such a shattered condition, that one half of it would be lost before it could proceed one hundred miles farther. I have therefore ordered the whole of it to be started into good strong tight casks, which will be done by Monday next, by which time I hope to have directions from Congress either to send it forward, or detain it in this place. You will, by the same enclosed paper, see the state of that article in this place.

March 17.—I have this evening received despatches from the Congress, by which I find they have resolved that eight thousand men be ordered for the defence of this Colony. But as I know the incomplete state most of the regiments ordered for this service are now in, I am sure that not one half of them will be here and fit for service these four or five weeks. I have, therefore, been obliged to call in some Militia (perhaps two thousand may come) to act in the mean time as fatigue in carrying on the works. I mention this circumstance, that, in case the Ministerial Troops do actually leave Boston, it may not be supposed that the troops voted are or can be here in any probable time to oppose them. We have in the whole, here at present, but about two thousand men, exclusive of the Militia of the city, which may amount to about as many more. The latter have very cheerfully turned out on fatigue for the last three days, and we are all hands employed in fortifying such posts as were thought most proper by General Lee and myself, after several times viewing the whole ground on Long-Island, as well as on this.

I am, your most obedient humble servant,

STIRLING.

To His Excellency General Washington.

FREDERICKSBURGH (WESTCHESTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK,) COMMITTEE.

Fredericksburgh Committee, March 15, 1776.

Whereas Isaac Bates hath been represented to this Committee as being unfriendly to our country; we have had him under examination, and find him guilty of said charge. We therefore refer him to the honourable County Committee for further examination.

Fredericksburgh, March 15, 1776.

Isaac Bates, upon being taken up as a deserter, by an advertisement from Elijah Oakley, Lieutenant under Captain Comfort Ludinton, of Colonel Jacobus Swartwout's Regiment of Minute-men, pleads and says, that said Lieutenant Oakley did release him.

In support of which plea he produced the evidences, whose depositions are as follows:

I, Abraham Birdsall, of lawful age, being sworn before the Chairman of the Committee, do testify and say: that on the 5th of this instant, March, being at the house of Cornelius Fuller, I heard Elijah Oakley say he would give any man two shillings who would set his name to such a paper. Whereupon Isaac Bates said he would set his name to it; and the said Oakley said he would give him four shillings if he would; and finally said, as he could not make change, he would give him a six-shilling bill, lawful money; and, as Bates took the pen, Oakley says, If you do write your name there, you shall go; and Bates says, I mean to go; and wrote on the bottom of the paper, as I supposed, his name; but I understood by others (for I cannot read writing) that he wrote, "Elijah Oakley may kiss my ———, Isaac Bates;" at which Oakley was mad, and swore he should go. Whereupon Bates says, "Why, you are not mad, are you? I was only in a joke." "Joke, or no joke," said Oakley, "you shall go." But afterwards I saw Bates give Oakley the bill again, and saw Oakley tear off a piece, which I suppose was what Bates had written; and I understood by Oakley that he had discharged him. Whereupon I said to Bates, "Since Oakley is so fair with you, you ought to treat him;" and he immediately called for a grog, and did treat him.

I, John Chase, of lawful age, being sworn before the Chairman of the Committee, do testify to the whole of the foregoing deposition; and further, that when Oakley took the bill, he said he would see if it was the same bill which he gave Bates, and went to the light and said, "Yes, it is the same bill which I gave you." "Now," said I to Mr. Oakley, "you and Isaac are clear, are you not?" "Yes," said Mr. Oakley, "we are clear; it was only a joke."

We do suspect the above-mentioned Elijah Oakley of being unfriendly to the country, from his conduct in inlisting Isaac Bates, who was known to be a professed Tory, and taking him out of our hands when we were about to deal with him, and then discharged him; but, at the same time, positively affirmed to us that he would make him go; and finally did advertise him, when he never kept out of his way.

By order of the Committee of Fredericksburgh.

DAVID SMITH, Chairman.

ISAAC NICOLL TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Fort Constitution, March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This garrison is greatly in want of many articles at present, especially sauce, beef, soap, candles, drink, and fuel; neither have we had any fresh provision for two months past; the want of which necessities discourage the men very much, as they work daily. We are also in want of pots, trammels, bowls, and dishes, for the Barracks, as there are none here but what the Commissioners claim, and say they must have to carry to Pooploop's Kill. There must be a sufficient quantity of those necessities provided and sent here shortly, or the garrison will be in a bad situation when the Commissioners call for theirs. I should not have troubled you with these matters, but have wrote to Mr. Livingston, according to your former directions, on this head, and received for answer that Mr. Phelps (appointed to provide for the fortress) would be here in a short time, and make the necessary provision; but he has not attended yet, neither do I know when he will.

Enclosed you have an account delivered to me by the Commissioners for powder, ball, and cartridge paper, by them delivered to Captain Raymond previous to my taking the command here; none of which he returned. You can deal with him for them as you think proper. Several of the Minute-men now in garrison are destitute of guns; neither are they able to procure them by reason of their scarcity. There are a number of good arms in the store, but the Commissioners are not willing to let them go without orders, as they were directed to keep them safe in their custody. I think it would be proper to let the men have arms and accoutrements, in order that they may be disciplined to the use of them, provided the commanding officer of any such deficient company will give his receipt for them, and engage to return them, when he is discharged from this garrison, as good as he received them.

It is absolutely necessary that a baker be fixed here upon some certain principle, made by the Commissary. While Captain Raymond commanded, he gave the flour to a baker, who returned an equal weight of bread; and allowed him soldier's pay, with all attendance that he required; which I think is too much, amounting, I suppose, to ten or twelve pounds per month. I have partly agreed with the same man (who is a good baker, and now out of town) for four pounds per month; but he requires to have his wood and people to attend upon him, and I do not know what to do about closing the bargain. I would be glad of some instructions in the premises, or that a baker may be otherwise appointed.

As there is no Commissary attending here, and as I think it absolutely necessary that one should attend, if none of those already appointed can be ordered here, I would recommend Captain Thomas Moffit to that office as a proper person. I expect to be able to make a return of the state of my regiment, having issued the necessary orders for that purpose.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

ISAAC NICOLL.

To Colonel Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress.

LEVI PAWLING TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Marbletown, March 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of the 16th ultimo came safe to hand, and, with astonishment, we perused the contents; the more so, as we have been informed that, in cases similar to that of ours, you have been very careful that officers should not be superseded. Permit us, gentlemen, to ask whether the resolve, respecting the filling up of vacancies, cannot bear these three different constructions, viz: virtual, natural, and literal. If either of the two former, then we think we have committed no error in what we have done. If we have, we have done it with no ill design; for we assure you that we have nothing more at heart than the maintaining of peace and good order among us, and that the worthy and deserving should be promoted, and not superseded; the consequence of which is resentment, division, and discord, which we think ought to be prevented, if possible.

We, in obedience to the directions from your honourable body, called the company of the Southwest District together on the 6th instant, and in a friendly manner advised them to promote the subalterns who had served under their late Captain. The company proceeded, and Mr. John Hasbrouck was chosen by a majority of votes. The subalterns thereupon withdrew, and deferred declaring their intention till the 9th instant, when they delivered at our table the enclosed address and declaration, containing a formal resignation, with the reason thereof; which, in compliance with their request, we have the honour of transmitting to your honourable Board. Upon which we called the company together again on the 12th instant, and acquainted them of the vacancies; when they proceeded and chose Jacobus Roosa First Lieutenant, Jacobus Brown Hasbrouck Second Lieutenant, and Joseph Hasbrouck, Jun., Ensign; which we expect, together with the above elected Captain, your Honours with commission.

We beg leave to assure you that the Southwest District is in a most unhappy condition, and the only means we can think of at present to assuage the spirit of discord in said District is, to grant the prayers of those who have signed the enclosed petition.

In the mean time we remain, with due respect, your Honours' obedient humble servant.

By order of the Committee:

LEVI PAWLING, Chairman.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress of the Province of New-York.

COLONEL PORTER TO JAMES WARREN.

Hadley, March 15, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: When I last left you, I was in hopes that by this time I should have been able to write to you from Quebeck; but the backwardness of some towns to encourage their men to engage, and the zeal of individuals to hinder any from inlisting in the service, has hitherto prevented my march. I should do injustice to my country and to Colonel Howe, of Belchertown, if I did not give him the credit of being foremost in the latter class, and of being the instrument (with his son, whom he has constantly employed in the service) of hindering at least four towns from turning out a single man. One full company marched from Northampton on the 3d instant; another company (though not full) marched the day before yesterday; a third is to march on Monday next. The others, I expect, will follow within a week from that time, though I doubt whether they will be any of them quite full. One great difficulty in completing the regiment has been the want of fire-arms. Most of those who are now willing to engage have been in the service the summer past, and were obliged to leave their guns in the Army, and have not yet received their pay for them, and have not been able to purchase others for want of it.

The Committee that have been sent by the Court have purchased all the guns amongst us that are worth taking; so that those who have not yet inlisted must be obliged to go with guns which a man would not be willing to venture his life with, unless the General will consent to have the guns which have been purchased here sold to the soldiers. The expense of purchasing a gun, &c., (which almost every one has to do who inlists,) has made the soldiers insist upon some encouragement being given them by the towns; alleging that the four pounds they were to receive would hardly purchase the arms that they were obliged by the inlistment to furnish themselves with. Most of the towns where they have raised the men have given ten dollars per man for their quota; others have declined giving anything, and of consequence no men can be obtained.

To remedy these inconveniences, I have sent into other Counties. The same difficulties are there, and they do not view themselves under any obligations to exert themselves to remove them, because they are not particularly called upon by the Court. I have been unwilling to apply for leave to recruit from those now in the Army at Cambridge and Roxbury, because of the important movements that were daily expected, and have now been made, and to which I wish all possible success. I have sent over the line, into New-York Government, (where a number of New-England people have settled, who refuse going with the York officers, and have applied to me to join my regiment,) for a number to fill up the companies. What success I shall have I know not. I intend to call upon them in a few days myself, to know what has been, or can be done.

In the recess of the Court I wrote to Colonel Mifflin for some more money to defray the expense of marching the regiment to Canada, supposing that I should march myself before I could have opportunity to apply to the General Court. The person I sent the letter by was not careful to deliver it in season, so as to have a return by the way that I expected, and I have not yet received my answer. I am obliged, therefore, to send the bearer of this with an application to the honourable Assembly for a further sum of money. I received, by order of Court, of the Treasurer one hundred pounds, to purchase axes, kettles, &c., and to defray the travelling expenses; which sum is far short of what will be necessary. I am also to pay the officers one month's advance wages, for which no provision has been made. As there is a sum of money now in the Treasury, (sent by the honourable Continental Congress to defray the expense of raising this regiment,) more than what has been paid out to me, I would request that the whole, or such part as the Court pleases, of the remainder might be sent to me for the above purpose; for which sum I will be accountable. The sum sent by the honourable Continental Congress (if I remember right) was £3,750.

I would also just mention, that no provision has been made for the payment of the travelling expenses before they arrive to the Continental stores, which the soldiers will expect to receive, either before they march or immediately upon their arrival at Canada. Whatever sum the Court shall order to be sent, the bearer, (Elisha Dickinson), who is an honest, careful man, will bring to me, for whose receipt I will be accountable. I purpose to set out on Friday next myself, and go forward with all expedition. I shall take it as a favour of you, sir, that you will despatch the bearer as quick as possible, as he will have little time enough to return in before I set out. I should have wrote to some others of the Court, also, if I could get time. All I can get is whilst others are asleep. It is now past two in the morning, and I have to write to the General and to Colonel Mifflin before the bearer calls upon me, which he is to do by daybreak. Major Hawley is to set out on Monday next to attend Court. He will be able to inform you of some extraordinary proceedings at Berkshire, &c., which I have not leisure to inform you of by this conveyance.

You will please, sir, to present my sincere respects to such of my worthy friends at Watertown as may inquire after me.

Your Honours, &c., &c.,

ELISHA PORTER.

To the Honourable James Warren, Esq., at Watertown.

WILLIAM ENNALLS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Dorchester County, March 16, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of the 2d of February, enclosing a resolve of the Continental Congress for collecting gold and silver in this Province, together with your appointment of Mr. James Murray, Mr. Henry Steel, and myself, to collect the same in this County, came to my hands, which I immediately communicated to those gentlemen. Since which we have made applications to all the principal men of the County of whom we apprehended there was any chance of getting gold or silver; and I am sorry to inform you the scarcity of specie is such that we are only able to procure (including our own small stock) about five hundred and twenty pounds; which sum we can immediately get, if your Honours are pleased to send us an order on the Treasurer of the Eastern Shore for so much paper money to pay in exchange for it; and will be pleased also to direct the same Treasurer to receive the gold and silver of us, as we apprehend there may be a considerable risk in sending it to the Treasurer of the Western Shore at this time. This account would have been sooner transmitted to you had not the late alarm of the sloop-of-war and tenders in a manner stopped the communication between this and Annapolis.

I am, with great regard, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM ENNALLS.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

TO THE HONOURABLE THE COUNCIL OF SAFETY OF THE PROVINCE OF MARYLAND.

We hereby certify, that an enrolment of a company of Militia, bearing date the 30th of November, 1775, to which is annexed a certificate of the officers chosen for the same, bearing date the 16th of December, 1775, was lately returned to us. We further certify, that the said enrolment was agreeable to the resolves of the Convention held at Annapolis the 26th of July last; and that it appears the following gentlemen are elected commissioned officers, to wit: Benjamin Keene, Captain; John Keene, First Lieutenant; Richard Tubman, Second Lieutenant; John Griffith, Ensign. That the said company are called the Buck Company; and that there are to the same four Sergeants, four Corporals, and one Drummer, and fifty-seven Privates. We therefore pray, with the approbation of your Board, that commissions may issue thereon.

Signed per order of Committee of Observation:

JAMES MURRAY, Chairman.

TO THE HONOURABLE THE COUNCIL OF SAFETY OF THE PROVINCE OF MARYLAND.

We hereby certify, that an enrolment of a company of Militia, bearing date the 11th day of February, 1776, with a certificate of officers for the same, was lately returned to us. We further certify, that the first enrolment was agreeable to the resolves of the Convention, held at Annapolis the 26th of July last; and that it appears the following gentlemen are elected officers, viz: Timothy McNemara, Captain; John Steward McNemara, First Lieutenant; Charles Johnson, Second Lieutenant; John Carwan, Ensign. That the said company are called Friends to America; and that there are to the same four Sergeants, four Corporals, one Drummer, and sixty-eight Privates. We therefore pray, with the approbation of your Board, that commissions may issue thereon.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, March 16, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This Committee, on the first alarm of Captain Squire's being coming up to this town, met, and took into their serious consideration the unprepared state thereof to repel an attack; and, therefore, thought it necessary to throw up two breastworks at Fell's Point, as well to preserve the town as to cover the Ship Defence, which was then without the chief part of her guns. The account of the expense, as soon as it can be liquidated, will be laid before you; and, as the necessity was urgent, we hope you will readily support us. We also undertook to fit out a schooner, as a tender, and to support the operations of Captain Nicholson, and have proceeded some lengths in equipping her; and we beg to know from you whether it is your intention that we shall proceed to finish and complete her for the service of the Province, or whether you would desist from prosecuting the matter any further. We judge the purchase of the vessel and her outfit may amount to two thousand pounds; and we are of opinion she will be very useful in scouring the coast from the incursions of the tenders, as she will mount ten guns, and carry seventy to one hundred men. She is in such forwardness as to sail immediately on getting her men. One of the breastworks (which was mostly calculated to cover the ship) mounts six guns, and the other ten, and they were particularly requested to be done by Captain Nicholson. Our fort at Whetstone is ready to mount eight guns, and we shall use every exertion to expedite it.

We are, with due respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

WILLIAM LUX,
Deputy Chairman.
THOMAS HARRISON,
JOHN SMITH,
WILLIAM BUCHANAN,
JOHN BOYD,
JOHN MERRYMAN, JUN.,
JOHN STERETT.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

By the Committee of Baltimore County:

Mr. Hercules Courtney, as agent for Captain William Stone, has in his possession eleven cannon of the following sizes, according to the best information we can obtain, viz: Two of twelve pounds, six of nine pounds, and three of four pounds; all of which will be wanted for the defence of Baltimore Town, if they are found good. This Committee directed carriages to be made to suit these guns, and on the late alarm removed and mounted them at Fell's Point, where they now remain, ready to be proved by such person as the honourable Council of Safety may appoint.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Baltimore, March 16, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As the powder and the lead belonging to the publick was placed in different stores, and on the late alarm the mode of delivering it out was very troublesome and uncertain, besides being liable to much waste, this Committee thought it necessary to direct the whole to be removed into one house, for the greater ease of having a guard placed on it; and that it might be delivered properly, and an account kept regularly, they appointed Mr. Gerard Hopkins as a Commissary of Military Stores; and as such an officer must be appointed, we beg leave to solicit your confirmation of Mr. Hopkins, as he is capable and desirous to officiate. It became more necessary to make this appointment at the time, as the powder from Philadelphia was coming in, and several other matters for the service of Militia wanting, the whole of which can be executed by him.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants,

WILLIAM LUX,
Deputy Chairman.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE BRIGADIERS-GENERAL, SEVERALLY.

[No. 61.]

Annapolis, March 16, 1776.

SIR: As our thanks are due to yourself and those generous men who, with alacrity and ardour, stepped forth on the late alarm, to the assistance and protection of their neighbours and fellow-citizens, we request you will accept of them, and present them likewise to those Battalions and Companies, of your District, that appeared on that occasion. We are, &c.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO CAPTAIN CAMPBELL.

Philadelphia, March 16, 1776.

SIR: It having been represented to Congress that Mrs. Campbell has arrived in this city, and so much indisposed as not to be able to pursue her design of visiting you at Reading, and being desirous of seeing you, I am directed by the Congress to inform you that you have their permission to repair to this city, and remain with Mrs. Campbell during the continuance of her illness, and until she is able to attend you on a journey to Reading.

I am, sir, yours, &c.

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Captain Campbell.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO READING (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

Philadelphia, March 16, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I take the freedom to enclose a letter for Captain John Nelson, of the company of Riflemen, who was to call on you for seven hundred dollars, transmitted you some time ago. If he has not yet reached you, I beg you to keep the enclosed, and deliver it to him on his arrival with you. But if he has passed you, I am earnestly to desire you to take a fresh express, and send the letter with all expedition, that it may reach him as early as possible, it being of consequence.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Committee of Inspection of Reading, Pennsylvania.

P. S. The express I send to you is bound to Carlisle.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO CAPTAIN NELSON.

Philadelphia, March 16, 1776.

SIR: Upon receipt of this, you are immediately to repair, with the company of Riflemen under your command, with all possible expedition to New-York, and put yourself under the orders of the officer commanding the Continental forces in that department.

By order of Congress: JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Captain John Nelson, of a Rifle Company, at Reading, or on his march.

MATTHEW TILGHMAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Philadelphia, March 16, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose you a resolution of Congress,* which I am directed to forward to you, and, as I recollect, was ordered not to be made publick.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

MATTHEW TILGHMAN.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

*IN CONGRESS, March 14, 1776: Resolved, That it be recommended to the several Assemblies, Conventions, and Committees or Councils of Safety, of the United Colonies, immediately to cause all persons to be disarmed, within their respective Colonies, who are notoriously disaffected to the cause of America, or who have not associated, and shall refuse to associate, to defend by arms these United Colonies against the hostile attempts of the British Fleets and Armies; and to apply the Arms taken from such persons, in each respective Colony, in the first place to the arming the Continental Troops raised in said Colony; in the next, to the arming such Troops as are raised by the Colony for its own defence; and the residue to be applied to the arming the Associators. That the Arms, when taken, be appraised by indifferent persons; and such as are applied to the arming the Continental Troops be paid for by the Congress, and the residue by the respective Assemblies, Conventions, or Councils, or Committees of Safety.

ROBERT TREAT PAINE TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE ASSEMBLY.

Philadelphia, March 16, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress taking into consideration the urgent importance to the safety, freedom, and wealth of the United Colonies, that the manufacture of saltpetre and gunpowder should be established in all of them, in addition to their former resolves on that subject have passed those herewith enclosed, and appointed the Committee therein mentioned.

In pursuance of this trust, the Committee transmit you the resolves; and being deeply impressed with their importance to our common cause, think themselves in duty bound to urge upon you the immediate and vigorous execution of them.

The erecting publick works, as mentioned in the resolves, will be the first step to promote that useful business. If prosecuted with skill and diligence, it will answer the making saltpetre in large quantities, and will also afford the best method for suitable persons to learn the process, and from thence be sent abroad, to teach those who have not opportunity of learning from those publick works; for it is thought an object of the greatest concern that private families should be induced to make it. The inconsiderable expense attending the making it in families, where the method is once understood, and the quantity that each family may make, should remove all objections to their putting it in immediate practice.

When we consider the great consumption of saltpetre—used as medicine, in preserving meat, and in gunpowder, even in times of peace—it should seem a sufficient inducement to private families to learn and practise this art; but most of all when so large quantities are wanted for our necessary defence, and when it will in a great measure supply the want of salt, which the rage of our enemies may render scarce, it should not be reasonably supposed that any true American will neglect it.

As there can be no doubt but that every Colony may produce saltpetre enough, at least, for their own consumption, it is necessary that powder-mills be erected, and skilful persons provided to manufacture gunpowder, and proper regulations established for preventing their explosion.

It is supposed that sulphur may be found in many Colonies; and as it is necessary that it should be collected, trials may be made, at places supposed to contain it, at no great expense.

It must afford great pleasure to find that some Colonies have already, in a measure, anticipated the design of these resolves; from the good effects of which it is clearly evinced that we can never want the most abundant supply of ammunition, from our own manufacture, but through inattention and neglect.

We doubt not you will consider these proceedings as designed to promote the best welfare of the Colonies, and that you will, as soon as may be, and from time to time, inform the Congress of the state of these manufactures in your Colony; of the quantity of saltpetre already made; the preparation for and prospects of encouraging it; what quantity of gunpowder is already made, and the state of your powder-mills; and, also, what discoveries are made of sulphur mines, and the progress in working them.

We suppose you already have the most approved methods of making saltpetre among you; but the laying together suitable composts, either in fences or beds, in order to collect nitrous matter, seems necessary to be immediately attended to, as the earth from under old buildings may soon be exhausted.

We hope this effort of the Congress will have the desired effect; without which we have reason to fear it will, ere long, be said of us, that we are become slaves because we are not industrious enough to be free.

By order of said Committee, I subscribe myself, with great respect, your Honours' most humble servant,

ROBERT TREAT PAINE.

To the Honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the Colony of New-Hampshire.

Philadelphia, March 16, 1776.

The following gentlemen are appointed Field-Officers in the three Battalions which are to be raised for the defence of this Province, viz:

Musket Battalion: John Cadwallader, Esq., Colonel; Caleb Perry, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel; James Potts, Esq., Major.

Samuel Miles, Esq., Colonel of the two Rifle Battalions; John Piper, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel of the First, and Ennion Williams, Esq., Major; Daniel Broadhead, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel of the Second, and John Paton, Esq., Major.

RECANTATION OF JOHN WEBB.

Philadelphia, March 16, 1776.

Whereas I, the subscriber, have unadvisedly been guilty of tearing out and trampling upon the names of the Field-Officers of the Fourth Battalion of this County, signed to the Association, in contempt of the resolves of the Assembly and of this Committee; and as such conduct may set a bad example to others, unless speedily retracted, I do therefore, in this publick manner, acknowledge my fault, beg pardon of the Officers of the said Battalion for the insult shewn them, and promise, for the future, to support the Association as far as is in my power.

Witness my hand:

JOHN WEBB.

MORRIS COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE TO LORD STIRLING.

Morristown, March 16, 1776.

MY LORD: When I left your Excellency last Friday, I did expect that the men you requested from the County of Morris would immediately be sent; but when I returned to Morris the men were ready, but the Colonels of the Regiments thought they had not authority to march the men out of the Province without orders from the General of the Militia. They had three hundred men ready to march, and do hold them in readiness to march, at an hour's warning, for two weeks, if necessity requires it, and they have authority so to do; and when I found the men were not likely to go to assist New-York, I immediately called the Committee to consult them, and they do not approve of sending men, for several reasons, which are—first, if men are wanted so much at New-York, why are so many of the soldiers strolling about the country (as they say) on furlough? and, secondly, why is not the Third Battalion of Provincial soldiers of this Province called, or as many Companies as are full? as all those are under pay, and ought to be in service, and the Militia left at home on their farms, where they are wanted; and, likewise, that, if the troops do come from Boston, they are more likely to come to Amboy than New-York. Be pleased to remember Courtlandt Skinner's letter.

I am, sir, your Excellency's most humble servant,

By order:

ALEXANDER CARMICHAEL,

*Chairman of the County Committee.*To the Right Honourable William Earl of Stirling.

WILLIAM BURNET TO LORD STIRLING.

Newark, March 16, 1776.

MY LORD: I am not a little disappointed at the conduct of the Elizabeth Township Committee, as I understand they wrote you word they should not send any men to your assistance, when we had given you hopes we should send three hundred. The confusion is owing to your writing to the Township, and not the County Committee. The Township Committee of Newark received your letter, but were polite enough to ask my advice and assistance, as Chairman of the County Committee; and we unanimously agreed to send you one hundred and fifty men from this town, expecting the Elizabeth Township Committee would send at least one hundred and fifty men. We sent two of our members to Elizabethtown with this intelligence, and to agree upon the Field-Officers that should take the command. They agreed to raise one hundred and fifty men, and send them under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Ward, of this town, and sent us word accordingly. In consequence of this, we proceeded to raise our portion of men, and gave orders that they should be ready to march yesterday, or to-day at farthest; but somehow, unaccountably, our Colonel has deferred it until Monday, when there is no doubt he will come in. If this had been under the management of the County Committee, there would not have been a disappointment, as they preside over the whole. I hope you will find the men able and willing, and the officers capable of filling their several places. Colonel Ward I think a modest man, at least, and willing to do his duty as far as he knows, and to be taught what he is ignorant of.

I am, my Lord, in great haste, but with much esteem, your Lordship's most humble and obedient servant,

W. BURNET.

To the Right Honourable William Earl of Stirling.

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

DEAR SIR: Since writing to you by express on Thursday last, I have not received any further intelligence from the eastward. The inhabitants of this city and King's County (on Long-Island) have very cheerfully turned out to work on the fortifications. Everything is going on as well as the badness of the weather will permit. Two companies of the Militia of Newark, in New-Jersey, are coming in this morning, and I hope they will soon be followed by others. I have not yet heard from Colonel Dayton, although I have written twice to him. The five companies of Colonel Sinclair's Regiment will be very little detained by coming to this place, as they will now be able to go by water all the way to Albany, and they must, at any rate, be too late to pass the lakes on the ice, and too early in the year to cross by water.

March 17, ten o'clock, P. M.—I have this evening received your letter of the 15th by express. One company of Colonel Sinclair's arrived this day at Hoboken, opposite to this city. They will embark to-morrow for Albany. The others will, as they arrive, embark at Dobbs's ferry for the same place. I have forwarded the packet for Governour Trumbull, with a letter to him, of which the enclosed is a copy.

The four regiments raising in this Colony are still very incomplete. It will, I fear, be some time before the battalions in the Continental service from Pennsylvania and New-Jersey do arrive, and have therefore called in some Militia from New-Jersey and this Province, to serve in the mean time. They will be dismissed as soon as the others arrive.

The Convention of this Province adjourned yesterday evening sine die. They have left a Committee of Safety to sit every day, with whom I have no doubt I shall go on with in the utmost confidence and harmony. I am to meet them to-morrow morning, in order to concert many measures left unfinished by the Convention. The inhabitants of this city have these two days turned out with great cheerfulness, and go on with the works very well at Bayard's Hill, the Hospital, and two new batteries fronting Hudson's River. All the other works on this Island go on briskly. The work first begun on Long-Island, opposite to this city, is almost completed, and the cannon carried over. The grand citadel there will be marked out to-morrow, and will be begun by the inhabitants of King's County and Colonel Ward's Regiment. It will be impossible to give you a detail of every particular, while I have so many things on hand. I shall, therefore, take the liberty of enclosing you copies of any consequential papers that may occur, and of the daily orders as they are issued; and shall, in my letter, remark such things of consequence only as are not contained in them.

I have received no further intelligence from General Washington; but, by accounts from that quarter on Monday last, it appears that the Ministerial Troops were proceeding in their embarkation. One letter says that five thousand of them were actually embarked; another account says that twenty-odd ships were sailed out of the harbour, perhaps with stores; for I cannot believe they will divide their real force in the presence of our Army. However, if they do not interrupt us in ten or twelve days more, I hope we shall be in a situation to prevent their making a lodgment, unless it be at the west end of Long-Island, near the Narrows, about which I am very anxious, but defer doing anything there until the other works are complete, and more troops arrive. Bergen Neck may be so improved as to preserve the communication with Jersey, and all the country west of this place, in spite of them. The people of New-Jersey are very uneasy about the defenceless situation of Elizabethtown and Amboy. A descent may easily be made at the latter, and is worthy of attention. The former might be secured by a small work on Bergen Neck, near the Kills, and a small fort and proper battery at or near Elizabethtown Point. The powder designed for Cambridge will all be shifted by to-morrow evening, and ready to proceed by Tuesday, if that be the determination of the Congress.

By some prisoners taken into custody, there is great reason to believe that Governour Tryon has his emissaries in several parts of the Province, engaging men to serve both by land and water. One tells that he is engaged, with fifty others, under a certain Vernon, who was to fit out an armed sloop to cruise in the rivers. A sloop was actually purchased lately by Vernon, and we have her along the wharf. I have referred some others to the Committee of Safety to be examined; and, I doubt not, we shall find out and defeat their machinations.

I am, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

COLONEL McDOUGALL TO LORD STIRLING.

New-York, March 16, 1776.

MY LORD: Captain Warner, of the Militia, informs me that he knows where there are a number of muskets and pistols belonging to the Crown, secreted in the hands of some creatures of Government in the city, which he can secure if he had orders. I therefore judge it necessary to give you this intelligence, that you may take such measures for securing those arms as you shall judge proper. Warner says it must be done to-night, as there is danger of their being removed. You may trust him with the execution. My orderly will wait your directions.

I am, my Lord, your very humble servant,

ALEXANDER McDOUGALL.

To Lord Stirling.

MAYOR OF NEW-YORK TO HUGH GAINES.

New-York, March 16, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed I send you a copy of a letter I received from Governour Tryon, enclosing an Address to the Inhabitants of this Colony, which address he has desired me to get published. I have, therefore, sent you a copy of the letter and address, in order for your inserting them in your Gazette, if you think proper.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

DAVID MATTHEWS.

Ship Dutchess-of-Gordon, North-River, March 16, 1776.

SIR: I desire you will lay before the gentlemen of the Corporation the enclosed exhortation to the inhabitants of this Colony, and that you will communicate the same to the publick, and also have it inserted in the several Gazettes published in the city of New-York.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM TRYON.

To David Matthews, Esq., Mayor of the City of New-York.

Ship Dutchess-of-Gordon, North-River, March 16, 1776.

To the Inhabitants of the Colony of NEW-YORK:

Notwithstanding prejudice, delusion, and faction, have hitherto among too many usurped the seat of reason and reflection, and every exhortation I have offered to the inhabitants of this Province (in whose affection I have been taught to be happy) has been reviled and treated with neglect; yet, as my wishes for their prosperity, and feelings for their calamities, cannot easily be suppressed, even towards the disobedient, I cannot but repeat my endeavours to recall those who have revolted from their allegiance to a sense of their duty, and to comfort those who have been the objects of oppression for their zealous attachment to our happy Constitution, and their steady obedience to the sovereignty of the British Empire.

It is in the clemency and authority of Great Britain only, under God, that we can look for happiness, peace, and protection; and I have it in command from the King to encourage, by every means in my power, the expectations in his Majesty's well-disposed subjects in this Government, of every assistance and protection that the state of Great Britain will enable his Majesty to afford them, and to cherish every appearance of a disposition on their part to withstand the tyranny and misrule which accompany the acts of those who have but too well hitherto succeeded in the total subversion of legal Government. Under such assurances, therefore, I exhort all the friends to good order and our justly admired Constitution, still to preserve that constancy of mind, which is inherent in breasts of virtuous and loyal citizens; and I trust a very few months will relieve them from their present oppressed, injured, and insulted condition.

England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales, have united to place their whole strength, power, and confidence in his Majesty's hands. The numerous addresses from all parts of the King's dominions in Europe speak the loyalty and zeal with which his subjects there engage to support his Majesty in asserting and maintaining the just sovereignty of the British Empire over all its members.

The British State moves not by sudden and violent sallies, nor wantonly oppresses—she has lenity for her basis, and is distinguished for moderation and forbearance; but when her just indignation is roused, the experience of other nations can testify her weight and force. It cannot be sufficiently lamented, that the conduct of this country has called for so severe a rod: may a timely and dutiful submission avert its stroke.

I have the satisfaction to inform you that a door is still open to such honest but deluded people as will avail themselves of the justice and benevolence which the supreme legislature has held out to them of being restored to the King's grace and peace; and that proper steps have been taken for passing a commission for that purpose, under the great seal of Great Britain, in conformity to a provision in a late act of Parliament; the Commissioners thereby to be appointed, having also power to inquire into the state and condition of the Colonies, for effecting a restoration of the publick tranquillity.

WILLIAM TRYON.

CHRISTIAN JACOBSON TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Richmond County, March 15, 1776.

MR. PRESIDENT. SIR: In consequence of a late resolve of the Provincial Congress, we have this day met, in order to nominate persons qualified to act as Field-Officers in our Militia Companies, viz: Captain Abraham Jones, First Colonel; Captain Cornelius Van Wagener, Second Colonel; Cornelius Curson, First Major; Jacob Mercereau, Second Major; Harmanus Garrison, Quartermaster; Nicholas Stilwell, Adjutant.

The above persons we return to you for approbation and commissions. We have divided our County into four districts, and hope to return to you in a short time the names of the Captains and Subalterns, &c.

We are, gentlemen, respectfully, your very humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

CHRISTIAN JACOBSON, Chairman.

To the President and Members of the Provincial Congress in New-York.

JECAMIAH ALLEN TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

March 16, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: At the request of Colonel Drake, I beg leave to acquaint you I have now eighty-two guns unspiked, and within three weeks from this date doubt not but I shall be able to complete the whole. Though, gentlemen, I beg to observe, the assistance I expected to have from the Bartley guards I could not obtain, they declaring their agreement with Mr. Bartley was, to guard the guns from seven o'clock in the evening to six in the morning, for which they received ten shillings per week per man, and to find themselves. The guards consist of six men. Being thus disappointed, I was obliged to give one of his guards thirty-six shillings per week, and others at that rate, occasionally to assist in the fires, which are generally composed of two or three cords of wood, in which the guns are to be raised, and tended both night and day, in order to soften the spikes.

My brother, who left the cannon last Thursday, informed me the assistance of guards was asked, in moving the guns, from Mr. Williams; and also denied, and countenanced by Mr. Bartley.

Therefore, gentlemen, beg leave to offer my service once more to guard the guns, (which I am willing to do at one half of what Mr. Bartley gets,) while I am unspiking the cannon, and as much longer as you shall think fit. As there is a number of cannon not spiked, but loaded and stopped with stones and other rubbish, at the same time mean to employ such men for guards as will clear the guns, and fit them for service; conscious, under such circumstance, the business will not want assistance, nor unworthy men receive your favour.

From your obedient and humble servant,

JECAMIAH ALLEN.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress for the City and County of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO LORD STIRLING.

Albany, March 16, 1776.

MY DEAR LORD: Hudson's River is now clear of ice, and the lakes are become impassable for the passage of troops; I am, therefore, under the necessity of detaining them here until the lakes can be passed by water. Batteaus and everything are prepared to convey the troops and stores.

Be so good as to let me have a return of the troops under your command, that I may be enabled properly to dispose of the regiment raising in this quarter.

Eight tons of powder arrived yesterday from Philadelphia. The cannon and shot from New-York are not yet come up. The moment the troops, cannon, and powder, are embarked at Lake George, I propose joining you. My health is much re-established, and I have great hopes that I shall not soon experience a relapse. Mr. Hamer has my leave to call on you at New-York, in his way with his wife to New-Jersey.

My dear Lord, your Lordship's most obedient, humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Stirling, Brigadier-General, &c.

ALBANY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

Committee-Chamber, March 16, 1776.

Resolved, That no person or persons be permitted to move into, or settle within this City and County, unless he or they bring a certificate from the Committee of the County, Town, Manor, City, or District, where such person or persons respectively resided, that he or they had, prior to the date of this resolve, signed the Association recommended by Congress, or a similar one adopted by the Committee where he or they resided, and had, in all things, behaved in a manner becoming friends to American freedom.

A true copy from the Minutes:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Secretary.

COLONEL J. VARNUM TO MAJOR HARRISON.

Prospect-Hill, March 16, 1776.

SIR: I send you, by my clerk, the Continental Articles, signed by a number of my officers. Captain Lane has not signed. The reason, he received encouragement from his Excellency but a very few days before he went recruiting. He is gone a very considerable distance eastward, and is not returned. Reed was sent recruiting some time since, and is sick in the country. Atkinson is the person whom Captain Lane recommended to his Excellency for an Ensign. Atkinson says Lane told him he was to be a Second Lieutenant. How that is I know not; but Captain Lane had no authority for such assurance; neither was there at that time a vacancy among the Second Lieutenants. So Atkinson refuses to sign the articles.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

J. VARNUM.

To Major Harrison.

The Letters of the Committee of Safety of the 11th and 17th of January last, to General Schuyler, were read.

The Letter of General Schuyler to the Committee of Safety of the 25th January, was read.

A Letter from Gen. Schuyler, dated the 6th February, instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, February 6, 1776.

"SIR: The Continental Congress having ordered one regiment to be raised in this Province to go into Canada, I requested of that respectable body to know if the companies that I ordered to be raised for garrisoning Crown-Point, Ticonderoga, Fort George, &c., were to be considered as part of them. You will probably receive directions on this head; and that no delay may be made in the arrangement of the officers to the regiment, I do myself the honour to enclose you the names of such as I gave recruiting orders to. If Major Gansevoort should be provided for, or Colonel Yates promoted, and if Captain Curtis had the majority given him, I believe it would tend to fill up the regiment with much expedition, as he has great influence in the part of the country where he resides, which is about Canaan.

"I am, sir, your most humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To the President of the New-York Congress."

A Return, or List of persons who have had Warrants from General Schuyler, and therein enclosed, was also read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

A Letter from Elihu Marvin, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Orange County, dated Oxford, February 9, 1776, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Oxford, February 9, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: In consequence of your letter of the 26th ultimo, I convened our County Committee on Tuesday, the 6th instant, and laid the matter before them relative to the raising of men for the defence of this Colony. The same being taken into consideration, the Committee are unanimously of opinion that there can be three companies raised in this County, viz. two on the north, and one on the south side of the Mountains; and have nominated the following persons for officers to raise the two companies on the north side, to wit: In Goshen Regiment, Daniel Denton, Captain; Balhazer Dehart, First Lieutenant; George H. Jackson, Second Lieutenant, and Samuel Carpenter, Ensign. In Cornwall Regiment, Seth Marvin, Captain; James Little, First Lieutenant; Nathan Strong, Second Lieutenant, and Stephen Halsey, Ensign. But, at the same time, the Committee think it will be out of their power to arm any considerable part of the men they raise, on account of the quantity they furnished last year, none of which have been returned, and must therefore leave that matter with the Congress. They are also of opinion that it would be of bad consequence to nominate more than one set of officers to each company, and have therefore declined it.

The Ensign of Captain Raymond's Company having moved out of this County, the company have regularly elected Vincent Helme to that office, for whom a commission is requested to be made out, and sent up as soon as possible.

If the Congress could furnish each recruiting Captain with the terms upon which men are to enlist, with regard to time, pay, and clothing, the Committee are of opinion that it would tend to facilitate the raising the companies now to be filled. I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

"ELIHU MARVIN, Chairman.

"To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety now sitting in New-York, or, in his absence, to the Chairman pro tempore."

Mr. Scott then moved, and was seconded, in the words following, to wit:

MR. PRESIDENT: I move that a Committee be appointed immediately, to take into consideration those matters which the Continental Congress have recommended for execution to this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, in relation to the ensuing campaign; and that, to this end, they have power to send for all the papers which have reference to that subject, whether in the hands of this Congress or the Committee of Safety; and that the said Committee to be appointed for the purpose aforesaid, do make report upon each respective branch of the subject to be committed to their consideration, with all possible speed.

The same being unanimously agreed to,

Ordered, That Mr. Hobart, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, and Mr. Gansevoort, be a Committee for that purpose, and that they make report with all convenient speed.

A Member suggested that the time in which Robert Boyd was to have completed his contract for Arms is nearly expired, that he has as yet delivered a very few Musket-barrels, &c., agreeable to his contract.

Ordered, That a Letter be written to the said Robert Boyd, directing him to send down all the Gun-barrels he has made, and desiring him to inform the Congress when he can complete his contract.

Watkeys, the Gunsmith, was sent for, and charged to finish the Gun-barrels now in his custody. He says he can finish them in seven days. He is charged to finish them in ten days, at all events.

A draft of a Letter to Robert Boyd, on the subject of Arms, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 12, 1776.

SIR: It is now a considerable time since we have had any intelligence from you respecting the completing the contract made with you by the last Congress. The season is near when we shall want all the arms that can be procured. We therefore desire that you advise us, without delay, how many barrels, and bayonets, and steel ramrods, you have made, and to send down steel ramrods for the barrels sent down last autumn. And as the time in which the arms were to be made is now expired, we wish to be advised whether you mean to go on in making arms upon the strength of that contract; and if you do, to inform us what number you can complete before the 1st day of April.

We are, sir, your very humble servants.

By order.

To Mr. Robert Boyd, New-Windsor.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall, Colonel Brasher, and John Van Cortlandt, Esq., be a Committee to wait on Major-General Lee, and inform him that the Provincial Congress is now formed; that if he has anything relative to the publick service or safety to propose, they are ready to take the same into consideration; and that they are ready to give him any necessary aid in the publick service.

A Petition of John Willett, and fourteen other persons, inhabitants of Queen's County, now prisoners under a guard in the City of New-York, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York, convened in the City of New-York, the Petition of the subscribers, inhabitants of QUEEN'S County, on NASSAU-ISLAND, humbly sheweth:

"That your Petitioners have been obliged to attend the honourable the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, in obedience to an order from that body, as verbally delivered by Colonel Heard. That they have been at great expense in their journey to and from Philadelphia, and are now confined in this city at their own expense, and denied the pleasure of visiting their families. That when they left their several homes to attend the honourable the Continental Congress, they were admitted to go and return to this Congress on parole of honour. That they are ready and willing to pledge their honours to observe such orders as this honourable body shall direct, respecting their appearance, provided they are admitted to go at large; or, if bail should be required, they are ready and willing to give such reasonable security as to this honourable body shall seem meet, for their appearance whenever required. The Petitioners, therefore, humbly pray that this honourable body will give them such relief in the premises as to them shall seem meet. And the Petitioners shall ever pray, &c.

"John Willett,	Daniel Kissam,	John Polhemus,
"Benj. Whitehead,	John Shoals,	Charles Hicks,
"Thomas Smith,	Samuel Hallett,	Samuel Martin,
"William Weynman,	Gilbert Van Wyck,	David Brooks,
"Nathaniel Moore,	John Townsend,	Joseph French.

"New-York, February 12, 1776."

After reading the said Petition and prayer thereof, Mr. Scott moved, and was seconded, that the prayer thereof be granted.

Debates arose upon the said motion, and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the negative by a great majority.

Mr. Vanderbilt requested a permit to complete the lading of the Brig Defiance, John Waldron, master. Thereupon an order was made in the words following, to wit:

Mr. John Vanderbilt is hereby permitted to complete the lading of the Brigantine Defiance, whereof John Waldron is master.

FOR ALBANY.—Colonel Rensselaer, Mr. Oothoudt, Mr. Gansevoort.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. L'Hommiedieu, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Wickham.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel P. Ten Broeck, Major Livingston, Mr. G. Livingston, Colonel M. Graham.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. Wills.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Leffertse.

A certified extract of the Proceedings of the Committee of Ulster County, dated New-Paltz, January 19, 1776, and signed by J. Bruyn, Chairman, whereby the said Committee do recommend for Field-Officers in the Northern Regiment of said County, Mr. Abraham Hasbrouck, for Colonel; Johannes Snyder, Lieutenant-Colonel; Jonathan Elmendorf and Adrian Wynkoop, Majors; Abraham A. Hasbrouck, Adjutant, and John Van Quesen, Jun., for Quartermaster, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Commissions be issued for the above Officers immediately.

A Letter from Severyn T. Bruyn, dated Ulster County, Bruynswick, February 15, 1776, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Ulster County, Bruynswick, February 5, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I herewith return to your Honours a commission which was handed to me, to be Adjutant of the Regiment of Minute-men of the southern part of the County of Ulster, of which Thomas Palmer, Esq., is the Colonel, whereof I must acquaint your Honours I cannot, in justice to myself, accept, as I was informed some time last fall I was recommended to your House (by two of the Deputies of this County then in Congress) to be First Major of a Regiment of Minute-men, of which George Clinton, Esq. was to be Colonel; which was resolved on, and entered in your Minutes; which proceedings were communicated to me, and I accepted, to serve my country in that capacity; which was made publick at sundry meetings of officers, and particularly at a meeting of the Field-Officers of this County for the choosing or nominating a Brigadier-General, where I was desired to meet, and accordingly did, and gave my vote as a Major. And now, to be tossed out, and put into a lower commission, I cannot accept thereof, without degrading myself to the lowest degree. However, I still can serve the country as a private, and not be dependant for my living on a commission.

"I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

"SEVERYN T. BRUYN.

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of New-York."

Ordered, That the Letter from S. T. Bruyn be referred to the Members of Ulster County, and that they make report with all convenient speed.

A Letter from the Committee of Marbletown, dated January 29, signed by Levi Pawling, Chairman, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Marbletown, January 29, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: We, the Committee of the township of Marbletown, are under the disagreeable necessity of troubling your honourable body; though, as it is the first of the kind, we expect to be excused.

"The matter we have to lay before your honourable Board is, that, in compliance to a resolve passed by the honourable Provincial Congress the 22d of August last, there was an election for choosing of officers in the company of the southwest district of said town, and the following persons were chosen by a very great majority, viz: Cornelius E. Wynkoop, Captain; Charles W. Brodhead, First Lieutenant; Moses M. Cantine, Second Lieutenant; and Jacob Chambers Ensign; which your honourable Board has been pleased to commission. These gentlemen officiated each in their respective ranks with great satisfaction, as far as we know, until it pleased your honourable body to promote Captain Wynkoop to be a Major in Colonel Dewitt's Regiment of Minute-men; after which, there was a day appointed, agreeably to said resolve, for filling up the vacancy by the company's choice, when John Hasbrouck, a person not belonging to the company, nor even to the regiment, set up, or intended to set up, for Captain of said company; which caused a great deal of confusion.

"We therefore pray that we may be informed, as soon as possible, whether it is the opinion of your honourable body that a Captain should be chosen, or that the First Lieutenant should be promoted, and the other subalterns rise in rank, and then an Ensign to be chosen; which we think is the most natural construction to be laid on the resisted resolve. And if a procedure of that kind cannot take place, your Honours may be assured that Mr. Brodhead will resign, and then a new election must ensue, and in course more troubles of that kind ensue. But, at the same time, we are willing to comply with such directions as we may receive from your honourable body.

"We are, gentlemen, your Honours' very humble servants.

"By order of the Committee:

"LEVI PAWLING, Chairman.

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress in New-York."

The Petition of John Hasbrouck and others, dated at Marbletown, January 30, 1776, was read and filed.

Ordered, That the Letter from the Committee of Marbletown, as also the Petition of John Hasbrouck and others, be referred to the Members of Orange and Dutchess, and that they make report with all convenient speed.

Colonel McDougall, from the Committee appointed to wait on General Lee, reported, that they had waited on General Lee, and delivered him the Congress's message of yesterday, and that the General was pleased to answer, that he thanked the Congress for their politeness, and would avail himself of the tender of their services as circumstances shall make it necessary.

As the following gentlemen (being among the number of Deputies chosen to represent the City and County of New-York; in this Congress) have not taken their seats, to wit: Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Benjamin Kissam, John Morton, Gabriel W. Ludlow, Isaac Sears, Cornelius Clopper, and Theodorus Van Wyck.

And as it is necessary for the publick service that the representation of the City and County of New-York be complete, it is therefore Ordered, That the General Committee of the City and County of New-York be directed to cause, by election of the inhabitants entitled to vote, a Return to be made of seven Deputies, to serve in this Congress with the other Deputies of the said City and County, in the room of the above-mentioned persons, who have not taken their seats, and that the said Return be made on or before the 20th instant.

Ordered, further, That such Members who have taken their seats in Congress be requested to give their attendance.

Mr. Mayor of the City of New-York attending, was requested to come into Congress. He informed the Congress that the passage to his Excellency Governour Tryon's Ship is impeded by sentinels; that his Majesty's Council, and some of the Magistrates of this City, may have occasion to wait on his Excellency. Therefore,

Ordered, That the Hon. Cadwallader Colden, Esq., Lieutenant-Governour, and the Hon. Daniel Horsmanden, Oliver De Lancey, Charles Ward, Apthorpe, William Smith, Hugh Wallace, William Axtell, and John Harris Cruger, Esquires, of his Majesty's Council for this Colony; the Worshipful Whitehead Hicks, Esq., Mayor of the City of New-York, and Samuel Bayard, Jun., Esq., Deputy Secretary and Deputy Clerk of the Council, or any of his stated Clerks, who may by his order attend the Council of this Colony, and each and every of them, be permitted to go on board of his Excellency's Ship, until the further order or direction of this Congress or the Committee of Safety, and that a copy hereof, delivered to the officer of the Port-Guard, be a sufficient pass for each and every of the aforesaid publick officers, without any other pass or copy hereof in the custody of either of those gentlemen; and

Ordered, That the copy hereof delivered to the officer of the Port-Guard, be delivered over to each successive officer of the Port-Guard.

A Letter from Samuel Bayard, Jun., Esq., Deputy Secretary of this Colony, was again read. He therein mentions his inclination to have it in his power to use any recreation, on his engagement not to quit the Records. And Mr. John McKesson informed Congress that his Majesty's Council is to sit to-morrow, and that the attendance of Samuel Bayard, Jun., Esq., as Clerk of the Council, may be necessary: Therefore,

Ordered, That Samuel Bayard, Jun., Esq., the Deputy Secretary of this Colony, be permitted to come to the City of New-York, or to depart from the house of Nicholas Bayard, Esq., at any time he shall think proper, on his leaving one of his stated Clerks there, during his absence, on every such occasion.

On request of Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Rensselaer and Major R. G. Livingston are added to the Committee appointed yesterday, to take into consideration the matters which the Continental Congress have recommended for execution to this Congress or the Committee of Safety.

Colonel Joseph Drake applied for some blank Commissions for Officers of Militia in Westchester County.

Ordered, That the Secretaries send to the Committee of Westchester County, by Colonel Joseph Drake, such blank Commissions, signed by the President of this Congress, as they have here in the Congress Chamber.

Thereupon, three blank Commissions (which are all the Secretaries had here) were delivered to Colonel Joseph Drake, to be delivered to the Chairman of the Committee of Westchester County, to be filled up.

A Letter from Isaac Thompson, Chairman of the Committee of Islip, in Suffolk County, bearing date the 9th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Islip, in Suffolk County, February 9, A. D. 1776.

"SIR: There never has been a Militia Company formed in this Precinct; but they that bore arms in the east part of this Precinct have been in the Smithtown Company, and those of the west part of this Precinct have been under a Huntington Captain; which has been disagreeable to the greatest part of the people of this Precinct, and it has been the cause of uneasiness amongst us. We informed Colonel Potter of what we were going to do, before we proceeded to form a company. The Colonel said the company would not be so large as he should choose; but if it would unite the people, and if they did proceed to choose their officers, &c., that he would order the names of those of the east part of this Precinct to be taken out of the list at Smithtown.

"The way thus being laid open, the people of this Precinct assembled together, and in our presence proceeded to the choice of their officers. They unanimously chose Benajah Strong for their Captain, Jeremiah Terry for their First Lieutenant, Samuel Oakley for their Second Lieutenant, and Annen Mobrey for their Ensign.

"The above-named persons have signed the Association. We desire that commissions may be granted to the above-named persons, as we believe it will tend very much to unite the people in this Precinct.

"Signed by order of the Committee of Islip :

"ISAAC THOMPSON, Chairman.

"To the President of the Provincial Congress at New-York.

"P. S. There are about thirty-six or thirty-seven that would belong to this company. I. T."

The Congress took the same into consideration; and thereupon

Ordered, That the Inhabitants of Islip be formed into a Militia Company, agreeable to their request, and that Commissions issue to the following gentlemen, to wit: Benajah Strong, Captain; Jeremiah Terry, First Lieutenant; Samuel Oakley, Second Lieutenant; and Annen Mobrey, Ensign, agreeably to the election of the Company, and the Return of the Committee.

A Letter from the Committee of Tryon County, bearing date the 11th of January last, and requesting the loan of five hundred Pounds for their County, payable to Mr. John Moore, one of their Deputies, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Tryon County Committee-Chamber, January 11, 1776.

"HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: We took into mature consideration the defraying of our Committee expenses for several services of scouting parties, guards, and other necessary duties, performed upon orders of our Board since the 27th August, 1774, to this day; and as it is to be feared that if in case we should levy such wanting money in a tax from our constituents, our Association would be hurt or entirely broken; therefore it is resolved by our Board, that such sum of money as is wanted for that purpose might be drawn out of the Provincial Treasury in New-York, and the same charged to this Board until a future time. In order of which we apply to you, with the humble request for your kind assistance in granting such reasonable desire; and relying thereon, we do hereby appoint and authorize our Delegate, Mr. John Moore, to receive out of the fund above-mentioned the sum of five hundred pounds, to the use of defraying such necessary payments already due on account and charge of our Board, as aforesaid.

"Your favourable compliance will in particular oblige, who are esteemfully, honourable gentlemen, your obedient humble servants.

"By order of the Committee:

"ISAAC PARIS, Chairman.

"Attest:

"JOHN EISENLORD, Clerk.

"To the Honourable the Congress of New-York."

The Congress took the same into consideration; and, after some time spent therein,

Ordered, That the same be deferred for further consideration on the arrival of the Accounts of the Tryon County Committee, which are speedily expected.

A Letter from David Pye, Esq., Chairman of a Committee on the south side of the Mountains, in Orange County, recommending sundry gentlemen for officers in the Troops to be raised in this Colony, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In County Committee, south side of the Mountains, 2 in the County of Orange, February 10, 1776. }

"In pursuance of a resolution of the Continental Congress, and a recommendation of the Committee of Safety of New-York, now before us, we do recommend the under-named persons for officers for two companies, to be raised in this part of the said County, upon probability that they will be completed, viz:

"Amos Hutchings, Captain; Pattan Jackson, First Lieutenant; Robert Wood, Second Lieutenant; George Johnson, Ensign; nominated for officers for one company, for the Continental service.

"Arie King, Captain; William Sicher, First Lieutenant; John D. Coe, Second Lieutenant; Peter Oblenus, Ensign; nominated for officers for one company, for the Continental service.

"GENTLEMEN: The above nominations, if accepted by the Congress, the persons concerned request to know when they must commence, and what clothing is to be allowed, and what will be allowed for sufficient arms which may amount to one-third the number of men.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. v.

"We are, gentlemen, your humble servants.

"Per order: DAVID PYE, Deputy Chairman.

"To the President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.

"P. S. The bearer hereof, Amos Hutchings, will wait your answer hereunto. Pray use the utmost despatch."

A Letter from John W. Watkins, offering his services to his country, and requesting a Commission, was read and filed.

Ordered, That the two last mentioned Letters be referred to the Committee appointed to take into consideration the matters recommended from Continental Congress to be carried into execution.

Thereupon, a Permit was given to Dr. Middleton, in the words following, to wit:

To the Officer of the Port-Guard:

Dr. Middleton is hereby permitted to go on board of his Excellency's Ship the Dutchess of Gordon.

By order.

Dr. John Williams, of Charlotte County, appeared in Congress, and produced his Credentials; which were read and filed, and are in the words and figures following, to wit:

"At a general meeting, held in White Creek, January 25, 1776, it was unanimously agreed, that Dr. John Williams and Mr. Alexander Campbell should represent the County of Charlotte in Provincial Congress till the second Tuesday in May next.

"By order of this meeting:

"ALEXANDER WEBSTER, Clerk."

A Letter from Egbert Benson, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Dutchess County, bearing date the 8th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Dutchess County Committee, February 8, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: In compliance with a letter from the Committee of Safety, of the 26th ultimo, this Committee proceeded to deliberate on every part of your directions respecting the four regiments to be raised, and in Continental pay, for the defence of this Colony, and are of opinion that, notwithstanding here are now in this County six recruiting officers in the service of the Continent, viz: Captains Billings, Rosekrans, and Graham, and Lieutenants Burten and Doty, and Ensign Johnson, we shall be able to complete three companies. Accordingly we have, with the utmost caution and circumspection, recommended the following gentlemen in the different Precincts as proper officers for this most essential service, viz:

"William Barker, Captain; John Lloyd, First Lieutenant; Nathaniel Meade, Second Lieutenant; John Punder-son, Ensign.

"Abraham Swartwout, Captain; John Durling, First Lieutenant; Eli Pearson, Second Lieutenant; George Brooks, Ensign.

"Nathan Pearce, Jun., Captain; Joshua Barnum, First Lieutenant; Josiah Crosby, Second Lieutenant; Thomas Ostrander, Ensign.

"At the same time we could wish to have complied more particularly with the tepour of your directions respecting the advice of our Deputies, which we would most readily have done had we had the opportunity of procuring their attendance.

"The latter part of your respectable favour directs us to nominate two gentlemen for each office, that you may have an opportunity of choosing the one you shall think best qualified. In this particular instance, we beg leave to observe that the inconveniences to us appear insurmountable, and therefore have thought proper to desist from the mode.

"We remain your very humble servants.

"By order of the Committee:

"EGBERT BENSON, Chairman.

"To the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York."

Ordered, That the said Letter be referred to the Committee to whom the other Letters recommending Officers are referred.

Colonel McDougall and Colonel Brasher, who, by order of the Congress, had gone to wait on General Lee, to request a change in the mode of his order to the Officer of the Port-Guard, returned, and reported that General Lee had given a new order to the Officer of the Port-Guard with respect to persons permitted to go on board his Excellency's Ship the Dutchess of Gordon.

The said Order being read, was in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, February 13, 1776.

"SIR: You will give orders to the Sentinels posted on the wharves to permit all persons who have leave or liberty from the Provincial Congress, or the Committee of Safety, to pass on board the ship where Mr. Tryon resides.

"CHARLES LEE, Major-General.

"To the Commanding Officer of the Port-Guard."

Ordered, That Major-General Lee's said Order, and a certified copy of the Permit or Order of this Congress of this morning, that his Majesty's Council of this Colony, the Mayor of this City, and the Deputy Secretaries of the Colony, be permitted to go on board his Excellency's Ship, be delivered to the Officer of the Port-Guard by one of the Secretaries.

Some Accounts for billeting a part of Major-General Lee's Guards were produced and read. Thereupon, Ordered, That all Accounts contracted by Major-General Lee for the Continental service, be audited for payment by Colonel McDougall; and, being so audited, that they be paid by Colonel Peter T. Curtenius, until a proper person is appointed for that purpose by the Continental Congress.

Die Mercurii, 10 ho. A. M., February 14, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Abraham Yates, Colonel Nicoll, Mr. Oothoudt, Colonel Rensselaer, Mr. Gansevoort.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Wickham, Mr. L'Hommedieu, Mr. Hobart.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Lefever, Mr. Dewitt, Mr. Rhea.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Covenhoven, Mr. Leffertse.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Herring, Mr. Allison.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel M. Graham, Major R. G. Livingston, Colonel P. Ten Broeck, Mr. G. Livingston.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel L. Graham, Mr. Ward, Colonel G. Drake, Dr. Graham.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. Wills.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Dr. Williams.

The Congress, considering that the Writs for electing Representatives in this Colony are returnable this day, and that the General Assembly may have occasion to meet in the Chamber,

Ordered, That Messrs. Roosevelt and Abraham Yates request of the Mayor of this City the use of the Common-Council Room for the Congress.

Messrs. Murray, Sansom & Co., sent in a request by Mr. Robert Murray, for leave to send Provisions, and certain other articles in their request mentioned, on board of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon.

The Congress consented that part of the said Provisions be sent on board, together with the other articles. Thereupon, Ordered, That Messrs. Murray, Sansom & Co., be permitted to put on board of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, five barrels Pork, five barrels Beef, one box Candles, one coil of three-inch Rope, some Blocks, one bolt of Canvass No. 1, and two cords of Firewood, for the use of said Ship and her crew.

A Letter from Abraham Godwin, dated yesterday, offering his service to his country as a Captain, and alleging that he had enlisted the best part of his Company, was read and filed.

Ordered, That it be referred with the other Letters on that subject.

The Petition of John De Wint, of Orange Town, in the County of Orange,* praying leave to export Provisions to the Island of St. Thomas, in the Danish West-Indies, was read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Petition be rejected.

A Petition of Guert Spt. De Wint, Esquire, was read. He thereby requests leave to export a large quantity of Provisions and Lumber for the use of his Estate in the Island of St. Thomas, in the Danish West-Indies; likewise leave to export his Household Furniture, Horses and Carriages, and his family, and a generous supply of all the good things of this country, for the use of himself and family at sea.

Ordered, That that part of the Petition of Guert Spt. De Wint, Esq., which relates to removal of his Family, Horses, Carriages, and Household Furniture, and a necessary supply of Provisions only for their use at sea, be referred to the General Committee of the City and County of New-York; and that all the other parts of the said Petition be rejected.

A Letter from Major-General Lee, submitting to the Congress the case of Jean Baptiste De Gas, and the establishment of a Company of Artificers, &c., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, February 14, 1776.

"SIR: Enclosed I take the liberty of sending the case of Jean Baptiste De Gas, a Canadian, submitting to the consideration of the Provincial Congress whether it would not be proper to furnish him with a necessary sum of money to enable him to proceed to Mr. Hancock, to whom he has been recommended.

"Sir, as, in all probability, a considerable body of troops will be stationed in this city and its environs during the present contest, I would take the liberty to propose to the Congress the establishment of a Corps of Artificers. Such an establishment is not only necessary for the different military works, but I apprehend it will answer very materially in point of economy.

"There is another circumstance I must beg leave to

* To the Honourable Provincial Congress of the Province of New-York, now assembled at New-York:

The humble Petition of JOHN DE WINT, of ORANGE Town, and County of ORANGE, sheweth:

That your Petitioner has long resided in this Province, and has now a large and numerous family about him. That your Petitioner has a Plantation in the Island of St. Thomas, in the Danish West-Indies, which has been the entire support of himself and numerous family, who cannot subsist without the income of said estate. And whereas, through the prohibition of exporting lumber, his said estate must sink this year's crop, now standing on the fields; your Petitioner therefore prays your indulgence or permission to ship, for the sole use of said estate, ten thousand staves and five thousand hoops.

That your Petitioner has on said Plantation one hundred and sixty Negroes, whose support entirely depends on provisions from America, and, by that means, the support of himself and numerous family depend on the same. Your Petitioner therefore prays your indulgence to ship, for the use of said Negroes, fifty casks of white flour, fifty casks of rye flour, twenty-five tierces of bread, and ten barrels of pork. And your Petitioner shall forever pray.

JOHN DE WINT.

February 14, 1776.

mention: it is, sir, to appoint some person as Commissary, to receive, take care of, and be responsible for the various sorts of military stores now in our hands.

"I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

"CHARLES LEE.

"To the President of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York."

"New-York, February 13, 1776.

"General Wooster employed Jean Baptiste De Gas the 4th of January, as conductor and interpreter of the prisoners who were sent from Montreal to Albany. In consequence, he conducted them to Albany. General Wooster advanced him no money; but he received from Lieutenant Cook, at Ticonderoga, twenty-two shillings, New-York money; that this is the only money he has received; that as General Montgomery had promised to recommend him to the Congress for a commission in a regiment of Canadians to be raised for the Continental service, and as General Wooster assured him he had written in his favour to Mr. Hancock, he thought both his interest and his duty obliged him to proceed to Philadelphia, in order to make application, in person, to the gentlemen of the Congress for their favour and protection; but at Poughkeepsie he fell sick, where, having no money, he was obliged to sell part of his clothes to pay his Doctor, and the expenses of his living."

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pay to Jean Baptiste De Gas, (recommended by General Lee), who appears to have been employed by General Wooster as Conductor and Interpreter to the Prisoners from Montreal to Albany, and for which he has not been fully satisfied, the sum of twenty Dollars, to assist him on his journey from this City to Philadelphia.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall and Mr. Sands be a Committee to take into consideration that part of Major-General Lee's Letter to this Congress relative to the establishment of a Corps of Artificers, and the appointment of a Commissary to receive, take care of, and be responsible for the various sorts of Military Stores now in the General's hands; and that they report with all convenient speed.

A Letter from Messrs. William Bedlow and Jonathan Lawrence, Commissioners in the Highlands, bearing date the 12th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Fort Constitution, February 12, 1776.

"SIR: As we have now weather to finish the Battery recommended in a letter from the Committee of Safety of 23d January last, we were desirous of setting about it, by employing the Minute-men in garrison here. Colonel Nicoll informs us the men seem unwilling, unless allowed some small compensation. We have agreed to allow them one shilling per day when at work. If it is not with your approbation, shall desist from giving them anything.

"We beg leave to remark, on the order of the Committee in the above-mentioned letter, that, to make the breastwork of said Battery twenty feet thick, we must make the stone-work of the wall equal to support such a breastwork; which will be as expensive, and take as much time as has already accrued on it. If it be agreeable, we can make the breastwork with three pieces of timber thick, twelve by twelve on the outer face, and two the inside, taking in the whole width of the crown of the wall, except six inches for the sleepers of the platform to rest on, and to fill the space between the timber with earth, well rammed down. Your answer from the Committee of Safety will oblige, sir, your humble servants,

"WILLIAM BEDLOW.

"JONATHAN LAWRENCE.

"To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York."

A Letter from Colonel Isaac Nicoll, Commanding Officer at the Fortifications in the Highlands, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Fort Constitution, February 12, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: The Commissioners for carrying on the works at this garrison have applied to me to order out workmen—parties out of the men under my command here—for that purpose. I am heartily disposed to comply with their request, being assured it will promote the publick service, and be a great saving. Yet I fear, unless the men have some little extra allowance, they will rather enter upon their duty with reluctance; and am the more induced to think so, as the soldiers who have been employed by the Commissioners have had an allowance of one shilling per day each. I shall be glad, therefore, to be informed whether the men are to expect such, or any allowance, being, at any rate, determined to exert myself in forwarding the business by every means in my power. Enclosed you have a return of the Minute-men now stationed here.*

"And am, gentlemen, with profound respect, your most obedient servant,

"ISAAC NICOLL.

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York."

Ordered, That Mr. Scott and Mr. L'Hommedieu be a Committee to take the said Letters, and the subject-matter thereof, into consideration, and to prepare answers thereto, and to report thereon with all convenient speed.

Joseph Ooten Bogert informed the Congress that the Sentinels of the Port-Guard have prevented him from supplying to His Excellency the Governour, and the people on board of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, the ordinary supplies of fresh Provisions.

Thereupon Ordered, That Joseph O. Bogert, butcher, be permitted to supply the Ship Dutchess of Gordon with a sufficient quantity of fresh Provisions; and that the said Joseph O. Bogert do furnish Captain William Mercier with an account, from day to day, of the quantity of Provisions so supplied by him; and that a certified copy of this Order be given to the said Joseph O. Bogert.

The Congress was informed that the Barrackmaster is in want of Beds, or crocus or canvass to make Beds, for the Troops hourly expected; and that materials fit for that purpose are not to be purchased.

Therefore Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius deliver to the Barrackmaster as many of the coarsest Sheets as he shall apply for, to cover straw Beds for the Troops expected; and that Mr. Curtenius take the Barrackmaster's receipt for the same.

John Van Cortlandt, Esq., Mr. Roosevelt, and Captain Rutgers, are appointed a Committee to examine the Lists of empty Houses in this city, made by sundry citizens at the request of the Committee of Safety, and returned to this Congress, and to ascertain such as they may think most proper for the use of the Troops.

I hereby certify the above to be a true Return of the Troops now on present duty. Given under my hand, at Fort Constitution, February 13, 1776.

ISAAC NICOLL.

The Congress were informed by a Member that, amongst other Stores lately removed and put into the care of Colonel Peter Curtenius, there is a chest of excellent Lint for wounds, which ought to be carefully preserved, on account of the difficulty of obtaining that article; and that some Linen for bandages is also necessary.

Therefore Ordered, That Dr. John Jones and Dr. Treat be requested to take the charge and care of all the said Lint, and so much of the Medicines and Sheets now in the possession of Colonel Curtenius as they may think necessary for dressing of wounds, to be preserved for the use of such Hospital and Troops as shall hereafter be directed by the Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety of this Colony.

And Ordered, That Colonel P. T. Curtenius deliver the said Lint, Medicines, and Sheets, to those gentlemen when it may be convenient for them to receive the same.

A Letter from the Congress of New-Jersey, dated at New-Brunswick, on the 12th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Provincial Congress, Brunswick, February 12, 1776.

"SIR: This Congress, sincerely desirous of rendering every possible assistance to promote the common cause of America, have most cheerfully complied with the request of your Committee of Safety, as signified to us by your letter of the 10th instant; and Colonel Heard, with a detachment of seven hundred men under his command, is now under orders to march immediately to Staten-Island, to secure it from depredators.

"It will always be a pleasure to this Congress to co-operate with your Colony in any measures which concern the common interest; and we hope, as soon as this particular service is completed, that Colonel Heard will have permission to return with the troops under his command.

"I am, your most obedient humble servant,

"By order: SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

"To the Honourable Pierre Van Cortlandt."

A Letter from the Delegates of this Colony at Continental Congress, dated 11th February, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, February 11, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Agreeably to your instructions, we have represented to Congress the case of the inhabitants of Richmond County. As our Convention might be embarrassed, while it seemed doubtful to you whether they ought, without the intervention of Congress, to decide on the propriety of admitting the Deputies elected for that County, it became our duty to press for a speedy decision on this subject. It was readily agreed that the Convention ought to be the sole judges of their own Members; and on this principle the resolution, which we have the honour to enclose, was grounded. We have obtained a warrant on the Continental Treasury for twelve thousand dollars, to strengthen your hands in raising, within our Colony, the four battalions intended for its immediate protection and defence. The first opportunity which presents itself to you, or us, shall be embraced to forward the money.

"The great difficulties with which our Convention was, on a similar occasion, pressed the last year, will, we hope, be avoided by this expedient, and for which we were the more solicitous, from our ignorance whether the state of our Provincial finances would admit of your performing this essential service to advantage without such aid.

"Some time since we were favoured with an order of our Convention authorizing us to draw on the Provincial Treasurer for the allowance they were pleased to provide for their Delegates. To such of us as have continued here since the last recess of Congress, it would be convenient, and prevent the risk and difficulty of double-carriage, should we be directed to deduct out of the money which will pass through our hands, agreeably to the above-mentioned warrant, our respective balances. In that case, the residue shall be accompanied by our receipt to the Provincial Treasurer as his voucher.

"We expect soon to have the honour of writing to you again on other subjects of your despatches, on some of which we think it probable you may have consulted the Deputies of Congress, who arrived this day from your city.

"We are, gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servants,

"JAMES DUANE,
"JOHN ALSOP,
"WILLIAM FLOYD,
"FRANCIS LEWIS.

"To the Honourable the Committee of Safety, New-York."

The case of Richmond County, and Resolve of Continental Congress thereon, were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, February 8, 1776.

"The Inhabitants of Richmond County, in the Colony of New-York, having refused to send Deputies to represent them in Provincial Convention, and otherwise manifested their enmity and opposition to the system and measures adopted for preserving the liberties of America; and, as a just punishment for their inimical conduct, the Inhabitants of that Colony, having been prohibited by the Convention from all intercourse and dealings with the Inhabitants of the said County; and this Congress being informed by the Committee of Safety of that Colony that the Freeholders of the said County did afterwards, without any opposition, elect Deputies to represent them in Provincial Convention, but, as the proceedings against them had been submitted to the consideration of Congress, it was apprehended Deputies could not be received until the sense of Congress thereupon should be communicated:

"Resolved, That it be referred to the said Provincial Convention, to take such measures respecting the admission of the Deputies and revoking the interdict on the Inhabitants of the said County, as they shall judge most expedient: provided, that the said Deputies, and major part of the Inhabitants of said County, shall subscribe the Association entered into by that Colony.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

Ordered, That the Secretaries transmit a copy of the Resolve of Continental Congress on the case of Richmond County to the Deputies lately elected by the people of that County.

Resolves of Continental Congress of the 5th instant, relating to Batteamen and the Regiment for the service of Canada, enclosed in a Letter from the Delegates of this Colony, were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, February 5, 1776.

"Resolved, That the Resolution of Congress of the 8th of last month, for sending sundry Shipwrights from the cities of New-York and Philadelphia to build Batteaus at Ticonderoga, be superseded; and that General Schuyler be desired to employ any such Artificers as he shall think proper in that business.

"That General Schuyler be desired to issue warrants for completing the Regiment directed to be raised in New-York for the service of Canada; and that it be recommended to the Convention of that Colony to appoint such officers thereof as General Schuyler hath nominated.

"That General Schuyler be desired to employ such Batteamen as are in or near Albany, instead of those it was recommended to the Convention of New-York to procure.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

Ordered, That the Secretaries transmit a copy thereof to Major-General Schuyler with all possible despatch.

Ordered, That Mr. Lispenard be permitted to supply, and put on board of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, Beer for the use of said Ship.

A Letter from Major-General Lee, respecting a report of a Fleet at the Hook, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"February 14, two o'clock P. M., 1776.

"SIR: I would humbly propose to the Congress not to lose a single instant in despatching a whale-boat to the Hook, to reconnoitre the fleet, whether they are friends or enemies; for should they be the latter, and intend a visit to this place, we should make an awkward figure, unless we are prepared for their reception.

"I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

"CHARLES LEE.

"To the President of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York."

A copy of an Answer, which had been immediately returned to the General by the President and Colonel McDougall, informing that proper care has already been taken on that subject, was read and approved of by the Congress.

Die Jovis, A. M., February 15, 1776.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Beckman, Mr. Roosevelt, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Sands, Colonel McDougall, Col. Brasher, Mr. T. Smith, Mr. Scott.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Oothoudt, Mr. Yates, Colonel Nicoll, Mr.  Gansevoort, Colonel Rensselaer.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Wickham, Mr. Hobart, Mr. L'Hommedieu.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel M. Graham, Mr. G. Livingston, Major R. G. Livingston, Colonel Ten Broeck.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Covenhoven.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Herring, Colonel Allison.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Mr. Dewitt, Mr. Wisner.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel G. Drake, Colonel L. Graham, Doctor Graham, Stephen Ward.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. Wills.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Doctor Williams.

A draft of a Letter to several persons in Queen's County, was read and approved of, and is in the words following:

"SIR: By an order of the Continental Congress, Colonel Heard has apprehended the following persons, to wit: Joseph French, Esq., William Weyman, Daniel Kissam, Esq., Samuel Clowes, Esq., John Townsend, John Polhemus, John Shoals, Charles Hicks, Thomas Smith, Esq., Captain B. Whitehead, Nathaniel Moore, John Willet, Gabriel G. Ludlow, George Weeks, Samuel Hallet, Gilbert Van Wyck, Samuel Martin, and David Brooks, inhabitants of your County, who are now in our custody. They were considered by the Congress as inimical to the liberties of America, and were ordered to be continued in our custody until an inquiry should be made by this Convention into their conduct, and a report thereof made to the Congress. Wherefore, we desire you would immediately collect what evidence you can against those persons, respecting their denying or refusing to obey the directions of the Continental or this Congress; what part they have taken in procuring powder from the Asia man-of-war, and distributing the same; their taking up arms against the country; or any other act they may have done inimical to the liberties of the United Colonies; and transmit the same to us in writing, together with the names of the principal witnesses to prove the same, with all possible speed."

Ordered, That copies of the foregoing Letter be engrossed, and transmitted to such of the Inhabitants of Queen's County as are most likely to execute the service required therein.

Mr. Moore moved in the words following, to wit:

MR. PRESIDENT: I move for the loan of four hundred Pounds, out of the Treasury of this Congress, to defray accounts charged against the Committee of Tryon County for expresses, services of Minute-men on alarms, and other necessary expenses; the sum so lent to be secured by the bond of Isaac Paris, Esq., William Wills, and myself, to Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, and charged to the account of Tryon County.

Whereupon, it was Resolved and Ordered, First: That the Treasurer of this Congress pay to Messrs. Isaac Paris, William Wills, and John Moore, the sum of four hundred Pounds, New-York money, and that he take their joint and several obligations for the same, in his own name, payable on demand.

Second. Resolved, That the Obligors do, with all convenient speed, produce to this Congress an account of the Moneys expended by the Committee of Tryon County, with the proper vouchers; and that they shall have credit on the said obligation for such expenditures as shall hereafter be adjudged by this Congress to be a proper charge against this Colony.

And it is further Resolved, That the said Obligors apply to the Commissioners for Indian Affairs for the payment of such expenditures as have been made by the Committee in their department, and pay the same to the Treasurer of this Congress, in discharge of the said obligation, with all convenient speed.

Colonel Brasher brought into Congress a request from Hugh and Alexander Wallace, Esqs., requesting a permit to put on board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon one and a half pipe of Wine, for the use of his Excellency Governour Tryon.

Thereupon, Ordered, That a permission be made out for those gentlemen, or their agent, to put the said Wine on board for his Excellency's use; and that one of the Secretaries do attest the same.

A Letter from Thomas Palmer, Esq., enclosing an Agreement, and the names of a number of men who have agreed to enlist under Mr. William Martin, as their Captain, in the Troops to be raised for the defence of this Colony; as, also, an extract of the Proceedings of the Committee of New-Marlborough, approving of, and recommending the said William Martin, as a Captain in the said Troops to be raised; was read.

Ordered, That the said Letter, with the Papers enclosed, be referred to the Committee appointed to take into consideration the Resolutions of the Continental Congress relative to the raising the Troops for the defence of this Colony.

A Letter, signed by Captain Samuel Jones and several others, dated at Goshen, February 9, 1776, was read; and they thereby request that this Congress will favour the County of Orange with part of the Field-Officers for the Troops intended to be raised in this Colony; and they recommend Mr. Israel Wells as one of the Majors.

Ordered, That the foregoing Letter be referred to the Committee appointed to consider of the Resolutions of the Continental Congress, relative to the raising the Troops for the defence of this Colony.

Whereas a large body of Troops are daily expected from the neighbouring Counties and Colonies, for the defence of this City against the Ministerial Army and Navy, in which case it will be necessary (as the Barracks are already filled with those already arrived) to provide proper Houses for their reception:

It is, therefore, Resolved and Ordered, That the General Committee for the City and County of New-York be requested forthwith to cause a Return to be made to them of all the empty Houses in this city; and that they, or a Sub-Committee of their body, select a sufficient number of the said Houses for the accommodation of the Troops that shall from time to time arrive; that, in the choice of the said Houses, such be taken as may be least liable to be injured by the Troops; that the said Committee, or their Sub-Committee, be careful to take a survey of the condition of the said Houses at the time they shall be taken possession of, and at the time such Houses shall be left by the said Troops; to the end that proper satisfaction may be made to the proprietors for any injury the said Houses may receive by reason of quartering Troops therein.

And it is further Ordered, That the Barrackmaster for the time being be subject to, and under the direction of the said Committee, or their Sub-Committee; and that the Chairman of the said Committee be requested to cause the said General Committee to be convened immediately, that this Order may be executed.

Ordered, That a certified copy of the foregoing Order be sent to the Chairman of the General Committee of the City and County of New-York.

Whereas a number of the Troops commanded to this City by Major-General Lee, are arrived from Westchester County; and there is not any Barrack room, or proper lodgment for them, wherein to put them under cover; and whereas others of the said Troops commanded to this City from Westchester and Dutchess Counties, are hourly expected, and Lodgings must also be provided for the whole of those Troops; and whereas, from the necessity of the case, the Congress must direct those Troops already arrived, and such as shall arrive, to be put into the empty Houses in this City:

Therefore, Ordered, That John Van Cortlandt, Esq., Mr. Isaac Roosevelt, Captain Rutgers, and Colonel McDougall, be a Committee to place all the before-mentioned Troops under cover; that the said Committee, or any one or more of them, be fully authorized to open and enter into any uninhabited Houses in this City, which they shall think proper for that purpose; that they, or either of them, be empowered, where necessary, to take any goods or effects out of any such House or Houses as they may think proper to have used for placing Soldiers, and have the same safely stored; that the said Committee be authorized to take to their assistance any Freeholders or Inhabitants of the said City they shall think proper; and that the Barrackmaster of the City of New-York for the time being, subject to the directions of the Committee before named, be, and hereby is, authorized to place Troops in all such Houses as the said Committee, or any one or more of them shall direct.

A Letter from Colonel Curtenius was read and filed. He therein mentions, that the Quartermaster of Colonel Drake's Regiment, had applied to him for Provisions; that he had none in store; that his other engagements in the publick business will not admit of his attending to that matter; and requesting the Congress to appoint a person pro tem., until a Deputy Commissary arrives here.

Lieutenant-Colonel Lewis Graham, of Colonel Drake's Regiment, now in Congress, offered to procure Provisions for the said Regiment, until the Quartermaster can provide for them:

Thereupon, Ordered, That Lieutenant-Colonel Lewis Graham be enabled, and he is hereby empowered and requested, to purchase Provisions for Colonel Drake's Regiment for the present, and to direct the Quartermaster to take care of and distribute the same, agreeably to Continental allowance; and that he bring in an account for the same.

The Committee appointed to consider of the Resolves of Congress relating to the ensuing Campaign, delivered in their Report in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee beg leave to report the following Resolves:

1st. That, for the more expeditiously completing the enlistment of the four Battalions to be raised for the defence of this Colony, it is necessary that a proportionable number of men be allotted to each County.

2d. That a sufficient number of officers be appointed in each County to command the men to be raised in the same.

3d. That, in the appointment of such officers, those who have served their much injured country in the last campaign ought to have the preference.

4th. That, when there are not a sufficient number of old officers who choose to serve in any one County, the deficiency ought to be made up out of those who are recommended by the respective County Committees.

5th. That a letter be written to the several County Committees, enclosing the third and fourth of these resolves, together with blank warrants for the officers to be appointed in each respective County.

6th. That two gentlemen be held up by this body, to the Continental Congress, to fill each place as Field-Officers in the four Battalions to be raised in this Colony, and that such Field-Officers as have not been in actual service, be chosen from the several Counties where the men are raised, in as equal proportions as may be.

7th. That the Colonel of each Regiment appoint the Adjutant and Quartermaster.

8th. That the Chaplains, Surgeons, and Surgeons' Mates, be appointed by this Congress.

All which is humbly submitted.

The said Report being read, was ordered to be read a second time; and, being again read, paragraph by paragraph,

The Congress agrees with their Committee in their said Report.

Mr. Covenhoven dissents.

A Letter from Robert R. Livingston, Esq., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Claremont, February 3, 1776.

"SIR: I had the honour of your letter, with your polite condolence on the death of my father, and am extremely obliged by your favourable mention of him. As his life was a continued endeavour to deserve the good opinion of his country, so the most grateful offering to his memory is the commendation of free and good men.

"The sentiments you are pleased to express of me, require my most grateful acknowledgments, and will, I hope, animate me to merit your approbation—a reward adequate to the worthiest actions.

"My brother John has finished the powder-mill, and will be obliged to you for procuring him the necessary materials, to render it as useful as I wish it to be.

"I am, sir, yours and the Committee's most obedient servant,

"ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON.

"To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York."

Mr. L'Homedieu, from the Committee appointed to draw an answer to the Letter of the Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands, accordingly reported a draft, which was read.

Ordered, That the consideration of the said Draft be postponed till to-morrow, and that, in the mean time, Mr. Thomas Grenell be requested to attend this Congress to-morrow, to give information relating to the breadth of the foundation of the parapet of the Battery now erecting, and such other information as may be necessary.

A Petition of nine Soldiers of Captain Johnson's Company,* praying that their Under Clothes might not be deducted out of their Pay, and they be allowed their expenses returning from Albany, was read and filed.

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be deferred until Colonel McDougall shall receive an answer to a Letter he wrote to General Schuyler on that subject.

Colonel McDougall, from the Committee appointed yesterday to report on Major-General Lee's Letter, relating to the appointment of a Commissary for the Continental Artillery Stores, and the appointment of a Company of Artificers, delivered in their Report; which was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

The Committee appointed to consider of, and report on, the subjects recommended to Congress by General Lee's Letter of the 14th instant, do report:

That a Commissary is necessary to take the charge of the Continental Stores in this city and the neighbourhood; and that they recommend Mr. Hugh Hughes for that office; and that a letter should be written to the Continental Congress informing them of this appointment, and requesting them to determine what pay he shall have.

*To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of NEW-YORK. The humble Petition of us, returned from the Northward, under the command of Captain JOHNSON, sheweth:

That your Petitioners having been a campaign, in this inclement season, as long as they were required, to the Northward, and were willing to continue or re-enter in the service; but understand now, since our return to this city, not only that the said Captain Johnson intends making a large deduction of our wages (which we presume dearly earned) for our clothing, (which we conceived to be given as a bounty,) but also of stopping our pay from the 27th of January, then in Albany; since which we have been at great cost and time to come down, and are now on expenses, though not properly discharged. Wherefore your Petitioners pray this honourable Board to take their case into consideration, and give directions to said Captain Johnson for the payment of our arrears, without deduction, and for our subsistence and pay till discharged; which will give resolution and activity to your Petitioners to persevere in the defence of the liberties of America, until the same be permanently established. And your Petitioners shall ever pray.

Alexander O'Dear.

That a Company of Artificers is also necessary to be immediately imbodyed, because the works to be erected will require the assistance of Carpenters and Blacksmiths without delay; and unless this company is imbodyed, the General will be obliged to employ a number of tradesmen, at daily wages, which will incur a greater expense to the publick than would be created by the company above-mentioned. That they are of opinion that the company should consist of about sixty men, officers included; that one Captain and two assistants will be necessary. That the Captain of this company should be a Carpenter, and have the pay of a Captain of a marching Regiment; that one of the assistants should be a Blacksmith, the other a Carpenter; that the assistants should have a Lieutenant's pay in the marching Regiments; that they are informed the privates of the Companies of Artificers at the camp near Cambridge have ten dollars per month, and that the privates of this company should have the same pay. That, from the information they have received from the officers of the train with the General, the Captain of Artificers has three rations, the assistants two, and the privates one. That they recommend Mr. Anthony Post as a fit person to be the Captain of the Company of Artificers.

All which is humbly submitted to the Congress.

The said Report being read, was ordered to be read a second time; and, being again read, paragraph by paragraph, and amended, was agreed to.

Mr. Scott informed the Congress that David Matthews, Esq., is appointed Mayor of this City, and that it is necessary that several Magistrates be present before the Governor, to see him qualified. Thereupon a Pass was given to Mr. Matthews in the words following, to wit:

Ordered, That David Matthews, Esq., one of the Magistrates, as also all the other Magistrates of this City, be, and they are hereby, permitted to go on board of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon on publick business with his Excellency Governour Tryon.

A Petition of John Willett, and fourteen other persons,* praying to be relieved from their present confinement, was read.

Debates arose thereon. Thereupon the question was put, whether the same should be taken into consideration immediately, and carried by a majority; but, being late, the same is deferred till to-morrow.

* To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York, convened in the City of New-York.

Whereas your Petitioners, on the 12th instant, presented a Petition to this honourable body, praying to be admitted to return to their respective families, upon parole of honour, but have been so unhappy as not to have heard anything relative to that matter, as yet, and are still in close confinement, to the great prejudice of themselves and families; they therefore humbly entreat this honourable body to take their case into consideration, and grant them such relief as to this honourable House may seem meet. CITY OF NEW-YORK, February 15, 1776.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that he understood that the floors were laid in the Hospital lately erected in this City; that the Troops already arrived, and those expected to arrive, would stand in need of Quarters.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Colonel Swartwout be authorized to demand the Keys of the Hospital lately erected in the City, and open the same; that he examine the rooms and apartments, and if he thinks them proper for quartering Troops in, that he be authorized to make use of the same for his Regiment of Minute-men.

A Letter from Andries Onderdonck, Chairman of the Committee of Haverstraw Precinct, dated January 30, 1776, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Committee, Haverstraw Precinct, January 30, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Enclosed is a list of the names of the Field-Officers nominated for the Battalion in this precinct, and the return of the Captains and officers chosen by the respective companies, except one Lieutenant and the officers of one company, which is not yet settled, the late Captain being advanced. You will be pleased to send blank commissions for those that may be chosen.

"It is now a long time since the nomination and choice, and have long expected the commissions by return of Thomas Outwater, Chairman of the Joint Committees of this precinct and Orangetown, and have not known, many days, that no returns had been made on our account.

"We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants,

"ANDRIES ONDERDONCK, Deputy Chairman.

"To the President of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

A List of the Field and other Officers of the Militia in Haverstraw Precinct was also read and filed.

Ordered, That Commissions be made out for the Field and other Officers of the Militia in the Precinct of Haverstraw.

Mr. Rapalye, clerk to Henry White, Esq., delivered in an account of fresh Provisions supplied to his Majesty's Ships for some time past, and requested permission to supply his Majesty's Ships as usual:

Thereupon, Ordered, That Henry White, Esq., by his agent, be permitted to supply his Majesty's Ship Asia with twelve hundred weight, and the Phoenix with seven hundred weight, of fresh Provisions, and vegetables equivalent.

It being represented to Congress that the Troops daily arriving in this City are without any person, appointed as a Commissary, to provide them with Provisions; and Mr. Curtenius, by a letter yesterday, has informed the Congress that his other employments for the publick will not admit of his undertaking that business; and Mr. Abraham Livingston being recommended as a proper person for that purpose, Ordered, That Mr. Abraham Livingston be, and he is hereby, appointed Commissary, to supply the Troops from Westchester and Dutchess Counties, now arrived and daily coming into this City, until further order, or the arrival of a Deputy from Walter Livingston, Esq., Deputy Commissary-General.

Ordered, That Messrs. Van Zandt, Roosevelt, and Herring, be a Committee to settle with John Holt for his services in Printing, and to ascertain the sum due to him.

A Petition of Henry Remsen, John Broome, and thirteen other persons, was read. They thereby set forth the great loss one or more members of a Committee sustained in the year 177, for preserving the then Non-Importation Agreement, and pray relief. The accounts of the costs and damages suffered, and the state and pleadings of the court, both in a court of law and before the Governor and Assembly of Rhode-Island, were also delivered in.

Ordered, That Mr. Scott, Mr. Thomas Smith, and Mr. L'Hommedieu, be a Committee to take and examine the said Petition and Papers, with power to send for persons and papers, and to report thereon with all convenient speed.

A draft of a Letter to the Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 16, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In answer to your letter of the 12th instant, we are to inform you that we cannot allow the Minute-men extra wages while on working parties, as the example would greatly impede the publick service. There are many Minute Regiments now in this city, who are employed in working parties, without any expectation of wages other than the Continental pay; for should we admit extra wages in one instance, it would be expected in every case. As to the breastwork of the Battery, it is agreeable to us you make the same as you propose, concluding it will answer the purpose, and be attended with much less expense than the former method we recommended.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order.

To Messrs. Bedlow and Lawrence, Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Petition of Elizabeth Atherton was read. She there by prays for the discharge of her husband, John Atherton, the Pilot.

Ordered, That the facts on which the said John Atherton stands committed, as far forth as they appear on the Minutes of the Committee of Safety, be, with the Petition, handed to the Committee of the City of New-York, that they may try and determine on the case of said Atherton.

Ordered, That the Committee of the City of New-York be requested to meet every other day for the despatch of business, and to attend with vigilance to the publick business.

Ordered, That Colonel Brasher, Mr. Scott, Mr. Wickham, Colonel Hay, Colonel Gilbert Drake, Colonel Petrus Ten Broeck, Mr. Rhea, Colonel Nicoll, Mr. Moore, Mr. Vanderbilt, and Dr. Williams, be a Committee to settle the quota or number of men and officers, under the rank of Field-Officers, to be raised in the different Counties in this Colony, to constitute the four Regiments ordered to be raised therein for the Continental service and defence of this Colony, and that the said Committee report with all convenient speed.

Mr. Herring, from the Committee appointed to take into consideration the Letter from the Committee of Marbletown, and the application of the Company of Militia there, delivered in their Report, and the draft of a Letter to the Committee; which were respectively read and approved of, and are in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee report: That it is their opinion that the Committee of the Township of Marbletown, in Ulster County, have put a wrong construction upon the resolution of Congress alluded to in their letter, and that, in consequence thereof, they have erred in refusing the company of the Southwest District of said town an opportunity of filling up, by an election, the vacancy occasioned by the promotion of their late Captain. That all the Committee of said Township can properly do towards the promotion of the subaltern officers of said company is, to advise the company to do it by an election; but in case the company elect any other person, it is the duty of the Committee to return his name, in order to his being commissioned; provided he shall have signed the Association, and belong to the Beat or District of said company.

Your Committee further report: That they conceive it necessary that an answer be immediately given to the Committee of said township upon their letter; and for that purpose propose the following Letter:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 16, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of the 29th ultimo is come to hand. In answer to the request therein made, we inform you that the words of the resolution you allude to will not admit of the construction you are inclined to put thereon. You are, with all convenient speed, to call the company of the Southwest District of your township together, and give them an opportunity to choose a new Captain. At the same time you are not only at liberty, but we think it your duty, to advise the company, in a friendly manner, to promote the subaltern officers, or such of them as you shall think to merit it; but if they will not be advised, you are to suffer them to elect any other; but you are not to return the name of any one to be commissioned for that company, unless he belongs to the Beat or District of said company, and has signed the Association.

All which is humbly submitted.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Letter from General Lee, bearing date this day, on the subject of shutting up the Port, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, February 16, 1776.

"SIR: I have received intelligence that Mr. Tryon has been guilty of most grossly abusing the indulgence shown to him; that he has inveigled some of the gunsmiths on board his ship; and that he is endeavouring to seduce as many as he can, with the view, undoubtedly, of distressing us in the article of arms. I could wish (as it has been thought proper to furnish this gentleman with provisions and other necessities of life) that he should be obliged to give some security that he will not intrigue, cabal, or machinate mischief of any kind to the Continent or Province. This business of the gunsmiths is the reason that I have, pro tempore, interdicted all communication with the Governour's ship—a measure which I hope will be approved by the Congress.

"I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

"CHARLES LEE.

"To the Honourable the Congress of New-York."

Colonel Livingston informed the Congress that the present Militia Laws of this Congress are materially defective; particularly that the officers are not enabled to fine their men for disobedience or non-appearance, if they are summoned, as a regiment, more than twice a year.

Ordered, That General Ten Broeck, Colonel Livingston, and Colonel Morris Graham, be a Committee to revise the Militia Laws, and report thereon with all convenient speed.

Ordered, That Abraham Lott, Esq., Treasurer of this Colony, send to this Congress a particular account of the Provisions he has supplied to the Ship Asia, and other of his Majesty's Ships in this Port, since the order for that purpose first made by the late Provincial Congress of this Colony.

Mr. Herring obtained leave of absence, the County of Orange now having three other Deputies attending this Congress.

Dr. William Dusenberry delivered in a Petition, requesting to be appointed Surgeon to a Regiment.

"New-York, February 16, 1776.

"SIR: I have been informed that Colonel Waterbury has in charge a number of guns, taken from the Tories in West- chester County; and as many of the men in my regiment, from the suddenness of the call and their poverty, are destitute of arms, I beg you will be pleased to give orders that my men be supplied with such of those arms as are fit for service.

"From, sir, your most obedient servant,

"SAMUEL DRAKE,

Colonel of Minute Regiment in Westchester County.

"To Colonel Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress."

Ordered, That Dr. Graham and Mr. Ward be a Committee to inquire how many Arms Colonel Waterbury has taken; where and by whose orders; to whom each particular Fire-lock belongs, and where they now are; and to report thereon to this Congress.

A Letter from . . . . ., Chairman of a Committee in Westchester County, relating to Captain James Varian, of one of the Companies of Minute-men, in Colonel Drake's Regiment, was read.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Captain James Varian, with the men under his command, continue on duty, and receive Continental pay equal with the other officers and men in the regiment to which he belongs, until the dispute of his election be settled, or the further order of this Congress.

"In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 16, 1776.

Ordered, That he be permitted to go at large.

Thereupon, a Passport was given to Mr. French, in the words following, to wit:

Ordered, That he be permitted to go at large.

The Congress took into consideration the Petition of John Willett and others, Inhabitants of Queen's County, now under guard in this City.

Thereupon, on motion made, Resolved, That the said John Willett, Benjamin Whitehead, Thomas Smith, William Weyman, Nathaniel Moore, Daniel Kissam, John Shoals, Samuel Hallett, Gilbert Van Wyck, John Townsend, John Polhemus, Charles Hicks, Samuel Martin, and David Brooks, be released from their confinement, upon their giving sufficient security for their appearance, when required, before this or any future Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony; and also, that they will in the mean time deport themselves peaceably, and make no opposition to the measures of this or the Continental Congress, nor instigate others thereunto; and on their paying all expenses occasioned by their confinement.

The said Committee delivered in an account of said Arms in the words following, to wit:

An Inventory of Guns and other warlike implements taken from the Tories in Westchester: Thirty Guns, two pair Holsters, nine Cutlasses, and three Pistols.

Mr. Ward further informed that they had not learned from what particular persons, by name, any of the said Arms were seized or taken; and that Colonel Waterbury is ready to deliver them as he shall be directed, on getting a receipt for them.

Mr. Hobart and Mr. Beckman reported that they, according to order, had waited upon Major-General Lee, to know the source of his information that Governour Tryon was procuring Gunsmiths from this City on board of his ship; that General Lee having given them the particulars of his information, they had pursued the inquiry to every person of whom any information could reasonably be expected, and found that it arose from the circumstance of two journey-men Gunsmiths having some time ago left the City—the one in the last Packet for England, the other now said to be in some part of the Jerseys.

Colonel Livingston, from the Committee appointed to revise the Militia Laws of this Congress, delivered in their Report, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit :

Your Committee having taken under their consideration the Rules and Orders for Regulating the Militia of this Colony, published by this Congress the 22d August, 1775, and the Appendix thereto, published the 20th December, 1775, beg leave to report :

That the following clause be added under the third Resolve, viz., after the word "Officers,"—"But in case any Company, when met, should refuse to elect Officers, agreeable to the above Resolution, that then, and in that case, the Field-Officers of the Regiment or Regiments in that District or Precinct, together with the Committee of said District or Precinct, are hereby directed to recommend such persons for Officers for such Companies so refusing to elect as they, or the majority of them, shall think capable."

That the words, "or recommended," be added in the above Resolve, after the word "chosen."

That the second clause of the Appendix be added to the sixth Resolve of the Rules and Orders.

That after the sixth clause in the Rules and Orders, the seventh of the Appendix be added at the word "and."

That after the seventh clause in the Rules and Orders, the fifth in the Appendix be added.

That after the ninth clause in the Rules and Orders, the eighth in the Appendix be added.

That the following be added to the tenth in the Rules and Orders, after the words "forfeit the sum of forty Shillings,"—"to be levied on the goods and chattels of the offender, by warrant from the Captain, directed to a Sergeant of his Company; and for want of the goods and chattels, to take the body of the offender, and him keep in safe custody until such fine, together with the charges, be paid, or for the space of one calendar month."

That the ninth clause of the Appendix be incorporated into the twelfth of the Rules and Orders.

That the additional clause, at number eight, in the Rules and Orders, be left out, and the following substituted in the room of it, viz :

"The moneys arising by the fines in any Company to be applied by the Captains (who are to keep regular accounts of the same, and annually to render said accounts, signed by them, unto the Commanding Officer, after paying for drum, colours, and fife) towards purchasing Arms, Ammunition, and Accoutrements for such persons in such Company as are unable to furnish themselves; and the moneys arising by the fines of the Field-Officers, to be equally divided between the several Companies for the above-mentioned use."

In addition to the exceptions in the thirteenth clause of the Rules and Orders, viz :

"All Commissioned Officers that have served in the Continental service, Members of the General Assembly, a Founder and three hands to each Furnace, and two men to each Forge, and the people called Quakers, upon their producing a certificate from the Meeting."

That the tenth clause of the Appendix be incorporated into the fourteenth of the Rules and Orders.

That the following new clauses be added, to wit :

"That the Committee in every District, or Precinct, are hereby empowered to call in to their aid, when they shall think it necessary, any Company or Companies of Minute-men or Militia, in their respective Districts, or Precincts, who shall obey the order of their Chairman as fully and as effectually as if the same came from the Commanding Officer, subject to such penalties for neglect, or refusal of obeying their orders, as are provided for refusal and neglect of obeying the orders of such Commanding Officer."

"That the Field-Officers and Committees in each District and Precinct have power, and are hereby requested to call out the Regiment or Regiments in such District or Precinct, as often as they shall see fit for the good of the service, and all persons refusing to attend, being duly warned, or, attending, shall refuse to obey the orders of the Commanding Officer and Chairman, shall, for each offence, forfeit the sum of twenty Shillings, to be levied and recovered as is directed in the tenth clause of the Rules and Orders."

That then the fourth clause of the Appendix be added. |

All which is humbly submitted to the consideration of the Board by your Committee.

Ordered, That the said Report be taken into consideration on Tuesday next; and, in the mean time, that the same lay on the table for the perusal of the Members.

Colonel Lasher being sent for, attended. He was requested to make out an account of the pay and subsistence of the several guards, who have been on duty, guarding the Prisoners from Queen's County, and was requested to attend and receive the money from the Prisoners before they are discharged.

The Congress finding their more urgent business frequently interrupted and their time consumed in applications of a Military nature, which might more easily be despatched by a Committee for that purpose, and, at the same time, less impede other publick business: therefore,

Resolved, That Colonel P. Ten Broeck, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Yates, and Mr. Hobart, be a Committee of War, to whom the Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Troops in this City may apply for such advice, direction, or assistance as he may, from time to time, have occasion for from this Congress; and that they, with all convenient speed, take effectual measures, in concert with Major-General Lee, to prevent persons having the permission of this Congress or the Committee of Safety to go on board any ship in this harbour, from being obstructed by the Port-Guard.

Ordered, That General Ten Broeck, Mr. Scott, Mr. Gansevoort, and Mr. Gilbert Livingston, be a Committee to prepare a draft of Instructions for the said Committee of War; and that they report with all convenient speed.

Messrs. William Wilcox, Nicholas Fish, Captain John Roosevelt, and Lieutenant Dixon, of the First Battalion, waited on Congress, as by authority from the said Battalion, to offer to the Congress their service, to be taken into pay as Minute-men in this City. Those gentlemen asked sundry questions of the Congress; to all which they received answers, and withdrew.

Congress was informed, by a Member, that Micajah Fuller, First Lieutenant, and Deliverance Brown, Third Lieutenant, in Captain Steenrod's Company, in Colonel Drake's Regiment, have had the misfortune to lose their Commissions, and request the favour of new Commissions.

Ordered, That new Commissions be made for those gentlemen.

A draft of an answer to the Letter received from Colonel Heard yesterday, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit :

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 17, 1776.

SIR: The Congress hereby acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th instant; and, in answer thereto, inform you that, as the danger which was suspected of depredations being made on Staten-Island is now removed, they sincerely thank you for the services you have, with so much alacrity, devoted to your country, and therefore dismiss you from that duty.

Please to send us, by the first convenient opportunity, such information as you have had respecting any person or persons who have supplied the barges with live-stock, and of the threats you intimate as thrown out by others.

We are, most respectfully, &c.

To Colonel Heard.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted by Captain Barron, of Colonel Heard's Regiment.

On motion of Mr. Hobart,

Resolved, That the Committee appointed yesterday to settle the quota of Men and Officers to be raised in the respective Counties of this Colony, to complete the four Battalions to be raised in this Colony, be dissolved, and a new Committee for that purpose be appointed. And,

Ordered, That Colonel Brasher, Mr. Sands, Mr. Wickham, Colonel Hay, Mr. Paulling, Mr. Rhea, Colonel Nicoll, Mr. Moore, Colonel Ten Broeck, Dr. Williams, and Mr. Vanderbilt, be a Committee to settle and report the quota, or number of Men and Officers, under the rank of Field-Officers, to be raised in the different Counties in this Colony, to constitute the four Regiments ordered to be raised therein for the Continental service and defence of this Colony; and that they report with all possible despatch.

A Return from Elihu Marvin, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Orange County, bearing date at Oxford on the 15th instant, returning the names of proper persons for Officers in that County, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In County Committee, Oxford, February 15, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: When this Committee made report to your honourable Board of the number of men they conceived this County would be able to raise for the defence of the Colony, agreeable to the resolves of the honourable Continental Congress for that purpose provided, it was a received opinion amongst them that the men were to be inlisted for not more than one year certain; and a Continental Member then present favoured the opinion. But Mr. Seth Marvin, whom they nominated and returned for Captain of one of the companies, informs that there was no certain period of inlistment, but that they were to continue in the service during the pleasure of Congress, and, therefore, declined taking his permit until he had taken the further advice of this Committee. The Committee would, therefore, beg leave to inform your honourable Board that they think it very unlikely that they will be able to raise the number of men they proposed, upon such principles; and if they can, they are very sure that none but the lower class of mankind will inlist, and these they conceive not to be the men to be depended upon; whereas, on the other hand, if men were to be inlisted for one year only, they are very certain that there would be many volunteers out of good families—men, that might be depended on, and would fight upon principle, if they were brought to a trial.

"The Committee also conceive that a certain period is necessary to inlist men upon; and if it was two or three years, that it would be better than during the pleasure of Congress. They would be glad, therefore, some certain time might be fixed on; but if that cannot be done, the officers are willing now to take the permits and make trial, but fear the consequence.

"Mr. Nathan Strong, one of the officers nominated under Mr. Seth Marvin, will receive the permits for that company.

"I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant.

"By order of the Committee:

"ELIHU MARVIN, Chairman.

"To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York."

Ordered, That it be referred to the Committee appointed to settle the quota of Men and Officers to be raised in the different Counties in this Colony.

Die Solis, 10 ho. A. M., February 18, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Thomas Smith, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Sands, Colonel McDougall.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Colonel Nicoll, Mr. Gansevoort, Mr. Yates.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Gen. Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Mr. L'Hommedieu, Captain Wickham.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Dewitt, Mr. Lefever.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Mr. G. Livingston, Colonel M. Graham.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Doctor Graham, Mr. Paulling.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Doctor Williams.

Colonel Hay, from the Committee appointed to apportion the different quotas of Men and Officers under the rank of Field-Officers, to be raised in the different Counties of this Colony, to form the four Regiments ordered to be raised in this Colony, delivered in their Report; which was read; and the same being read a second time, and filed, is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee, appointed to levy the quotas of men to be raised in the different Counties of this Colony for the service of the United Colonies, report, that it is their opinion that the number of men that can be raised in each County is as follows: New-York, eight companies; Albany, five companies; Tryon, two companies; Charlotte, one company; Dutchess, four companies; Westchester, two companies; Suffolk, three companies; Queen's, one company; King's and Richmond, one company; Orange, two companies; Ulster, three companies—thirty-two companies.

All which is humbly submitted by your Committee.

A. HAWKES HAY, Chairman.

The Congress agreed with their Committee in their said Report.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that General Lee has information that the Regiment from Philadelphia was to march on Friday last; that they may be expected this evening or to-morrow; that they will be posted on Nassau-Island, from the Wallaboght to Gewanus; that quarters must be immediately provided for them in that part of Nassau-Island, and a Commissary provided to furnish them with Provisions, if they are not already provided with a Commissary and a military chest. The Congress are therefore of opinion, that the Deputies of King's County ought immediately to attend the Congress, and fix on proper persons, well acquainted with the inhabitants where the Troops are to be posted.

A draft of a Letter to the Deputies of King's County was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: A matter is now under the consideration of the Congress of the utmost importance to your County in particular, as well as to the Colony in general. You are therefore earnestly requested to attend the Congress immediately, as the business will admit of no delay. If any inconvenience should happen to your constituents by your neglect, they will know to whose account to charge it. We expect your attendance at three o'clock this afternoon.

By order of Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Letter from Mr. Joseph Hallett to Colonel McDougall was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Newark, February 16, 1776.

"DEAR SIR: I did not receive your favour of the 9th instant until yesterday. I have applied to Mr. Ogden, one of the owners of the furnace in this town. He tells me if he can be supplied with coal from the ship at Elizabethtown, he will engage to deliver two tons a week, until he has supplied you with any quantity, not less than ten tons, at forty pounds per ton, if coal is to be had at four pounds per chaldron. If the coal should cost five pounds, then he must have forty-one pounds per ton. This is a very extraordinary price for grape-shot, but I fear you will not be able to get them for less money before the blast furnaces begin to work, which, I am told, will not be until May. I think it would serve the general cause, if the coal in the ship at Elizabethtown should be sold only to such persons as are employed in making anchors, cannon, shot, or such other articles for the publick use, as cannot be made with charcoal. The nail-makers, I am informed, are endeavouring to purchase the coal. If they get it the publick will suffer, and will not be able to cast your cannon or shot. In order to prevent this, I should think the Congress of New-York should write to the Congress of this Province, showing the necessity of putting the coal into such hands as would best serve the general cause. You may depend I shall not be absent from the city of New-York any longer than the situation of my family makes it absolutely necessary.

"I am, sir, your very humble servant,

"JOSEPH HALLETT.

"To Colonel Alexander McDougall, New-York."

The Congress, considering the great necessity of having Grape-Shot, and being informed by a Member that there is only a trifling parcel in the Colony; and that although the price mentioned is at least double what the same article is offered to be delivered for in April next, yet it would be imprudent to wait that delay:

Therefore, Ordered, That Mr. Joseph Hallett be, and he is hereby empowered to contract with Mr. Ogden, on behalf of this Congress, for such quantity of Grape-Shot as Major-General Lee, or the Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army at New-York for the time being, shall direct.

The Congress were informed by a Member, that as the Ships-of-War are removed out of the East-River, Major-General Lee thinks this is a favourable time and opportunity to stop the Channel of the East-River, between the City and Nutten-Island, so as not to admit line-of-battle Ships, if it is practicable; which, if it can be done, may save at least the east part of the City; that General Lee desires the advice of this Congress in the premises:

Thereupon, Ordered, That the Committee of War attend on General Lee, and confer with him on the practicability of stopping the Channel in the East-River; and that the said Committee of War report thereon to this Congress at four o'clock this afternoon.

The Members present were charged from the Chair to keep secret the subject-matter of the last order, and every argument, matter, and thing mentioned, relating to stopping up the Channel; and the several Members engaged on their honours respectively to keep the same secret.

A Letter from Colonel Swartwout was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, February 18, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Whereas Captain Billings, from Poughkeepsie, has marched, with what men he had enlisted for the Continental service, without any orders, I conceive; at his arrival in town made application to me to join my regiment, as he was entirely destitute where to go, I admitted him, for the present, to join till I could have your sentiments thereon. It is essential to know immediately, as I must make a return to the General of my regiment, and of the effective arms, and have them completed to twenty rounds per man.

"I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,

"JACOBUS SWARTWOUT, Colonel.

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress."

Thereupon a draft of an Answer to Colonel Swartwout was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 18, 1776.

SIR: Your letter was read, and immediately taken into consideration. The Congress are of opinion that Captain Billings, with his company, cannot be permitted to join your regiment of Minute-men; but that he ought immediately to return, and wait the orders of General Schuyler.

We are, sir, your very humble servants.

By order.

To Colonel Swartwout.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that a ton of Gunpowder is arrived from Philadelphia, and stored in one of the Magazines, in part payment for the several quantities of Gunpowder advanced and lent by this Colony at sundry times to the Continental service.

Die Solis, P. M., February 18, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Scott, Colonel Brasher, Mr. Smith, Mr. Sands, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Van Zandt.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Yates, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, General Ten Broeck.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Wickham, Mr. L'Honmedieu.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Dewitt, Mr. Lefever, Mr. Rhea, Mr. Wisner, Jun.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Leffertse.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel M. Graham, Col. Ten Broeck, Mr. G. Livingston.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Doctor Graham, Mr. Paulding.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Doctor Williams.

The Members from King's County were informed of the message from General Lee, of this day, that one Regiment is on their march from Philadelphia, and may be expected immediately; and that the said Regiment is to be posted on Nassau-Island from Wallboght to Gewamus. The Members of King's have leave of absence to call together the Committee of Brooklyn, and facilitate the procuring Lodgments for those Troops, in such manner as may be least inconvenient to the inhabitants.

And Ordered, That the said Committee of Brooklyn Township do immediately assemble and provide Lodgments or Quarters for the said Regiment without delay, which they will do in such manner as to be least inconvenient to the inhabitants of Brooklyn Township.

And Ordered, further, That the said Committee inform this Congress to-morrow morning of the particular places of the Quarters or Lodgments they shall have provided for those Troops.

Mr. Van Zandt requested a Permit to finish lading the Ship Rosamond. Thereupon a Certificate was given to him in the words following, to wit:

Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt was formerly ordered by this Congress to lade a vessel with wheat, &c. He is hereby permitted to lade the Ship Rosamond accordingly, with wheat and flour, &c.

To be shown to Messrs. Robert Ray and Evert Bancker, and to be delivered to Captain William Mercier.

Mr. Hobart, according to order, reported a draft of a Letter to the County Committee, in each respective County in this Colony where Troops are to be raised; which was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 18, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having determined that your County shall have the opportunity of raising . . . . . companies in the four regiments to be raised by order of the Continental Congress for the defence of this Colony, have resolved that blank warrants for the officers of the same shall be sent to your Committee. You will observe by the enclosed resolves, that you are restrained in the appointments to give the preference to such persons as have served their country in the last campaign; but it is not by any means the design of Congress, that men who have misbehaved themselves should be any further employed. It is expected that the people will readily enlist in these regiments, as they are raised for the express purpose of defending this Colony; and unless we raise them from among ourselves, in all probability they will be sent from other Colonies, which will be to our everlasting disgrace. We have great confidence in your zeal for the common cause, and trust that you will exert yourselves that these levies be completed with all possible despatch.

We are, sir, your very humble servants.

By order.

P. S. It is expected that each man furnish himself with a good gun and bayonet, tomahawk, knapsack, or haversack, and two bills; but those who are not able to furnish themselves with these arms and accoutrements, will be supplied at the publick expense; for the payment of which, small stoppages will be made out of their monthly pay, till the whole are paid for; then they are to remain the property of the men.

Ordered, That sundry copies be engrossed, and signed by the President; and one of these Letters directed to the County Committee, in each County where Troops are to be raised; and the said Letters be transmitted, together with blank Warrants and Instructions for raising the men.

Mr. Hobart, from the Committee of War, who were directed this morning to confer with General Lee, verbally reported in substance: That, in obedience to the order of Congress, they had conferred with the General, and examined the Plans of the City and Harbour with him and his Engineer, and some other officers; that the General informed them that he has given orders to take a survey of the vessels now in port; that this evening the depth and breadth of the channel at the most proper places are to be sounded and taken; that General Lee thinks it of great importance to obstruct the navigation of the East-River against line-of-battle Ships, and seems to have it much at heart; that General Lee, on being asked how the west side of the town could be protected, allowed that a ship might come to the west of the City, and annoy the City, but seemed to think Fortifications might be erected in the City which would greatly protect that side of it; that General Lee is of opinion that, if the Asia should depart the Harbour and Bay, the most proper place to obstruct the navigation is farther down, or between the banks; that Captain Smith, the Engineer, said that the Fortifications to be erected near Hellgate will command the East-River down to, or below, Blackwell's Island.

Mr. Hobart reported further, that, on the whole, nothing certain as to the practicability of obstructing the navigation of the East-River was yet determined on.

Mr. Hobart further informed Congress, that they had some conversation with General Lee on the subject of preventing persons having permissions from this Congress or the Committee of Safety to go on board of any Ship in this Harbour, from being obstructed by the Port-Guard; and that they had intimated to the General that perhaps it might be proper to place a proper person near the sentries, to give information and directions concerning such persons as may have such permissions as above-mentioned.

The Congress then went into the consideration of that matter.

And thereupon Agreed unanimously, That it is impracticable, at present, totally to cut off all communication of the Inhabitants of this Colony with the Ships-of-War now in this Port, and with the Ship on which His Excellency Governor Tryon resides.

And whereas, though it is, in the opinion of this Congress, impracticable, at present, totally to cut off all communication of the Inhabitants of this Colony with the Ships-of-War now in this Port, and the Ship on board of which His Excellency Governor Tryon resides, yet it appears necessary to confine such communications to certain particular objects, to the end that the publick service may not be injured by a free and unlimited intercourse between them and this Colony.

It is therefore Ordered, That all communication between the said Ships-of-War and all the Inhabitants be, and is hereby, prohibited, except upon special permits, to be obtained from this Congress, or the Committee of Safety; and, also, except for supplying them (the said Ships-of-War, respectively) with necessary Provisions, from time to time, for the use and consumption of their respective crews only, under the following restrictions and regulations, to wit: That no Provisions shall be supplied for their use and consumption by any other persons than their respective agent-victuallers in this City, upon permits to be obtained by them, respectively, from time to time, for the purpose, from this Congress, or the Committee of Safety; which Provisions shall not, in any case, be put on board any Boat, for such supply as aforesaid, at any other place than the Ferry stairs, near the Exchange in this City, and that in the presence of a Port-Master, to be appointed by this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, who shall carefully inspect the same, and compare the Provisions with the permit, and keep an exact and particular account of the same, to be reported by him to this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, from time to time, when called for.

Ordered further, That Elias Nixen be, and he is hereby, appointed Port-Master for and during the pleasure of this Congress, with an allowance at, and after the rate of, eighteen and one-third Dollars per month, for so long a time as he shall continue in the said service.

Ordered further, That all communication between the said Inhabitants and the said Ship of His Excellency the Governor be, and is hereby, prohibited, except with respect to his Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, the Members of his Majesty's Council, the Surveyor-General, the Deputy Secretary of this Colony and his necessary Clerks, and such other persons as shall, from time to time, have particular Permits for the purpose from this Congress, or the Committee of Safety; and except, also, such intercourse as may be necessary for supplying the Governor with the necessary Provisions for himself and his family; which supplies shall, from time to time, be sent from the said Ferry stairs, and no other place, and that in the presence, and under the inspection, of the said Port-Master, who shall keep exact and particular accounts of the same, to be reported as aforesaid; and except, also, that the brewers supply the said three Ships with Beer as usual till further order of this Congress, or the Committee of Safety.

Colonel McDougall informed Congress that Theophilus Hardenbrook is possessed of Beds and Coins for the Cannon in this City, which were made and procured by the Government of this Colony; that the said Theophilus Hardenbrook has refused to deliver the said Beds and Coins to General Lee, or his order, for the use of the Continental Army now here.

Ordered, That Mr. Theophilus Hardenbrook deliver to General Lee, or his order, all the Beds and Coins for Cannon, and all other implements or necessities for Cannon, belonging to this Colony, and now in his custody or care; and that he give information to General Lee, or such other person as he shall order or appoint, of any Beds, Coins, Implements, or other necessities for Cannon, belonging to this Colony, not in his custody, as he knows of, or can give information.

And Ordered further, That Theophilus Hardenbrook deliver up the said Beds and Coins, and other implements or necessities, and give such information as above-mentioned, upon oath if required.

Die Lunæ, A. M., February 19, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Smith, Mr. Sands, Mr. Scott, Mr. Beckman, Colonel Brasher, Colonel McDougall.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Colonel Nicoll, Mr. A. Yates, Mr. Gansevoort.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. L'Hommedieu, Mr. Wickham, Mr. Hobart.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Mr. G. Livingston, Colonel Humphreys, Colonel M. Graham.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Mr. Dewitt.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Covenhoven, Mr. Vanderbilt.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Dr. Graham, Mr. Paulding.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Dr. Williams.

The Members for King's County represented that the Committee of King's County have waited on General Lee; that he informed them that four hundred Men, properly placed in King's County, will answer his purposes at present; that the said Committee are of opinion that they may have great difficulty in finding empty Houses, or proper places, for so many Troops, in any other way than by billeting some of them in families, which they are ready to do if they have the order of this Congress for the purpose.

Therefore Ordered, That the Committee of the Township of Brooklyn be authorized, and are hereby authorized, to provide proper Lodgments or Quarters for such Continental Troops, or any other Troops in Continental pay, as General Lee shall order or think necessary to place there; and if the said Committee cannot otherwise conveniently provide proper Lodgments or Quarters for such Troops, that they be, and are hereby, authorized to billet such Troops in families, in such manner as they shall think proper.

Mr. Covenhoven informed the Congress that a person on board of the Ship Asia is indebted to John Carpenter; that the said John Carpenter requests a permission to go on board the said Ship to obtain a Bill of Sale for a Slave, or some other security for his said debt.

Mr. Covenhoven therefore moved that a Permit be given to the said John Carpenter, or his son, (John Carpenter, Jun.) to go on board of the said Ship Asia, to obtain security for his said debt.

Debates arose on the said motion; and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.

2 Orange.
3 Albany.
2 Charlotte.
2 Ulster.—Mr. Rhea dissenting.

2 Suffolk.
2 Tryon.

6 votes.

New-York and Westchester, having some Members out on duty, had not a quorum present in Congress.

Therefore Ordered, That Mr. John Carpenter, or his son, (John Carpenter, Jun.) be permitted to go on board of His Majesty's Ship Asia, to obtain a Bill of Sale for a Slave, or other security, from a person on board who is indebted to him.

Mr. McKesson informed the Congress that Mr. Samuel Landon has, at sundry times, attended at the door, to request a permission to go on board of the Ship Asia, to recover a Servant of his who is gone on board.

Ordered, That Mr. Samuel Landon be permitted to go on board of his Majesty's Ship Asia, in order to recover his Servant, who is said to be gone on board of that Ship.

A Letter from Benjamin Franklin, on behalf of the Committee of Philadelphia, dated the 13th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, February 13, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: The bearer, John Grace, has the care of a ton of Gunpowder, sent by the Congress to the Committee of Safety at New-York. If he should need any advice or assistance on the way; you will be so good, on his application, to afford it to him.

"I am, gentlemen, in behalf of the Committee here, with much respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

"BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

"To the Gentlemen of the Committees of Trenton, Brunswick, and New-York."

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that the said ton of Gunpowder is safely lodged in the Powder-House at New-York.

A Letter from Adrian Bancker and Richard Lawrence, Esquires, the Deputies elected for Richmond County, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Richmond County, February 17, 1776.

"SIR: Yesterday evening we were favoured with yours, dated the 14th instant, enclosing the resolves of the Continental Congress relative to the County of Richmond, whereby it is stipulated that the Deputies, and major part of the inhabitants, shall first subscribe to the Association entered into by the Colony, before a representation of this County can be accepted in the Provincial Congress. Wherefore we take this early opportunity to inform you that the Association has been subscribed by us, and about seven-eighths of the inhabitants, long since; which we shall be ready to lay before the Congress when called on.

"Colonel Heard's coming on the Island with a large body of men, to call the people to account for their inimical conduct towards the resolves of Congress, at this time, when many of them are coming into the measures, and the general cause gaining ground daily, we fear will be rather a hurt than otherwise.

"We are of opinion that it will be for the good of the common cause to stop the proceedings of the Jersey forces, in order to quiet the minds of the people. We would not be understood to dictate measures to that respectable body, (the Congress,) to whose better judgment we willingly submit.

"We are, with respect, sir, your most humble servants,
Signed per order.

"ADRIAN BANCKER,
"RICHARD LAWRENCE.

"To Robert Benson, Esq., Secretary, New-York:

"SIR: Please to lay the above before the Congress the first convenient opportunity."

A draft of an Answer from the Secretaries (by order of Congress) to Adrian Bancker and Richard Lawrence, Esquires, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 17th instant was this day received and read in Congress. We are directed to request your immediate attendance, and that you bring with you such proofs of a majority of the inhabitants of your County having subscribed the General Association as will enable you to take your seats, pursuant to the resolution of the Continental Congress.

It was apprehended that General Clinton, on his departure, would attempt a landing on Staten-Island, for the purpose of making depredations, and carrying off the stock for the use of the Ministerial Army and Navy. To prevent any attempt of this kind, our Congress requested of the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey to send Colonel Heard, with his regiment, on the Island; and, lest he might not get there in time, the like request was afterwards sent to the Committee of Elizabethtown. The inhabitants of Richmond County may rest assured that those troops from New-Jersey were intended for no other purpose whatever; and on Saturday last orders were sent for their dismission.

We are, gentlemen, most respectfully, your very humble servants.

By order.

To Messrs. Bancker and Lawrence, Deputies for Richmond County.

Ordered, That the Secretaries subscribe and despatch the same.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that General Washington had, by Letters, requested a quantity of Shells and Shot, and desired they might be forwarded; that he had procured Captain Proby to take those stores, at a time when the weather was bad, and some risk in the conveyance; that thirty-five Pounds is due to Jacob Proby for that service.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Jacob Proby the sum of thirty-five Pounds for transporting sundry Ordnance Stores from Turtle-Bay to New-London, by order of General Washington, and that Mr. Livingston take Captain Proby's receipt for the same.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that Major-General Lee had ordered Captain Silleck, in an armed vessel, of Connecticut, down here with Provisions; that the said vessel is without Gunpowder, and that General Lee requests that a hundred weight of Gunpowder may be delivered to Captain Silleck, for the use of said vessel.

Thereupon an order was given for his use in the words following, to wit:

At the request of Major-General Lee, communicated by Colonel McDougall, Ordered, That Mr. Norwood, Commissary of Stores for this Colony, deliver to Captain Silleck one hundred weight of Gunpowder, for the use of an armed Tender (belonging to the Colony of Connecticut) under his command.

A Return from the Committee of Haverstraw, signed by John Coleman, their Clerk, certifying that, at a meeting of the Company of Militia, at Kakaüt, in the presence, and under the inspection of, Jacob Cole and Jonah Halsted, Esqs., and Jacob Deronde and Thomas Halsted, of the Committee, the following Officers were elected, to wit: Reynard Quackenboss, Captain; Garret Eckerson, First Lieutenant; Jacob Teneyck, Second Lieutenant, and Roger Osborn, Ensign.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen accordingly.

A Letter and Embargo, from the Committees of Southampton, Easthampton, and Shelter-Island, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"The Committees of Southampton, Easthampton, and Shelter-Island, convened at Sag-Harbour, the 8th instant, humbly beg leave to address the honourable the Provincial Congress with the following Memorial:

"GENTLEMEN: In the strongest confidence of your benevolent purpose of raising and stationing an armed force, with sufficient ammunition, which, with our Minute-men and Militia, may, at all events, with Heaven's blessing, deliver and defend us from British attacks and Ministerial vengeance: we have, in our low capacity, but in high spirits, presumed, to the utmost of our power, to embargo; strictly prohibiting the sale and exportation of all provisions, on any pretence whatever, until the 1st day of March ensuing, or until we have the sense of the Provincial Congress thereon.

"Now, gentlemen, if your honourable House can condescend to our politicks, and think with us, that it will best promote our great, our common cause, to retain the provisions which are now amongst us, rather than to permit them to be sold and exported, and, consequently, our Army supported with provisions purchased, and, perhaps, with great difficulty imported, (when, as is menaced,) our unnatural enemies shall invest us by land and sea;—we say, if you can adopt our sentiments, by all that is dear to true, zealous sons of liberty, we beg you will not compel us to flee before our enemy, but detach to our defence such ample number of troops, sufficient, in conjunction with our own, to answer this important purpose, and in your wisdom continue, and confirm the above-mentioned embargo.

“By order of the Committee:

“MALTBY GELSTON, Chairman.

“P. S. The desire of this part of the County is, that some method be fallen upon to establish a post from New-York to the east end of this Island, that we may be favoured with the earliest intelligence.”

Ordered, That Mr. L'Hommedieu call on Mr. Hazard, the Postmaster, and endeavour to ascertain what Revenue will arise from a Post-rider on Nassau-Island, and what will be the expense to the publick of such Post-rider.

3d ho. P. M. Die Lunæ, February 19, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Beekman, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Sands, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Scott.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Colonel Nicoll, Abraham Yates, Jun., Mr. Gansevoort.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Mr. G. Livingston, Major R. G. Livingston.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Mr. Dewitt.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Dr. Graham, Mr. Paulling, Major Lockwood.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Mr. L'Hommedieu, Mr. Wickham.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Dr. Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Colonel Hay having received advice that one of his children is so indisposed that his life is despaired of, obtained, on that account, leave of absence.

The Petition of William Cock and Thomas Cock, of Oyster-Bay, in Queen's County, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“To the Honourable Provincial Congress of NEW-YORK.
The Petition of WILLIAM and THOMAS COCK, of OYSTER-BAY, in QUEEN'S County, humbly sheweth:

“That we, your Petitioners, are inhabitants of said County, and that at the last election of Deputies for the Provincial Congress, we opposed the election of Deputies for said County; since which we are convinced of our error, and think it was absolutely necessary that there should be a representation of said County in the Provincial Congress; and that your Petitioners did not oppose the choice of said Deputies from any desire or inclination of injuring this country, but was owing entirely to error of judgment; and that your Petitioners are ready to obey all orders and recommendations of the Continental and the Provincial Congress. Your Petitioners, therefore, desire that your honourable body will take our case into consideration, and grant us such relief in the present case as to you shall seem meet.

“WILLIAM COCK.

“THOMAS COCK.

“New-York, February 19, 1776.”

On hearing the said Petition read, and upon due consideration thereof, and considering that any former Resolves of this Congress against the Delinquents of Queen's County were only intended to convince them of their error, and bring them to a just sense of their duty to the publick:

Ordered, That the said Petitioners be restored to the state and condition in which they were before the passing of these Resolves, during their respective good behaviours.

Ordered, That the Petitioners have their Petition and this Order published in the Newspapers.

A Return of Field-Officers for the First Regiment in Charlotte County, signed by their Clerk, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“At a general meeting of the County Committee of Charlotte, January 25, 1776: It was unanimously agreed that Dr. John Williams be recommended to the Provincial Congress in New-York for Colonel of the First Battalion of Militia for this County; Mr. Alexander Campbell, of Argyle Township, for Lieutenant-Colonel; Messrs. Timothy Bewell, of Fort Miller, and Alexander Webster, of Black-Creek, for Majors; Mr. Jonathan Baker, of Black-Creek, for Adjutant, and Mr. Samuel Fuller, of Skenesborough, Quartermaster.

“A true copy from the Minutes:

“ALEXANDER WEBSTER, Clerk.

“Precinct of Granville: Joseph Ingles, Captain; Gideon Squire, First Lieutenant; . . . . . Second Lieutenant.

“Black-Creek Precinct: John Hamilton, Captain; George McKnight, First Lieutenant; James Wilson, Second Lieutenant.

“Blank Commissions for a Captain in Argyle Township.”

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen agreeably to the Return.

Ordered, That the nomination and recommendation to the Continental Congress of gentlemen proper to be Field-Officers of the four Battalions to be raised in this Colony, be taken into consideration on Thursday next.

A Certificate of John Child and Peter Tappen, two of the Committee of Poughkeepsie, was read and filed.

They thereby certify, that John Tappen was duly elected Ensign in Captain John Schenck's associated Company of Militia of Foot, of Poughkeepsie Precinct, in Dutchess County, in the place of Matthew Van Keuren, who has resigned.

Ordered, That a Commission issue for John Tappen accordingly.

Mr. Sands informed Congress that, in their recess, four other members of the Committee of Safety and himself had advised and directed a boatman, from Queen's County, to sell three-fourth parts of the wood in his boat; that quantity being the property of Whigs, and to carry back the other fourth part, as being the property of a Tory. That Christopher Duyckinck had taken Mr. Sands's watch and detained it, on pretence that he had a right to have seized the said one-fourth part of the said wood, which he alleges was of the value of forty shillings and six pence.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Mr. Christopher Duyckinck immediately attend the Provincial Congress, now sitting in the Assembly Chamber in the City-Hall of the City of New-York.

Mr. Christopher Duyckinck attended. He agreed with Mr. Sands in all the material facts stated to the Congress, and endeavoured to justify his conduct on the fourth and fifth Resolves of this Congress against the Delinquents in Queen's County. After some considerable time spent in this business, Mr. Duyckinck alleged that he was not fully prepared to answer the subject, as the message of the House was unexpected.

Therefore, Ordered, That the further consideration of this matter be postponed till Friday next, at eleven o'clock, and that Mr. Duyckinck attend again at that time.

Die Martis, 10 ho. A. M. February 20, 1776.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, only.

A Letter from Major-General Lee, of this day, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“New-York, February 20, 1776.

“SIR: I am just informed that the Asia and Phenix have seized several provision vessels from the Jerseys. I must submit it to the Congress whether the compact is not to be considered as broken, and whether it is not our duty to withhold all further supplies. For my own part, the measure of suffering ourselves to be plundered, and at the same time feeding our plunderers, appears a degree of lowness of spirit which reflects dishonour, and must encourage the enemy still to take greater liberties.

“I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

“CHARLES LEE.

“To Colonel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress.”

A draft of an Answer to Major-General Lee was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 20, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of this morning has been considered by Congress, and they are of opinion that it is totally impossible to prevent the Asia and Phenix from supplying themselves with provisions. They have received information that the seizing of the vessels from the Jerseys is occasioned by the supplies from the Agents in town being stopped, and are apprehensive, if it be continued, that the town will be reduced to the utmost distress.

While the navigation of Hudson’s River is obstructed by the ice, our principal dependance for corn, provision, fuel, and hay, is from Connecticut and the Jerseys. An embargo prevents the supplies from the one, and if we provoke the Captains of the ships-of-war, by way of retaliation, to prevent them from the other, the inhabitants will not only be destitute, but our Commissary will be incapacitated from procuring the necessary supplies for the Army now in town.

You will please to consider that the ships-of-war have it in their power to seize all the provisions that they may find afloat, by which means they will have an opportunity of supplying the enemy at Boston.

By order:

To Major-General Lee.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Another Letter from Major-General Lee was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“New-York, February 19, 1776.

“SIR: As it is established in camp to allow all fatigue-men a gill of rum each, I take the liberty to recommend to the Congress to make the same allowance.

“I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant,

“CHARLES LEE.

“To Colonel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress.”

The consideration thereof is postponed till the afternoon.

Mr. John Murray solicited a Permit to go on board of the Dutchess of Gordon to settle some accounts.

Ordered, That Mr. John Murray be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, on board of which Governour Tryon resides.

To Mr. Elias Nixon, Port-Master.

Die Martis, 3 ho. P. M., February 20, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Scott, Mr. Sands, Mr. Van Cortlandt, Colonel Brasher, Colonel McDougall.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Colonel Nicoll, Mr. Yates, Mr. Gansevoort.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. L’Hommedieu, Mr. Wickham, Mr. Hobart.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Dewitt, Mr. Lefever.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. G. Livingston, Colonel Ten Broeck, Mr. Schenck.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel L. Graham, Major Lockwood, Mr. Thomas.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Allison.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Dr. Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Major-General Lee, by his Letter of the 19th, received and read this morning, informed Congress that it is established in Camp to allow all Fatigue-men a gill of Rum each; and recommended to the Congress to make the same allowance.

The Congress took the same into consideration.

Thereupon, Ordered, That the respective Commissaries of Provisions appointed by this Congress, issue one gill of Rum per day for each man on fatigue, to the respective Quartermasters of such Troops now in this City as are not otherwise provided for.

A Letter from Lord Stirling, bearing date this same day, requesting the loan of Money, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“New-York, February 20, 1776.

“SIR: When I arrived in this town with my regiment, I expected to have found a Continental Commissary of Provisions here, who would have furnished them provisions and fire-wood, and other necessaries. But as no such officer is here, I ordered my Quartermaster to provide provisions agreeably to the rations allowed by Congress. This he has hitherto done with his own money; but as that is already exhausted, I am under the necessity of asking the favour of the Congress of this Province to advance him, as a loan, as much money as will be necessary for this purpose, till another provision be made by the Continental Congress, to whom I have written to regulate this matter as soon as possible.

“I am, sir, your most humble servant,

“STIRLING.

“To the President of the Congress of the Province of New-York.”

A Letter from Colonel Swartwout, dated this day, enclosing Returns of such Companies of his Regiment as are present on duty, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“New-York, February 20, 1776.

“GENTLEMEN: By the within enclosed returns, you will see that those Captains in town of my regiment have small companies, but at the same time nigh a full set of officers. I expect the following Captains in hourly, to wit: Captain Woodford, from Pawling’s Precinct; Captain Laudinton, from . . . . . Precinct; Captain Clearch, from Beekman’s Precinct; Captain Durling, from Rombout Precinct. Should it be the same case with the last-mentioned companies to have so few men, and officers complete, it will be necessary for your honourable Board to fall on some plan, either by sending to the several Colonels of Militia of our County to draft a sufficient number of men to fill the within mentioned companies, or by reducing the officers to a proper number. If you should judge the latter to be best, probably it would suit many of the officers to return to their families, as it answers no good purpose to have so many officers and so few men, but, on the contrary, creates great cost, as it is natural to expect where troops are kept there will be disorders attending them. As we have no Doctor for said regiment, I should be glad that Dr. Tappen might be appointed for that purpose, as we have an over plenty of officers. I have no other view in writing the foregoing, than to acquaint you with the state of the regiment.

“I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

“JACOBUS SWARTWOUT, Colonel.

“To the Honourable Provincial Congress at New-York.”

The Returns of three Companies of Colonel Swartwout’s Regiment, were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

Jacobus Swartwout, Colonel; . . . . . Lieutenant-Colonel; . . . . . Major.

	Captains.	Lieutenants.	Ensigns.	Segeants.	Corporals.	Drums and Fifes.	Privates.	Deserted.	Clerk.
Captain Schenck , . . . .	1	2	-	2	-	2	34	-	-
Captain Barnum , . . . .	1	2	1	3	2	1	27	-	1
Captain Weeks , . . . .	1	2	1	4	2	1	18	10	-
Total . . . . .	3	6	2	9	4	4	79	10	1

Ordered, That the said Letters and Returns be referred to and committed to the Committee of War.*

A draft of an Answer to Lord Stirling was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 20, 1776.

MY LORD: It gives this Congress pain to be obliged to declare their inability to supply your Quartermaster with the loan of money for subsisting the troops under your command until the Continental Congress shall regulate that matter. The Continental drafts on our Treasury for large advancements properly within our department, exhausts it as fast as its supplies come in, and we find ourselves under an absolute necessity of looking narrowly into the application of our issues, lest our Treasury should be deficient to answer the proper calls on it. We doubt not that the Continental Congress will, at your request, make speedy provision for the subsistence of your battalion.

Permit us to hint, that we think a provision in the interim will more properly be made by the New-Jersey Congress, now sitting so near this city; and to assure you that we are, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient humble servants.

By order of Congress.

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Stirling.

Ordered, That the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Letter from General Washington of the 10th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Cambridge, February 10, 1776.

"SIR: Being in the greatest want of arms at this alarming and important crisis, for the Army under my command, and without the most distant prospect or hope of getting more from these Governments than what I already have, I beg leave to solicit the favours of your Committee of Safety in this instance, and earnestly request that they will use their exertions to get and send to me, in the most expeditious manner, all that they can possibly procure. I imagine that there are several belonging to the Colony, and have been informed of many Tories being disarmed, and, therefore, expect that it will be in their power to obtain a considerable supply. Whatever quantity is sent me, I will take on the Continental account, and make payment for, with the expenses incident to their transportation.

"This application being founded in necessity, and arising from the exigency of our affairs, I make no doubt will meet your most ready and early attention, and that nothing will be wanting on your part to give me the most speedy relief.

"I am, sir, your most humble servant,

"GEORGE WASHINGTON.

"To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esquire.

"P. S. I wish to have only such arms as are good and serviceable, and shall be glad to have bayonets with them.

"G. W."

A draft of an Answer to General Washington was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 20, 1776.

SIR: The Congress have just now received your letter of the 10th instant, directed to the Chairman of our Committee of Safety. They are extremely sorry they have it not in their power to supply you with the articles you mention, as the Army raised here last summer has entirely drained them of the arms belonging to the Colony, which have never been returned; and the more, as they are, by order of Congress; now levying five new regiments—one for the defence of Canada, and four for defending this Colony, and preventing depredations on Long-Island, which they suppose will chiefly be destitute, and obliged to be supplied by them; and with respect to the arms taken from the Tories in this Colony, they inform you are neither in their possession or at their disposal. Hence, you will perceive that they cannot give you any relief, which they would most cheerfully do were it in their power.

We are, sir, your most humble servants. By order.

To General Washington.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Peter T. Curtenius delivered in an Inventory of the Hospital and other Stores taken out of the lower Barracks, by order of this Congress, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Inventory of sundry Stores, taken out of the lower Barracks by order of the Provincial Congress, viz:

"Six thousand seven hundred and thirty-six Osnaburgh Sheets, new; 300 Osnaburgh Sheets, old; 140 white Sheets, new; 20 white Sheets, old; 92 check Sheets, new; 1 empty Medicine Chest; 1 chest with Lint; 3 boxes with Tow; 370 Pillow-cases, Osnaburghs, new; 120 bolster-cases, Osnaburgh, new; 725 wooden Bowls; 556 wooden Trenchers; 1,700 wooden Spoons; 1 large copper Kettle; 22 earthen Chamber-pots; 160 old moth-eaten Blankets—most of them fit for nothing but making cartridges for the field-pieces; 4 Camp Colours; 125 boxes Candles, delivered me by Mr. Norwood—they weigh, upon an average, about forty-five pounds each, which is six thousand six hundred and twenty-five pounds.

"Taken this 19th of February, 1776.

"PETER T. CURTENIUS, Commissary."

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius preserve those Stores, or such of them as are now in his custody, with particular care, for the use of an Hospital; and that he do not part with, or deliver out, any of those Stores, by any order whatever, unless by an order of the Committee of Safety of this Colony, and that only for the use of an Hospital, or by the order of the Provincial Congress of this Colony.

The Members from the City and County of Albany informed the Congress that sundry mistakes were made, through haste, by the County Committee and Field-Officers, in arranging the Regiments of Militia in that County, where by many Companies were very inconveniently placed under Field-Officers at a distance from them; and, in other instances, Companies out of one vicinity placed in different Regiments. That a more convenient arrangement of the Militia of that County is now made; but, to carry it into execution, it will be necessary to have some of the commissions altered, and new commissions issued in other instances: of all which alterations, amendments, and arrangements they have now produced a complete form, or list.

Ordered, That all the amendments and alterations be made, and such new Commissions issued as will be necessary to complete the arrangement of the Militia of the County of Albany.

A Letter from William Smith, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Suffolk County, dated the 24th of January last, and which was received by the Committee of Safety, was read. They thereby recommend as Field-Officers for their Regiment of Minute-men, to wit: Josiah Smith, Colonel; John Hulbert, Lieutenant-Colonel; Isaac Reeve, First Major; Jonathan Baker, Second Major; Isaac Overton, Adjutant; and Ebenezer Dayton, Quartermaster.

Ordered, That Commissions issue to those gentlemen accordingly.

A Return from Lewis McDonald, James Raymond, Peter Flemming, and Marcus Mosenell, Committee-men of Harrison's Precinct, in Westchester County, with a Certificate of William Miller, Deputy Chairman, were read. They return the Officers elected in a Company of Minute-men in Colonel Drake's Regiment, to wit: Hezekiah Gray, Captain; Cornelius Clark, First Lieutenant; James Miller, Second Lieutenant; and Isaac Titus, Ensign.

Ordered, That Commissions be immediately issued for those gentlemen. And they were issued accordingly.

On motion of Lieutenant-Colonel Graham,

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pay to Samuel Drake, Esq., Colonel of the Regiment of Minute-men from Westchester County, now in Continental service by order of Major-General Lee, the sum of one hundred Pounds, on account of the pay of his Regiment.

A Letter from Major Robert Rogers was read and filed. He thereby prays that this Congress will be pleased to give him a permission to go on board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, on private business with Governour Tryon.

A Letter of the 9th instant, from Zephaniah Platt, Chairman of the Committee of Poughkeepsie, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Poughkeepsie, February 9, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have a letter to Congress, in answer to one from the Committee of Safety of the 26th ultimo, informing that four regiments are to be raised for the defence of the Colony, and desiring to know what number of men can be speedily raised and armed in the County. For the reasons mentioned in our letter, you will observe that we have resolved that only three companies can be completed; however, we conceive that if it was stipulated that these troops are to remain within the Colony, we would furnish a greater number of men, as many would, in such case, enter into the service who would otherwise be deterred through fear of being sent upon distant disagreeable service. For this reason we would wish you would, if you conveniently can, acquaint us with the particular destination of those regiments, and how far we may venture to engage with officers and men that they shall not be obliged to march out of the Colony.

"We are directed to inform you that the Committee recommend Mr. Robert Freeman for the commission of Second Major in Colonel Sutherland's Regiment, vacant by the resignation of Mr. Cantolin. You will please to procure and transmit us his commission as soon as possible.

"We remain your very humble servants,

"By order of the Committee of Correspondence:

"ZEPHANIAH PLATT, Chairman.

Ordered, That a Commission be issued to Mr. Robert Freeman, as Second Major, and transmitted with all convenient speed.

Die Mercurii, 10 ho. A. M., February 21, 1776.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Dr. Williams.

The Committee of the City of New-York, in pursuance of the order of this Congress of the 13th instant, returned, that they had caused an election to be held at the City-Hall on the 20th instant, for seven Deputies to serve in this Provincial Congress, with the other Deputies of this City and County of New-York. That thereupon Messrs. Adrian Rutgers, Abraham P. Lott, Isaac Stoutenburgh, Evert Bancker, Thomas Randall, Samuel Prince, and William Denning, were duly elected.

Ordered, That the said Return be filed, and that those gentlemen be requested to take their seats immediately.

Mr. Hobart, from the Committee of War, to whom was committed the Letter from Colonel Swartwout, and the Returns of his Regiment made yesterday, delivered in their Report, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

The Committee of War having taken into consideration Colonel Swartwout's Letter of the 20th instant, with the Returns of the several Companies of his Regiment now on duty in this City, and finding that there is by much too great a proportion of officers for the men already here, and that it will probably be the same case with the companies now on their march to join the regiment, are of opinion that Colonel Swartwout be directed to appoint a proper number of officers to the several companies, according to the Regulations for the Militia, and that he order the supernumerary officers to return, with all possible despatch, to the County, in order to complete their companies.

Secondly. That where any officer of a Minute Company shall be unable, or refuse, to engage in this service, he be directed to supply their place by officers of the same rank from the Militia.

Thirdly. That the men be enlisted to continue in the service till the 1st day of May next, unless sooner discharged.

Mr. Thomas Smith moved, and was seconded, for the following amendment, to wit:

That the third Resolve be obliterated.

Debates arose on the said motion, and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the affirmative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.

2 Westchester.

4 New-York.

2 Charlotte.

2 Suffolk.

3 Albany.

13 votes.

For the Negative.

2 Dutchess.—Mr. G. Livingston.

2 Tryon. [ston dissenting.]

2 Ulster.—Mr. Dewitt dissenting.

6 votes.

Resolved, therefore, That the said third direction in the said Report be obliterated.

The first and second directions in the said Report being read a second time, the Congress agrees with their Committee thereon.

Mr. Van Zandt suggested to the Congress that it is absolutely necessary that Andrew Elliott, Esq., Collector of this Colony, have permission to go on board of his Excellency's Ship, as occasion may require, in order to let the trading vessels of this Colony be despatched, the Governour having refused to sign any papers from the Custom-house unless the Collector is present.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Andrew Elliott, Esq., Collector of the Port of New-York, be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board of his Excellency Governour Tryon's Ship at any time at his pleasure, until the further pleasure of this Congress, or of the Committee of Safety.

Colonel Peter T. Curtenius requested to know to whom he shall deliver the last-made Intrenching Tools.

Ordered, That Mr. P. T. Curtenius inquire if Mr. Hugh Hughes has obtained a commission as a Continental Commissary of Artillery Stores; and if he has such Continental commission, that then he deliver the said Intrenching Tools to Mr. Hughes; otherwise, that he deliver them to Mr. Richard Norwood.

It being suggested to the Congress that his Excellency Governour Tryon is indisposed, and that Dr. Middleton is his physician, Ordered, That Doctor Middleton be permitted to go on board of the Ship in which his Excellency resides, at any time, until the further order of this Congress, or of the Committee of Safety.

Mr. Abraham Livingston, who was lately appointed a Commissary for a considerable number of Troops, coming into this City, attended, and was admitted into Congress. He informed the Congress that he has purchased and contracted for Provisions to the amount of twenty-one hundred Pounds.

Therefore, Ordered, That P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Abraham Livingston, Esq., as Commissary for sundry Continental Troops now in this city, the sum of twenty-one hundred Pounds, on account, and take a receipt for the same.

Mr. L'Hommedieu reported that William Richie had contracted with Beriah Norton, a Colonel and Commissary of some Provincial Troops stationed at Marlin's Vineyard, to furnish forty barrels of Pork and forty barrels of Beef, with some other articles. That he has obtained a permit from the sub-Committee of the City of New-York, to purchase those articles and charter a vessel. That he has bought the Provisions in Westchester County, and, by reason of a resolve and order of the Committee of Safety, of the 10th instant, prohibiting exportation from thence out of the Colony, he cannot get the Provisions from thence.

Ordered, That Mr. William Richie be permitted by the Committee of Westchester County to transport the said forty barrels of Pork and forty barrels of beef, and no more, out of Westchester County, the resolution of the Committee of Safety of this Colony on the 10th instant to the contrary notwithstanding.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of Elizabethtown, relating to persons taken from Staten-Island and confined there, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Complaint has been made to us that Isaac Decker, Abraham Harris, and Minne Burger, inhabitants of Richmond County, are confined in jail under the direction of your Committee, in the Borough of Elizabeth, and that Richard Conner, Esq., is bound under a penalty to appear before your Committee. We know not by whose directions they were apprehended. By the regulations of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, all persons charged with any conduct inimical to the United Colonies, or transgressing any resolves, rules, or regulations of the Continental or Provincial Congress, are, in the first instance, to be tried by the County Committee of the County in which such delinquents reside. We, therefore, earnestly request that the several persons above named, with all charges and proofs you have or may know of against them respectively, may be returned to the County Committee of Richmond County, to be put upon their trial.

We are, respectfully, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

To the Chairman and Members of the Committee of Elizabethtown.

Ordered, That the same be engrossed, and transmitted.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of Richmond County on the same subject, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have, by a letter of this date, requested the Committee of Elizabethtown to return to the County Committee of your County, Richard Conner, Esq., Isaac Decker, Abraham Harris, and Minne Burger, inhabitants of your County, to be respectively put upon their trials, and return to you any charges and proofs against them that they have or may know of against them, or either of them, with respect to any conduct inimical to the United Colonies, or the having transgressed any resolves, rules, or regulations, of the Continental or Provincial Congress, or either of them.

We request you to put those persons on their trials, and if they, or either of them, should be found to have transgressed in any manner, we doubt not you will do strict and impartial justice, and make report to this Congress of your proceedings in the premises.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Richmond County.

Ordered, That the same be engrossed, and transmitted.

A Letter from General Schuyler, at Albany, dated February 15, 1776, on the subject of the Canada Regiment to be raised, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, February 15, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I have the honour to acknowledge your favour of the 31st ultimo, which was delivered me on the 12th by Messrs. Jadwin & Giles, together with twelve thousand five hundred dollars, for which I have given them a receipt.

"If I do not misapprehend the resolution of Congress for levying troops for the Canada service, the raising of Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment is recommended to you, as well as the providing them with the necessaries to enable them to take the field. I have neither arms, blankets, or clothing. These ought to be immediately procured.

"I enclose you a copy of my letter to the General Committee of this County, which sits to-day. By that you will see what I propose to do. The nomination of such officers as may be wanted, I must leave to that body, which, as it is composed of gentlemen from every part of the County, is more able to judge of those who are likely to raise the men than I can be.

"My nephew, Peter Schuyler, a young gentleman of about thirty years of age, wishes to be employed in some of the regiments to be raised in this Colony, as a Field-Officer. I should be happy, provided he can be recommended, without injuring others that may have a better claim, or giving umbrage.

"I am, gentlemen, with much respect and esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To the Committee of Safety, New-York."

A copy of a Letter from General Schuyler on the same subject to the Committee of Albany, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, February 14, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: On the 12th instant I was honoured with a letter from the Committee of Safety of this Colony, dated the 31st ultimo; extracts of which I enclose you, together with copies of sundry resolutions of the honourable Continental Congress.

"You will perceive by the resolutions of Congress, that the raising of Colonel Van Schaick's regiment was a service intended for the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety. But since they have sent me the money, and that the delay which must necessarily be occasioned by refusing my intervention, may be very prejudicial to the service at this advanced season, I will readily, with your assistance, undertake the business, provided you judge it practicable to complete the regiment in this quarter. If not, I would only issue warrants to such officers as served in that corps last campaign, and are willing to re-engage, which, together with such other officers (of which I enclose a list) to whom warrants were issued for raising troops, without designing them particularly for any regiment, (and three of which have already enlisted near three companies,) will, I apprehend, nearly complete the number of officers; a list of which I would transmit to the Colony Congress, that they may be sufficiently informed to appoint the remainder.

"Colonel Van Schaick has my orders to inform himself which of his officers on this side of Canada will re-engage. Those in Canada will be provided for there.

"I am, gentlemen, with respect and esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To the Committee of the City and County of Albany."

A Letter from Colonel Curtenius was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"GENTLEMEN: Mr. Halsted, Quartermaster of the Jersey Regiment, has applied to me for three hundred and forty-four wooden bowls, twelve pair of sheets for the Hospital, and three hundred and forty-four wooden spoons; also, a few old blankets for the sick. I should be glad to have a written order to deliver them.

"I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

"P. T. CURTENIUS.

"To the Provincial Congress, New-York."

Thereupon, Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius deliver to the Quartermaster of the Jersey Regiment twenty-four Bowls, twenty-four wooden Spoons, twelve pair of Sheets, and a few old Blankets, for the sole and only use of the sick in the Hospital; and that he take a receipt for the same for that purpose.

Ordered, That Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Sands, and Captain Denning, be a Committee to examine and state all the accounts, disbursements, and payments made by the Treasurer of this Congress; that they make particular distinction between Continental and Provincial charges; that they be authorized to call to their assistance Mr. Gerard Bancker and Colonel Curtenius when necessary, and to employ at the expense of this Congress, one or more such Clerks as they shall think necessary; and that they report their proceedings with all possible despatch.

Ordered, That Mr. Evert Bancker be Auditor of Accounts, in the stead of Mr. John Ray.

Mr. Zachariah Sickles having a parcel of Bags at Nutten-Island, it is suggested that he cannot go there for them without a pass from this Congress.

Ordered, That Mr. Zachariah Sickles be permitted to go over to Nutten-Island in any boat that he may think proper.

Colonel Palmer attending as a Member from Ulster, whereby that County will have a quorum without Mr. Dewitt,

Ordered, That he have leave of absence.

A Return signed by Thomas Thomas and William Miller, of Westchester County, was read and filed. They thereby certify, that at a meeting of the Troop of Westchester County, held at the house of Wilsey Dusenbury, in Harrison Precinct, the following gentlemen were elected officers, to wit: Samuel Tredwell, Captain; Thaddeus Avery, Lieutenant, chosen unanimously; and that Abraham Hatfield was chosen Cornet, and Uytendall Allaire Quartermaster, each chosen by a majority.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen.

A Return signed by Abraham P. Lott and Peter T. Curtenius, two of the Committee of the City and County of New-York, dated the 1st of February, 1776, of three officers being duly elected for a Company in Beat No. —, in the City of New-York, to wit: Isaac Johnson, First Lieutenant; John Lyner, Second Lieutenant; and George Quedon, Ensign:

Ordered, That Commissions issue to those gentlemen. And they were issued accordingly.

A Return of Officers of a Company of Minute-men at Saratoga, in the County of Albany, signed by Ebenezer Marvin, Chairman of the Committee, and dated the 12th instant, was read and filed. They thereby return the following persons for officers of the said Company, viz: Alexander Baldwin, Captain; Samuel Bacon, First Lieutenant; Walter Hewitt, Second Lieutenant; and Elias Palmer, Ensign.

Ordered, That Commissions issue to those gentlemen.

Colonel McDougall's motion of yesterday, for the emission of the further sum of fifty-five thousand Pounds, Provincial currency, for the exigencies of this Colony, and to be sunk at different periods, and which, by consent, without being entered, was postponed to this day, was resumed.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, Mr. Gansevoort, Thomas Smith, Esq., and Colonel Lott, be a Committee to report a plan for the emission of fifty-five thousand Pounds.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Mr. Herring.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Dewitt, Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Major Livingston, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, Colonel Ten Broeck, Mr. Schenck.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Thomas, Major Lockwood, Mr. Paulding.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Covenhoven, Mr. Van Brunt.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel Williams.

The Order of the Day, for recommending to the Continental Congress Field-Officers for the four Battalions to be raised in this Colony, being read, the same was postponed till the afternoon.

A draft of a Letter to the Delegates of this Colony at the Continental Congress, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We are now to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 11th instant, covering the resolution of Congress relative to the inhabitants of Richmond County; and notifying us of your having obtained a warrant in our favour, on the Continental Treasurer, for twelve thousand dollars, which will in some measure enable us to raise the four battalions intended for the immediate protection and defence of this Colony.

It is agreeable to us that you deduct, out of the money made payable by that warrant, what may be due to you as Delegates, agreeable to the resolution of this Congress; and we beg you to transmit the residue, with a state of your respective accounts and receipts, to our Treasurer, as his voucher.

We are, gentlemen, with esteem, your most obedient servants.

By order.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

John Hastier, Mate of the Ship Sally, whereof Captain Bagley was late Master, has requested permission to go on board of the said Ship Sally, to obtain his Clothing, Bedding, and other necessaries from on board, as she is to proceed to Boston.

Ordered, That the said John Hastier be permitted to go on board of the Ship Sally, for the purposes aforesaid.

A Memorial of Captain Daniel Griffin, Captain John Johnson, and thirteen other Officers, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress of the Colony of NEW-YORK, now sitting in this City.

"The Memorial of several of the Officers in the service of the United Colonies, by appointment of this Colony, for the duty of the year 1775, in the Northern Army, sheweth:

"That your Memorialists having been called upon early in the present contest, have willingly obeyed the summons, cheerfully entered upon any command or duty assigned them, in full expectation of being on the same footing with the other Continental Troops raised for the general defence; and whereas, by good authority, we are informed that the allowance given the Eastern Army for officers' subsistence, is much more than that received by your Memorialists; they humbly request that the Commissaries may be ordered to pay us the difference of rations, having some of us received but one ration, and others no provisions since we entered the service; whereas the Captains in the Eastern Army have, from the 1st of July last, received three, and the subalterns two; whereby discontents are arising, to the prejudice of that service where harmony is essential for executing the purpose intended.

"That your Memorialists being informed an additional number of troops are to be raised in this Colony for the Continental service, beg leave to remind this honourable House of the services rendered the publick by them, and other officers in the late year, hoping that the appointments may be such as will not supersede any officer who served with approbation and merit the late campaign, not doubting but this House will pay a proper attention in the same. We mean not to dictate; but, from a tender concern for the character and honour of our absent brethren, we are constrained to offer our sentiments thereon, lest, for want of information, an unintended wound may be given to that delicacy which inspires the breasts of soldiers, and, in a great measure, urges them to noble deeds, and carries them through the fatigues and dangers of the field; and we must add, that a soldier without a due sense of honour, will not only be very unhappy in the corps he may serve in, but surely cannot be entrusted with the defence of the honour or interests of the publick.

"Your Memorialists, relying on the candour of this House, beg leave to sign in behalf of our absent brethren; praying, as our duty is, for the preservation of our invaluable rights and privileges, and for those who have direction of publick business for that end.

"DANIEL GRIFFIN,	JACOBUS WYNKOOP,
"JOHN JOHNSON,	NATHANIEL WOODWARD,
"JOHN HULBERT,	BENJAMIN LEDYARD,
"JOHN GRENELL,	ELIAS HASBROUCK,
"ANDREW BILLINGS,	JACOBUS ROSEKRANS,
	Captains.
"BENJAMIN MARVIN,	JAMES M. HUGHES,
"WILLIAM BROWNE,	ABRAHAM RIKER,
"THOMAS LEFOY,	Lieutenants.

"New-York, February 21, 1776."

The Congress are of opinion that the first part of the Memorial would be a proper subject of application to Major-General Schuyler and Walter Livingston, Esq., but not to this Congress; and that the latter part of the Memorial is already answered by a Resolve of this Congress of the 15th instant.

Anthony Post, Captain of a Company of Artificers, delivered an estimate of the Tools necessary for each Carpenter in his Company; and alleges that it will save publick money to direct the Carpenters to furnish their own Tools, and to increase their Wages from ten to thirteen Dollars per month:

Ordered, That Mr. Prince, Mr. Rhea, and Mr. Palmer, or any two of them, be a Committee to consider of, and report thereon, with all convenient speed.

A Letter from John Hancock, dated Philadelphia, 20th of February, 1776; also, Resolutions of the Continental Congress of February 15th and 17th, 1776, were received and read, and are as follow:

"Philadelphia, February 20, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I have the honour to enclose you several resolutions of Congress, by which you will perceive their determination as to the works on Martelaer's Rock, that no addition be made, but that those already effected there be supported and garrisoned. You will please to order the execution of the works recommended by Congress in the enclosed resolves, to which beg leave to refer you.

"The Congress have directed General Lee to repair to Canada, to conduct the military operations in that quarter; and as battering-cannon are much wanted there, they have ordered him to request you to supply him with some suitable pieces and mortars, if possible, with shells, balls, &c. I make no doubt but your zeal will readily lead you to afford the General your aid in these instances, and also in assisting to forward every necessary with all despatch. I must refer you to the resolutions, and have only time to request your particular attention to them.

"I am, with esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"To the Honourable Convention, New-York.

"P. S. General Schuyler is to repair to New-York, and take the command; I shall send the commission by next opportunity."

The Resolves of the Continental Congress of the 15th instant, were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, February 15, 1776.

"Resolved, That no further Works be erected on Martelaer's Rock, but, that those already erected there, be supported and garrisoned.

"That a Fascine Battery, to mount heavy Cannon, not exceeding eighteen in number, to be thrown up on the Gra- vel Hill, eastward of Martelaer's Rock, marked in the draft LL, so as to command the West Point, the reach down the River from the West Point, and part of the reach up the River; and that a convenient road be opened from this Battery to the Barracks on Martelaer's Rock.

"That a Redoubt of Earth and Fascines be built on the eminence on the east side of the River, opposite to the West Point marked in the draft A, to mount thirty Guns.

"That it be recommended to the Convention or Committee of Safety of New-York, to forward the Battery at Poopen's Kill; and that the said Battery be made of earth and fascines, and to mount a number of Guns, not exceeding forty.

"That such of the Continental Troops as are or may be stationed at the aforesaid places, be employed in erecting these Works and Batteries, under the direction of the Engineer."

"February 17, 1776.

"That it be recommended to the Convention or Committee of Safety of New-York, to supply General Lee with a quantity of suitable Cannon, not exceeding twelve, and one or more Mortars, if to be had, with Balls, Shells, and other necessaries, for the siege or assault of Quebeck; and that they assist him in forwarding the same with all possible expedition.

"That it be recommended to the Convention of New-York, that such of the Officers who served faithfully in Canada the last campaign, as are willing to continue there, be preferred, in the new levies of the Colony of New-York, to others.

"Resolved, That the sum of thirty-five thousand Dollars be advanced to the Convention or Committee of Safety of New-York, for the support of the Troops employed in the defence of that Colony, the said Convention or Committee of Safety to be accountable for the expenditure thereof; and that an Order be drawn on the Treasurers for the above sum, in favour of the Delegates of that Colony, who are directed to forward the same.

"That it be recommended to the Convention or Committee of Safety of New-York, to contract with proper persons for supplying the said Troops with the Rations allowed by Congress, and with Fuel and other necessaries, on the most reasonable terms in their power.

"Extract from the Minutes;

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.

"By order of Congress:

"JOHN HANCOCK, President."

Resolve of the Continental Congress, of the 15th of February, instant, was also read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the Convention or Committee of Safety of New-York, to prosecute the discovery of the Lead-Mines at New-Canaan; and that a copy of a Report of Joseph Hopkins to the General Assembly of Connecticut, respecting this Mine, be sent to them.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.

Ordered to be transmitted:

"JOHN HANCOCK, President."

The copy of the Report of Joseph Hopkins, referred to in the above Resolve, and enclosed by President Hancock, is as follows:

"To the Honourable the General Assembly convened at NEW-HAVEN, on the 14th DECEMBER, 1775:

"Whereas Captain Samuel Forbes and the subscriber were appointed by your Honours, at your session in October last, a Committee to examine and explore a Lead-Mine at New-Canaan, in the Province of New-York, and to report, &c.

"I, the said subscriber, ask leave to report: That on the 7th of November last, on my journey to said New-Canaan, I expected said Captain Forbes to join me; but he being ill, and unable to assist in said business, advised me to proceed; with which advice I complied, and repaired to New-Canaan, where I found the said Mine, the vein of ore in which appears to be about fifty or sixty rods in length, lying north and south, in a ledge of rocks or lime-stone, mixed with white flint; at the south end of which the ground falls about twenty-six feet, below which the water can be drawn off by a level; which vein I found had been opened about one rod in length and three or four feet deep; where I employed a skilful miner to blast the rock, but found no continued adherent vein, but found the ore in bodies in different shapes, about three or four inches in diameter, lying about three or four feet distant. The said miner also opened the vein in several places where it had not before been tried; and it appeared to be in the same manner. I also smelted eight ounces of said ore, and found, when it was well refined, it weighed five ounces, and was very malleable and good. All which is submitted by your Honours' most obedient and very humble servant,

"JOSEPH HOPKINS.

"N. B. The Mine aforesaid lies in a tract of land called the King's District, where the fee has never been granted or patented to any person, and the inhabitants claim to hold by possession only; and I employed the miner aforementioned, with others, to labour in said Mine seven days; about half of which time was spent in opening the vein, and by the other half of the labour was raised one hundred weight of the ore. Yours, as above,

JOSEPH HOPKINS.

"A true copy :

CHARLES THOMSON."

The Congress took into consideration the said Resolves of Congress of the 15th instant; and Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that Major-General Lee, in pursuance of the Resolution of Congress for supplying large Ordnance for the service in Canada, requests the following Ordnance, to wit: Two 24-pounders, six 18-pounders, four 32-pounders; and that these Cannon may be forwarded to Canada with all possible expedition:

Ordered, That Colonel Nicoll, Colonel Palmer, and Mr. G. Livingston, be a Committee to forward those Cannon, in such manner as they shall think most expeditious; that the said Committee, or such of them as shall proceed with those Cannon, be recommended, and are hereby recommended to the assistance of every Committee in this Colony for any assistance they may want; and the several Committees within this Colony are hereby requested and directed to furnish to those gentlemen, or either of them, who may proceed with those Cannon, Teams of Horses and Oxen, Carts, Wheels, and Carriages, and every other aid they may require.

And the better to enable the gentlemen named above as a Committee to carry the matters above-mentioned into execution:

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Colonel Francis Nicoll and Colonel Thomas Palmer the sum of six hundred Pounds, on account, for that service.

And on reading that part of the Resolutions of the Continental Congress of the 15th instant, respecting the Fortifications built, and to be built in the Highlands:

Resolved and Ordered, That Thomas Palmer, Esq., be, and he is hereby appointed an additional Commissioner to superintend the building of the said Fortifications; that he be furnished with a copy of the said Resolutions, and apply to General Lee for an Engineer to assist in that business; and that he immediately repair with the said Engineer to the Highlands. And it is earnestly recommended to the Committee to use their utmost endeavours to carry the Resolutions of the Continental Congress into immediate execution.

The President, from the chair, enjoined secrecy on all the Members upon their honour, not to mention the sending any Cannon or Stores to the Northward.

On reading the Resolutions for making Contracts for supplying the Troops with the Rations allowed by Congress, and Fuel, and other necessities, on the most reasonable terms:

Ordered, That Colonel Lott and Major Stoutenburgh be a Committee for that purpose.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that Major-General Lee had found it necessary to retain a number of Cartmen by the day, to attend every morning, and go to work in one or more companies, as they should be directed; and that they were retained at ten Shillings per day for each Cartman, with his Horse and Cart, the Cartmen maintaining themselves and their Horses; whereby a considerable expense in cartage will be saved. That General Lee conceives it would tend to forward business with much more despatch, and to have more labour done in a given time, if an industrious, watchful, and active Overseer or Wagonmaster was appointed to call the roll of those Cartmen at proper hours, to see that they attend in due season, work faithfully, and cart proper loads; and that General Lee requests that a proper person may be appointed to that office by this Congress.

And Mr. John Targer being thought a proper person for this business:

Agreed and Ordered, That he be appointed, and he is hereby appointed, Overseer and Wagonmaster, for the purposes above-mentioned, of all such Cartmen as are or shall be so employed by Major-General Lee, or the commanding Officer of the Continental Troops in this City for the time being; and that such Cartmen be under his direction; and that Mr. Targer return the names and conduct of any such as do not work faithfully and do their duty.

And Resolved, That Mr. John Targer shall have a Lieutenant's pay while continued in this service.

P. M. Die Jovis, February 22, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Major Stoutenburgh, Mr. Smith, Mr. Banker, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Sands, Mr. Prince, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Van Cortlandt.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, Mr. Abraham Yates.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Strong, Mr. Wickham, Mr. L'Homedieu, Mr. Hobart.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Dewitt, Mr. Rhea, Colonel Palmer, Mr. Lefever.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Covenhoven, Mr. Van Brunt.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel Williams.

A Return made by Colonel Samuel Drake and Lieutenant-Colonel Lewis Graham, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Horne's Hook, February 22, 1776.

"SIR: Mr. Storm, who was appointed First Major in our Regiment, has resigned, and we beg leave to recommend Mr. Samuel Lyon, who is now Second Major, to be First Major; and Mr. Ebenezer Slason, the Captain of the First Company, to be Second Major.

"If the Congress should think proper to grant the commissions, we beg they may be issued as speedily as is convenient.

"We are, sir, your very humble servants,

"SAMUEL DRAKE, Colonel.

"LEWIS GRAHAM, Lieutenant-Colonel.

"To Colonel Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

Ordered, That a Commission issue for Samuel Lyon, Esq., as First Major, and Ebenezer Slason as Second Major, in Colonel Samuel Drake's Regiment.

Messrs. Prince and Ray, from the Committee appointed this morning to report on the Proposal of Anthony Post, Captain of a Company of Artificers, delivered in their Report; which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee appointed to consider and report on the Proposal made by the Captain of Artificers, with respect to the furnishing the Company with Tools, report, that they are of opinion that the list of Tools exhibited by Mr. Post is sufficient for two men at least; that it is their opinion that it will be a saving to the publick to allow the sum of ten shillings per month for the use of their own Tools.

SAMUEL PRINCE,

MATTHEW RHEA.

The Congress agrees with their Committee in their said Report.

And Ordered, That the said Report stand confirmed.

The Order of the Day being again read, the Congress proceeded thereon. After some time spent, and some progress therein, General Ten Broeck moved, and was seconded, that as this Congress is not properly informed what promotions have taken place in Canada, without which we may greatly err and do injustice to, or neglect gentlemen of character and merit who have served during the last campaign, that the further consideration thereof be postponed for the present, and that a Letter be written to the Delegates of this Colony at Continental Congress, and another Letter to General Schuyler, requesting to know what gentlemen are provided for.

Thereupon, a draft of a Letter to the Delegates of this Colony at the Continental Congress was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This Congress, earnestly solicitous to do the strictest justice to those worthy gentlemen who so readily turned out in the service of their country the last campaign, and being entirely uncertain what promotions have been made by the Continental Congress, or any acting under their orders, among the officers who served in the troops raised by this Colony, take the liberty to enclose to you the rank-roll of our four regiments, requesting that you, by the first post, will inform us what promotions have been made, that we may be in a capacity to nominate to the Congress two gentlemen for each Field-Officer of the four battalions ordered to be raised by this Colony. You will easily perceive that, unless we are furnished with such account, we may neglect some gentlemen whose services may be of the utmost importance to their country.

We are, gentlemen, with the greatest esteem, your very humble servants. By order.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

A draft of a Letter to Major-General Schuyler was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 22, 1776.

SIR: We are ordered by the Continental Congress to provide for the officers who served in Canada the last campaign; and understanding that some of those officers have been provided for by that honourable body, we should take it as a favour that you would inform us who those persons are, that we may be enabled to make a proper arrangement of the officers to command the regiments we are to raise.

We are sorry to inform you, in answer to your letter of the 15th instant, that we are unable to supply Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment with any arms, blankets, or clothing, having by no means a sufficiency for the equipment of those troops we are to raise. We highly approve of your application to the Committee of Albany for the nomination of officers for Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment; at the same time shall give you every assistance in our power. We concluded that there was a large number of arms lodged at Albany, as but few of our soldiers have brought back their arms, many of which belonged to this city; and we expected to have them to put into the hands of the troops to be raised in this Colony, and should be glad to know what is become of those arms.

As soon as we can procure the necessary information of the officers provided for in Canada, we shall nominate the Field-Officers for the regiments we raise, when the nomination of the young gentleman you mention will be taken under consideration.

We are, sir, with the greatest esteem, your very humble servants. By order.

To Major-General Schuyler.

Ordered, That copies of those Letters, respectively, be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Return of the Officers of Captain Smith's Company, in Colonel Van Ness's Regiment, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"These are to certify that the following persons were duly elected officers in a Minute Company in Charlotte Precinct, Dutchess County, in Colonel Van Ness's Regiment, viz: Melancton Smith, Captain; Isaac Bloom, First Lieutenant; William Mead, Second Lieutenant; and William Tremper, Ensign.

"JACOBUS SWARTWOUT, }
"PETER TAPPEN, } Committee-
"REUBEN HOPKINS, } men.

"February 22, 1776."

Ordered, That Commissions issue for Melancton Smith, as Captain; Isaac Bloom, First Lieutenant; William Mead, Second Lieutenant; and William Tremper, Ensign.

The Barrackmaster of this City, attending at the door, was admitted. He informed the Congress that he has not any covers for Straw Beds, having delivered out Straw Beds to all Troops indiscriminately, as they have arrived.

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius, as Commissary of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, purchase immediately as much Crocus, or any other coarse Cloth fit for covering Straw Beds, as will make five hundred Beds; and that he have the same made, or deliver the Cloth to the Barrackmaster, to have them made; and that the Barrackmaster deliver out those Beds to the Troops of this Colony only.

And Ordered, That the Barrackmaster take receipts for those Beds, and all other Barrack stores delivered out by him; and that he bring in to this Congress an account of all the Barrack stores or utensils which he has purchased, and of all stores which he has delivered out.

A Letter from Major-General Lee was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, February 22, 1776.

"SIR: As the carpenters must be constantly employed in various works for the publick service, I take the liberty to desire the Congress will furnish, or order to be furnished, about three thousand feet of boards, to construct a shed, which may enable them to work in all kinds of weather. A considerable quantity of oak timber is likewise requisite for platforms and other works,—five hundred loads will not be an over quantity. The regiments here from Connecticut can turn out many carpenters, who consent to work upon much more reasonable terms than the artificers of the city. It would, I imagine, be worth while to provide, if possible, a sufficient number of tools. When the present work is done, these tools cannot be considered as an idle purchase; they will always be useful.

"I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

"CHARLES LEE.

"To Colonel Woodhull, President of the Congress."

Ordered, That General Lee be informed that he may direct his Engineer to furnish a bill of Scantling, of the Boards and Timber mentioned in his said Letter, and that this Congress will direct the same to be procured; and that the Committee of War wait on General Lee, and confer with him on the other part of his Letter, and report thereon to this Congress to-morrow.

Mr. Hobart informed the Congress that there are several Soldiers, of the different corps, now here, who ought to be put into an Hospital.

Ordered, That Dr. Treat be requested to take the trouble to procure some proper place in the suburbs for their reception, and inform this Congress, or some of the Members thereof.

Colonel Humphreys informed the Congress that the Minute-men of his Regiment in particular, and the greater part of those of the other Dutchess and Westchester Regiments, enlisted in full confidence, that their pay would be fifty-three shillings and four pence per month—the Continental pay of last year; that though many of them were lately enlisted, yet they knew not of the change of the Continental pay at the time of their enlistment; that they have, since the publication of the present Continental establishment, been very uneasy; and that if their pay is reduced to forty shillings per month, many of them will return from the service.

Ordered, That Thomas Smith draw a Letter on that subject, stating their case to the Delegates of this Congress, and requesting them to procure the pay of last year's establishment for those Troops.

A Letter from Colonel Samuel Drake, requesting that Dr. Benjamin Miller might be examined, and, if found properly qualified, be appointed Surgeon to his Regiment, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Horne's Hook, February 20, 1776.

"SIR: Dr. Benjamin Miller, at my request, has marched and is now with my regiment as Surgeon. He has already taken care of some that are sick. Would be much obliged to the honourable Congress to have him examined; and, if found properly qualified, appointed Surgeon of my regiment. As Dr. Miller is acquainted with a considerable part of the men under my command, I suppose he would be more agreeable to the soldiers than most others.

"I am, sir, your most humble servant,

"SAMUEL DRAKE, Colonel.

"To Colonel Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

Ordered, That the said Benjamin Miller be examined by Dr. John Jones and Dr. Treat, and obtain from them such certificate of his qualifications as Surgeon to a Regiment, as those gentlemen may on such examination find that he merits.

Mr. Robert Benson, one of the Secretaries, informed the Congress that, by order of the Committee of Safety, he had attended the removing the Records from the Secretary's Office, and had been obliged to employ ten Cartmen for that purpose, who charged him four Shillings each for that service.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Mr. Robert Benson forty Shillings, to pay the said Cartmen.

Die Veneris, A. M., February 23, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel McDougall, Colonel Lott, Mr. Sands, Mr. Prince, Mr. Bancker, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Smith, Captain Rutgers, Mr. A. Rutgers, Mr. Scott.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Gansevoort, Mr. Yates, Colonel Nicoll.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Strong, Mr. Hobart, Mr. L'Hommedieu, Captain Wickham.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Major Lockwood, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Paulding.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Mr. G. Livingston, Major R. G. Livingston.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Covenhoven, Mr. Van Brunt.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel Williams.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Mr. Herring.

William Lowther, Esq., informed part of this Congress that he has been informed that his Sloop and Cargo, in custody of Captain Parker, will probably be sent to Boston; and that if he could be permitted to go down to the Phoenix, it might be of use to his interest.

Ordered, That William Lowther, Esq., be permitted to go on board of his Majesty's Ship Phoenix, and his own Vessel, now under the command of Captain Parker.

To Mr. Elias Nixen, Port-Master.

Ordered, That Mr. Lispenard's Servant be permitted to go on board of the Governour's Ship; with five bags of Buckwheat.

To Mr. Elias Nixen, Port-Master.

Ordered, That Robert McIntosh, Master of the Schooner Sally, be permitted to go on board of his Majesty's Ship Asia.

To Mr. Elias Nixen, Port-Master.

Ordered, That William Kempe have permission to go on board of Governour Tryon's Ship; to Cortlandt Skinner, Esq., with a Letter, and a draft of a Charter for Newark Academy.

To Mr. Elias Nixen, Port-Master.

Colonel McDougall recommended Mr. Alexander Hamilton for Captain of a Company of Artillery; Mr. James Moore for Captain-Lieutenant; and ——— Johnson (who was in service last year, and who was lately appointed by the Committee of Safety) for First Lieutenant.

Ordered, That the appointment of those Officers be taken into consideration to-morrow morning.

A Certificate of the election of the Officers of a Minute Company in Easthampton was read. It thereby appears, and is certified, that Ezekiel Mulford was chosen Captain, John Miller, First Lieutenant, and Nathaniel Hand, Second Lieutenant, of the Company of Minute-men in Easthampton; in Suffolk County, in the Regiment whereof Josiah Smith, Esq., is Colonel.

Ordered, That Commissions issue to those gentlemen.

And they were immediately issued accordingly.

A Letter from Colonel Peter T. Curtenius, Commissary of this Congress, dated yesterday, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, February 22, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I have taken the liberty to enclose an estimate of what articles are wanting to complete the four battalions which are now raising for the defence of this Province. If your Honours think proper to employ me in the purchase of them, should esteem it a favour to receive your orders early, that I may have it in my power to get them made in time.

"I have let the Barrackmaster have, since his appointment, five hundred and seventy-four pounds, to purchase wood and other necessities; and he tells me he will want two or three hundred pounds more in a few days. Must I let him have it before he renders me an account? Your orders how I must act, and how often in the year he must render an account, will be agreeable to, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

"PETER T. CURTENIUS.

"To the New-York Provincial Congress."

As short Accounts are most easily examined, and prevent trouble,

Ordered, That the Barrackmaster deliver in his Accounts, that they may be settled and examined before more money is advanced; and that for the future the Barrackmaster deliver in his Accounts weekly.

The Estimate enclosed in the Letter of Colonel Curtenius, of sundries wanted for four Battalions, to be raised in the Province of New-York, was read.

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be referred to the Committee of War.

Ordered, That Mr. Norwood, the Military Provincial Commissary, wait on Colonel Waterbury, and receive from him the Arms lately taken from sundry disaffected persons in Westchester County; that Mr. Norwood have all those Arms particularly examined and described, and have them appraised by two persons who are proper judges of their value, and a duplicate of such appraisement and description returned to this Congress with all convenient speed.

The Congress were informed that Cornelius Atherton has a part of the Arms he contracted for with Colonel McDougall and Mr. Curtenius, on behalf of this Congress, ready to be proved, and that he cannot prove them for want of Gunpowder.

Ordered, That Colonel . . . . . deliver or cause to be delivered to Cornelius Atherton, or for his use, one quarter-cask of Gunpowder, for the proving of the said Muskets; the said Cornelius Atherton to discount the price of said Gunpowder out of the price of the said Arms.

Ezra L'Hommedieu, Esq., having occasion for the sum of three hundred and seventy Pounds, to apply to publick uses, at his risk, which have been mentioned to Congress,

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Ezra L'Hommedieu, Esq., the sum of three hundred and seventy Pounds, and take his note or obligation, payable within six weeks, for the same.

A Letter from William Leary, Town-Major, on the subject of his great duty and small means, was read and filed, and is the words following, to wit:

"New-York, February 23, 1776.

"SIR: As I have a long time acted as Town-Major, I now must take the liberty, and beg you will inform the Congress, that it is out of my power to support myself in that character without some compensation for it. I have quitted all business for the office, and now support myself on my means, which, God knows, is very little. I must beg you will excuse this freedom which I have taken with you.

"I remain a well wisher to the present cause; and am your very humble servant,

"WILLIAM LEARY, Town-Major.

"To the President of the Provincial Congress."

As the Town-Major is an officer of this City, and the City Members are absent in a Committee, fixing on proper persons to recommend for Officers in the battalion to be raised in this City,

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be deferred for the present, and resumed when the Members for New-York are present.

Samuel Franklin informed Congress that the Ship Sally is to be sent to Boston in a few days, and requests permission from this Congress to send John Hastier in the said ship to Boston, in order to make application to the Admiral for her discharge, and, in the interim, to take care of the said ship. Mr. Franklin further requests that the said John Hastier may be permitted to take with him for his subsistence, one barrel of salt provisions, one cask of bread, one barrel of flour, one quarter of fresh beef, a few gallons of rum or spirits, and a few pounds of chocolate; and that he, Mr. Franklin, be permitted to go on board of his Majesty's Ship Phoenix to speak with Captain Parker relative to the said Ship Sally.

Ordered, That John Hastier be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board of the Ship Sally, belonging to Samuel Franklin, and lately seized by Captain Parker; and further, that the said John Hastier be permitted to go passenger in the said Ship to Boston, and take with him, for his subsistence, the following stores, to wit: One barrel of salt Provisions, one cask of Bread, one barrel of Flour, one quarter of fresh Beef, a few gallons of Rum, and a few pounds of Chocolate; and,

Ordered, That Samuel Franklin be permitted to go on board of his Majesty's Ship Phoenix, to speak with Captain Parker relative to the said Ship.

The Deputies for the City and County of New-York delivered in a List or Arrangement of Officers for the Regiment to be raised in New-York; which was read and approved of.

A Letter from David Pye, Esq., Deputy Chairman of the Committee of Orange County, to the Congress, and two Letters from E. W. Kiers—one to Jesse Woodhull, Esq., and the other to Thomas Smith, Esq.—were read.

They thereby state their difficulties arising from the following matter, to wit: That their County Committee had recommended officers for two companies, to be raised on the south side of the Mountains, in Orange County; that each of those officers had been at expense in preparing for the service, and engaging men for a company; that only one company being allotted by Congress to be raised in that part of the County, each set of officers claimed the preference, and that, to rid themselves of jealousies, and creating divisions, they had returned the warrants, and submitted to Congress to determine and fill up the warrants.

Congress determined that the said warrants be filled up in manner following, to wit: For Amos Hutchins, Captain.

An Account of Bernard Romans, for money claimed by him as due to him from this Congress, was read.

A Resolve of Continental Congress was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, February 13, 1776.

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the Convention of New-York to pay Mr. B. Romans up to the 9th day of this month.

CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

The consideration thereof is deferred until B. Romans is called in, and interrogated as to the reasons of his so long absence from the Fortifications at different times.

The Congress was informed by a Member that his Excellency the Governour has sent to the Mayor to request his attendance.

Ordered, That his Worship the Mayor be permitted to go on board his Excellency Governour Tryon's Ship.

Mr. L'Hommedieu requested that this Congress would come to a determination as to the propriety of the embargo laid on Provisions by the Committees of some Towns in Suffolk County; and Mr. L'Hommedieu proposed and moved for an order in the words following, which was read, to wit:

The Congress approving of the Committees of Southampton, Easthampton, and Shelter-Island, having laid an embargo on Provisions in those Towns till the 1st of March,

Ordered, That it be recommended to the Committee of Suffolk County, at their next meeting, to continue said Embargo in those Towns, and in the several Towns in Suffolk County, in such manner as they shall direct, until the further order of this Congress; and that their proceedings be transmitted to this Congress with all convenient speed.

Ordered, That Colonel Palmer be considered as present, while he is attending with the Cannon, (to the forwarding whereof he is appointed with Colonel Nicoll), and no longer.

Ordered, That Colonel Nicoll be considered as present until he may arrive at Albany, and not after that time, until he arrives here and takes his seat.

The Congress took into consideration the Resolves and recommendation of the honourable the Continental Congress to prosecute the discovery of the Lead-Mine at New-Canaan, in this Colony. They sent for John McDonald, the Miner, as a proper person to pursue such discovery; and he has undertaken and engaged in that service on the following terms and conditions, to wit: To proceed to New-Canaan with all possible despatch, and there examine into and prosecute the discovery of the said Lead-Mine; to receive for his pay and subsistence twenty dollars per month while in that service, he to bear his own expense, and to be furnished with necessary tools, &c., and for that purpose to have a letter to the Committee of King's District, requesting them to furnish him with tools.

The said John McDonald having occasion for a small supply of cash to defray his expenses on his intended journey:

Thereupon, Ordered, That Mr. Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to John McDonald, the Miner, (who, in obedience to a certified copy of a recommendation of the Continental Congress to this Provincial Congress, dated the 15th instant, is sent to prosecute the discovery of the Lead-Mine at New-Canaan,) the sum of twelve Dollars, on account, and take his receipt for the same.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of King's District, in the County of Albany, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress have appointed John McDonald to explore the Lead-Mine at New-Canaan. He is to apply to you for any assistance he may want to procure, (tools and other necessaries for the purpose,) which they desire you will furnish. He is allowed twenty dollars per month for his pay and subsistence. You will please to inform us what time he is employed in the service.

We are, gentlemen, your very obedient servants.

By order.

To the Chairman and Members of the Committee of King's District, Albany County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed and signed by the President, and transmitted by the said John McDonald; and that a certified copy of the Report of J. Hopkins to the Continental Congress, and of their Resolve thereon, be delivered by the Secretaries to the said John McDonald.

Die Lunæ, 10 ho. A. M., February 26, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel McDougall, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Beckman, Mr. Sands, Mr. Denning, Mr. Smith, Mr. Roosevelt.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Gansevoort, Mr. A. Yates, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Gelston.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Leffertse.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Mr. G. Livingston, Major Schenck.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Ward.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Col. Hay, Mr. Herring.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Mr. Hobart reported that Dr. Treat had informed him that he has taken every measure to find some proper place for an Hospital; that he cannot discover any place that can be obtained other than the two following, to wit: Mr. Delancey's House, in the Out Ward, and three Houses in and near Maiden-Lane, near Mr. Walton's Brewery.

The Congress are of opinion, unanimously, that the place mentioned in Maiden-Lane is very improper, and will, by no means, answer the purpose; and that, from every inquiry they have been able to make, or information received, Mr. Delancey's House, in the Bowery, is the most proper. But as the Congress would choose to have the use of the said House with the consent of, and by agreement with, John Delancey, the agent of the owner,

Ordered, That Mr. Denning and Mr. Abraham Yates be a Committee to apply to John Delancey for the use of the said House, and make report thereon with all convenient speed.

It was suggested to Congress that there may be great danger in using the present Hospital stores until they are carefully washed and cleansed; and as no Superintendent of an Hospital is yet appointed,

Ordered, That Dr. Treat be requested, for the present, to procure such proper persons as he may think fit to trust, and give the necessary directions for washing such stores as he may think necessary.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that some works will be necessary to be erected on some ground on the bank southwest of Trinity-Church. That three small Houses there (one of them tenanted) will necessarily be taken down; that it will be necessary to have this matter kept secret, otherwise the erection of the work may be frustrated; and submitted to the Congress whether three Members of this Congress, who are judges of buildings, should not be directed to view and estimate the value of those three Houses.

Ordered, That Mr. Roosevelt, Captain Rutgers, and Mr. Beckman, be a Committee to view and examine the said three Houses, and ascertain their value respectively, and report thereon with all convenient speed.

And the Members were strictly charged from the Chair to keep this matter with the greatest secrecy.

A Return from Colonel Jacobus Swartwout for Officers for a Company of Militia in Rombout Precinct, was read and filed. It thereby appears that the following Officers were chosen, agreeable to the Rules of Congress, to wit: Evert Wynkoop Swart, Captain; Robert Brett, First Lieutenant; Isaac Van Wyck, Second Lieutenant; and Abraham Shultz, Ensign.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen.

Colonel Swartwout also enclosed a List of Officers chosen by their several Companies in his Regiment of Minute-men, agreeable to the Resolution of Congress, for whom he requested Commissions as soon as possible, to wit: For John Dorton, Captain; Henry Wykoff, First Lieutenant; Robert Hill, Second Lieutenant; and Thomas Ostrander, Ensign.

In another Company: James Weeks, Captain; Hugh Connor, First Lieutenant; James Cooper, Second Lieutenant; and Theodorus Brett, Ensign.

In another Company: Comfort Luddington, Captain; Elijah Oakley, First Lieutenant; John Bready, Second Lieutenant; and Asa Berry, Ensign.

All which Returns were dated this day.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for all those gentlemen, agreeable to their respective Ranks returned.

Colonel Hay produced a Return of Officers for a Company of Minute-men in the southern part of Orange County, signed by Johannes Is. Blauvelt, Chairman; whereby it appears that, on the 16th December, the following named gentlemen were elected Officers of that Company, to wit: Benjamin Coe, Captain; Abraham Onderdonck, First Lieutenant; Paulus M. Vandervoort, Second Lieutenant; and Daniel Coe, Jun., Ensign; and that they were chosen without opposition, in the presence of John Smith and Rymier Quackenboss, two of the Committee, as Inspectors.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen.

John Voorhies, of Brunswick, who attended the Congress at their request, to be examined, says: That, on Friday morning, the 23d instant, he was coming to New-York with his Sloop Brunswick, loaded with Bread and Flour, and five firkins of Butter; that he was brought to by Captain Vandeput, in the Ship Asia, who demanded of him what his cargo consisted of; that Captain Vandeput ordered the hatches of the Sloop to be opened, and took out forty-two tierces of Bread, five firkins of Butter, and thirty barrels of Flour; for the payment whereof, he gave this examinant an order on Abraham Lott, Esq., and then put fourteen or fifteen men on board the Sloop, and brought her alongside of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon; that he was there ordered by Governour Tryon to get his tackles ready; that Governour Tryon directed all the Flour to be taken out of the Sloop and put on board of the Dutchess; that one hundred and forty-nine barrels were taken out of the Sloop by Governour Tryon's order and put on board of the Dutchess; that two barrels of the finest Flour were set by for the Ship's use, and the rest stowed in the hold; that Governour Tryon asked for his Account; that he (this examinant) asked nineteen shillings per hundred for his Flour, as he had been informed that was the market price; that Governour Tryon would pay him only eighteen shillings per hundred, and offered to pay him that price, or permit him to go to New-York and get a certificate that the price was higher; that Governour Tryon paid him for only one hundred and forty-seven barrels of Flour, though he kept an account of the weights and numbers, and is very confident that one hundred and forty-nine barrels were put on board. That Captain Vandeput's Barge stopped the Vessel of Thompson from Brunswick; that they detained him some time, and then sent him back again; that Captain Vandeput told him, seemingly in a low voice, and when he was alone, that he might inform his countrymen that, if they sent up Provisions fit for shipping, he would stop it; but that he would not stop loose or unpacked Provisions, such as Butter, Eggs, or Pork in quarters, for the use of the City; but that he could not let anything pass which was in barrels; that he (the examinant) saw a considerable quantity of Beef and Mutton, in quarters and pieces, hanging between decks in the Ship Asia.

A Letter from Colonel Swartwout was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, February 26, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Be pleased to let me have six hundred and twenty-four pounds for the use of my regiment, in order to enable them to provide themselves with blankets and other necessaries.

"JACOBUS SWARTWOUT, Colonel.

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress, New-York."

The Congress was informed by two of the Dutchess County Members that Colonel Swartwout had told them that four hundred Pounds will be sufficient for the present.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Colonel Jacobus Swartwout, of Dutchess County, the sum of four hundred Pounds, on account of the pay of his Regiment; and that the Treasurer take his receipt for the same, on account.

A Letter from Robert Ogden, Chairman of the Committee of Elizabethtown, dated the 22d instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Elizabethtown, February 22, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I this moment received yours, dated 'In Congress, February 21, 1776,' and signed by the President. Had there been a necessity, I would immediately have convened the Committee, to consider the request of your letter. The persons mentioned now in durance in this town were confined by Colonel Heard, not at our instance, and without our knowledge. It is said Colonel Heard received his authority for so doing from yours, or the Continental Congress. Our Committee are also ignorant of the crimes of which these persons are accused, and for which imprisoned. Being convinced of the strict propriety of your regulations respecting delinquents, this Committee have not been, nor will they be, guilty of the least violation of them; and therefore conclude with assuring the honourable Convention that we mean not to concern ourselves with these men, or their conduct.

"I am, gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your very humble servant,

"ROBERT OGDEN, Chairman.

"To the Honourable the Congress of New-York."

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be deferred till one or more Members from Richmond County arrive.

Mr. Adrian Bancker produced a Certificate, dated the 30th of January last, and signed by Christian Jacobson, George Barnes, John Poillon, David Latourette, Henry Pertine, Moses Depuy, and Peter Mersereau, of the Committee of Richmond County, whereby it appears that, at a Convention of the Freeholders of said County, for the purpose of choosing Deputies to represent said County in Provincial Congress, Adrian Bancker and Richard Lawrence were, by a majority of votes, duly elected to represent said County, and to serve to the second Tuesday in May next, with full powers to them, or any one of them, to represent said County in Congress, or in the Committee of Safety.

The Committee of War, to whom was referred the Estimate of Peter T. Curtenius of the 23d instant, delivered in their Report of the Articles necessary to be provided by the Commissary for the Troops to be raised in this Colony, viz: 2,432 Frocks for Privates; 128 Frocks for Sergeants; 128 Frocks for Corporals; 32 Frocks for Drummers; 32 Frocks for Fifers—2,752 Frocks to be purchased, if to be had at the price limited by Congress; 2,752 Felt Hats; 2,752 pairs of Yarn Stockings; 2,752 pairs of Shoes; 2,752 Blankets, if to be had; 156 Blankets for Officers; 2,752 Canteens, (wooden ones preferable to tin, if the disproportion of prices is not too great;) 156 Canteens for Officers; 458 Camp Kettles, (two-thirds of this number ought to be Iron Pots;) 1,566 Cartouch Boxes, (1,122 being bought by Mr. Smith;) 1,566 Gun Slings; 2,008 Knapsacks; 2,752 Tomahawks; 32 Drums and Slings; 32 Drum Cases; 32 Fifes; 700 Bill-Hooks, in addition to the 300 in store, will probably be sufficient; 12 Field-Officers' Tents, to have walls, booths, and flies complete; 32 Square or Horsemen's Tents, for Captains; 32 ditto for 64 Lieutenants; 16 ditto for 32 Ensigns; 4 Adjutants' Tents; 4 Quartermasters' Tents; 4 Chaplains' Tents; 4 Surgeons' Tents; 108 Tent Bags; 108 Valices; 458 Soldiers' Tents, allowing 6 men to each Tent; 2,688 Muskets complete. The Officers' Tents ought all to have flies.

The foregoing Report, being read and considered, was unanimously agreed to.

Ordered, That the Secretaries prepare a copy of all of the articles in the said Report mentioned as necessary to be provided, and deliver the same to Colonel Curtenius, the Commissary, who is directed to cause those articles to be provided with all possible despatch.

Colonel William Williams, one of the Deputies from Cumberland County, delivered in a List, Certificate, and Return of the Militia Officers of the First Regiment of Cumberland County, from the rank of Major downward. The said Return is dated the 6th February, 1776, and signed by Benjamin Carpenter, Chairman of the County Committee, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Committee of Safety for the County of Cumberland, }
"Guilford, February 6, 1776."

"In compliance to your order to us directed, dated January the 4th, and good instructions for order and peace, together with the regulations of the Militia, and by order of this Committee, we here send you the list of all the officers that are returned at this time; and they are as follows, to wit:

The said Committee mention that the rest of the Towns have not made returns to them, and request that Major William Williams may be entrusted with blank Commissions to fill up for officers in the scattered Towns in the wilderness.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen, according to said Return.

A Memorial of Joseph Crane, bearing date the 24th instant, setting forth his services in the last campaign, and praying the care of an Artillery Company, was read and filed.

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be postponed until the appointment of Artillery Officers is resumed.

The Congress were informed that General Lee is anxious to have a Store-house, or Magazine, for Military Stores, and that the service must soon suffer if the Bridewell, or some other proper Magazine, is not obtained.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall employ proper workmen, procure necessary materials, and have proper floors and shutters for the windows made, and that building fitted for a Magazine, or Store-house.

Mr. Pettit, the Doorkeeper, informed the Congress that, in obedience to their order, he had summoned Christopher Duyckinck; that the said Christopher Duyckinck called witnesses, and desired him to tell the Congress that he denied the authority of this Congress; that he would not attend until Mr. Sands was expelled the House; that Mr. Sands was an usurper and a coward, and that he would not attend until he was brought by a file of musketeers.

Mr. Hobart moved, and was seconded, that a Letter be wrote to General Lee, requesting him to take Christopher Duyckinck into custody.

By consent, the same was postponed till to-morrow morning.

Mr. Smith, in pursuance of an Order of last Thursday morning, brought in a draft of a Letter relating to the Pay of the Minute-men, which was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

GENTLEMEN: The Continental Congress formerly directed us to raise Minute Companies in this Colony, and established their pay, when called into actual service, to be the same with the pay of the Continental Troops. At the time we were ordered to form these Companies, the pay of a private was fifty-three shillings and four pence per month, and the men were raised on assurance that they were to receive this pay; and although some of the privates have been inlisted since the 19th of January, when the new establishment was formed which reduced the pay to forty shillings per month, yet the officers, not knowing of this reduction, inlisted their privates on assurance that they were to receive the pay of the old establishment. These Companies are now called into actual service, and are in this city. They express great uneasiness at being reduced to the pay of forty shillings per month, when they were promised fifty-three shillings and four pence. We are apprehensive that the service will suffer by this uneasiness; and as it is not in our power to remove the difficulty, we should be glad to take the sense of the Continental Congress, and beg you would transmit it to us as soon as possible. It may be proper to inform you that the officers are content with the pay provided by the first establishment though less than the last establishment.

We are, sirs, your very humble servants.

By order.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Letter from Joseph Robinson, of Jamaica, in Queen's County, dated February 21, 1776, was read and filed. He declines mentioning the names of persons to be evidences against the persons of their County who were apprehended by order of the Continental Congress, and have given in securities. Informs that almost every person in that County can be a witness, and that he will attend on summons.

A Letter from James Duane, Esq., one of the Delegates of this Colony at Congress, dated the 25th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, February 25, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I have this moment received your favour of the 22d instant. The post did not get in till near seven o'clock in the evening, and will be despatched back so soon that I can have no opportunity, in the interim, of conferring with my brethren, and one of the subjects is too important to admit of delay; I therefore beg leave to give you my sentiments upon it. If anything further occurs on a consultation, it will be transmitted the next conveyance.

"General Schuyler some time since proposed to Congress that our Second, or Albany, Battalion should be recruited for the service of Canada, and recommended the former Field-Officers. Of this, Congress approved, and twelve thousand five hundred pounds were forwarded to you for the despatch of that business. The General, in a subsequent letter, informed Congress that the money was sent to him, and seems to be uneasy that the care of raising the battalion should be superadded to the other burdens of his command. He mentions his intentions of applying to the Committee of Albany for assistance on that occasion; but what progress has since been made we do not learn.

"The Congress have also declared their intention of promoting Captain Henry Livingston, (who came express from General Montgomery with the news of the surrender of Montreal,) when an opportunity should offer; but nothing has yet been done in his favour.

"A resolution has since passed for raising four battalions in New-York for its immediate protection and defence, of which you have received a copy. It was followed by another, that, in the appointment of these officers, such as behaved well during the last campaign should be provided for; a copy of which has likewise been forwarded for your direction.

"As New-York was thought to be in a critical state, and no recommendation had appeared from our Committee of Safety of the officers for the four battalions, it occasioned much surprise and uneasiness, and the only apology I was able to make, viz., the expectation of a meeting of the Convention, and the utility of their advice, (which, indeed, depended on my own conjecture,) did not prove satisfactory. It was said that, while everything was done for New-York at the publick expense that could be wished or asked, they neglected their own defence, &c. This produced a resolution that an inquiry should be made into your progress with respect to those battalions. These circumstances, (if my memory has not failed,) are all that have happened on this subject, and which will suffice to convince you that there is no obstruction in the way of your nominating the Field-Officers, agreeable to the recommendation of Congress. You will doubtless see the propriety of despatch, both on account of your security and your reputation—both of which no man can have more sincerely at heart than myself.

"Apprehensive that you might be distressed to maintain the Army now in our capital, from the lowness of your finances, we thought it advisable to obtain a warrant in your favour for thirty-five thousand dollars; which Mr. Lewis received, and will deliver you.

"I should do great injustice to Congress, if I did not assure you that they are disposed to do everything which can be reasonably required for your protection.

"I have the honour to be, with the greatest regard, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

"JAMES DUANE.

"To the Honourable the Convention of New-York."

A Letter from Major-General Lee, dated this day, requesting Money, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, February 27, 1776.

"SIR: As we have here no Continental Paymaster, I am under the necessity of addressing myself to the Provincial Congress to assist me in this article. I have a considerable party to be subsisted, and are now to be furnished with necessaries; two thousand dollars at least are requisite. You will much oblige me, therefore, sir, in endeavouring to procure this sum. If you could make it twenty-five hundred dollars, it would be more convenient to, sir, your most obedient,

"CHARLES LEE.

"To Colonel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

The Congress agreed to give Major-General Lee an order on the Treasurer for twenty-five hundred Dollars. And an order for that purpose was drawn and approved of, in the words following, to wit:

Major-General Lee, by his Letter of this day, having requested of this Congress to advance him the sum of twenty-five hundred Dollars for the subsistence of his party:

Thereupon, Ordered, That Peter Van B. Livingston, Esquire, as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to Major-General Lee twenty-five hundred Dollars, on Continental account.

A draft of a Letter to Major-General Lee was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: Your letter of this morning was received and read. The requisition therein contained was immediately taken into consideration, and the Congress, ever ready to do all in their power to promote the publick service, agreed to advance you twenty-five hundred dollars. An order on our Treasurer for that sum, I have the honour to enclose you.

We are, most respectfully, sir, your very humble servants.

By order.

To Major-General Lee.

Lieutenant-Colonel Ritzema, by request, attended the Congress. Being asked what has been done by Congress relative to the two Regiments ordered to be formed out of the Troops in Canada, Mr. Ritzema says, that there are about nine hundred men in Canada; that they are the remnants of all corps which have been there, and cannot usefully be formed into one or two Regiments; that the Congress have superseded their former order to form two battalions out of those Troops; that Mr. Walker has informed him that General Wooster had attempted to carry the order into execution, and has failed; that he looks upon the officers in Canada as unprovided for, and that they look upon themselves so; that a Committee of the Continental Congress told him that the officers were to be provided for in the new levies in their respective Colonies from whence they proceeded in the service; that on the 15th November, General Montgomery new-arranged the Army, and Mr. Ritzema read a copy of the General's declaration to the Troops, and the terms of new enlistments; that the General by parole appointed the Field-Officers. That there remains in the whole about fifteen hundred stand of arms—about five hundred belonged to this Colony; that about one hundred and fifty he left in three boxes in his rooms in Montreal; that the New-England Troops carried off with them about fifteen hundred muskets, taken at St. John's; and that Colonel Warner's party carried off all their arms. Lieutenant-Colonel Ritzema then gave a particular account of all the officers from this Colony now in Canada.

Mr. Sands informed Congress that Mr. John Murray had a Sloop, with Pig-Mettle, seized by Captain Vandeput, and requests permission to go on board of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon and the Ship Asia, to endeavour to regain his property.

Ordered, That Mr. John Murray be permitted to go on board of the Dutchess of Gordon and his Majesty's Ship Asia.

To Mr. Elias Nixen, Port-Master.

Mr. Nicholas Low requests a permit to ship Flaxseed and Lumber on board of the Ship Polly, Captain Thomas Kennedy Master, to be exported to Cork, in Ireland, in returns for stores imported.

Ordered, That Mr. Low be permitted to load Flaxseed and Lumber on board of the Ship Polly, Captain Thomas Kennedy Master, to the amount of eight hundred and ninety-six Pounds nine Pence.

Die Luna, 4 ho. P. M., February 27, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President, (say Ten Broeck.)

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel Lott, Mr. Prince, Mr. Beekman, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Roosevelt, Captain Denning, Mr. Van Zandt.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Colonel Nicoll, Mr. A. Yates, Mr. Gansevoort.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Gelston.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Mr. Herring, Colonel Allison, Mr. Clowes.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Dewitt, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on duty.)

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel P. Ten Broeck, Mr. Schenck.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

Mr. Roosevelt, from the Committee appointed to report a plan for the emission of fifty-five thousand Pounds, in Provincial Paper Bills of different denominations, of Dollars and Shillings, delivered in the Report of the said Committee; which was read, and ordered to remain for further consideration.

Jabez Fredericks and Jacob Andrews, inhabitants of Massachusetts-Bay, being at the door, sent in Certificates of Colonel Howe and Colonel P. Henry, that they have been taken prisoners by Lord Dunmore and escaped, and recommending them for assistance to return to their places of abode. They also sent in a Pass from Major-General Lee; and requested assistance.

Ordered, That Peter Van B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Jabez Fredericks and Jacob Andrews, inhabitants of Massachusetts-Bay, who have been taken prisoners by Lord Dunmore, and made their escape, the sum of forty Shillings, to assist them on their journey to their respective places of abode.

Captain Rutgers informed the Congress that Christopher Duyckinck is at the door, and desires admittance.

Ordered, That he be admitted.

Christopher Duyckinck admitted, says, that with reluctance he disobeyed the summons of this Congress yesterday evening; and repeated a long account of the controversy between Mr. Sands and himself. Christopher Duyckinck was desired to withdraw.

The Congress took the case of the insult offered to this Congress into consideration, and came to a determination in the words following, to wit:

This Congress is of opinion that Christopher Duyckinck is guilty of a contempt of this Congress, in the message he sent by their Doorkeeper, for which he ought to ask the pardon of this Congress, and receive a reprimand from the Chair. And although this Congress would not interfere in the trial of private property, or in demanding satisfaction for a private injury, yet they are of opinion that the said Christopher Duyckinck has acted very wrong in taking and detaining from Mr. Sands his watch; and do recommend it to him to return the same to him without delay.

Christopher Duyckinck being called in, the first part of the opinion of Congress was read to him; and he asked pardon of the Congress for the contempt of which he was guilty.

The second part of the opinion and recommendation were then read to the said Christopher Duyckinck; whereupon he requested a copy of the entry. A copy whereof was certified and delivered to him.

The Congress then proceeded to consider of, and determine on proper persons to be recommended to the Continental Congress for Field-Officers of the four Regiments now raising in this Colony, agreeable to the Resolutions of the Continental Congress; and after some time spent, and progress made therein, the further consideration thereof is postponed till to-morrow.

A Letter from James Lent, Chairman of the Orangetown Committee, was read and filed. He thereby returns Abraham David Blauvelt, Second Major of the Orangetown Regiment of Militia; and requesting a blank Commission for an Ensign to be chosen in Johannes Jacobus Blauvelt's Company.

Ordered, That the Commission issue for the said Abraham David Blauvelt as Major; and that the blank Commission for an Ensign be sent.

Colonel Joseph Drake informed Congress that Stephen Sneden, who was chosen Captain of a Company of Militia in East-Chester District, had refused to accept the Commission, by which means new Commissions were necessary for the whole Company; and requested that blank Commissions may be sent for that purpose. The Congress agrees to his request.

And Ordered, That blank Commissions be delivered to Colonel Drake for that Company.

A Letter from Robert Hempstead, Chairman of the Committee at Southold, in Suffolk County, dated the 23d instant, was read and filed. They thereby return certain persons elected officers; but the Return being not properly formal:

“Committee-Chamber, New-York, February 27, 1776.

“The sub-Committee, appointed by the General Committee to make inquiry what quantity of salt remained in this city, reported that there are twenty thousand seven hundred bushels for sale.

The Congress is of opinion that some allowance ought to be made to those Inhabitants.

And Ordered, That the Members from King's County be a Committee to inquire into the circumstances of the quartering those Troops; the trouble to the Inhabitants; and what rewards will be adequate and sufficient; and report with all convenient speed.

Mr. Yates and Mr. Denning, the Committee appointed to apply to, and treat with, John Delancey for the use of the House of James Delancey for an Hospital, informed the Congress that Mr. John Delancey is attending at the door, and requests to be heard. Mr. John Delancey was admitted and heard. He was informed that Congress intended to make compensation for the House he occupies, if necessity cause it to be taken for an Hospital; that he shall have the earliest information when that necessity is known; and that, if another House suitable for that purpose can be obtained, that House will probably be spared.

Mr. Delancey withdrew.

Ordered, That Mr. Yates and Mr. Denning be a Committee to inquire for, and examine and procure, one or more proper House or Houses for an Hospital, and to treat with the Owners or Inhabitants thereof, and agree for the same.

The Congress then proceeded to make further progress in nominating proper persons to be recommended to the Continental Congress as Field-Officers for the Regiments raising in this Colony; and finished their arrangement thereof; which will be inserted in the Minutes of this afternoon; and General Ten Broeck and Mr. Thomas Smith are appointed a Committee to prepare and report a draft of a Letter to the Continental Congress, and another to the Delegates of this Colony, to accompany the same.

The Officers proposed for Artillery Companies in this Colony having, by direction from this Congress, been desired to attend and be examined by Captain Smith, the Engineer, Colonel McDougall delivered in a Certificate, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“February 26, 1776.

“Agreeable to desire of Colonel McDougall, we have examined Mr. James Moore, and think him fit for a Captain-Lieutenant of Artillery.

“WILLIAM SMITH, Chief Engineer.

“S. BADLAM, Captain of Artillery.”

The said Certificate being satisfactory to this Congress:

Ordered, That Mr. James Moore be appointed, and he is hereby appointed, Captain-Lieutenant of a Company of Artillery in this Colony.

Colonel Samuel Drake, of the Minute Regiment from the County of Westchester, attending at the door, was admitted. He informed the Congress that four months, the time for which many of his men had enlisted, was fully expired, and that they demanded their pay; that, if he is enabled to pay them, many of them may probably enlist anew. As Colonel Drake has not a Muster-Roll of his Regiment with him, the Congress agreed to advance him three hundred Pounds, on account.

Thereupon Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Colonel Samuel Drake the sum of three hundred Pounds, on account of the pay of his Regiment of Minutemen, and take Colonel Drake's receipt for the same.

Colonel Lott informed the Congress that, by order of the Committee of Safety, he had purchased a large quantity of Bread; that the Bakers of whom he purchased desire that it may be removed; and that he is in advance for the purchase of said Bread; and requested some money on account.

Ordered, That Colonel Lott procure a Store, and have the said Bread stored therein; and the Congress approves of the Stores of Mr. V. Ranst, on Cowfoot-Hill, for that purpose.

And Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to Colonel A. Lott the sum of five hundred Pounds, on account, in part of the price of the Bread purchased by order of the Committee of Safety, and take a receipt for the same.

Mr. Smith, according to order, reported a draft of a Letter to the Continental Congress, to cover the list of gentlemen recommended for Field-Officers of the four Battalions raising in this Colony; which was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 28, 1776.

SIR: In obedience to the resolution of Congress, we have now the honour to transmit a list of gentlemen nominated by us as Field-Officers for the four battalions ordered to be raised for the defence of this Colony.

In this nomination we have endeavoured to pay due attention to the merits of those officers who served in the last campaign, and are willing to continue in the service. To these we have added a number of gentlemen who now tender their services to their country. As soon as the Field-Officers are fixed by Congress, we beg their commissions may be forwarded. The other officers are appointed, and are recruiting in different parts of this Colony.

It may not be improper to mention that some of the Captains and subalterns who served in our regiments last year are now in Canada. Those gentlemen we have not been able to provide for in the four battalions now raising, as we were uncertain when they would return, or whether they were not provided for in the Canada Regiments. We were apprehensive, if we provided for them in our battalions, it might impede the raising the troops, and thereby injure the service. In justice to those gentlemen, we thought it our duty to mention this, and to enclose a list of their names; and doubt not but that their services will be duly considered by Congress, and that proper provision will be made for them, if they are not already provided for.

We have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servants. By order.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

The gentlemen nominated out of which to elect Field-Officers for the four Regiments to be raised for the defence of this Colony, are those that follow, viz:

For Colonels.—Alexander McDougall, James Clinton, Rudolphus Ritzema, Peter Yates, Cornelius D. Wynkoop, Philip Cortlandt, John Lasher, Seth Warner.

For Lieutenant-Colonels.—Herman Zedtwitz, Peter Gansvoort, Jun., Barnabas Tuihill, Henry G. Livingston, Peter P. Schuyler, John Hathorn, Egbert Dumont, Gouverneur Morris.

For Majors.—Frederick Van Weisenfels, John Fisher, Daniel Griffin, Henry B. Livingston, Marinus Willett, Cornelius Van Dyck, John Nicolson, Joseph Benedict.

A draft of a Letter to the Delegates of this Colony, on the subject of the appointment of Officers, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have, by this conveyance, transmitted to Congress a list of the Field-Officers nominated by us for the four battalions intended to be raised in this Colony; and in order to show that we have paid a proper attention to those gentlemen who served in the last campaign, we have enclosed a state of the former regiments raised in this Colony, that you may produce it in case it should be called for by the Continental Congress.

We are, with esteem, gentlemen, yours, &c., &c.

By order.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

Ordered, That copies of the said two Letters be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.*

A Letter from Major-General Schuyler, dated the 21st instant, requesting Arms, Clothing, Blankets, Pitch, Turpentine, and Oakum, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, February 21, 1776.

"SIR: Mr. McKesson's letter, by your order, enclosing the resolutions of Congress of the 5th instant, I yesterday received.

*A Letter was also written to Mr. Duane, one of the Delegates, in answer to the fifth paragraph of his Letter to the Provincial Congress, dated February 25:—

IN PROVINCIAL CONGRESS, New-York, February 28, 1776.

SIR: Should anything that follows enable you to answer any matters objected to the care or conduct of the present Representatives of this Colony, it will apologise for my giving the trouble of this narrative.

On the 15th of January, the resolutions of Congress, that the troops in Canada should be formed into a regiment, and to raise a regiment for the service in Canada, with the gentlemen of Albany for Field-Officers, came to hand. On the next day a copy was forwarded to General Schuyler. Some time after, the Committee of Safety were informed that General Schuyler had a prior copy of that resolve, and had issued warrants. Sundry resolutions of Congress, passed at different times, from the 8th to the 20th of January, inclusive, among which is the direction for raising four regiments, came to hand on the 23d, in the evening; and copies were that night prepared, and next morning despatched to General Schuyler. The Committee of Safety, few in number, could not fix on proper persons for officers in each County, nor determine the numbers the respective Counties would probably raise, and was uncertain. To wait the meeting of the Convention, would cause great delay. Therefore, as fast as they could be prepared, letters were despatched to the County Committees, directing them, with the advice of the County Deputies, where it could be obtained, to recommend proper officers, and report the number of men who could be raised for the service in their respective Counties; and on the 27th the terms of pay, &c., instructions for enlisting, and warrants for the officers, were printed and ready.

On the 31st of January the twelve thousand five hundred dollars passed into the Colony Treasury. The Committee, having had the information above-mentioned as to General Schuyler's warrants, and for many reasons, (exclusive of economy,) being of opinion that the regiment would be most easily raised in the northern parts of the Colony, on the 6th of February despatched the money for that regiment to General Schuyler. On the 12th of February, a letter was received from the General, dated on the 6th, mentioning the companies he had ordered to be raised for garrisoning Crown-Point, Ticonderoga, Fort George, &c., and that the Committee would probably receive instructions from Congress that they should form part of that regiment; and soon after, the resolve of Congress of the 5th February, directing the General to complete the appointments in that regiment, came to hand. From this state of facts, sir, you will see that only three weeks elapsed from the first notice received by the Committee about Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment until it was taken out of their hands. They would willingly undertake any duty to relieve General Schuyler; but, few in number, at a great distance, in the midst of winter, without any member from Albany, or the northern parts of the Colony, (in which alone a regiment for those gentlemen could be raised,) they had nothing in their power.

The season of the year, the distance, and the assembling County Committees, required time for answers. On the 15th of February, the Convention being assembled, amongst other things, resolved that a sufficient number of officers should be appointed in each County to command the men to be raised in the same; and that, in the appointment of such officers, those who served their much-injured country in the last campaign ought to have the preference.

The Convention considered the returns of those which had made returns; apportioned the four regiments; and issued warrants to the officers, or despatched them, with the said resolves, to the County Committees. On the 22d instant was received the resolution of Congress of the 15th, that such of the officers who served faithfully in Canada the last campaign as are willing to continue there, be preferred in the new levies of the Colony of New-York to others.

The resolution for forming two regiments of the troops in Canada (however difficult to be executed) remained in full force, and not superseded: and this occasioned the letter of the 22d from the Provincial Congress, to know who of them were provided for before they appointed Field-Officers.

Colonel McDougall on the spot in a constant tour of duty, and Lieutenant-Colonel Cortlandt, in Westchester, ready when required, allowed the more time to determine. I expect the officers will, in some places, recruit fast; and, should a few of them fail, some gentlemen have offered full companies, for whom there are at present no vacancy.

"Measures are taken to complete Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment, and I hope, with the assistance which the Committee of this City and County affords me, that it will be speedily accomplished. But I am distressed in the highest degree for arms, clothing, blankets, and every other necessary. I must therefore entreat that those things may be sent up the soonest possible, together with one hundred barrels of pitch, ten of turpentine, and two tons of oakum. I wish these things to be put on board of a vessel, and sent up as soon as possible. I suppose the river will soon be open.

"Captain Horton, of the Fourth Regiment, is willing to continue in the service; so is Captain Henry B. Livingston. I wish the latter could be promoted, out of respect to his family as well as his own merit.

"I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To the President of the New-York Congress."

Thereupon, Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius purchase immediately, viz.: One hundred barrels of Pitch, ten barrels of Turpentine, and two tons of Oakum, and have them put on board of the first Sloop for Albany, directed to Walter Livingston, Esq., or his Deputy.

A Letter from Robert Boyd, dated at New-Windsor, the 23d instant, was read and filed. He therein informs that he has got the best Gunsmith Shop in the Colonies; that he finds it difficult to get workmen; that he will deliver Arms for the publick money he received; and that he is inclined to think he shall not proceed further on his old contract.

A Petition of Azor Betts was read and filed. A Certificate, or endorsement thereon, signed by William Ellsworth, Chairman of the Committee of Kingston, was also read and filed. The said Azor Betts begs leave to return to a sense of his duty to his country, and requests forgiveness and protection. The said certificate mentions that he had offered to sign a recantation, and make oath for his future good behaviour.

Ordered, That the Commissions for three Companies, signed and attested, and otherwise blank, be delivered to Colonel John Williams, to be transmitted to the said County Committee.

Francis Lewis, Esq., from the Continental Congress, came into Congress, and informed them that a quantity of Gunpowder at Brunswick is to be forwarded to General Washington. That he had given order to have it forwarded to Paulus-Hook.

Mr. King, who came with the Powder, came into Congress. Mr. Lewis and Mr. King informed that there was great difficulty in obtaining Wagons, and that Mr. Dennis was of opinion that it might be safely sent by water to Brown's Ferry.

This Congress is of opinion that Mr. King should return and get the Powder forwarded, and that this Congress should not give any order about the Powder in Jersey, until it arrives at Paulus-Hook.

Ordered, That Mr. John Van Cortlandt and Mr. Prince be a Committee to procure Wagons to carry the said Powder forward.

The Members were charged from the Chair to keep this matter about the Gunpowder secret.

Niles Christian left England the 2d or 3d of November, eleven weeks ago; was chief Mate of the Ship Harriet, sailed this day for Boston; that no other vessel sailed with them; no Troops left England when he sailed. That some transports were gone to Ireland, and sixty or seventy transports were at Deptford, to go to Ireland. That they had eighty hogs on board, (thirty are now alive,) one hundred and forty bushels of potatoes, one hundred and four chaldrons of coal, and a quantity of porter and a parcel of onions. That the Troops from Ireland are to go to Boston. That General Gage was arrived, and was blamed for leaving Boston. That the people of London are in general in favour of America. That in Ireland they have pressed recruits; that he did not hear of any recruiting in England. Trade dull; the American ships laid up. Did not hear of any Commissioners coming over. That he was bred at Charlestown, Massachusetts. That the Pilots frequently came on shore for fowls. That their ship has not received any supply of provisions or flour, except a few fowls. That the Captain's order was not to any particular port, but to any place where the Army is.

The said Niles Christian requested a pass to go to Cambridge.

Thereupon, a Passport was given to him in the words following:

The bearer hereof, Niles Christian, late Mate of the transport Ship Harriet, who has escaped from the said ship, and whose former stated place of residence was at Charlestown, Massachusetts-Bay, is hereby permitted to pass to Cambridge, in Massachusetts-Bay.

Joseph Booth, attending at the door, sent in a Certificate, dated 26th instant, from the Committee of Correspondence for Newtown, in Fairfield County, certified by Caleb Baldwin, Clerk of the said Committee, which was read. It is thereby certified that Joseph Booth, the bearer, had lately served his country as a faithful friend and soldier in the Northern Army, under the command of General Schuyler. That he had suffered by the stoppage of his cattle at Bedford, on the way to New-York market; that he is the owner of the said cattle, and that the said Committee take pleasure in recommending him as a friend to his country.

The Congress took the same into consideration, and came to the following determination, to wit:

Whereas a large supply of fresh Provisions will be required for the Continental Army in and near the City of New-York:

Resolved and Ordered, That no obstruction whatsoever be given to any person or persons in passing and repassing through any of the Counties in this Colony with fat Cattle, Sheep, Hogs, or any kind of Provisions, for the purpose of supplying the Inhabitants of the said City of New-York, or the Continental Army in and near the said City, unless such person or persons shall have been adjudged to be, or held up as inimical to this country.

A Certificate was also given to the said Joseph Booth, in the words following, to wit:

Ordered, That the bearer hereof, Joseph Booth, be permitted to pass with his drove of Cattle to the City of New-York.

George Cook sent into Congress a Certificate, or Receipt, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Received, New-York, February 28, 1776, of Mr. George Cook, fifty Pouches and fifty Bayonet Belts; to the best of my judgment, in good order.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

Captain Smith, the Engineer, came to Congress, and was admitted. He reported that, by order of General Lee, he had been up to the Highlands, and surveyed the ground at Pooplopen's Kill. That the ground is staked out. That he will send a draft of the fortification intended to be erected to the Commissioners, as soon as possible. That he thinks the fort may be built at an easy expense, as wood and fascines are handy; as to embrasures, and the number of cannon requisite, he would send up a draft for that purpose. That a fort is laid out about five hundred yards to the eastward of Fort Constitution, on a commanding situation, commanding the passage up and down the river, and scours the West-Point. Between that and the line which is now laid out at Constitution Fort, is a very commanding height, on which ought to be placed a Redoubt, to prevent the works being enfiladed. To the southward, at the distance of about seventeen hundred yards, is laid out a fort on a very commanding height, which will command the northern and western passage, of which drafts will be sent up. These forts are recommended to be built of sods and fascines, which nature has plentifully supplied at Pooplopen's Kill. At Fort Constitution is a salt-marsh meadow, which will supply sods necessary to build forts at that spot. That these works may be erected without Masons or Carpenters, the platforms excepted.

The Town-Major at the door, was admitted. He informed Congress that Rynier Van Hoosen was taken, and is in custody.

Ordered, That he be reported to General Lee.

The Report of the Committee for the emission of fifty-five thousand Pounds, according to the Order of the Day, was taken into consideration, and read and amended. And, being again read, paragraph by paragraph, and many amendments made and unanimously agreed to, it was ordered to be taken into further consideration to-morrow.

The Congress are informed that Captain Smith, the Engineer, would with pleasure, if commanded, tarry on duty in this Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Scott and Mr. Hobart be a Committee to wait on General Lee, and to request that Captain Smith, the Engineer, may be ordered to remain on duty for some time in this Colony.

A Resolution of the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey, made the 28th day of February, repealing their late embargo on Provisions from that Colony to this City, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Provincial Congress, February 28, 1776.

"Whereas the late Resolution of this Congress, prohibiting the export of Provisions and Produce from this Colony to New-York, was founded on information that the Ships-of-War in New-York made captures of vessels so laden; and whereas the Congress are fully satisfied that the reason of making said prohibition no longer subsists:

"It is therefore Resolved unanimously, That the Resolution of this Congress, made the 21st day of this instant, February, prohibiting the export of Provisions and Produce from this Colony to the City of New-York, be, and is hereby repealed.

"A true copy from the Minutes:

"WILLIAM PATERSON, Secretary.

"Copy from the original: H. REMSEN."

A Letter from Colonel Henry Remsen, dated at Newark, 29th February, informing of part of the Continental Powder intended for Cambridge being arrived at Newark, was read.

The Committee of this Congress appointed to prepare Wagons here to carry it to Cambridge, reported that Wagons stand ready to receive it as fast as it arrives here.

Ordered, That Colonel Remsen's Letter be committed to Mr. Joseph Hallett, one of the Members of this Congress. That he be authorized, and is hereby authorized, to take such methods, and give such directions for the forwarding thereof to this City, as he shall think proper or most safe, and without any further information to be given to this Congress, until he has the same safe in this City.

A Letter from Colonel Curtenius, on the subject of a demand of the Hospital stores in his custody, and sundry other matters, were read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"February 24, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your orders, I desired Mr. Hughes to show me by what authority he demanded the stores taken out of the lower Barracks; upon which he showed me a recommendation in his favour from the Congress of this Province to the Continental Congress; which I thought was not a sufficient authority for me to deliver up the stores. Since which he has been at my house, and told me that, if I would not deliver them to him, the General would send a file of soldiers to take them. I should be glad to know how to act, the General being impatient to have an answer.

"Enclosed are three accounts for rations due to Captains Hulbert, Griffin, Grenell, and their officers, amounting to one hundred and seventy-nine pounds and seven shillings; which sum they demand of me. Please to let me know whether I must pay them. The rations are rather charged under than over the mark. Lieutenant Marvin also delivered me a Doctor's bill, amounting to thirty-two shillings, which was for medicines administered to him while he lay at the east end of Long-Island, where there was no Regimental Surgeon. I have purchased three thousand bushels of salt, out of the Ship Lady Gage, to go up to Albany. Should be glad to have the advice of Congress how to get it out of the Kills.

"Please return the accounts by the Secretary.

"I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

"PETER T. CURTENIUS."

Thereupon a draft of a Letter to Major-General Lee was prepared by one of the Secretaries, and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, February 24, 1776.

SIR: We are informed by a letter from Colonel Curtenius, our Commissary, that Mr. Hughes has demanded of him (by your command, as he says) certain Hospital stores in his custody by our order, for the use of a General Hospital.

We beg leave to inform you, sir, that those stores were taken into the care and direction of the Congress of this Colony the last summer, by order of the honourable the Continental Congress. Since that time they have been under continual guard by our directions, and that of one company at least every night, and the keys thereof in the custody of our Commissary.

Necessity obliged us, though with reluctance, lately to apply some part of those stores to cover straw beds for the troops. With pleasure we lately ordered out a small part of them for the use of a few indisposed troops.

Should those stores be applied to any other use than that to which they have been devoted, give us leave to say, that it is scarcely in the power of the Continent to supply an Hospital.

To you, sir, we need not mention the consequences. Add to this, sir, we look upon ourselves responsible for them to the Continental Congress, and that by their own order in the premises; and under this apprehension we have hitherto acted.

We are, respectfully, sir, your very humble servants.

By order.

To Major-General Lee.

Mr. William Williams, one of the Deputies from Cumberland County, delivered in a Letter or Return of Field-Officers, recommended by the County Committee of Cumberland County, dated the 1st day of February last, signed Benjamin Carpenter, Chairman; which was read and filed.*

Thereupon, Ordered, That Commissions issue to the *CUMBERLAND COUNTY, WESTMINSTER, February 1, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: We have, with peculiar pleasure, received the letter from the Chairman of the honourable Committee of Safety for the Province of New-York, recommending peace, harmony, and unanimity through the County, in nominating the Field-Officers for the Lower Regiment in said County. At a pretty full meeting of the Committee of Safety for this County, after mature consultation and deliberation upon the matter, we have (with submission to the honourable Congress) nominated sundry gentlemen to be commissioned as Field-Officers in the Lower Regiment. And that Major Hunt's character should not be lessened in the view of the honourable Congress, we must inform you that the said Hunt entirely refuses to accept a commission in the lower department.

We hope the dissensions and animosities which have heretofore been so prevalent in the County will, in a great measure, for the future, subside.

With grateful acknowledgments, we return you our most sincere thanks for the favourable notice you have hitherto expressed towards us, and should be extremely glad for the like future favours. Our nomination for Field-Officers for the Lower Regiment is as follows: Major William Williams, First Colonel; Benjamin Carpenter, Esq., Second Colonel; Oliver Lovel, Esq., First Major; Abijah Lovejoy, Second Major; Samuel Minor, Jun., Adjutant; Samuel Fletcher, Quartermaster.

Honoured sir, by forwarding commissions to the above gentlemen as speedily as possible, we think it will give pretty general satisfaction to the County. And, wishing the Colony of New-York all imaginable peace, harmony, and concord, we subscribe ourselves, with the greatest respect, your most obedient humble servants, &c.

By order of the County Committee:

BENJAMIN CARPENTER, Chairman.

To the Honourable President of the Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York. To be communicated to said Congress.

gentlemen recommended by the County Committee for Officers of the lower Regiment of Cumberland County, as follows, to wit: To William Williams, Esq., as Colonel; to Benjamin Carpenter, Esq., as Lieutenant-Colonel; to Oliver Lovel, Esq., as First Major; to Abijah Lovejoy, Esq., as Second Major; to Samuel Minor, Jun., Gentleman, as Adjutant, and to Samuel Fletcher, Gentleman, as Quartermaster of said Regiment.

A Letter from the Committee of Cumberland County, signed by Benjamin Carpenter, their Chairman, dated the 2d day of February last, delivered to the President by Major William Williams, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Cumberland County, Westminster, February 2, 1776.

"SIR: As this is an infant County, (though heartily disposed in the cause of American liberty,) we are at present unable to furnish our Delegate with the cash which, perhaps, may be absolutely necessary to supply his present necessities. The County is about raising a tax, which is already voted by the County Committee, and we are determined to raise said tax as quick as we possibly can; therefore should be exceeding glad, under our present necessities, that our Delegate (Major William Williams) might receive out of the Provincial Treasury the sum of forty pounds, New-York currency.

"We hope soon to be able to remit said sum of forty pounds to the honourable Provincial Congress, at New-York. The Congress complying with our request will much oblige your most obedient servants, &c.

"By order of the Committee of Safety for Cumberland County:

"BENJAMIN CARPENTER, Chairman.

A Letter from William Bedlow, Jonathan Lawrence, and Thomas Palmer, at the Fortifications in the Highlands, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Fort Constitution, February 29, 1776.

“GENTLEMEN: We have received the order of the Continental Congress by Messrs. Palmer and Livingston, accompanied with Colonel Smith the Engineer, who has planned the fortifications agreeable to the said order, and much to our satisfaction; and you may be assured that nothing shall be wanting on our part to prosecute the same. But in order to give the troops stationed here (and who are expected to perform the labourers' work) better spirits, we beg leave you would enable us to give them such further allowance of provisions to each labourer as we may see necessary, their present allowance being really too small for labouring men.

*To the Honourable the Representatives of the Colony of New-York, in Provincial Convention assembled.
The Memorial and Petition of BENJAMIN CURTIS, of the City of New-York, humbly sheweth:

That your Memorialist has studied physick and surgery in a regular way; and that, having an inclination to serve his country in the capacity of a Surgeon in the Army, he has submitted to an examination by Doctors Jones and Bard, from whom he has received a certificate in the following words:

“This is to certify that we, the subscribers, have carefully and strictly examined Mr. Benjamin Curtis, respecting his knowledge in physick and surgery, and that we find him well acquainted with the principles of his profession, and very properly qualified to act as Surgeon of a Regiment.

“In testimony of which, we have with pleasure given him this certificate. Dated in New-York, the 29th day of February, 1776.”

That having such testimonials of his ability in his profession, he flatters himself he shall be favoured with the attention of the Convention; and therefore your Petitioner prays that he may be appointed Surgeon to a Regiment. And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

BENJAMIN CURTIS.

New-York, March 1, 1776.

“We would also beg leave to represent to you, that, as the works now laid out are extensive and at seven miles distance from each other, four Commissioners (two at Pooplopen's Kill and two at this post) will be necessary, they acting jointly at all the works. And if your honourable House should be of the same sentiment, that we may have one more added to our present number, we would presume to recommend Mr. Gilbert Livingston as a gentleman from whose abilities the publick service would be benefited up here.

“We are, gentlemen, with respect, your humble servants,

“WILLIAM BEDLOW,

“JONATHAN LAWRENCE,

“THOMAS PALMER.

“To the Honourable Provincial Congress for New-York.”

Messrs. Scott and Hobart returned from Major-General Lee, and reported that he consents that Captain Smith, the Engineer, shall remain in this Colony for some time; that General Lee has not an immediate occasion for the wagons mentioned this morning; and that he thanks Congress for the offer of cash to furnish necessaries, and will call on them if he shall have occasion.

The Congress then took into consideration the Resolutions of the Continental Congress of the 15th of February, relating to the Fortifications in the Highlands, and the Letter from the Commissioners of the 29th February last; and, after a considerable time spent therein, the Congress came to the following determination, to wit:

Ordered, That the Commissioners for building the Fortifications in the Highlands be, and they are hereby, authorized to employ Vessels for quartering the Troops to build the Fort at Pooplopen's Kill, until Barracks are built; and, also, that they be authorized to call in as many of the Minute-men of Colonel Palmer's Regiment as can be employed there; and in case they cannot get a sufficient number of Minute-men, to order as many of the Continental Troops, raised in the Counties of Orange, Ulster, Westchester, and Dutchess, to that post, as will be necessary to expedite the said works.

Ordered, further, That such Continental Troops as may be called and employed at the said works, be continued there until the further order of the Continental or this Congress, the Committee of Safety, or the commanding Officer of the Continental Troops in this Department.

And on considering the Letter from the said Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands:

Resolved and Ordered, That Gilbert Livingston, Esq., be, and he is hereby, appointed an additional Commissioner to superintend the building of the said Fortifications in the Highlands.

Mr. Hobart moved, and was seconded by Mr. Yates, that a Committee be appointed to draw and report a Plan of an Election for a new Provincial Congress.

Ordered, That Mr. Scott, Mr. Hobart, and Mr. Yates, be a Committee for that purpose.

Elias Nixen, the Port-Master, at the door, was admitted. He informed the Congress that the Officer of the Port-Guard had seized and taken two servants of Governour Tryon, who came ashore in a boat, with a quantity of linen to be washed. That he had informed the Officer of the Guard that it was not contrary to the directions of this Congress for persons to come on shore from Governour Tryon's Ship; that the Officer persisting that it was agreeable to his orders from the General, he prevailed on him to send up to the General. The Officer said the General ordered that they should not be discharged; and that the said two servants were sent to the Guard-House, and in custody.

The Port-Master further informs that his office is become useless; that the Guards have fired at several boats this day; that the General told him last night that no Provisions should go to the Governour until the occasion of his having stopped a large quantity of Flour was cleared up, and that he has seen the Governour's two servants put into the Guard-House.

A Memorial of Robert Robinson and Michael Price, setting forth the particular hardships of their case, was read and filed. They therein set forth that, having been held up to their country for their conduct in a breach of a Resolution of the Continental Congress, they have been for a long time excluded from all business; that they are sincerely penitent for their offence; that they are willing in this distressed season of the year to give fifty pounds for the use of the poor, and pray to be restored to their former standing.

A Memorial of sundry respectable Merchants, and other inhabitants, on behalf of the said Robinson and Price, was also read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Memorials be referred to Colonel Lott, Mr. Gansevoort, and Mr. Adrian Rutgers, as a Committee to report thereon, and that they report with all convenient speed.

Two Orders from General Lee to the Barrackmaster, for ten Beds, for the use of some sick Soldiers in Colonel Ward's Regiment, and for twenty Iron Kettles, for Ward's Regiment, were read and filed.*

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius deliver to Mr. Garret Roorback, the Barrackmaster, ten Covers for Straw Beds for the use of some sick Soldiers in Ward's Regiment, and at the special request of Major-General Lee.

The Members of King's County, who were appointed a Committee for that purpose, delivered in their Report; which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee to inspect with regard to Billeting of Troops in King's County, do report: That the inhabitants of King's County cannot keep officers at less than seven shillings per week for a room, and the following necessities, allowing two officers to a room; and privates at one shilling and four pence: The officers and men to be supplied with the following articles, to wit: cribs, bed-cases, bolsters, pots, trammels, tongs and shovels, andirons, axes, candlesticks, benches, buckets, firewood, candles, straw, house-room.

*HEAD-QUARTERS, February 29, 1776.—SIR: You are to supply Colonel Ward's Regiment with a dozen beds and twenty kettles.

CHARLES LEE, Major-General.

To the Commissary of Stores, or the Barrackmaster.

HEAD-QUARTERS, March 1, 1776.—SIR: You will much oblige me in furnishing the regiment of Ward with ten beds, which are absolutely necessary for the sick. To say the truth, it is scandalous that so many applications should be made in vain for such a trifle as ten beds. I must, therefore, once more desire that they may be furnished without delay.

I am, sir, yours,

CHARLES LEE, Major-General.

To Mr. Roorback, Barrackmaster.

NEW-YORK, March 1, 1776.—SIR: As my appointment to the office of Barrackmaster extends only to the City and County of New-York, I have it not in my power to comply with your Excellency's requisition in regard to the supply of troops in another County, unless a special order be obtained for that purpose from the Congress.

I am, respectfully, your Excellency's most humble servant,

GARRET ROORBACK, Barrackmaster.

To His Excellency Major-General Lee.

The Congress are of opinion that the allowance reported is moderate and reasonable, and agrees with their Committee in their said Report.

An Order from Mr. Jonathan Lawrence, one of the Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands, was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Fort Constitution, February 28, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Please to pay unto Mr. John Vanderbilt, or order, fifty pounds, it being part of my pay as Commissioner of Fortifications, and for which his receipt will be acknowledged by, gentlemen, your humble servant,

"JONATHAN LAWRENCE.

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress of New-York."

Ordered, That Peter Van B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Mr. John Vanderbilt, or his order, the sum of fifty Pounds, on account of the pay due to Mr. Jonathan Lawrence, as one of the Commissioners employed in erecting the Fortifications in the Highlands, and take his receipt for the same.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that Captain James Smith has the care and charge of the Sloop or Vessel which Captain Rutgers and himself were directed by this Congress to purchase and arm; that Captain Smith has had sundry disbursements in that matter; and also that Wages are due to the Men and Mariners employed in and about the said Sloop; that Captain Smith has occasion for about fifty Pounds on account.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Captain James Smith the sum of fifty Pounds, on account of Wages for the Seamen, Mariners, and Marines, belonging to the Sloop Schuyler, now under his command, and the expenses and disbursements of the said James Smith, for and on account of the said armed Sloop and her arms and appurtenances.

A Letter from the Committee of Richmond County was read and filed. They inform that Isaac Decker and Mimie Burger are returned to Richmond County, from the Jail of the Borough of Elizabeth; and that, on the 28th February, the day of the date of the postscript of the said Letter, they had received from Colonel Thomas the charges against the said Decker, Burger, and Richard Conner.

Information having been given to this Congress, by several Members, that the Sentries placed near the wharves frequently fired at Boats and Sloops, with the inhabitants of this and the neighbouring Colonies, as they are going out and coming into the docks and slips, whereby the persons on board are in danger of losing their lives. That the masters of some of those very Boats or Sloops had obtained passes before they attempted to go out.

Information was also given to this Congress yesterday evening, and by some Members this day, that all communication with, and the supplies of necessary provision to, the Ships-of-War and Governour Tryon's Ship in the harbour or in the bays near this City, is interdicted; and Mr. Roosevelt informed the Congress that Colonel Waterbury has lately declared that the other United Colonies ought to crush this Colony of New-York; and that Mr. Isaac Sears had spoken of this Congress and the General Committee of the City of New-York in the most harsh, disrespectful, and abusive terms, many of which were mentioned by Mr. Roosevelt:

On motion by Mr. Gansevoort,

Ordered, That Mr. Scott, Mr. Hobart, and Mr. Gansevoort be a Committee to wait on Major-General Lee, without delay, and request of him the reason of his interdicting the communication between this City and the Ships-of-War and Governour Tryon's Ship, in or near the harbour of this City, contrary to the Resolves of this Congress; and also, to request the occasion of the firing, by the Soldiery of this City, on the inhabitants of this Colony that are coming to, and going out of the City.

And Ordered, That Mr. Smith, Colonel Lott, and Mr. Roosevelt, be a Committee to inquire into, and take examinations, on oath, relative to the Soldiers' firing on the inhabitants in boats; and also as to the declarations of Colonel Waterbury and Mr. Isaac Sears, inimical to this Colony and its inhabitants.

Colonel Humphreys informed the Congress that many of the Minute-men of his Regiment are in want of shoes, and other small necessities; and he requests a sum of money on account for his Regiment. Colonel Humphreys was informed that many of his men are not properly accoutred, according to the resolutions of Congress, and that some of them are not even armed; that a sum of money shall be advanced to him, on condition that the said money, or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose, shall be laid out to equip his men with arms and accoutrements.

Ordered, therefore, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to Colonel Humphreys the sum of three hundred Pounds, on account of the pay of his Regiment now employed at New-York in the Continental service, and take Colonel Humphreys's receipt for the same; and this money is advanced to Colonel Humphreys expressly on the condition above-mentioned.

A Letter from Lieutenant-Colonel Lewis Graham, dated yesterday, was read and filed. He thereby informs that the Quartermaster of Colonel Drake's Regiment declines serving any longer, and recommending Mr. James Cock as a proper person.

The Congress are of opinion that the Colonels of the different Regiments of Minute-men should appoint their own Quartermasters, and give them warrants accordingly; and that this method should be recommended to Colonel Drake, as occasion may require it; and order that Mr. Benson, by letter, inform Lieutenant-Colonel Lewis Graham of the opinion of this Congress.

A Letter from Major-General Schuyler, dated the 21st February, on behalf of Mr. Paine, informing that he seems active and lively, and had been some time employed during some part of last campaign in the Artillery service; and that, if there is a vacancy, it might do well to employ him, was read and filed.

A Letter from Major-General Schuyler of the 27th February was read and filed. He therein says that Captain Willett, during the last campaign, has acted with remarkable attention and propriety, and that he is, therefore, entitled to the attention of his country.

A Letter from Major-General Schuyler, also bearing date the 27th February, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, February 27, 1776.

"SIR: Last evening I had the honour to receive your letter of the 22d instant. I wish it was in my power to inform you what officers from this Colony are provided for in Canada. I have never been able to get a return from thence since the order of Congress for raising two battalions there; but as one of these battalions, I suppose, will be officered by the officers from this Colony, you may make a probable guess of who will not be employed there from the enclosed list, on which they stand in the order of their rank in the Army. I have also enclosed a list of such officers as served last campaign, and are now part of Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment. Captains Billings and Hasbrouck, and Lieutenant Whelp had warrants for raising men; but as I have never heard from them since they left this, I took no notice of them in the arrangement of this regiment. I am extremely sorry that you cannot supply it with arms; I shall not know how to furnish them.

"The arms of the New-York Troops were ordered to be returned into the publick stores. Such as were so, have since been issued to other troops; but many were lost and carried off by deserters. I shall, at a more leisure hour, send you an account of what were received at Ticonderoga and Fort George. I do not suppose an account was kept of those that were delivered in Canada.

"You will please to order up six hundred fathoms of tarred rope, for painters for batteaus, &c., and two fishing-nets, and rope for four.

"I shall probably send into Canada some companies of Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment before I can hear from you. Those officers I will give commissions to, as I have some blank ones by me. I wish you to send up the blank commissions for the remainder, as I do not know which of the officers nominated will accept.

"I am, sir, with the greatest esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER."

"To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President, &c.

"P. S. I have added Lieutenant-Colonel Yates and Major Gansevoort to the enclosed list, as they are at least equally entitled to a chance of preferment with any of the other Field-Officers, although they are reappointed to Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment."

The List of Officers therein enclosed was also read and filed, and is in the following figures and words, to wit:

"A List of Officers of the four Regiments raised in NEW-YORK in 1775, (now in CANADA,) as they rank FEBRUARY 28, 1776:

On having read General Schuyler's Letter,

Ordered, That Peter T. Curtenius, as Commissary, purchase, on Continental account, six hundred fathoms of Tarr'd Rope, for Painters for Batteaus, &c., and two good Fishing-Nets, and Ropes for four Fishing-Nets, pursuant to a request of Major-General Schuyler, by his Letter to this Congress of the 27th ultimo, and that he forward the same to Albany by the first conveyance, pursuant to the General's request.

A draft of an Answer to General Schuyler's several Letters above-mentioned, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 4, 1776.

SIR: We have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 21st and 27th ultimo, with a list of such officers as have served in the last campaign. We fear, from a want of proper information, and the necessity we are under of immediately completing the four regiments ordered to be raised for the defence of this Colony, some gentlemen now absent may be neglected, whose merits ought to be considered. In our confused state, we shall endeavour to do justice to individuals, as far as is consistent with the public service. In this arrangement, Mr. Paine's merit will be considered.

In the appointment of the Captains to our four battalions, we have, through mistake, omitted Captain Wynkoop, whose services, during the last summer, justly merit the attention of the publick. We could wish, sir, it was in your power to provide for him on the lake, as we are informed he is well qualified for service in that department; but if it should not be in your power to provide for him, we beg to have the earliest notice, that we may appoint him to the first vacancy.

We have ordered six hundred fathoms of tarred rope, two fishing nets, and ropes for four, to be sent to Mr. Commissary Livingston, at Albany, to whom we have also ordered the quantity of pitch and tar you formerly wrote for to be sent. You will receive by this conveyance blank commissions for Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment.

We are, sir, with esteem, your obedient humble servants.

By order of Congress.

To Major General Schuyler.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted by Monsieur De Gas, together with sixty blank Continental Commissions.

And the same were all transmitted accordingly.

A Letter from Colonel James Holmes to Captain Jacobus Wynkoop, dated at Ticonderoga, on the 7th day of December last, was read and filed.

Pursuant to a Resolution of the Provincial Congress of the 3d of November last, he therein directs Captain Wynkoop to make an immediate stoppage in the pay of Thomas Hampton, James Davenport, and Henry May, late deserters from Captain Wynkoop's Company, in Colonel Holmes's Regiment, to reimburse the sum of thirteen Pounds eight Shillings and seven Pence, expended and paid by the Provincial Congress for apprehending the said deserters.

Captain Wynkoop, at the door, informs a Member that he has stopped the said sum out of the pay of the said deserters, and has the money ready to pay to this Congress, or their order.

Ordered, That Captain Jacobus Wynkoop pay to Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., Treasurer of this Congress, the sum of thirteen Pounds eight Shillings and seven Pence, now in his hands, stopped out of the pay of Thomas Hampton, James Davenport, and Henry May, three deserters from his Company, in the Regiment late Colonel Holmes's, to replace the money advanced and paid out of the said Treasury for the apprehending and sending back of the said deserters to their Regiment; and that Captain Wynkoop, on behalf of Colonel Holmes, take a receipt of the Deputy Treasurer for that sum.

Francis Lewis, Esq., having informed this Congress that he has brought from Philadelphia the separate sums for which the Delegates of this Colony had obtained warrants from the Continental Congress, and requested the direction of this Congress as to the said money:

Thereupon, Ordered, That Francis Lewis, Esq., pay to Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, the sum of twelve thousand Dollars, and the further sum of thirty-five thousand Dollars, amounting together to the sum of forty-seven thousand Dollars, obtained on two warrants from the Continental Congress. That Mr. Lewis deliver such receipts, or audited accounts, as he may have taken for any part of that money to the said Treasurer as cash, and that he take the Treasurer or Deputy Treasurer's receipt for the same.

Mr. Hobart, from the Committee appointed on Saturday last to call on General Lee to know the reason of the firing by the Troops on persons coming to or going out of this City, and the reason of the interruptions given to the persons having Passports from this Congress, delivered in their Report, in the words following, to wit:

"The purport of the Conversation between General LEE and the Committee.

"General Lee says that he inhibited the communication with the ships-of-war and the Dutchess of Gordon, because he was informed that Governour Tryon had seized a quantity of flour coming to this market, which he considered as a breach of the compact, which, though not perhaps expressly made, yet was undoubtedly implied, that while we continued to supply them with provisions, they would not obstruct any coming to this market. That he wished the Congress would write to Governour Tryon, and demand an explanation of his conduct. That if they should prefer the mode, he would write himself. That if, upon settling the matter, the Congress should incline to continue the daily supplies of provisions, he would give the necessary orders to the port guard, provided that no person from the shore should be allowed to go on board the said ships, nor any person to come on shore from the same, as he could not permit a personal communication to be any longer kept up. And as to the firing on the boats, he assured the Committee that it was entirely owing to a misconstruction of his general orders. That if Congress, or any individual, would draw up a set of instructions for the direction of the port guard that shall effectually prevent such inconvenience for the future, he would readily sign it."

A part of a Letter from Mr. William Bedlow, one of the Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands, to Mr. John Berrien, was read.

Mr. Bedlow thereby informs that they are in want of cash to pay wages and discharge some of the debts of last year, and to purchase necessaries; and requesting the sum of five hundred Pounds, to be expended for the use of the said Fortifications on Continental account.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., the Treasurer of this Congress, deliver to Mr. John Berrien, as Commissary to the Commissioners for erecting Fortifications in the Highlands, and one of the said Commissioners, the sum of five hundred Pounds, on Continental account, towards the expense of erecting the said Fortifications, and that the Treasurer take Mr. Berrien's receipt for the same.

Nicholas Bayard, Esq., this morning attending, was admitted. He informed the Congress that a Grenadier Company of Colonel Lasher's Regiment had been the guard of the Records of this Colony since they have been at his house; that he has been informed it is to be changed, and their place supplied by another Company; that the said Grenadier Company have behaved so prudently, that it would oblige him to have them continued.

The Congress took the same into consideration, and Thereupon, Ordered, That Mr. Smith, Colonel Lott, and Mr. Roosevelt, be a Committee to speak to Colonel Lasher, and with him determine on what guard will be proper and necessary for a guard to the said Records at Mr. Bayard's.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that it was necessary to have arms for the men of the different Companies now inlisting in this City, that they may have arms if called to service, and that they may become inured to the use of arms.

Ordered, That Richard Norwood, Commissary of this Colony's Stores, deliver to Colonel McDougall, or his order, such Arms and Accoutrements from time to time, in store, as he shall direct for the Troops, and take the receipts of such Captains to whom such Arms and Accoutrements are or shall be delivered.

Mr. Prince, one of the Members appointed to forward the Continental Powder to Cambridge, informed this Congress that the wagoners here employed in the Continental service, going to Cambridge with the Continental Powder, said they could not proceed without some money to defray their expenses. That he had advanced to the three wagoners who went off with loaded wagons this morning twenty Pounds on account, in part of their pay; that the other three wagoners who are to set off this afternoon, expect to receive the like sum in advance.

Therefore, Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq. advance to Mr. Samuel Prince the sum of forty Pounds on account, in part of the hire of the wagoners carrying Continental Gunpowder to Cambridge, and that the Treasurer take Mr. Prince's receipt for the same, and charge it to Continental account.

The Congress were informed by Colonel McDougall that General Lee has received Letters from General Washington and General Greene, in substance giving information that General Howe is removing their spare and heavy cannon and howitzers from Bunker's Hill on board of transports; that the transports are drawn up to the wharves; and that the officers' baggage are taken on board of the transports; and that it is probable that the Ministerial Troops will soon leave Boston. Colonel McDougall is requested to obtain extracts in writing from Major-General Lee, of such parts of the said Letters as may be necessary to be considered by Congress; and that Mr. Smith, Colonel Lott, Mr. Hobart, and Colonel Van Cortlandt, be a Committee to take such extracts into consideration, and report thereon to this Congress what they shall think necessary to be done, and that they report with all convenient speed.

Die Luns, 3 ho. P. M., March 4, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

The Report of the Committee to consider of and report a plan for a further emission of Paper Currency, was taken into further consideration, and read; and, being again read paragraph by paragraph, was in many instances altered and amended, and, those amendments agreed to, it was ordered to remain for further consideration until to-morrow morning.

Mr. Yates reported that Captain Denning and himself, with the assistance of Dr. Treat, had viewed the house on Freshwater-Hill, where John Fowler lately dwelt, with two barns adjoining; that Dr. Treat highly approved of the said house and barns for an Hospital; that they had contracted for the said house and barns, &c., for the rent of seventy Pounds from the 1st day of May next; the said rent to be paid quarterly to the present tenants, or their order.

This Congress hereby approves of and ratifies the said contract, and assumes the same as the contract of this Congress.

A Letter from Major-General Lee, bearing date this day, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"March 4, 1776.

"SIR: The letters I received last night from the Commander-in-Chief and General Greene, were unfortunately thrown into the fire. But, according to my best recollection, the reasons given by the Generals for surmising, or rather concluding that it was the intention of the enemy to evacuate Boston, were these: That they had withdrawn their mortars and heavy cannon from Bunker's Hill and Charlestown; that their transports were hauled into the wharves; that some people who had left the town lately, declared that the officers' baggage was sent on board; in short, it is from every circumstance concluded, by those who are before the place, and those who have lately left the place, that they are soon to abandon Boston, and that, consequently, they will attempt to establish themselves here.

"May I, sir, take the liberty to express my uneasiness on a subject which is more properly a matter of consideration for the Congress—the liberation of the notorious enemies to liberty and their country, on giving bonds for their good behaviour, appears to me, in our present situation, extremely ill imagined. It is so far from a security, that it is rather adding virus to their malignancy. The first body of troops that arrives will cancel those bonds. Some vigorous, decisive mode must now be adopted, of discovering on whom you may depend, on whom not. The crisis will admit of no procrastination. I cannot, therefore, help wishing, for the common safety and the honour of this Province in particular, that some test may be immediately offered, that we may be enabled to distinguish our friends from our foes.

The latter must not, and cannot, be suffered to remain within your walls, to co-operate with those without, in working your destruction.

"I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant,

"CHARLES LEE.

"To Colonel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress."

Mr. Hobart, from the Committee appointed to consider of the intelligence received from Major-General Lee by his Letters above-mentioned, delivered in their Report, which was read; and the same being read a second time, paragraph by paragraph, and amended, was approved of, and unanimously agreed to, in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee beg leave to report the following Resolves:

1st. That a Magazine of Provisions and Military Stores be established in the County of Westchester.

2d. That the Deputies of Westchester County purchase and deposite in different Stores in that County twelve hundred barrels of good salted Pork, wherever it is to be bought, and that the said salted Pork be repacked and pickled by a sworn packer of New-York; and that the Deputies of Albany County purchase eighteen hundred and fifty bushels of good Peas, and send them to the Deputies of Westchester County, to be by them stored in the same manner.

3d. That a Letter be written to the proprietors of the Powder-Mills in this Colony, requesting them to use all possible diligence in manufacturing that article, and to inform the Congress what quantity they have now on hand, what stock of materials they have by them, and what quantity they can supply weekly.

4th. That Circular Letters be written to the several Colonels of the Minute-men and Militia in this Colony, from the County of Albany to the southward, ordering them to hold their respective Regiments in readiness to march with their Arms, Accoutrements, Blankets, and five days' Provision, on the first notice of an invasion.

5th. That Colonel Lasher and Colonel Heyer, and the Colonels of the different Regiments of Militia in the City and County of New-York, be ordered to examine into the state of their respective Regiments, with respect to the number of Men, Arms, Accoutrements, and Ammunition, and report thereon forthwith.

6th. That a Letter be written to the Committees of Southampton and Easthampton, in Suffolk County, requesting them to station men at the most convenient places in that County, to give the earliest notice of the arrival of a Fleet upon the coast; and that upon the first appearance of a Fleet, they despatch an express immediately to this Congress, or the Committee of Safety of this Colony, with an account of the number and size of the Ships, and the course they steer.

7th. That the Light-House at Sandy-Hook be dismantled, the Lantern rendered useless, and all the Oil and Lamps taken and carried to some place of safety at a proper distance.

8th. That—(postponed.)

9th. That a Letter be written to the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey, transmitting them a copy of the Extracts of Letters to General Lee, and requesting them to order their Minute-men and Militia to hold themselves in readiness to march on the first notice of an invasion.

Resolved, That the Congress does agree with their Committee in the said Report.

But as some of the Resolves therein reported are very important,

Ordered, That the said Report be reassumed and read to-morrow morning when the House is full; and a charge of secrecy as to the Light-House was given from the Chair.

A draft of a Circular Letter to the several Colonels of the Minute-men and Militia of this Colony, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 4, 1776.

SIR: This accompanies the resolve of Congress, requesting you to hold your regiment in readiness to march at a moment's warning. We are apprehensive that the Ministerial Army in Boston may attempt to land in this Colony in a short time. Your zeal for the publick cause, we trust, will stimulate you and the officers under your command to use all possible diligence to comply with this resolution. We have only to add, that no time should be lost in executing this order, and that you forthwith return to this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, the present state of your regiment, as to number of men, arms, accoutrements, and ammunition; and that, if the Minute Regiments do not compose one-fourth part of the Militia of your County, you are hereby ordered to cause the Minute Regiments to be completed agreeable to the rules and orders of this Congress of the 20th December last.

We are, sir, with esteem, your very humble servants.

By order:

NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

Ordered, That the Secretaries get one hundred copies of the said Letter neatly printed, with a copy of the fourth Resolution, above reported, which was unanimously agreed to, printed at the foot of each Letter, and to have them ready by to-morrow morning at the meeting of this Congress.

A draft of a Letter to the owners of the two Powder-Mills in this Colony, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 4, 1776.

SIR: The Provincial Congress requests that you will immediately inform them what quantity of Gunpowder you have on hand, what stock of materials you are furnished with, and how much powder you can manufacture per week.

I am, sir, your humble servant.

By order.

Ordered, That one copy thereof be engrossed and signed by the President, and directed and sent to Henry Wisner, Jun., Esq., and another copy thereof directed to John R. Livingston, Esq., owners of the Powder-Mills in this Colony.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of Easthampton and to the Committee of Southampton, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 4, 1776.

SIR: This covers a resolution of Congress directing the Committees of East and Southampton to station suitable persons on the most proper places for observing the approach of a fleet.

From some intelligence we have received there is reason to expect that the British Army are about to leave Boston; and as it is probable that they may attempt to take possession of this Colony, we therefore entreat you to use all possible despatch to carry this resolve into execution.

We are your humble servants.

By order of Congress.

To John Chatfield, Esq., Easthampton; to Thomas Cooper, Esq., Southampton.

Ordered, That two copies thereof be engrossed and signed by the President, and transmitted—one to John Chatfield, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Easthampton, and the other to Thomas Cooper, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Southampton—and that a certified copy of the sixth Resolve, reported by the Committee on the news received by General Lee, be enclosed in each of said Letters.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that the Colony Artillery Company are much in want of clothing; that Peter T. Curtenius has coarse blue cloth fit for the purpose of making coats for the company; that he is willing to spare the cloth for that purpose, if this Congress gives an order to him for that purpose, that he may charge it in his accounts; and that the price of the said clothing may be retained out of the pay of the men, respectively, who shall receive the same.

Ordered, That Peter T. Curtenius deliver to Captain-Lieutenant James Moore a sufficient quantity of the said Coarse Blue Cloth to make a Coat for each of his men;

And Ordered, That Captain-Lieutenant James Moore, or the Paymaster of the said Company for the time being, take care to deduct the expense of the said Coats furnished to each of the said men out of his Pay.

Die Martis, 10 ho. A. M., March 5, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Smith, Mr. Randall, Mr. Rutgers, Mr. E. Bancker, Mr. Prince, Colonel Lott, Major Stoutenburgh, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Beekman, Captain Denning, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Scott, Colonel McDougall.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Yates, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Gelston, Mr. Hobart.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel M. Graham, Colonel Ten Broeck, Mr. G. Livingston.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel G. Drake, Major Lockwood, Colonel Van Cortlandt.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

A Letter from Colonel Gilbert Budd, directed to Mr. McKesson, one of the Secretaries, was read. He therein requests permission for the bearer to go on board of the Ship Asia, to obtain a boat which has been privately taken from him, and is supposed to be at the said ship. As Major-General Lee has cut off all communication with said ship, and through his conduct and orders the passports of this Congress are of no avail, the Congress refused to give permission.

A Letter from Captain William Barker, of Amenia Precinct, in Dutchess County, was read and filed. He therein states his difficulties about raising a Company in the Continental service, and in understanding the Continental terms of enlistment.

Ordered, That the said Letter be referred to the Members from Dutchess County to give an answer to Captain Barker.

The Congress took into consideration the application made by Mr. Gilbert Livingston, one of the Members, yesterday, on behalf of Lieutenant Lee, with respect to some Minute-men, now in Colonel Swartwout's Regiment, which he claims to have enlisted for the Continental service before they enlisted in Captain Clark's Company of Minute-men.

A Letter received from Colonel Swartwout yesterday was read and filed. He therein alleges that those Minute-men were enlisted in Captain Clark's Company before Mr. Lee had any warrant, and that, therefore, his regiment has the preference to their service; but that he is cheerfully willing that they enter into the Continental service when his regiment is discharged.

Thereupon, Ordered, That the Recruiting Officers for the Continental service, who are employed in that business by virtue of warrants from this Congress, be allowed to enlist men from any of the Regiments of Minute-men in this Colony; but, however, under the following restrictions with respect to the Minute Regiments now in actual service in this City and its environs: That no man shall be allowed to leave the Minute service till the time of their enlistment as Minute-men is expired, or they are discharged from the present service, or until the commanding Officer of the Continental service at this post shall think it necessary for the publick service that they should join their respective Regiments into which they shall have enlisted.

The Report of the Committee on General Lee's Letter, relative to the Ministerial Army preparing to leave Boston, as entered on the Minutes of yesterday afternoon, was again read. The Congress approves thereof, and again agrees with their Committee therein, and confirms the same.

Ordered, That the Committee who brought in the said Report on General Lee's Letter, and Mr. Randall, be a Committee to carry the seventh of said Resolutions of that Committee into execution.

A charge was given from the Chair to keep the matter of the seventh Resolve secret.

The Congress then resumed the consideration of the plan for a further emission of Bills to the amount of fifty-five thousand Pounds; and the same being read by paragraphs, amended and agreed to, is in the words following, to wit:

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. V.

Whereas it is probable that a further emission of Bills of Credit of this Colony, not exceeding fifty-five thousand Pounds, will soon be necessary to discharge the debts incurred by this Colony, and to defray the expenses which may arise in making provision for the further safety and defence thereof; it is their opinion that an emission to the above-mentioned amount be prepared for signing, upon the following plan, to wit: That one hundred and thirty-seven thousand five hundred Dollars be struck, amounting to the said sum of fifty-five thousand Pounds, New-York currency, to be sunk in manner following, to wit:

The receipt of the said Isaac Roosevelt to the said Samuel Lowdon, or such other Printer, shall be a sufficient voucher for such delivery.

Resolved, That this Congress unanimously agrees with their Committee in their said Report, and confirms the same.

Mr. Smith, from the Committee appointed to confer with Colonel Lasher on the mode best to be pursued for continuing the Guard to the Publick Records of this Colony, reported, that Colonel Lasher be ordered to provide a Guard of forty-eight men out of his Battalion, to protect the Records of this Colony; that that Guard be relieved from time to time by detachments from his Battalion or Regiment, so as to give the different Companies in the Battalion their proper proportion of duty; and that twelve men of such detachment be the proper Guard for twenty-four hours.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their said Committee in the foregoing Report.

The Congress took into consideration the state of the Militia in Queen's County, and determined that it would be requisite to have the friends to the liberties of their country there, and particularly those Companies already formed, properly regimented:

Thereupon, Ordered, That Mr. Hobart draw and report a draft of a Letter to Colonel Blackwell, and such other persons in that County as may be thought necessary.

Colonel David Mulford, of the Second Regiment in Suffolk County, pursuant to the Regulations of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, returned to Brigadier-General Woodhull a statement of his Regiment; which was read and filed. He thereby returns his Regiment to consist of nine Companies, and the following number of Officers and men, to wit: One Colonel; one Lieutenant-Colonel; two Majors, to wit: First and Second Majors; nine Captains; eighteen Lieutenants; nine Ensigns; one Adjutant; one Quartermaster; one Sergeant-Major; one Drum-Major; thirty-six Sergeants; nine Drummers; nine Fifers, and six hundred and seventy Privates. And in the said Return all the Officers, down to the Sergeants, (Lieutenants and Ensigns excepted,) are particularly named.

An application from the Committee of King's County, signed by Englebert Lott, pro tem. Clerk, was read and filed. They thereby set forth that they had agreed to allow their Deputies six Shillings per day, each, for every day of their attendance; and request that they may be paid out of the Provincial Treasury, and charged as money advanced to the Committee of King's County, which they will hereafter satisfy.

Debates arose thereon, and the said application was deferred for the present.

Colonel Peter Ten Broeck, from the Committee of War, according to order, reported a draft of Instructions for the Barrackmaster; which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

Instructions for the Barrackmaster.

The Committee appointed to consider of, and draft a set of Instructions for the Barrackmaster, reported the following, viz:

That the Field-Officers of each corps in this Colony be supplied with one room. The Captains, with the Subalterns of each Company, together with the Quartermaster and Adjutant, to be entitled to a room between each two.

The Officers' rooms of the said corps to be furnished each with one pair-andirons, one pair tongs, one table, two chairs, and one candlestick.

For every room for Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers of the said corps, each room to contain twenty men, ten cribs, ten bed-cases, and ten bolsters, to be filled with straw every three months, two iron pots, two trammels, one pair tongs, one wood axe, one iron candlestick, one table, two benches, and one bucket.

And with fire-wood, as follows, viz:

For every room for Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates, from the 1st day of October to the 1st of

April, three-eighths of a cord of wood per week for each room so occupied as aforesaid; and for five weeks preceding the 1st October, and five weeks after the 1st April, three-sixteenths of a cord of wood per week; and for the remaining sixteen weeks, one-eighth of a cord per week.

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius supply the Barrackmaster with cases for Straw Beds for the Companies of Militia as they arrive in this City, to be employed in the service; and that the Barrackmaster supply the said Militia with Barrack necessaries.

This Report being again read, paragraph by paragraph, the Congress agrees with their Committee in the said Report.

A Letter, with two long postscripts thereto, from Samuel Gale, Esq., Clerk of Cumberland County, dated at Fairfield, 29th February, directed to Mr. John McKesson, one of the Secretaries, and sent by Mr. Sturges, the Deputy Sheriff and Jailer, to be laid before this Congress, and the bearer to wait for an answer, was read. The Congress were informed by one of the Secretaries, and by what is therein set forth, that the said Samuel Gale was lately seized in this City at his own house in the night, and conveyed to a Guard-House at the upper Barracks, where the Troops from Connecticut are quartered; that from thence he was soon after conveyed to Fairfield Jail, in Connecticut, where he is now in close confinement in a common Jail, and in very uncomfortable circumstances. The Congress being further informed, by different persons, that this was without any trial or adjudication of any Congress or Committee, or other judges whatever, conceive that it is a wanton act of military power, inconsistent with that liberty for which the Colonists are contending, and highly culpable in those who procured and those who ordered said Samuel Gale to be seized and carried away.

Thomas Smith, Esq., delivered in the Affidavit of Joseph Cheesman, as to some inimical expressions of Colonel Waterbury against this City, which is in the words following, to wit:

"City of NEW-YORK, ss.

"Joseph Cheesman, of the City of New-York, Shopkeeper, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that this day being on board of a boat in Peck's Slip, he heard Colonel Waterbury say, that he had for some time thought that things would not go well, unless the City of New-York was crushed down, and that it must be done by their people before things would go well; and further this deponent saith not.

"JOSEPH CHEESMAN.

"Sworn this 2d of March, 1776, before me,

"ABRAHAM BRASHER, Justice of Peace."

Mr. Smith also delivered in the Affidavit of John Somerindyck, stating the violent acts of some of the soldiers, and the impudent conduct of some officers therein mentioned; and, also, the Affidavits of Isaac Bell, Josiah Le Conte, Elias Nixen, and John Jones, setting forth different instances of the Troops stationed in this City firing at the boats, and the people on board, in coming to and going from the wharves and markets in this City; which were read and filed.

Mr. Smith further informed the Congress, that Mr. John Richards had told him that a number of shot were discharged, about eleven or twelve o'clock this morning, at a New-Jersey sloop or boat, when departing homeward from this City.

Ordered, That Abraham Yates and Thomas Smith, Esquires, be a Committee to make inquiry as to the reasons of the treatment of Samuel Gale, Esq., and to prepare a draft of a Letter to Major-General Lee on that subject; and, also, on the subject of the Troops firing on the people in boats, passing and repassing to, and from the wharves and markets in this City.

A Letter from Mr. John Foster to Mr. John McKesson,*

* SOUTHAMPTON, February 28, 1776.—SIR: I have engaged tow-cloth near to the amount of the sum I received for that purpose, but have been obliged to give him from two shillings and two pence to two shillings and three pence per yard, as it could not be bought under; and shall forward the same as soon as I can get it together, which will be by the next boat I expect. I should be obliged to you to let me know the sense of the Congress, whether they would have me purchase any more at that price or not. If there be any prospect of trade to any part, I must beg you will give me the earliest intelligence you can, which will be esteemed a particular favour done.

Your humble servant,

JOHN FOSTER.

To John McKesson, Esq.

one of the Secretaries, dated Southampton, on the 28th day of February, was read. He thereby informs that he could not purchase Tow-Cloth at less than two shillings and two pence and two shillings and three pence per yard; that he had purchased at that rate to the amount of the money advanced to him by the Committee of Safety; and requesting to know whether he should go on to purchase more at the same rates.

Ordered, That Mr. McKesson write to Mr. Foster, and inform him that he will please to continue to purchase for this Congress Tow-Cloth at the prices mentioned in his Letter, and to forward the same by safe conveyances to Mr. Curtenius.

Die Mercurii, 10 ho. A. M., March 6, 1776.

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Gelston, Mr. Hobart.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Colonel Morris Graham, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, Major Schenck.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. A. Bancker.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Major Lockwood, Colonel Cortlandt, Mr. Thomas, Colonel Gilbert Drake, Colonel Joseph Drake.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Covenhoven, Mr. Polhemus.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

A Member, in behalf of Abraham Livingston, asked leave to take up the floor in the Powder-House, for the purpose of taking out the earth to make Saltpetre.

Agreed, That Mr. Livingston have leave when all the Powder is out.

Mr. Nicholas Low attended, and informed the Committee that a Vessel was arrived with about fifteen hundred pounds of Gunpowder, consigned to him for sale.

Ordered, That Mr. Hallett and Mr. Randall be a Committee to agree with Mr. Low about the price of said Powder, and purchase the same in behalf of this Congress.

A Petition of John Pell, praying leave to export some Salt to New-Jersey. Rejected unanimously.

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius furnish a suitable number of wooden Bowls and Spoons to the four Regiments raising in this Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Livingston and Mr. Berrien call on the Engineer, and get his directions relative to the Cannon ordered to Canada.

A draft of a Letter to General Lee was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 6, 1776.

SIR: We have now under consideration the case of Mr. Samuel Gale, who was lately apprehended in this city by a military guard, and conveyed to Fairfield, in the Colony of Connecticut, where he now is in close confinement. We are wholly ignorant of the nature of the charge brought against him, or the cause of his commitment, and should be glad to be informed thereof, that proper steps may be taken either for his discharge or punishment.

It may not be improper to remind you, sir, that the right of apprehending, trying, and punishing citizens who violate the resolutions of Congress, or act inimical to the liberties of America, is, by the Continental Congress, delegated to the Provincial Conventions in the respective Colonies. This right we think it our duty to insist upon as essential to the security of our constituents. We hold ourselves ready to co-operate with you in every measure that may be thought necessary to promote the common cause of the Continent, and to frustrate the arbitrary designs of a wicked Ministry; at the same time it becomes us, as faithful guardians of the people, to protect the liberty and property of our constituents as much as possible in our present unhappy situation. We are sensible of the many difficulties you have to struggle with while commanding an undisciplined soldiery; but we flatter ourselves their irregularities will be checked upon proper information. This consideration, sir, induces us to inform you that the Port-Guards continue to fire upon the boats coming to and going from this city, for the purpose of supplying the inhabitants with provisions and other necessities. If this practice is continued, we are apprehensive it will greatly distress the inhabitants, render it impossible to provide for the troops, and prevent our Commissary from supplying the magazine we are now establishing for the Continental Army. We therefore entreat you, sir, to give such orders to the Port-Guards as will prevent such inconveniences for the future.

We are, with esteem, your obedient servants.

By order.

To Major-General Lee.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted.

Mr. Hallett and Mr. Randall reported that Mr. Low demanded thirty Pounds per hundred weight for his Powder, with permission to export produce at the rate of forty Pounds for each hundred weight.

The Congress directed Mr. Hallett and Mr. Randall to purchase the Gunpowder as cheap as they can agree; but if Mr. Low should insist on thirty Pounds for the purchase money, that he be allowed to export produce only to the same amount.

A Letter from General Lee was received and read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, March 5, 1776.

"SIR: It is absolutely necessary that Colonel Ward should be supplied with the necessary brush for fascines, wood for pickets, and other timber, to complete the works I have directed on Long-Island. It is my wish these materials should be supplied in the most easy way to the inhabitants, and that the utmost justice be done them. It is impossible for me to attend to the regulation of this matter, and therefore must desire the Congress of New-York will take proper measures to conduct this matter, which I doubt not will forward the service.

"CHARLES LEE, Major-General.

"To the President of the Congress of New-York."

Thereupon, a draft of a Letter to the Committee of King's County was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: General Lee having informed us that Colonel Ward will want wood and timber to enable him to carry on the fortifications now erecting in your County, we recommend to you to assist in furnishing him with these articles; for which the proprietors of the lands from whence those articles may be taken may rest assured they will receive the like satisfaction as will be allowed to the proprietors of lands in the City and County of New-York, who have furnished those articles for the fortifications erecting in and near this City. The known zeal of the inhabitants of King's County, to promote the publick cause, we doubt not will stimulate them to promote this necessary work.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order.

To the Chairman and Members of the Committee of King's County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted immediately.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the examinations of the persons concerned in spiking the Cannon beyond King's Bridge, and which were taken in the Committee of Safety, fully read.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Colonel Waterbury be requested to send down William Lownsberry and the other persons confined in the upper Barracks, for making Spikes and spiking up the Cannon beyond King's Bridge, in Westchester County, to this Congress, at the City-Hall, at five o'clock this afternoon, under a proper guard.

The Congress adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

Die Mercurii, 4 ho. P. M., March 6, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Cortlandt, Mr. Beekman, Captain Denning, Mr. Rutgers, Mr. Van Zandt, Colonel McDougall, Major Stoutenburgh.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Gansevoort, Mr. Yates, General Ten Broeck, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Gelston, Mr. Hobart.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Joseph Drake, Major Lockwood, Colonel Gilbert Drake, Mr. Thomas, Colonel Cortlandt.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus, Mr. Covenhoven.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Colonel Graham, Major Schenck.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Mr. Benson (one of the Secretaries) informed Congress that he had waited on General Lee with the regulations for supplying the Ships-of-War and the Governour's Ship with Provisions; that General Lee was pleased to give, for answer: "That he was to resign the command here to Lord Stirling this night; but that if he were to continue, he would not consent to supply them with any Provisions, as they were at open war with us; that he hoped Lord Stirling would be of the same opinion; that his instructions from the Continental Congress were, to use every means in his power for the defence of the City."

A draft of a Letter to Edward W. Kiers was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, the glorious 6th March, 1776.

We are informed by Colonel Hay that you have in your possession a quantity of gunpowder, which you refuse to sell to such of the inhabitants of your place that would wantonly sport it away. We highly approve of your conduct; but, as we now are in expectation that the Ministerial Troops at Boston will soon abandon that town, and attempt to land in this city, we request that you will sell to Colonel Hay's Regiment one-half pound of powder to every man when they are ready to march, and return to the Colonel the names of such persons as you have supplied.

We are, sir, yours, &c.

To Edward William Kiers, Esq., Merchant, Haverstraw, Orange County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

William Lownsberry, and the other Prisoners, pursuant to the order of this morning, were respectively brought to the bar, and examined. The examinations are as follows, to wit:

William Lownsberry says: That the first mover, or movers, of spiking the Cannon, were Joshua Gidney and Burrell; that they had seventy or eighty spikes made, and went down, and found so many Cannon, that it was not worth while; that he had no conversation with any person on ship-board on that subject; that he does not know who spiked up the large parcel of Guns. Asked what business he had to the house of a gentleman of fortune in his County the day before the Cannon was spiked; answered, that he went to Colonel Phillips's the day before, to know whether he would set up again as a Representative; that he set off from home with an intention to spike the Guns; or disarm them; that the following persons were with him, viz: Joshua Gidney, William Haines, Josiah Burrell, Thomas Haines, and James Haines, Jun.; that they took sledges to knock the arms off; that his reason for disabling the Cannon was, that, as the New-England people had done several acts which he thought harsh, he wanted to prevent the Guns being used on any Fortifications that might be built near King's Bridge, as they would then be between two fires; that he never was promised any reward for that business; that he engaged only with Joshua Gidney; that Joshua Gidney engaged the other persons; that he was in bed when the other persons escaped; that Burrell spoke to him two days before about spiking the Guns, and that he told him he did not think any person would make the spikes; that one of the company took one sledge out of Benjamin Flandereau's shop; that another was got when they were at John Gidney's; that the company had greatcoats and caps on, except himself, who had not a cap on.

Isaac Gidney says: That Lownsberry came to him and asked him to make one hundred and odd hatchel teeth, out of old files; that he told him that files were very unhandy to work; that Lownsberry brought him small steel, and he made him one hundred and four large hatchel teeth, as Mr. Lownsberry ordered him, and, by his orders, hardened them; that Joshua Gidney took them from his shop; that Joshua Gidney lives within forty rods of him, and Lownsberry one half mile out of the country road; that he never made any other hatchel teeth so large; that they were not filed; that, when asked why they were made so large, they told him it was no matter; that he heard of no agreement between Lownsberry and Gidney; that he made about sixty hatchel teeth for Burrell, the week before, of a smaller size than Lownsberry's; that Burrell does not raise any flax.

Joseph Purdy: That he did not know, when he made the teeth, what use they were for; that Gidney told him they were for hatchel teeth; that he does not know how many he made; that he assisted one spell in the evening, and one spell in the afternoon; that some time after the Guns were spiked, he asked Gidney if those teeth were not for spiking the Guns, and he said, no; that he thought them short for hatchel teeth; that he asked for whom he was making them, and that Purdy did not inform him; that what he assisted to make were made out of small bars of steel; that he does not know who spiked any of the Cannon, except what he has heard since he has been in confinement; that one Duyckinck came into the guard-house, and told Haines he had spiked up the Cannon; that Thomas Haines, or Joshua Gidney, told him that James Haines, Jun., spiked up all the Cannon.

Cornelius McCartney says: He lives in Phillips's Manor, in Yonkers Township; that he usually keeps school; that he does not know who spiked up the Cannon at Valentine's; that on Wednesday night, the 17th of January, he was at Joseph Oakley's, and kept a night school there; that he had some difference at a raffle, and his scholars took his part, and some of the company, out of spite, informed against him, that he had been concerned in spiking the Cannon; but that it was not true; that the dispute he had with those people was about Whig and Tory; that he was the person called a Tory. On naming the families for whom he taught school,

Cornelius McCartney was discharged.

Ordered, That William Lownsberry and the other Prisoners be remanded to their place of confinement, and kept, respectively, in the same state of confinement as they were heretofore kept, until further order.

Colonel McDougall's motion, for authorizing the County and District Committees to purchase Blankets for the Troops to be raised in this Colony, was taken into consideration. It being thought expedient that the purchasing Arms should be added to the Resolution:

Ordered, That the same be committed to Mr. Hobart, and that he report a draft of a Resolution (authorizing the Committees to purchase Arms as well as Blankets) with all convenient speed.

A Letter from Stephen Ward, Esq., was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"March 5, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I hereby acquaint you that I have taken an account from Captain Varian what the expense of guarding the guns at Valentine's and Williams's will be this week, viz: One Captain, one Lieutenant, two Sergeants, one Corporal, and fourteen Privates: six of the above men board at ten shillings per week; and the others draw provisions from the Commissary, with a guard-room and fire-wood, at three pounds per week, besides items—making, in the whole, about twenty-six pounds; and last week it was considerably more. And as Mr. David Barclay (who waits on you with this letter) is willing to undertake to guard them with six men beside himself, for half that expense, I take the liberty to recommend him as a faithful man; and should you think that guard sufficient, and he appointed to that service, Captain Varian might be sent to the Fortification now erecting at Hell-gate. All which I submit to your superior judgment; and remain, gentlemen, your assured friend and humble servant,

"STEPHEN WARD.

"P. S. If Mr. Barclay should be appointed to guard the guns, he expects the fifty which are at Williams's to be moved to the others near Valentine's. Mr. Williams will move them at two shillings each."

Ordered, That Colonel Joseph Drake and Mr. Thomas be a Committee to take the foregoing Letter of Mr. Ward into consideration, and report thereon with all speed.

Colonel Drake and Mr. Thomas delivered in their Report; which, being read, is in the words following, to wit:

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the Letter from Stephen Ward concerning the expenses of guarding the cannon at Valentine's, do report—

1st. That it is unnecessary to continue the expensive guard which hath been stationed to guard those cannon for the time past.

2d. That when the said cannon are all collected together at Valentine's, then seven men would be sufficient to guard said cannon.

3d. That we think David Barclay, who was recommended by Mr. Ward, is a suitable person to have the care of said guard, and that thirteen pounds per week is not too much for the whole expense.

Resolved and Ordered, That David Barclay be, and he is hereby, appointed to have the care and charge of the said Guard, and that he be allowed thirteen Pounds per week for the whole expense attending said Guard.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The bearer, Major William Malcom, is going (by order of this Congress) to execute a commission of very great importance to the publick service. The secrecy with which it is necessary this business should be conducted renders it altogether improper for him to carry the requisite assistance from hence. He will, therefore, call upon you for such assistance as he may want, which we beg you will afford him.

And we are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants.

By order.

To the Committee of Inspection and Observation in New-Jersey.

"New-York, March 6, 1776.

"SIR: The Provincial Congress of this Colony having appointed us a Committee to concert measures for carrying into execution their resolves of the 5th instant, for the dismantling the Light-House at Sandy-Hook; we, reposing especial trust and confidence in your abilities and zeal in the common cause, have made choice of you for the execution of that important enterprise. We enclose you a certified copy of the resolve for the purpose, and desire you will conform as nearly as may be to the strict letter thereof. You will please to call upon the Committee of Middletown, or such other place in New-Jersey as you shall judge most proper, for the assistance you shall think necessary.

"Upon your arrival at Sandy-Hook, you will endeavour to take the glass out of the lantern, and save it if possible; but if you find this impracticable, you will break all the glass. You will also endeavour to pump the oil out of the cisterns into casks, and bring it off; but if you should be obstructed by the enemy, or not be able to procure casks, you will pump it out on the ground. In short, you will use your best discretion to render the Light-House entirely useless.

"We are, sir, your humble servants,

"PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT,

"ABRAHAM P. LOTT,

"JOHN SLOSS HOBART.

"To Major Malcom."

Die Jovis, 10 ho. A. M., March 7, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Smith, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Evert Bancker, Mr. Rutgers, Mr. Sands, Mr. Randall, Colonel Lott, Mr. Van Zandt, Colonel McDougall.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on service,) Mr. Abraham Yates.
 FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Gelston, Mr. Hobart.
 FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)
 FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Colonel Morris Graham, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, Major Schenck.
 FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.
 FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Thomas, Colonel Gilbert Drake, Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt, Major Lockwood, Colonel Joseph Drake.
 FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.
 FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.
 FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.
 FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.
 FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Colonel John Williams moved, and was seconded by Colonel William Williams, in the words following, viz:

"I move that one hundred weight of Gunpowder and three hundred weight of Lead be sent to Charlotte County, to be given in charge of the County Committee, and to be distributed to the Minute-men or Militia, when a case of emergency shall require it."

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be deferred for the present.

Mr. Van Zandt, seconded by Mr. Sands, moved in the words following, viz:

"I move that a Letter be wrote to the Continental Congress, giving them a true account of the situation of this City and Colony, occasioned by the stoppage of Provisions to the Ships-of-War by order of General Lee."

The same being considered and unanimously agreed to,
 Ordered, That Mr. Smith, Mr. Van Zandt, and Mr. Gansevoort, be a Committee to prepare and report a draft of such Letter with all convenient speed.

Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt informed the Congress that the money he has already received towards lading the Ship Rosamond on Provincial account, is insufficient for the purpose; and that he wants the sum of one hundred and sixty-seven Pounds nineteen Shillings to complete the lading of the said Ship.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt the sum of one hundred and sixty-seven Pounds nineteen Shillings, to complete the lading of the Ship Rosamond, Wright Southgate Master; and that the said Treasurer take Mr. Van Zandt's receipt for the same.

Samuel Benson (a person employed to bring Salt from Staten-Island) being at the door, was admitted. He says that Thomas Vernon, the Hatter, has threatened that he will take his ears off, and that he will do it for him in four or five days.

Ordered, That Samuel Benson apply for redress to the Committee of the City.

A Letter from Major-General Lee was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, March 6, 1776.

"SIR: I have just received an uncertified paper, the purport of which seems to imply that the men-of-war and Governour Tryon are to be supplied as formerly with provisions. Subsequently to this order of the Provincial Congress, the Continental Congress had instructed me to put the city in the best state of defence possible. I am so unfortunate as not to be able to discover how furnishing the enemy with the necessaries of life can contribute to this end. It certainly must open the means of their receiving every sort of intelligence which ought to be withheld from them; for I cannot myself conceive that the oath of the Port-Master should bind his boat's crew. It is true they are to be restrained from going on board; but I defy human cunning to prevent, when they are once alongside, the conveyance of a letter. I must entreat, sir, that the Congress will not suppose that I am aiming at an authority superior to theirs in thus giving my opinion, and raising objections to anything they have resolved. I respect them as the true representatives of the people and proper legislature of the Province; but, sir, the information I have received from Cambridge, and the orders I have received from the Continental Congress, will justify me in most humbly entreating the Congress not to enjoin me to assent, so much against my conscience, to any intercourse of any kind with Mr. Tryon, who must be considered as a most dangerous enemy.

"There is one thing further I would submit to the wisdom of the Congress: Whether it will be prudent to suffer a single man, in our present circumstances, to remain in the city, who will not enter into an engagement to take up arms in defence of the common rights? I took the liberty to address a letter to you, hinting a measure somewhat related to this scheme, but was not honoured with an answer.

"I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant,

"CHARLES LEE.

"To the President of the Provincial Congress at New-York.

"P. S. I have this instant received your favour relating to Mr. Gale, who was apprehended and conveyed into Connecticut. I agree, sir, entirely with you, that the apprehension, trial, and punishment of citizens, is not my province, but of the Provincial Congress. But, irregular as it was, I had the assurance of many respectable men that he was a most dangerous man, and ought not to be suffered to remain on Long-Island, where an enemy is perhaps more dangerous than in any other spot of America. However, their assurances and my opinion form no excuse; and I heartily repent that I did not refer him to you, his proper judges.

"I must now inform you, sir, that, in consequence of the last instructions from the Continental Congress, to put this city and its environs in a state of defence, I have ordered Colonel Ward, as a previous measure, to secure the whole body of professed Tories in Long-Island. When the enemy is at our door, forms must be dispensed with. My duty to you, to the Continental Congress, and to my own conscience, have dictated the necessity of the measure. If I have done wrong, (and I confess the irregularity,) I must submit myself to the shame of being reputed foolish, rash, and precipitate. I must undergo the censure of the publick; but I shall have the consciousness in my own breast, that the most pure motives of serving the publick cause, uncontaminated by pique or resentment to individuals, have urged me to the step.

"There is now a ruffian under guard, one John Gregg, who attempted to murder the sentinels on their posts the other night. I beg to know your pleasure on the subject. As to the affair of the sentries firing on the boats, I never heard till this moment that they had repeated a misdemeanour so contrary to the orders they had received. I can only say that I am very sorry that my orders have been so little respected, and that if I can find out the culprits, they shall be severely punished.

"I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient and humble servant,

C. L."

Colonel McDougall, who brought in the Letter from Major-General Lee, informed the Congress that he had some conversation with Lord Stirling, on the subject of keeping up a uniformity and preventing any interfering in the orders given by this Congress and the Commander of the Troops stationed here; and that his Lordship was ready and desirous, as soon as Major-General Lee was departed, to confer frequently with a Committee of this Congress for that purpose.

Ordered, That Mr. Smith, Mr. Yates, Mr. Van Zandt, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Hobart, Colonel Van Cortlandt, Mr. Gansevoort, and General Ten Broeck be a Committee to confer with Lord Stirling on the subject of a communication between the Ships and the shore, the firing of the Sentries on the Boats passing and repassing, and the subject of apprehending and sending into confinement in this and another Colony, sundry Inhabitants of this City and Colony, without the knowledge of, or application to any Committee or this Congress.

The Congress took into further consideration the scarcity of Salt in this Colony, and the frequent exportations thereof into the neighbouring Colonies, and came to the following determination, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 7, 1776.

This Congress, taking into consideration the inconveniences that may arise to the inhabitants of this Colony from the want of a sufficient supply of Salt, and being informed that this necessary article is daily exported in great quantities from this Colony to the neighbouring Colonies, which, if not prevented, may prove very prejudicial to this Colony, have, therefore, thought it highly expedient for the present to prohibit, and they do hereby prohibit, the exportation of Salt from this Colony to any port or place out of the same, until the further order of this Congress or the Committee of Safety. And it is

Resolved and Ordered, That Captain William Mercier be empowered to take the most effectual and necessary steps to prevent the exportation of Salt out of the City and County of New-York, contrary to the above prohibition; and that a copy of this prohibition be sent to the different County Committees in this Colony, who are hereby required to carry the same into execution within their respective Counties; and that if any person shall violate this prohibition, having been previously acquainted therewith, the name of such offender shall be transmitted forthwith to this Congress or the Committee of Safety, that proper steps may be taken with such offender.

Ordered, That the Secretaries prepare a certified copy of this entry, and deliver the same to Captain William Mercier; and the Members from the different Counties, now at Congress, make copies thereof for their respective County Committees.

A Return of Militia Officers from Cornwall Precinct, in Orange County, bearing date the 2d day of March instant, and signed by Thomas Moffat, Clerk of Cornwall Precinct Committee, was read and filed.

The following Officers are thereby returned duly elected, viz:

"John McManus, Second Lieutenant, and Thomas Lamereaux, Ensign, in Captain Francis Smith's Company of Militia.

"Gilbert Weeks, Ensign in Captain Christopher Van Duerson's Company of Militia.

"William Bradley, Ensign in Captain Thomas Moffat's Minute-men."

The said Return being agreeable to the Rules and Regulations of this Congress,

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen according to the said Return.

Die Jovis, 4 ho., P. M., March 7, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel Lott, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Randall, Mr. Prince, Mr. Evert Bancker, Mr. Van Cortlandt, Captain Rutgers, Captain Denning, Colonel McDougall.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Abraham Yates, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Gelston, Mr. Hobart.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel P. Ten Broeck, Colonel Moses Graham, Major Schenck.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Gilbert Drake, Colonel Joseph Drake, Major Lockwood, Colonel Cortlandt, Mr. Thomas.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

The Congress was informed by Captain Rutgers, one of the Members, and by Mr. Benson, one of the Secretaries, that Captain John Johnson, as they are well informed, had caned Alexander Lesslie, even in the Assembly and Congress Chamber, and had then sent him a prisoner to the Barracks, where he is now confined.

Ordered, That the Doorkeeper order Captain Johnson to attend here immediately.

Captain Johnson says: That Colonel Ritzema informed him that three Counties in Virginia had joined Lord Dunmore, and said Alexander Lesslie was his author. That he told Colonel Ritzema he would cane the man who said so, unless he named the author. That he saw Lesslie, who said Samuel Burling was his author. That Burling being out of town, he met Lesslie again, and spoke to him again on the subject. That Lesslie said it was no secret; that it was mentioned several times in his shop yesterday afternoon; and that he refused to name the persons who had mentioned it. That, therefore, he beat him with a cane. That Lesslie then abused him, and that he came here to complain, and met Lesslie here, who again had some words with him; and that he again caned him here in this room, and sent him to the Guard-House.

Mr. John Van Cortlandt moved, and was seconded by Colonel William Williams, that the warrant to raise a Company of the Troops of this Colony in Continental service, lately given to John Johnson, be taken from him, and that, as far forth as in the power of this Congress, he be dismissed the Continental service, and all employments under this Congress.

The previous question being about to be moved on Mr. Van Cortlandt's motion, he agreed to let it remain undetermined for the present.

Mr. Gansevoort moved, and was seconded, in the words following:

I move that Mr. Lesslie be immediately liberated, and ordered to appear before this Congress.

The same being agreed to by a very great majority of the Members, without debate, the following Order was agreed to and issued, and sent by the Doorkeeper, viz:

Ordered, That the Officer of the Guard having Alexander Lesslie, the Peruke-maker, in custody, do immediately liberate the said Alexander Lesslie; and the said Alexander Lesslie is hereby ordered immediately to appear before the Provincial Congress, now sitting in the Assembly Chamber, in the City-Hall.

This Congress being informed that Thomas Vernon is inimical to the liberties of America, and ought not to be permitted to go at large; and being informed by some of the Members of the Committee of Safety, and by one of the Secretaries, that the said Thomas Vernon was some weeks ago committed to the Guard-House, by order of the Committee of Safety, and has not since been discharged by any order of this Congress or the Committee of Safety, from whence it is most probable that he must have escaped from confinement,

Ordered, That the said Thomas Vernon be immediately apprehended and committed to custody in the Guard-House, and there confined until the further order of this Congress or the Committee of Safety; and that Colonel McDougall cause this order to be duly executed.

Garret Roorback, the Barrackmaster, attending at the door, was called in. He delivered in his Accounts, and informed the Congress that a considerable balance was due to him, and that he wanted money to procure Wood and other necessities.

Ordered, That his Accounts be delivered to the Auditors.

Alexander Lesslie being brought in, heard, and examined, says: That this morning, opposite Mrs. Curtenius's door, Captain Johnson came to him and asked who was his author for the report he had spread? That he answered, Samuel Burling; and Captain Johnson left him. That in the afternoon, in the Broadway, Captain Johnson asked him if he had found out the author of the report concerning Lord Dunmore's landing, which had been told to him by a person in the afternoon preceding. That he answered no; that it was a stranger, whom he did not know, who was shaved in his shop. Upon which, Captain Johnson answered, "You damned rascal, you and Samuel Burling deserve to be caned; and had I him here, I would cane him immediately; and if you, you scoundrel, do not get along about your business, I will cane you;" and, at that instant, drove a cane in his face, and then struck several blows with the cane at his head, which he received on his arms by defending his head. That he (the examinant) then went to pick up a paving-stone to knock him down with it, in his own defence; that, before he could get the stone up, Johnson closed in with him, on which he took Johnson's stick from him; that immediately thereon, Johnson drew his hanger; on which he made a blow at Johnson with the stick, and missed him, and lost the stick out of his hand, and Johnson then pursued him with his hanger, and he fled from him; and finding an axe in the street, he took it up to defend himself with; and Colonel Ritzema came up and spoke to Johnson.

That soon after, returning from Hall's Tavern to his own house, he saw Johnson, and several officers with him, coming out of his (this examinant's) house; upon which he ran immediately to this Chamber, to lay his case before this Congress, and found the Congress was not yet assembled. That Johnson pursued him to this Chamber, and into the Chamber, and beat him with his stick until this examinant took the stick from him. That Johnson then beat him with his fists, and struck him many blows on his arms, attempting to strike him on the head, and also struck him a blow in the eye, and bit his hand. That Johnson then ordered two other officers to take hold of him (this examinant) and carry him to the Guard-House; that one of them seized him by the collar, and forced him out of the room, and that they forcibly took him to the Guard-House. That William A. Forbes was one of the officers, and went to the Guard-House with him. That the other officer told this examinant that Captain Johnson was his superior officer, and that he was obliged to obey him. That they took him to the upper Barrack Guard-room.

The examinant further says, that, yesterday morning, Samuel Burling came into his shop, and mentioned, as a report or news, that Lord Dunmore had landed in Virginia with some troops, and that a number of Virginians had joined him. That he (the examinant) soon after went to dress Colonel Ritzema; and, being by him asked what news, mentioned what Samuel Burling related. That this is the matter for which Captain Johnson called on him for his author.

Sampson Dyckman says he was talking to Captain Johnson; that Johnson called to Lesslie, and asked if he had found that man; that Lesslie said no, but he could find him; and he gave substantially the same account which Alexander Lesslie has given. And he further says, that when Johnson was beating him in the Assembly Chamber, he took Johnson off, and separated them. That Captain Johnson desired him to take Lesslie to the Guard-House, and that he refused.

Alexander Lesslie and Sampson Dyckman ordered to withdraw.

The Congress then went into the consideration of the conduct of Captain John Johnson; and the whole examinations of the parties, and the above memorandum of the evidence of Sampson Dyckman, were severally read.

Mr. Van Cortlandt then moved his motion for dismissing Captain Johnson from service, as before entered on the Minutes of this afternoon, he now read and taken into consideration.

And the same being again read, is in the words following: "I move that the warrant to raise a Company of the Troops of this Colony in Continental service, lately given to John Johnson, be taken from him, and that, as far forth as in the power of this Congress, he be dismissed the Continental service, and all employments under this Congress."

Debates arose thereon; and after some time spent therein, and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Negative.	For the Affirmative.
2 Westchester.	3 Albany.—Mr. Gansevoort dissenting.
2 Dutchess.	4 New-York.—Colonel McDougall, Col. Lott, Mr. Bancker, Mr. Prince dissenting.
2 Suffolk.	2 King's.
2 Ulster.	2 Cumberland.
2 Orange.
2 Charlotte.
2 Tryon.
2 Richmond.
16 votes.	11 votes.

Ordered, therefore, That the said motion be rejected.

Mr. Gansevoort then moved, and was seconded, in the words following, to wit:

"I move that Captain John Johnson be ordered to the bar of this Congress; and that he make proper concessions for the insult offered to this Congress, by usurping a power which is vested in this Congress; that he be charged to behave himself peaceably towards Alexander Lesslie, whom he has grossly injured; that he receive a severe reprimand from the Chair; and that he be told if he should be guilty of the like behaviour in future, this Congress will cause him to be displaced."

The same being read a second time and agreed to,

Resolved, That Captain John Johnson be ordered to the bar of this Congress; and that he make proper concessions for the insult offered to this Congress, by usurping a power which is vested in this Congress; that he be charged to behave himself peaceably toward Alexander Lesslie, whom he has grossly injured; that he receive a severe reprimand from the Chair; and that he be told if he should be guilty of the like behaviour in future, that this Congress will cause him to be displaced.

Mr. Hobart, according to order, reported a draft of a Letter to the Delegates of this Colony at Continental Congress, requesting permission for Patrick Sinclair to go to Britain; which was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The late Provincial Congress having received information, on the 3d of August last, that Captain Patrick Sinclair was appointed Lieutenant-Governour and Superintendent at Missilimacana, being a person of great influence with the Indians, and that he was then in this city on his way to that post, and thinking it would be imprudent to permit any gentleman under the influence of the British Ministry to go into the interior of the country to exercise those offices who might prejudice the Indians against the United Colonies, ordered him to be taken into custody, and sent him, on his parole, to Suffolk County, on Nassau-Island, where he has since continued to demean himself very unexceptionably. He has lately applied, by letter, (a copy of which you have enclosed,) to this Congress for leave to return to Europe. As we do not choose to take a step of this kind without the advice of your honourable body, we beg you will lay the state of this gentleman's case before Congress, and let us have their directions thereon. We beg leave to suggest that Mr. Sinclair was not laid under restraint as an enemy to the country. No information was received of his entertaining sentiments unfriendly to the United Colonies, but to the contrary; and that he had invariably treated our Indian traders with the greatest humanity and politeness. For these reasons, and from the consideration that he was not looked upon as a prisoner of war, we wish the favour he asks may be granted.

And are, your humble servants. By order.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Mr. Hobart, according to order, also reported a draft of a Letter to Colonel Blackwell, and sundry other gentlemen, of Queen's County, on the subject of forming the friends to liberty in their County into a Militia, and of choosing and appointing Committees; which was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress being of opinion that it is absolutely necessary that the inhabitants of your County, who have signed the Association, and are friendly to the liberties of their country, should be formed into military companies and regimented, and be in a capacity of defending themselves if attacked; and, being informed that they have appointed a County Committee and likewise that Committees are chosen in several Districts in your County, request that they carry the resolves of Congress for regulating the Militia into execution, and recommend suitable men for the Field-Officers.

The very great importance of the rights for which we are contending, added to the consideration of the present critical situation of our publick affairs, and the great probability that the enemy will endeavour to get possession of this Colony in the course of the spring, renders it totally unnecessary for us to urge any arguments with you on the subject. We doubt not you will exert yourselves to have these matters settled with all possible despatch in your County.

We remain your humble servants. By order.

To Colonel Blackwell.

Die Veneris, A. M. March 8, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Randall, Mr. Prince, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Rutgers, Captain Denning, Mr. Evert Bancker, Mr. Sands, Colonel McDougall.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Abraham Yates, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Gelston, Mr. Hobart.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Gilbert Drake, Major Lockwood, Mr. Thomas.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Colonel M. Graham, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, (on service,) Major Schenck.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus, Mr. Vanderbilt.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Ordered, That Mr. Randall and Colonel Ten Broeck be added to the Committee to confer with Lord Stirling on the subject of a communication with the Ships-of-War, &c.; and that Mr. Hobart and Mr. Gansevoort be excused from attending the said Committee.

A Letter from Captain Joseph Smith, setting forth his distress, and offering his service to his country, particularly in any Marine Department, if there is or should be a vacancy, was read and filed. *

Ordered, That the said Letter remain on file, to be taken up if an opportunity should offer in which his service will be useful.

Captain Johnson, according to the Order of yesterday evening, attending at the door, the door was opened, and he came to the bar of the House. The Resolve of yesterday evening was read to him. He was reprimanded from the Chair for his conduct, and informed of the line of his duty; charged to behave himself peaceably towards Alexander Leslie, whom he had grossly injured; and informed that, if he should be guilty of the like behaviour in future, Congress will cause him to be displaced. Captain John Johnson engaged to demean himself prudently, and withdrew.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the Minutes and Proceedings of the present Committee of Safety, from the beginning, on the 3d of January last. On reading the Petition of George Coffin, mentioned in the Minutes of the Committee of Safety on the 4th day of January, and by the Minutes of the said Committee recommended to this Congress—the said Petition was read and heard. The Congress taking his case into consideration—

[The following memorandum is in pencil mark:]

"The rough notes say George Coffin to be pardoned on publishing his Petition and Pardon."

On reading the Resolutions of the Committee of Safety on the 6th day of January, relating to the fortifying of some Inlets in Suffolk County,

Ordered, That any further prosecution of that measure be left wholly with the Committee of Safety.

On reading the Letter from the Delegates of this Colony

* HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: I am out of employment, and ruin stares me in the face. If any place in your gift is vacant, or likely soon to be, should be glad to serve my country in any capacity I am capable of. I have for many years sailed out of this place, as master and owner of a vessel, in which way I had acquired something handsome, of all which I was deprived in one unfortunate moment by having my vessel and cargo seized; which circumstance is well known to several of the City Members. This sudden transition from a state of comfortable subsistence to a state of wretchedness, was almost more than I could bear. I have ever since struggled hard, but cannot get ahead.

I am well acquainted in the West-Indies—Dutch, French, and some of the Spanish ports; likewise in many ports in Europe. If this honourable House should at any time think proper to send me for powder or warlike stores, I am willing to risk my life in the service; or if any person is wanting on the lakes, or to superintend the building of vessels, should be glad to serve in that capacity. I would not by this be understood, however, to dictate to the honourable House; I only mention this because I am better acquainted in the maritime way than in any other. For my character, please to inquire of Captain Randall, Captain Long, Mr. Van Zandt, or Mr. Curtenius; who, I do not doubt, will give you full satisfaction.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient servant,
JOSEPH SMITH.

P. S. My home at present is at Mr. Benjamin Hannings, in Piscataway, New-Jersey, to which place I have retired with my family (coming home very sick last fall from Carolina.) because it is not so expensive as in town, and was the reason of not applying sooner. I shall return in a day or two. If any occasion for me, please to let Mr. Curtenius know your commands.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. v.

on the subject of the inroads from Connecticut, ordered on the 11th day of January, instant:

Ordered, That a Letter be wrote to the Delegates of this Colony, informing them, the Governour and Representatives of the Colony of Connecticut have not yet given any answer to the Letter from this Provincial Congress on that subject, nor returned nor made any restitution for the types or property taken away from James Rivington.

On reading the Order of the Committee of Safety of the 11th January, for the distribution of Gunpowder gratis in half pounds; the Congress, on being informed that it principally remains to be carried into execution, if proper, is of opinion that it is not proper, and orders that it be not carried into execution for the present, unless in case of invasion.

The Committee who went to confer with Lord Stirling, on the sundry matters given to them in charge, as appears by the entry thereof in the Minutes of yesterday, reported: That they had conferred with Lord Stirling; that he had given the following information to them, which he had received this morning, to wit: That a Brigantine came into the Hook yesterday evening, and came to an anchor under the stern of the Phenix, and that the people on board gave three cheers; that four sail of large Vessels are in the Hook, and a Snow in the offing; that by another person advice was received from Nassau-Island, that six or seven topsail Vessels are in the Hook.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Captain Rutgers and Captain Randall be a Committee to despatch a proper person to the Narrows by land, and another person in a Whale-Boat to the Hook, to make discoveries, and return and report to this Committee with all possible despatch.

The said Committee reported as to the matters given them in charge, that they had settled a plan with Lord Stirling for supplying the Ships-of-War and Governour Tryon's Ship with Provisions, (subject to the approbation and confirmation of this Congress,) in the words following, to wit:

In order to prevent any obstructions to the supply of Provisions, and other necessities, being furnished to the Ships-of-War and the Governour's Ship, pursuant to a former order of this Congress,

It is Resolved and Ordered, That whenever Provisions or Supplies are to be furnished to either of the said Ships, the Port-Master appointed by this Congress shall go with the said Provisions or Supplies, and see the same delivered on board the said Ships; that he take with him only such persons as are necessary to navigate the Boat or Boats carrying such Provisions and Supplies, or such person or persons as shall have the special permission of the Congress or Committee of Safety, countersigned by the General; and that the said Port-Master, and all the navigators of the said Boat, or Boats, be under oath that he, or they, will not disclose any matters whatsoever on board of the said Ships, relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this Colony; that he, the said Port-Master, will not suffer any of the men that he carries with him in the said Boat, or Boats, to go on board either of the said Ships, and that he will not carry, or suffer to be carried, any Letter or Papers to, or from, the said Ships, but such as he shall be first satisfied contain no intelligence of a publick nature. That this supply is to take place, and be continued, on condition that there be no obstruction given to any Boats or Vessels bringing Provisions, Provender, or Firewood to this City.

The Congress agreed with their Committee in this part of their Report, and confirms the same.

The said Committee further reported: That as to the firing of the Sentinels on the Boats coming to and departing from this City, they had, in conjunction with Lord Stirling, settled and agreed on such orders with him, to be issued to the Troops by Lord Stirling, as will prevent that inconvenience for the future; and that Lord Stirling will, towards evening, transmit to this Congress a copy of such orders, and requested a copy of the Regulations for supplying Provisions to the Ships by them above reported, if the same should be agreed to and confirmed by this Congress.

Ordered, That one of the Secretaries prepare and certify a copy of the said Plan or Regulations agreed on for supplying the Ships-of-War and Governour Tryon's Ship with Provisions, and transmit the same to Lord Stirling.

And Ordered, That another copy be prepared for the Port-Master, and that he attend here at five o'clock to receive Instructions.

The said Committee further reported: That as to the other matter given to them in charge, to wit: "the apprehending and sending into confinement in this and a neighbouring Colony, sundry inhabitants of this City and Colony, without the knowledge of, or application to, this Congress," and the reasons thereof, that Lord Stirling had assured them that the like should not happen in time to come; that he informed them that John Gregg was apprehended, and is now confined in the Guard-House at the Barracks, for having, in the night time, attacked the sentinels on duty at their posts; and that he submits his trial and punishment to the Congress. That Governour Tryon's two servants and his linen will be sent to his ship by the first provision-boat; that the seamen who lately came from the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, and were apprehended, desire that they may not return on board; and that the sole occasion of the apprehending Samuel Gale, and sending him to confinement, arose from copies of some letter, or letters, which were in the custody of a certain Colonel William Williams, a Member of this Congress; that he knows of no other evidence against him, and submits his case entirely to this Congress. That his Lordship assured them that, for the future, any persons apprehended shall not be sent out of the Colony; but their cases respectively (if any be apprehended) shall be referred to this Congress. That he further declared that it was not his wish or desire to interfere with the civil Government or police of the City or Colony, but, on the contrary, to harmonize with and aid the civil Government.

The said Committee then informed the Congress that Lord Stirling had requested them to inform this Congress that the present Prison or Jail of this City will, in a short time, be within some military lines; that it will be inconvenient to have the Jailer and Prisoners within the lines; that he will be under a necessity of applying the Jail to other uses; and, therefore, requests the Congress to take into their consideration what may be necessary to be directed as to the Jailer and the Prisoners.

A Memorial of Abraham Lott, Esq., Treasurer of this Colony, was read and filed. He therein sets forth that one-tenth part of the emission of the Bills of Credit, issued by a law of this Colony in 1771, with the interest thereof, will soon be due; that money of that emission cannot be obtained to discharge those debts, agreeable to that law, and praying advice in the premises; and whether the Loan-Officers may receive any money now current in the Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Scott, Mr. Hobart, and General Ten Broeck, be a Committee to take with them and consider the said Memorial, and report thereon to this Congress with all convenient speed.

Die Veneris, 4 ho. P. M., March 8, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Scott, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Randall, Mr. Sands, Captain Denning, Mr. Evert Bancker, Mr. Prince.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Yates, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Gilbert Drake, Colonel Joseph Drake, Major Lockwood, Mr. Thomas.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Gelston.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel P. Ten Broeck, Colonel M. Graham, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, Major Schenck.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Polhemus.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Captain Rutgers and Mr. Randall informed the Congress that, from various informations which they have obtained, (the particulars whereof they mentioned,) they have good reason to believe that the report of a number of topsail Vessels being at Sandy-Hook is false. But they have, notwithstanding, despatched Captain McIlroy to the Narrows to make discovery, and that this Congress may expect his information this evening.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress that Major-General Lee, before his departure, received a Letter from Major-General Schuyler, informing of the state of the Troops gone forward to Canada, and of many other things relative to the present or ensuing campaign in that Department; that General Lee had left him a copy of that Letter to be laid before this Congress for their information; which he then delivered to the Chair.

Thereupon the same was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, February 29, 1776.

"DEAR GENERAL: Congress having ordered that I should repair to New-York, to take the command there as soon as my health would permit, I have taken the liberty to represent to them that if that obstacle was immediately removed, I should not be able to leave this until the batteaus, now building at Fort George, were finished, and everything got into such a train as that your Army in Canada may not suffer for want of provisions; which it certainly will if I quit this, and you immediately go into Canada, where your presence is much, very much indeed, wanted.

"At a moderate calculation the provisions which we took, what was carried in, and what has since been brought, there was sufficient to the month of June; and yet they are now so nearly expended that I have been obliged to send four hundred barrels of pork, in sleds, at the enormous expense of three pounds per barrel.

"I have sent to Canada one eighteen, and a number of twelve-pounders, with what suitable shot were left at the upper posts.

"I need not observe to you, that you will stand in need of a number of carpenters and shipwrights. I only mention it to advise you that I have fifty or more that can go off at a moment's warning. The Canadians are very indifferent workmen, and, besides, will not take our paper money; so that, everything considered, I conclude it will be best to take them from hence.

"Besides the pork above-mentioned, I have ordered one hundred and fifty head of the largest and best stall-fed cattle to be purchased, which I hope to get into Canada whilst the Lakes are still passable on the ice. I have so arranged matters that they will carry their own fodder, and I hope two hundred barrels of pork besides.

"I do not know if the cannon ordered from New-York have travelling carriages. I have written on the subject to the Committee to whom the conveyance of them is entrusted. If they have not, I think I could complete them here in ten days, as I have employed a person to look out for the proper timber, and to speak to all the wheelwrights in this place and its vicinity to be ready when called upon.

"The Regiments to be raised for the Canada service, in the Massachusetts-Bay and Connecticut, are not yet marched from thence. Four Companies of the Pennsylvanians are gone on the 5th. The only one left here will march tomorrow. Three Jersey Companies are also marched, and about one thousand from this Colony and the Massachusetts-Bay, which I ordered to be raised immediately after our repulse at Quebeck. As the Jersey and Pennsylvania Companies are very incomplete, I have ordered all the men that were raised by my immediate order to be engaged for the campaign, and to remain in Canada. I imagined that necessity would justify this step, and I have advised Congress thereof, and pointed out the reasons which induced me to it.

"Three companies of Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment are nearly complete. One of them is at Fort George, and the other at Ticonderoga, from whence they will move as soon as I can get a few men out of those others to be raised in this Colony, to take charge of those posts. All the troops that have hitherto come up have been only half armed, and I am greatly distressed to furnish them; none of them had moccasins, and great numbers wanted shoes, mittens, caps, stockings, &c.

"I hope the New-York Convention will forward the naval stores I wrote for without delay, as none are to be had in Canada, and you will stand in great need of them.

"General Wooster has pressed me in the most earnest manner for a supply of hard cash. With difficulty, and by giving my own security, I have been able to collect about twenty-one hundred pounds, which is gone on to him. It will be well to bring up with you whatever you can procure at New-York, as you will be greatly distressed in Canada without it.

"Eight tons of powder are ordered up, and I do not believe with what is in Canada that the whole will exceed twelve. I had written to Congress for fifteen. You are a much better judge than I can pretend to be whether you will have a sufficiency.

"Adieu, my dear General, and believe me, with the most respectful sentiments of esteem, your most obedient and most humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To the Honourable Major-General Lee."

The foregoing Report was read and agreed to.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay into the hands of Peter T. Curtenius the sum of forty-one Pounds one Shilling and four Pence; that Mr. Curtenius dispose of the said money in advancing to the distressed wives and friends of sundry soldiers now in Canada, in the service of the United Colonies, agreeable to the List delivered him; and that Mr. Curtenius transmit to General Schuyler an account of the same, to the end that the same may be stopped out of the pay of those soldiers to whose wives or friends such moneys have been advanced.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the residue of the Minutes and Proceedings of the Committee of Safety, beginning where they had ceased hearing them, in the former part of this day, to the proceedings of the morning of the 12th day of January last.

The Congress having proceeded to hear the Minutes of the acts and proceedings of the Committee of Safety as far as those of the morning of the 24th day of January last, on reading the disposition therein mentioned to have been made of the sum of one thousand Pounds, left at the disposition of the Committee of Safety for the support of the poor, the Congress were informed that the sum of three hundred and thirty Pounds and three Pence of the said one thousand Pounds which had been put into the hands of John Ramsay, had been since drawn from him by drafts or order of the Committee, and expended in wood, cheap provisions, and other necessities distributed to the poor; that, with the remaining six hundred and sixty-nine Pounds nineteen Shillings and nine Pence, the said John Ramsay employs many poor in spinning, weaving, and dressing flax and manufacturing linen cloth, (a sample whereof was produced,) in such manner as to support several hundreds of poor; but that he is unable to render the Institution as extensively useful as he could wish for want of a larger capital.

Thereupon Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Mr. John Ramsay the further sum of one thousand three hundred and thirty Pounds and three Pence, for the purpose of enabling him to employ the industrious poor in this City in spinning and manufactures; and that the said Treasurer take Mr. Ramsay's receipt for that sum; the said John Ramsay to be accountable for the same to this Congress or the Committee of Safety when thereunto required, and to have the like commissions on this as on the former sum which he has employed in the same way.

On reading the Memorandum of the sureties taken of Lawrence Hartwick on the 24th of January, in the afternoon, for his appearance when called for, and his good behaviour, the Congress was informed by a Member that the said Lawrence Hartwick is long since gone on board of one of the ships-of-war.

Ordered, That his Sureties be called on to produce him; and if they do not produce him, that they be brought before this Congress.

Christopher Duyckinck, who was sent to apprehend some Pilots, late of this City, and now in the service of the Ministerial Navy, being at the door, was admitted. He says those Pilots came on shore, but with a boat with armed men for their protection; that they came on shore frequently in that manner; that they have been three times on shore since he went to endeavour to apprehend them; that without the assistance of twenty-five or thirty men with muskets, he thinks it is not probable they will be apprehended; that he thinks that number, with three or four days' provision, and properly armed and lodged, may effect the taking of them. That a Brigantine, having on board rum, sugar, and salt, was taken yesterday evening; that Francis James, the Pilot, went out in the vessel that seized and took her, and was active therein; that the Phenix has a number of boats about her.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall give such directions as he may think necessary for apprehending the said Pilots, and that that matter be committed solely to him, and Duyckinck take his directions.

Captain McIlroy, who was sent out at noon by Captain Rutgers and Captain Randall, returned; he was brought near the Chair. He says there is not any topsail vessel below but a Brigantine, which belonged to one Barns, of Elizabethtown, and which is seized by the Phenix; that four Sloop-rigged vessels (one of them very small) lie near the Phenix; that a person informed him that he had seen five sail off the Hook, and that two of them were Brigantines.

A Message was brought to Congress that Nicholas Low is ready to deliver the Gunpowder purchased of him.

Ordered, That Richard Norwood, Commissary of Colony Stores, be directed to receive and take the charge of some Gunpowder, which will be delivered to him by Mr. Nicholas Low; that he take a particular account of the quantity, and that he mark it in such manner as that it may be distinguished from the other Powder stored in the Magazine.

Congress were informed that some person in this City has now some Muskets, and other fire-arms, preserved for, and which did formerly belong to, the Ministerial Army; that any person directed by Congress to take them for the use of the troops may be informed where they are. It was the opinion and direction of Congress that Colonel McDougall go immediately and take proper measures to have them secured.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the whole residue of the Minutes of the Committee of Safety, to the 12th day of February last, inclusive.

Ordered, That it remain on file until the Congress take up the consideration of that matter.

A Letter from Colonel Curtenius, relative to a vast mass of chain of Iron which General Lee directed him to have made to be sent to the Northward, was read. He thereby informs that considerable parts of it are made, and requests directions whether he shall have the same completed.

Ordered, That Mr. Curtenius apply to Lord Stirling, (General Lee's successor in command,) and that he take Lord Stirling's directions as to that matter.

The Petition of Robert Robinson and Michael Price, of the City of New-York, Merchants, was read and filed. They thereby testify their contrition for their conduct of vending goods at a very advanced price, in violation of the Resolution of Continental Congress; and their determination strictly to conform to the regulations of Congress, and not offend their countrymen in future; and pray to be restored.

Congress came to a determination in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 9, 1776.

Robert Robinson and Michael Price, of this city, Merchants, having been duly convicted by the General Committee of Association for the City and County of New-York, of having violated a Resolution of the Continental Congress by vending goods at an exorbitant and extortionate profit; and the said Robert Robinson and Michael Price, by their petition, having declared their contrition for their offence, and their intention, for the future, to conform to the resolutions of the Continental and this Congress, and their desire to make their peace with their countrymen, and to have an opportunity of proving themselves sincere friends to the liberties of America:

* GENTLEMEN: We understand that Mr. Livingston's and our proposals for furnishing the troops of this place were this day laid before you; and that the mode Mr. Livingston proposes differs widely from what we apprehended you intended it should be done. We suppose, from this, that Mr. Livingston may offer another proposal; which, if it should be granted, we beg the same indulgence. Beside, if it can consistently be granted, we beg to cancel our former proposal, and furnish you with another by any time to-morrow, or Monday next, as you think proper.

As the providing of wood, candles, &c., is the business of the Barrack-master, we should rather not engage in it.

We are, gentlemen, your humble servants,

PETER CURTENIUS.
PETER ELTING.

March 8, 1776.

P. S. Please to observe, that the Barrackmaster is paid by the day for purchasing wood, straw, &c. It would give nothing to the publick.

their said offence, and of their intention, for the future, to act agreeable to the Resolutions of the Continental and this Congress.

And Resolved, That they be restored to the favourable opinion of their countrymen; and it is hereby recommended that they be no longer considered or treated as enemies to the liberties of America.

Ordered, That one of the Secretaries deliver a certified copy thereof to the said Robert Robinson and Michael Price, at their request, that they (according to their desire) may be enabled to publish the same in the newspapers.

Colonel McDougall moved, and was seconded by Mr. Gansevoort, that this Congress would resolve to lend Money, without interest, to proper persons for a limited time, to encourage them to build Powder-Mills in this Colony. After some time spent therein, the Congress unanimously agreed to the following Resolution, viz:

Resolved, That this Congress will lend to any person or persons who shall be recommended to this Congress or Committee of Safety by the General Committee of the Counties of Albany, Westchester, Suffolk, Dutchess, Tryon, Orange, or Ulster, the sum of one thousand Pounds, for two years, without interest, upon giving security to Isaac Roosevelt, Nathaniel Woodhull, Abraham Yates, Jun., John Thomas, Jun., Petrus Ten Broeck, John Herring, and Jacobus Bruyn, and the survivor or survivors of them, for the repayment of the same to them, for the use of this or any future Congress of this Colony: provided the person or persons who shall so apply do engage, by contract with this Congress or the Committee of Safety, to erect, within three months from the time of the said loan, a Powder-Mill of the best quality, in such place within the Colony as the General Committee of the County wherein the same is to be erected shall approve of: provided, always, that no more be erected in each of the aforementioned Counties than is hereinafter mentioned, viz: the County of Albany two, and each of the other Counties above-named one: and provided, also, that the above application be made by the first day of May next.

And Resolved, That John R. Livingston, Esq., be the person appointed, and is hereby appointed, to erect the Powder-Mills in Dutchess County, agreeable to the above Resolution.

Ordered, That some of the Members from the Counties of Albany, Suffolk, Westchester, Dutchess, Tryon, Orange, and Ulster, prepare a copy of the foregoing Resolution for encouraging the erecting of Powder-Mills for their respective County Committees; and that the Secretaries examine the said copies; and that the Members of those respective Counties forward a copy to each of their County Committees respectively.

Mr. Van Zandt informed the Congress that the Ship Rosamond, whereof Wright Southgate is Master, is laded and ready to proceed to sea on Provincial account; and requested a permit for the said Master to apply to the Captains of the Ships-of-War for their permission to pass them and proceed to sea; and, also, a permission from this Congress for the said Ship to sail. Whereupon, the two following Orders were separately made and agreed to, in the words following, to wit:

Ordered, That Wright Southgate, Master of the Ship Rosamond, be immediately permitted, and he is hereby permitted, to go down to his Majesty's Ship Phoenix and his Majesty's Ship Asia, in a boat, with such men as may be necessary to go down with the said boat.

And Ordered, That the Ship Rosamond, Wright Southgate Master, with her Cargo and Lading, be permitted to go to sea.

The Congress resumed the matter of fixing and establishing a Magazine of Provisions in Westchester County; and, after some time spent therein, Congress were of opinion the Resolution agreed on the . . . day of . . . for that purpose, is imperfect, inadequate to the end, and that the method thereby proposed will create unnecessary expense.

Ordered, That Mr. Sands, Colonel Joseph Drake, and Mr. Thomas, be a Committee to reconsider the method of establishing a Magazine of Provisions, and to report thereon.

The Committee last above-mentioned, who had withdrawn for the purpose, speedily returned, and reported the following Resolution, which was unanimously agreed to, viz:

Resolved and Ordered, That the Deputies of Westchester County purchase, and deposite in different Stores in that County, twelve hundred barrels of good salted Pork, wherever it is to be bought; and that the Deputies of Albany County purchase eighteen hundred and fifty bushels of good Peas, and send them to the Deputies of Westchester County, to be by them stored in the same manner.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of Richmond County, on the subject of regulating and arranging their Militia, and occasioned by Mr. Bancker's late motion for a supply of Gunpowder, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your Deputy (Mr. Bancker) has applied to this Congress to spare, out of their present small stock, a little powder, to be sent to some prudent person or persons in your County, for the defence of the friends to liberty and their country there. The objection to the measure is, that the Militia of your County is not formed agreeable to the regulations of the Continental and this Provincial Congress.

We therefore request you, gentlemen, to have your County divided into beats or districts, and take proper measures that the Militia of your County be formed as soon as possible, agreeable to the regulations above-mentioned; and the names of the Captains and Subalterns returned to this Congress without delay, that their commissions may be issued.

We are, respectfully, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order.

To the Chairman and Members of the Committee of Richmond County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

The Committee appointed to consider of, and report on, the Memorial of Abraham Lott, Esq., Treasurer of this Colony, appointed by the General Assembly thereof, delivered in their Report, which was read; and the same being again read by paragraphs, and amended, was resolved on, and unanimously agreed to in the words following, to wit:

1st. Resolved and Ordered, That Abraham Lott, Esq., Treasurer, and the Loan Officers of this Colony, shall receive in payment of the principal and interest that shall, from time to time, become due on the moneys put out on loan by virtue of an Act of the Governour, Council, and

General Assembly of the Colony of New-York, passed the 16th of February, 1771, entitled "An act for emitting the sum of one hundred and twenty thousand Pounds in Bills of Credit," to be put out on loan, and to appropriate the interest arising thereon to the payment of the debts of this Colony, and to such publick exigencies as the circumstances of this Colony may, from time to time, render necessary, as well the Bills of Credit heretofore issued by virtue of any law of this Colony, as those issued by order of the Congress of the United Colonies and of the Provincial Congress of this Colony.

2dly. And whereas, by virtue of the aforesaid Act, the one-tenth part of the said sum will become due, and is to be paid unto the respective Loan Officers on the third Tuesday of April next; and whereas, by reason of the unhappy war brought on us by the iniquitous attempts by the British Parliament to reduce these Colonies to a state of slavery, it may be inconvenient for the good people of this Colony, who have the said moneys on loan, to pay the said one-tenth part of the same, according to the directions of the said Act:

Resolved and Ordered, That the payment of the said one-tenth part of the principal be, and it is hereby, suspended, until the third Tuesday of April, which will be in the year of our Lord 1777; upon which day the annual payments of the one-tenth part of the said principal sum of one hundred and twenty thousand Pounds shall commence, and continue from year to year, until the whole shall be paid, anything in the said Act to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

And whereas doubts may arise in the minds of the Loan Officers about the disposition of such principal moneys as may happen to be paid in:

It is hereby Ordered, That they put the same out on loan; and that, in doing thereof, they conform, in all respects, to the directions of the said Act.

3dly. And whereas the publick exigencies of the Colony are so great as to require that all the publick revenues of the same should be appropriated to defray its expenses; and whereas the General Assembly of the Colony have, by a prorogation made on the day appointed for their meeting, been prevented from proceeding to the despatch of the ordinary business thereof; it therefore becomes necessary for the Representatives of the people in Provincial Congress to attend to the proper application of the publick moneys now in the hands of the said Abraham Lott, Esq.:

Resolved and Ordered, therefore, That the said Abraham Lott be directed, and he is hereby directed, within thirty days from this day, to lay before this Congress or the Committee of Safety, on oath, an account of all the moneys that now are, and shall then be, in his hands as Treasurer of this Colony; particularly stating to what funds they belong; and whether any and what funds are appropriated to any, and what, uses; and every other matter which shall be necessary to constitute a complete state of the Treasury of this Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Elias Nixen, the Port-Master, be, and he is permitted, to convey on board of the Ships Asia and Phoenix, and Governour's Ship, the following articles, viz:

[A Requisition of Hugh & Alexander Wallace, to send three boxes of Candles for the Governour, is the only one found.]

A Letter from Hendrick Garrison, of Richmond County, dated the 8th instant, was read and filed. He therein complains that, while attending before the Committee of said County as a witness, pursuant to summons, and while under examination, the said Committee permitted the defendants, Cornelius Martino, Richard Conner, and John Burbank, to insult and abuse said Garrison, and asking the advice and protection of Congress, he considering his situation unsafe as respects either his person or property.

A Letter from John Hall.

A Letter from Malcom Morrison, First Major to Colonel Jacobus Swartwout's Regiment of Minute-men, in Dutchess County, resigning said appointment, and recommending Major Henry Ludenton to be promoted to supply the vacancy, was read and filed.

The Commission of said Malcom Morrison, enclosed in said Letter, was filed.

A Letter from John Thomas Palmer.

A Letter from William Ellsworth, Chairman of the Committee of Safety and Observation of the Town of Kingston, setting forth that they, on the 29th day of February last, had written to General Schuyler, informing him of the inclination of Captain Elias Hasbrouck to be continued in service, and recommending said Hasbrouck for Captain, Moses Yeomans for Second Lieutenant, and Petrus W. Meyer for Ensign, in one of the four Regiments to be raised, was read and filed.

A Letter from General Schuyler to William Ellsworth, Chairman of the Kingston Committee, in answer to theirs of the 29th ultimo, respecting Captain Elias Haasbrook, and enclosed in before-mentioned Letter, was also read and filed.

Die Lunæ, 10 ho. A. M., March 11, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel P. Ten Broeck, Major Schenck.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Polhemus, Mr. Leffertse, Mr. Covenhoven.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

General Ten Broeck informed Congress that Elizabeth Dougherty was neglected to be added to the list of soldiers' wives whose husbands are now in Canada in the Continental service, and who had money advanced them on account of their husbands' pay.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius pay to the said Elizabeth Dougherty the sum of five Pounds three Shillings and four Pence, on account of her husband's pay, and transmit an account of the same to General Schuyler immediately.

Mr. John Vanderbilt, a Member of this Congress, having occasion to go into the Colonies of New-Jersey and Pennsylvania, on publick business,

Ordered, That he be permitted to go into those Colonies, and that it be, and it is hereby, recommended to all persons, to let him pass unmolested.

A Member informed the Congress that a very large Mail, with Letters for many of the inhabitants, which came by the Packets, is on board of his Majesty's Ship Asia; and that his worship the Mayor, who attended for the purpose, had informed him that Mr. Foxcroft could not safely go on board of the said Ship Asia and bring the said Mail on shore, without the permission of this Congress.

Ordered, That John Foxcroft, Esq., be, and he is hereby, permitted to go to the Ship Asia, in company with the Port-Master, to receive the Mail lately arrived from England in the Packet, and to bring the same to his office in this City, in order to deliver out the Letters.

From the Doorkeeper of the Council at the door, the Congress was informed by one of the Secretaries, through the President, that his Majesty's Council are summoned to meet this day on board of his Excellency's Ship, and requests such directions as will enable them to go on board of the Governour's Ship without molestation.

Debates arose on the said request; and the question being put, whether any such permit shall be given? It was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, to wit:

In order to give despatch to the payment of Moneys that are payable by this Congress, and to prevent the time of the Congress from being so often consumed on matters of account, the following Resolution was unanimously agreed to:

A. M., March 11.

Ordered, That Mr. Van Zandt, Captain Denning, Mr. Beekman, Colonel Brasher, and Mr. Sands, be a Committee to compose a Pay-Table for the purpose of auditing all the accounts against the Treasury of this Congress; that they, or any three of them, do endorse every account they shall pass; and that such endorsement be a sufficient voucher to the Treasurer for the payment of such account. That the said Committee do enter in a Book or Books, to be by them kept for the purpose, a regular account of all the accounts by them passed. That they be empowered to hire and employ one able and sufficient clerk, and a room for the purpose; and that this Congress will make provision for the payment thereof. That they be directed to make a separation in the Treasurer's Accounts, between those that are of a Continental nature, and those that are merely Provincial, and keep them in a proper state to be transmitted to the Continental Congress when thereunto directed by this Congress, or the Committee of Safety. That they lay before this Congress, or Committee of Safety, a state of the accounts of this Colony, from time to time, as they shall be thereunto required. That the said Committee be allowed a reasonable compensation for their services.

Ordered, That Colonel Brasher, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Scott, and Colonel John Williams, be a Committee to consider of the powers of the Committee of Safety, and report to this Congress what alterations therein, or additional powers thereto, may be necessary; and that they report thereon with all convenient speed.

The Committee of King's County having this day met, they recommended the following gentlemen to be appointed the Field and Staff-Officers of their Regiment of Militia, viz: Rutger Van Brunt, Colonel; Nicholas Covenhoven, Lieutenant-Colonel; Johannes Titus, First Major; John Vanderbilt, Second Major; George Carpenter, Adjutant; and Nicholas Covenhoven, Quartermaster.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen in the offices to which they were respectively elected, and that they be delivered to John Leffertse, Esq., agreeable to his request.

Sundry matters were proposed to Congress as useful and necessary to be done at and beyond Sandy-Hook, for the protection of trade. The Congress were unanimously of opinion that those matters will be most properly and beneficially managed by a Marine Committee appointed out of this Congress.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Mr. Randall, Mr. Rutgers, Captain Denning, Mr. Van Zandt, and Mr. Hallett, be, and they are hereby, appointed a Marine Committee, with full powers to take such measures, and give such directions, and employ such persons for the protection or advantage of trade, as they may think proper, useful, or necessary. That they apply to this Congress when they may be in doubt, or want advice or directions. That they be empowered to keep such matters secret as they think necessary, until they are executed. And that the said Marine Committee have the charge, care, and direction of fitting out the Sloop Bishop, according to the order made on the . . . instant. That they be also authorized to give directions as to all imports already arrived, or that may arrive in any of the Colonies on the account of this Colony; and that any three or more of them be a quorum for the purposes aforesaid.

The Congress resumed the consideration of a draft of sundry Resolves for an election of Deputies for a Provincial Congress. The same were read; and being read again by paragraphs, debates arose on that part of the draft which proposes that Associators only shall have a vote. After some time spent therein, and debates thereon, the question was put, whether non-Associators shall be permitted to vote? And it was carried in the affirmative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.	For the Negative.
3 Albany.	2 Suffolk.
2 Dutchess.	—
4 New-York.	2 votes.
2 King's.
2 Orange.
2 Ulster.
2 Tryon.
2 Cumberland.
2 Westchester.
2 Charlotte.
23 votes.

That part of the Resolves which proposed the election by ballot being then read, debates arose thereon. After some time spent therein, it is agreed, that, as the non-Associators are allowed to vote, that the election be not made by ballot.

Those two material points being settled,

Ordered, That Mr. Smith and Mr. Gansevoort take with them the said plan for an Election; and that they make amendments, or prepare a new draft of a plan, and resolves for that purpose, and report the same this afternoon.

A Certificate, signed by the President, and attested by both Secretaries, was given to Mr. Van Zandt for the Ship Rosamond, in the words following, to wit:

It is hereby certified, that the Ship Rosamond, whereof Captain Wright Southgate is Master, has been laded by order of the Provincial Congress of this Colony on their account, and is now proceeding to sea on her voyage on the account and at the risk of this Colony of New-York.

Mr. Van Zandt produced a Letter from ——— Snell, Master of the Sloop Hampden, informing that he is arrived at Philadelphia, and specifying his cargo brought on account of this Colony.

Ordered, That the Marine Committee give directions and take the management of that Vessel and Cargo.

A Letter from Malcom Morrison, Esq., and a Petition of Archibald Campbell, of Pauling's Precinct, in Dutchess County, complaining of great irregularities and outrages against the said Archibald Campbell, by some persons from Connecticut, were severally read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

—New-York, March 11, 1776.

"SIR: I make free to inform you that a number of people from Connecticut came to the house of Mr. Archibald Campbell, in my neighbourhood, on the 28th ultimo, to dispossess him of his farm by force. Upon hearing of which, I went there, and found about one dozen persons, some of whom were armed, carrying his furniture into the street. I expostulated with them on their doings, and told them if they did not desist, I must call the posse to suppress them. They, thinking themselves not sufficiently strong to proceed, left off. I then asked them what caused them to act in the manner they had done. They told me they were determined to repossess all the people who had been turned off their places some years past, as the lands belonged to Connecticut. I did not think it prudent to call aid to secure them, but advised them to return, as the mode they took to settle any controversy that might be pending, was unjustifiable; upon which they went off, but said they would return with greater force. A number of others have been warned to remove from their farms.

"I believe it would be advisable to lay the affair before our Provincial Congress, and, if possible, have the matter stopped, as I am apprehensive, if something is not done to prevent them, we shall have a second Prendergast affair in our County.

"I am, with deference, sir, your most humble servant,

"MALCOM MORRISON.

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress now sitting in the City of New-York."

"The Petition of ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL, of PAULING'S Precinct, in the County of DUTCHESS, and Province of NEW-YORK, Gentleman, humbly sheweth:

"That on the 28th day of February now last past, a body of men, in number about thirteen, from the Colony of Connecticut, in a hostile and riotous manner, with arms and clubs, did proceed to the dwelling-house and farm of your Petitioner, lying in Pauling's Precinct aforesaid, and did then and there unjustly, and without any colour of equity, take away part of his household goods and furniture, leaving them in the street, or road, by which means they were much exposed, with intention to dispossess your Petitioner of his right and property.

"That they proceeded in the same riotous and illegal manner to dispossess others living in the said Pauling's Precinct of their goods and lands, without having any legal authority for that purpose.

"That upon the interposition of the Magistrates they dispersed, and were returning home, but threw out many menaces and threatenings that they would soon be back again with a number sufficient to put their wicked designs in execution; by means whereof, as well your Petitioner as many other well-disposed and peaceable persons living in said Pauling's Precinct are kept in continual fears and alarms, and are very uneasy, lest they should be deprived of their possessions and goods. And that, unless the honourable Congress make use of some means to discourage and prevent such mischievous doings, that part of the Province will be kept in great confusion.

"Your Petitioner, therefore, humbly prays, as well for himself as in behalf of others, inhabitants of said Pauling's Precinct, that the honourable Provincial Congress will take the matter under their mature consideration, and devise, order, and direct such ways and means as to them in their great wisdom shall seem most fit and convenient, in order for the effectual suppression and discouragement of such illegal proceedings.

"And your Petitioner shall ever pray, &c.

"ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL.

"Fredericksburgh, February 29, 1776."

Ordered, That the said Letter and Petition be referred to the Members of this Congress from Dutchess County, to write to the Committee of their County or the Committee of Pauling's District, for particular information on the matters mentioned in the said Letter and Petition, and requesting such Committee to transmit Affidavits or other proof of such facts as shall be proved to them, to this Congress, or the Committee of Safety; and that the said Members from Dutchess County procure such further information in the premises as they may conveniently obtain, and make report thereof to this Congress, or Committee of Safety, with all convenient speed.

The Congress were informed that William Douglass, Andrew Van Tuyl, and Isaac Simonson, had made Affidavit as to the loss of the Pilot-Boat Hampden, in the manner formerly directed for the other owners.

The said Affidavit being read and filed, is in the words following, to wit:

* * * * *

Ordered, That William Douglass, Andrew Van Tuyl, and Isaac Simonson, be paid for one quarter part of the Pilot-Boat called the Hampden, the sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds; and for one-quarter part of the wages or hire of the said Boat and her Mariners, the sum of twenty-two Pounds ten Shillings, on their executing a proper conveyance for one quarter part of the said Boat, and delivering over the papers relating to the said Boat to Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt; and entering into covenants to Mr. Van Zandt, that if any moneys shall be allowed for the said Boat, or for the service or detention of the said Boat while employed in his Majesty's service, that they will pay one quarter part thereof to Mr. Van Zandt; and also a covenant, that if it shall hereafter appear that the said Boat was taken by collusion, or any deceit of the master or owners, or either of them, that then they will repay the said moneys to the said Mr. Van Zandt. *

And Ordered, That a copy hereof be a sufficient warrant to Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, to pay the said moneys.

Mr. Smith informed the Congress that — Barnard, of Elizabethtown, is in this city; that he came this day from on board of the Ship Phoenix; that he says Captain Parker informed him that he was about fitting out his Schooner Tender with carriage-guns and other necessaries, to make her a vessel of force, to be stationed and cruise off Egg-Harbour.

The Congress are of opinion that the said Schooner may be very detrimental to the trade of this Colony and the neighbouring Colonies, and at this critical juncture in particular, as ammunition, arms, and other necessary stores, may thereby be seized and prevented from being landed.

Therefore, Ordered, That the Marine Committee of this Congress take the examination of Mr. Barnard into consideration, and ascertain what may be necessary to be done by this Congress, and report thereon with all possible speed.

Mr. Smith Ramadge, at the door, at the request of a Member was admitted.

He informed the Congress that he has a vessel nearly

Whereas the Pilot-Boat named the Hampden, whereof the said parties of the first part owned a quarter part, was lately employed by order of the said Jacobus Van Zandt and others to proceed to the eastward of Sandy-Hook, for such legal purposes as the master of the said Pilot-Boat was directed to perform or do; and on the return of the said Pilot-Boat towards the city of New-York, she was seized by the commander of his Majesty's Ship Nautilus, and detained as a tender: and whereas they (the said William Douglass, Andrew Van Tuyl, and Isaac Simonson) have been paid for one quarter part of the said Pilot-Boat named the Hampden, the sum of one hundred and fifty pounds, lawful money of New-York; and for one quarter part of the hire and wages of the said Pilot-Boat, and the mariners employed on board of her while she was employed in the service aforesaid, the further sum of twenty-two pounds ten shillings, lawful money aforesaid:

Now, therefore, this Indenture witnesseth: That for and in consideration of the said sum of one hundred and seventy-two pounds ten shillings, to them (the said William Douglass, Andrew Van Tuyl, and Isaac Simonson) in hand paid, they have sold, assigned, and delivered to the said Jacobus Van Zandt their quarter part of the said Pilot-Boat named the Hampden, with all her appurtenances; and they do hereby sell, assign, and deliver the same to the said Jacobus Van Zandt, his executors, administrators, and assigns. And for and in consideration of the said sum of one hundred and seventy-two pounds ten shillings above-mentioned, they, the said William Douglass, Andrew Van Tuyl, and Isaac Simonson, for themselves, their heirs, executors, and administrators, jointly and severally, do covenant, grant, and agree, to and with the said Jacobus Van Zandt, his executors, administrators, and assigns, in manner following, that is to say: That if any sum of money, wages, hire, or other reward, shall be paid, allowed, received, or recovered for the said Pilot-Boat named the Hampden, or for the use of the said Pilot-Boat while employed as a tender, or while employed in his Majesty's service, or while she is detained from her owners, that they, the said William Douglass, Andrew Van Tuyl, and Isaac Simonson, or one of them, will pay one quarter part thereof to the said Jacobus Van Zandt, his executors, administrators, or assigns.

And, also, that if it shall hereafter appear that the said Pilot-Boat, named the Hampden, was taken on account of any information given with respect to her by the master or owners of the said Boat, or either of them, or by collusion, or by any deceit of the said master or owners, or either of them, that then and in such case they, the said William Douglass, Andrew Van Tuyl, and Isaac Simonson, or one of them, will well and truly repay to the said Jacobus Van Zandt, his executors, administrators, or assigns, the said sum of one hundred and seventy-two pounds ten shillings, without any delay, deduction, or abatement whatsoever.

In witness whereof, the said parties to these presents have to these presents interchangeably set their hands and seals the day and year in this Indenture first written.

WILLIAM DOUGLASS,
ANDREW VAN TUYL,
ISAAC SIMONSON.

Sealed and delivered in the presence of us:
JOHN LOVE,
ISAAC BRINCKERHOFF.

laden with flaxseed, intended for Ireland, by permission of the Continental Congress; that she will soon be ready to go to sea; that she lies at a heavy expense; that if she does not sail by next Friday, he must pay eight pounds per day demurrage; that, by information received this day, Captain Parker will not suffer any vessels to pass him to sea; and that he is of opinion that the vessel he is lading is proceeding on such a voyage as that he can obtain permission for her to sail, if he can be permitted to go down to Captain Parker.

Mr. Ramadge withdrew.

The Congress unanimously agree that he have leave to go down to Captain Parker with the Port-Master, if he is willing to be on oath not to discover any matters that will be prejudicial to the City and Colony.

Mr. Ramadge called in; thinks it proper that he should be sworn. Thereupon, an Oath was administered to him in the words following, to wit:

You swear that you will not, directly or indirectly, give any intelligence concerning the preparations that are making for the defence of this City and Colony, to any person on board of the ships-of-war in the harbour; nor will you carry on board any letter or paper until you have first read the contents, and find that it does not contain any intelligence concerning the same. So help you God.

Mr. Smith Ramadge being sworn in Congress, a Certificate or Passport was given to him in the words following, to wit:

Ordered, That Mr. Smith Ramadge be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board his Majesty's Ship Phoenix, and to return, in company with the Port-Master, he having been sworn that he will not communicate on board the said ship any intelligence relative to the preparations making for the defence of this Colony, or carry any Letters or Papers relative thereto.

A Return of Captain Westfall, and the other Officers of his Company, to wit: the First Company of the First Regiment in Dutchess County, was read and filed.

"Peter Westfall, Captain; Wilhelmus Smith, First Lieutenant; Christopher Snyder, Second Lieutenant; Abraham Welch, Ensign."

Ordered, That Commissions issue to the gentlemen thereby returned as elected.

The Congress then resumed the consideration of a Plan for the election of Deputies to form a Provincial Congress, to meet when the present Provincial Congress will expire. The same was read; and being again read, paragraph by paragraph, amended, corrected, and approved.

Ordered, That a fair copy thereof be engrossed by the Secretaries; and that the said Plan be again read and taken into further consideration to-morrow morning.

Die Martis, 10 ho. A. M., March 12, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Beckman, Mr. E. Bancker, Mr. Smith, Colonel Lott, Mr. Scott, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Randall, Mr. Roosevelt.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Yates, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Gelston, Mr. Hobart.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Gilbert Drake, Colonel L. Graham, Mr. Thomas.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker, Mr. Lawrence.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Colonel Hay.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Major Schenck.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus, Mr. Leffertse.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Mr. Gansevoort moved, and was seconded by Mr. Yates, in the words following, to wit:

"I move that the money arising from the duty of Excise in the respective Counties of Albany and Tryon, within this Colony, in virtue of an Act of the Governour, the Council, and the General Assembly of this Colony, entitled 'An Act to lay a duty of Excise on strong Liquors in this Colony, and to appropriate the money arising therefrom'—may be appropriated by the County Committees of the said several Counties, towards defraying the contingent charges of the said Committees, if the said Committees respectively shall think proper; and that a full power be given to the said Committees, respectively, to nominate and appoint Commissioners of Excise in their respective City and Counties, with full power to such Commissioners to exercise the said office, and receive the like rewards as is allowed to the Commissioners appointed by the said Act; and that the said Commissioners, before they enter upon the execution of the powers and authorities vested in them, shall respectively enter into bonds to the Chairman of the said Committee, in the several sums affixed by the said Act to the respective Counties, and in the same condition."

Debates arose on the said motion, and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.	For the Negative.
3 Albany.—General Ten Broeck	2 Suffolk.
2 Tryon. dissenting.	4 New-York.
—	2 Orange.
5 votes.	2 Ulster.
	2 Cumberland.

	2 Westchester.

Ordered, therefore, That the said motion be rejected.

Mr. Hobart then moved, and was seconded by Colonel Allison, in the words following, to wit:

"I move that this Congress do resolve that the Treasurer of this Congress be directed to advance, out of any Moneys that shall be in his hands, to the several County Committees of the Counties of New-York, Albany, Ulster, Orange, Dutchess, Westchester, Richmond, King's, and Suffolk, or their order, any sum that may be necessary to defray the incidental charges of their respective Counties, provided the same does not exceed the sum of five hundred Pounds; and that the same shall be laid on each respective County, with the first Moneys that shall be raised by a Colony Tax, for the purpose of sinking the Bills of Credit emitted by the Continental and the Provincial Congress."

Debates arose on the said motion, and, after some time spent therein,

Ordered, That the same be committed to Mr. Smith, to frame such Resolve thereon as he may think will be most agreeable to a majority of the Deputies of this Congress.

A Member informed the Congress that Mr. Foxcroft is under apprehensions that the Order of this Congress, made yesterday, permitting him to go to the Ship Asia, for the Mail, from England, and to bring the same on shore, may be considered as obligatory on him to bring the same on shore; and that he may, in the said Mail, receive instructions from his superior in office to the contrary.

Thereupon, Resolved, That the Order of this Congress, of yesterday, for permitting John Foxcroft, Esq., to go to his Majesty's Ship Asia for the Mail from England, was by no means intended to be obligatory on that gentlemen to do any act contrary to his instructions, or to oblige him to bring the said Mail on shore, but only to operate as a permission to him to go on board, and return with the said Mail if he should think proper.

Mr. Randall informed the Congress that a parcel of Soldiers were some time since quartered in the house where Mr. Lambertus Deronde, one of the Ministers of the Dutch Church, had for some years resided; that at the time the said Soldiers were quartered there, Mr. Deronde had a number of long Holland pipes, some wine, a parcel of Dutch Sermons of his own composition, and sundry other articles in the said house, which were used or destroyed by said Soldiers.

Ordered, That Mr. Randall, Mr. Anthony Rutgers, and Mr. Hobart, be a Committee to inquire by whose default Mr. Deronde has suffered such loss, and to what sum his said losses amount in the whole; and that they report with all convenient speed.

Mr. Randall, from the Marine Committee, reported that the said Committee are of opinion, on the information received from Mr. Bernard, of Elizabethtown, and from other circumstances known to them, that a Letter should be immediately written to the honourable Continental Congress, requesting that they order an Armed Vessel fitted out, to join one from this port, for the protection of trade, to cruise between the Capes of Delaware and Sandy-Hook; and they had prepared a draft of a Letter for that purpose.

Thereupon, the draft of a Letter reported by the Marine Committee was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 12, 1776.

SIR: As we are informed, from undoubted authority, that Captain Parker, of his Majesty's Ship Phoenix, is now fitting out a small schooner, (Bermuda brigantine,) of eight or ten carriage-guns, and forty men, for the purpose of intercepting vessels between the Capes of Delaware and Sandy-Hook; and as we have already given orders for the immediate fitting out an armed vessel for the protection of our trade that way; we think it necessary to acquaint you that such an one from Philadelphia will also be necessary, to be immediately ready to meet ours for this purpose; and that she be of such a draft of water as that she may run into Barnegat and Egg-Harbour. It is also necessary to be immediately informed by you what your Marine Committee regulations are, respecting the wages, &c., of officers and men, that we may regulate ourselves accordingly.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Mr. Thomas Buchanan, of the City of New-York, Merchant, being at the door, was admitted at the request of a Member, who had previously mentioned his business. Mr. Buchanan requested permission to go to the Ship Phoenix to apply to Captain Parker for permission for a Brigantine belonging entirely to Merchants in Glasgow, and bound there, to go to sea. Mr. Thomas Buchanan having first heard the form of an oath, as entered in the Minutes on the 11th instant, read, was duly sworn, in the words therein contained.

Ordered, That Mr. Thomas Buchanan be, and he is hereby permitted, to go on board of his Majesty's Ship Phoenix, (in company with the Port-Master,) he having been first duly sworn that he will not communicate on board any of the Ships-of-War in this Harbour any intelligence relative to the preparations making for the defence of this City or Colony, nor carry any Letters or Papers on board relative thereto.

Daniel Whitehead Kissam, one of the Committee of Great-Neck and Cow-Neck, being at the door, was admitted. He in substance informed that Mr. Isaac Sears, with a number of men armed, had been in Queen's County, imposing a very solemn Test on sundry of the inhabitants, and amongst others on Captain Mott, who had signed the Association, made a public submission, and had been restored; that this measure had created great uneasiness in the County.

Mr. Kissam also delivered the following Letter from the said Committee, which was read, and is in the following words, to wit:

* * * * *

The said Letter being read,

Ordered, That the Secretaries bring to the Chamber, in the afternoon, a printed copy of the late Resolutions of the Continental Congress, relating to Tories, or persons disaffected; and Mr. Kissam was requested to attend again at six o'clock, in the evening.

Mr. Hobart, from the Committee appointed to report a Resolution for the procuring of Blankets and Arms, delivered in their Report; which was read, amended, resolved on, and unanimously agreed to, in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 12, 1776.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Committees of the several Counties, Cities, Manors, Towns, Precincts, and Districts within this Colony, to purchase, for the use of the Continental Troops now raising for the defence of the Colony, good and sufficient Blankets, at the most reasonable prices, not exceeding two Dollars for each, and to deliver the same to the commanding Officer of any Company of said Troops who shall apply for them, whose certificate of such delivery shall be a sufficient voucher. And it is further recommended to the said Committees, to purchase good Muskets or Fire-locks, of as large bores as possible, for the use aforesaid, and to deliver them as before directed. And the Committee are hereby desired, with all convenient speed, to send, with proper vouchers, their accounts to this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, in order for payment.

A true copy from the Minutes:

ROBERT BENSON, Secretary.

Ordered, That the Secretaries get one hundred copies thereof printed, by ten of the clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Martis, 3 ho. P. M., March 12, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Gelston.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Colonel Hay.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Lieutenant-Colonel Lewis Graham informed the Congress that Colonel Drake's men, and the other Troops stationed at Horne's Hook, near Hell-gate, lodge in an uncomfortable manner for want of Cribbs for their Beds; and that it is necessary that a Carpenter be sent there to make Cribbs for their Beds.

Ordered, That Colonel L. Graham procure a Carpenter to go to Horne's Hook to make Cribbs for the men—one of the company of Artificers, if he can be spared; and, if not, any other proper Carpenter.

Mr. Hobart informed the Congress, that Major Malcom, who was sent to dismantle the Light-House, was returned, and had executed that matter effectually, with the assistance of Colonel George Taylor, and some of his men; that Major Malcom found it impossible to take out and save the Glass, as well for want of tools as by reason of the time necessary for that purpose, and was therefore obliged to break it; that Major Malcom had delivered the Lamps and Oil, two Tackle-Falls and Blocks, removed from the Light-House, to Colonel George Taylor, and taken a receipt for the same; which was read and filed.

"Middletown, March 8, 1776.

"Received from William Malcom, eight copper lamps, two tackle-falls and blocks, and three casks and a part of a cask of oil—being articles brought from the Light-House on Sandy-Hook—and which I will deliver to him, or to the order of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York, when called for.

"GEORGE TAYLOR, Colonel."

Daniel Whitehead Kissam, one of the Committee of Cow-Neck and Great-Neck, in Queen's County, being examined in Congress, says: That on Saturday last, at the house of Richard Smith, in Herricks, he met Captain Jacob Mott; that the said Mott informed him that he had been apprehended by order of Colonel Sears, and had been sworn; that this examinant there saw a copy of the oath which was administered to the said Jacob Mott, and others; that this examinant asked the said Jacob Mott why he did not produce to Colonel Sears his restoration or clearance from the Congress; that the said Jacob Mott said he had offered to show it to Mr. Sears, but that he would not look at it. That the examinant has been informed by James Cornell, Francis Davenport, and Jonas Valentine, severally, that they had been sworn; that Mr. Sears had with him, as he was informed, a number of armed soldiers; and that the said soldiers brought up the people to be sworn. That the Committee of Cow-Neck and Great-Neck are much dissatisfied at this proceeding, and think there is no safety; that the people of Hempstead, and at the South-side, whom he has conversed with, are distressed; and that he is of opinion that such proceedings tend to convert Whigs to be Tories.

Mr. Kissam withdrew.

Mr. Randall thereupon moved, and was seconded by Mr. Yates, that Mr. Sears be requested to attend this Congress, and inform by whose order he undertook and transacted the said matters in Queen's County.

Debates arose on the said motion, and a considerable time was spent therein. The further consideration thereof is postponed till to-morrow morning.

The Congress then proceeded to read the Proposals for entering into Contracts for the maintenance of the Continental Troops in this Colony; and also a Letter on that subject from Curtenius and Elting, and another Letter relative thereto from Abraham Livingston.

After having heard the whole read, and some time spent therein, the further consideration thereof is postponed for the present.

The Congress then adjourned to ten o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Colonel McDougall delivered in an Account Current of sundry sums of money by him advanced to Messengers, Expresses, for Sloop-hire, and to Printers, for services on the publick account, and for the use of the Colony; which was read and filed. The Receipts and Vouchers attending the said Account, and therein referred to, were read. By said Account Current and Vouchers, it appears that a balance of one hundred and eleven Pounds six Shillings and one Penny half-Penny is due thereon to Colonel McDougall.

Therefore, Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Colonel McDougall one hundred and eleven Pounds six Shillings and one Penny half-Penny, in full, for the balance of that Account, and take his receipt for the same.

For the Affirmative.

New-York, 4 votes, Colonel McDougall and Mr. A. Rutgers dissenting.

Therefore, the same being resolved on and agreed, was ordered to be entered in the Minutes, in the words following, to wit:

March 13, 1776.

Whereas the several County Committees in this Colony may have occasion to borrow Money to enable them to defray the contingent charges they are, or may be put to, in support of the cause of the United Colonies against the iniquitous attempts of the British Ministry and Parliament to enslave this Continent; and whereas the imposition of Taxes on the inhabitants of this Colony, to enable the County Committees to pay the said contingent charges, may be very inconvenient at this time; this Congress, from an earnest desire to encourage the friends to liberty in supporting the common cause, do resolve to advance, on loan, out of the Colony Treasury, to each County Committee a sum of money not exceeding the sums following, for the purpose of paying the charges aforesaid, and of making such allowances to the Deputies in Provincial Congress as the respective County Committees shall judge proper; that is to say: To the City and County of New-York, the sum of twelve hundred Pounds; to the City and County of Albany, the sum of eight hundred Pounds; to the County of Suffolk, the sum of four hundred and sixty Pounds; to the County of Richmond, the sum of one hundred and twenty-nine Pounds; to King's County, the sum of two hundred Pounds; to the County of Ulster, the sum of three hundred and sixty Pounds; to the County of Orange, the sum of two hundred Pounds; to the County of Westchester, the sum of four hundred and thirty Pounds; to the County of Tryon, the sum of four hundred Pounds; to the County of Cumberland, the sum of one hundred Pounds; to the County of Charlotte, the sum of one hundred Pounds; to the County of Dutchess, the sum of four hundred and twenty Pounds. And it is understood that the sums of money which several of the Counties have already received out of the Treasury for their particular purposes, shall be deducted by the Treasurer out of the respective sums allowed to such County in the foregoing resolutions, and that the security given for such sums be delivered up. And it is

Resolved and Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., Treasurer of this Congress, shall and do pay to the Chairman of each respective County Committee in this Colony, such sum or sums of money as the said Committees shall, from time to time, apply for, to discharge the contingent charges aforesaid of each respective County, provided the sum or sums of money, so applied for, shall not, in the whole, amount to more than the sum hereinbefore allotted to each respective County; and that an order of each respective County Committee, signed by the Chairman, and attested by the Clerk of the said Committee, with a receipt from the person in whose favour such order shall be drawn, shall be to the said Treasurer a sufficient voucher for the amount of the said order.

And it is further Resolved, That each respective County in this Colony shall stand charged, and be accountable to the Treasurer of this Congress, for such sum and sums of money as the said Treasurer shall advance to each respective County Committee, pursuant to the foregoing resolutions; and that the same shall be raised and repaid into the Treasury of this Congress by Tax or Assessment on the inhabitants of each respective County, when thereunto required by this or any future Congress of this Colony.

The Congress then proceeded to consider of a Plan for constituting a Committee of Safety during their next intended adjournment, and to settle the powers of the said Committee. A part of the draft of the said Plan was read; and that part of the said Plan which forms the Constitution of the said Committee, and the first fifteen powers given to the said Committee, were read, paragraph by paragraph, and agreed to, except by Colonel McDougall, Mr. Rhea, Mr. Hobart, and Mr. Moore, who dissent to, and disapprove of the Constitution or method of forming the said Committee, and request that their dissent may be entered.

Messrs. Scott, Hobart, and McDougall, informed the President that they had received a message from a gentleman, requesting to see them on some matters of publick importance. They thereupon, with leave, withdrew, to return without delay.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall, Mr. Yates, and Mr. Hobart, be a Committee to consider what Manufactures may be necessary for the convenience and defence of this Colony, and to report thereon with all convenient speed.

Messrs. Scott, Hobart, and McDougall, returned and reported that it was Lord Stirling who had sent the message, upon which they had obtained leave to go out of the Congress. That Lord Stirling, as Commander of the forces here, had received a Letter, by order of General Washington, from Stephen Moylan, his Aid-de-Camp, informing that the Ministerial Army are embarking from Boston, and that his Excellency has good reason to imagine that New-York will be the place of their destination. That the said Letter was also accompanied with a copy of an application of the Selectmen of the town. That Lord Stirling had, by them, sent those papers to this Congress, and requested that they might be returned to him. The said Letter was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Cambridge, March 9, 1776.

“SIR: I have it in command from his Excellency General Washington, to inform you that, in consequence of his determination to possess himself of the Height at Dorchester, a cannonade and bombardment was begun on Saturday night last on the town of Boston, continued on Sunday night, and on Monday night. A vast number of shot and shells were thrown into the town, under the cover of which the intended purpose was effected. On the enemy perceiving next morning that we had taken post, they were all hurry and bustle embarking their troops (as was expected and wished for) to attack us; but the violent storm which came on that day prevented them, and disappointed us, who were prepared to give them a warm reception. The possession of these Heights are preparatory to our forming a fort upon Nook's Hill, which commands the south of Boston, and to which their shipping will be much exposed. This they seem to be well aware of, and are now making every preparation for moving off. Captain Erwin, escaped from town the night before last, assures us that this is their intention. It is corroborated by a message from the Selectmen of that town to his Excellency, a copy of which you have enclosed.

“These informations will not prevent the General from proceeding in his advances to the town; so that, if they do not move off, he is determined to force them to a battle, or make that town so hot that they will have but little rest therein.

“His Excellency has good reason to imagine that New-York will be the place of their destination. He therefore desires that you will exert yourself to the utmost in preparing for their reception. He has ordered the armed schooners to be in readiness to attend their motions, and give the earliest intelligence of the course they steer; by which intelligence his motions will be governed. If they steer west, you may expect a large reinforcement from his Army, and, in all probability, the main body will soon follow. You will please to communicate this to the Provincial Congress or Convention, who, the General doubts not, will co-operate with you in using every endeavour to prevent their forming a lodgment before his Excellency can come or send to your assistance. The fate of America depends upon this campaign; and the success of this campaign will a good deal depend upon your exerting yourselves with vigour upon this occasion.

“I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

“STEPHEN MOYLAN, Aid-de-Camp.

“To the Commanding Officer of the American Forces at New-York.”

“Boston, March 8, 1776.

“As his Excellency General Howe is determined to leave the town with the troops under his command, a number of the respectable inhabitants, being anxious for its preservation and safety, have applied to General Robertson for this purpose, who, at their request, has communicated the same to his Excellency General Howe, who has assured him that he has no intention of destroying the town, unless the troops under his command are molested during their embarkation or at their departure, by the armed force without; which declaration he gave General Robertson leave to communicate to the inhabitants. If such an opposition should take place, we have the greatest reason to expect the town will be exposed to entire destruction. As our fears are quieted with regard to General Howe's intentions, we beg we may have some assurances that so dreadful a calamity may not be brought on by any measures without.

"As a testimony of the truth of the above, we have signed our names to this paper, carried out by Messrs. Thomas and Jonathan Amory and Peter Johannot, who have, at the earnest entreaties of the inhabitants, through the Lieutenant-Governour, solicited a flag of truce for this purpose.

"JOHN SCOLLAY,
"TIMOTHY NEWELL,
"THOMAS MARSHALL,
"SAMUEL AUSTIN."

Ordered, That the Secretaries keep copies of the Letter of Stephen Moylan, and of the Application of the Selectmen of Boston; and that they return the original Letter, and the copy received from Lord Stirling, with all possible despatch.

Mr. Scott informed the Congress that Lord Stirling requests that a Committee of this Congress may be appointed to confer with him on sundry matters relative to the defence of this City and Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Scott, Mr. Randall, Colonel McDougall, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Hobart, be a Committee of this Congress to confer with Lord Stirling; and that they report the result of such conference with all convenient speed.

The Congress conceiving that the intelligence received from Cambridge renders it necessary to have a Magazine of Provisions immediately laid in store,

Ordered, That Colonel Gilbert Drake immediately repair to Westchester County, and purchase twelve hundred barrels of the best Pork, and have the same safely stored, agreeable to the resolve of this Congress of the 9th day of March instant. That he take with him from New-York a sworn Inspector and repacker of Pork, to inspect and repack the same; and that he purchase and store, at the cheapest rate in his power, Flour sufficient for the use of five thousand Men for a month.

A Letter from Major-General Schuyler, dated the 6th day of March instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, March 6, 1776.

"SIR: I take the liberty to remind you of the necessity of forwarding, without the least delay, the naval stores which I did myself the honour to request of you in my former letters.

"A heavy rain has fallen within these two days and broke up Hudson's River as far down as Half-Moon. A few warm days, I hope, will clear the river of ice in all its extent.

"Please to order up ten sets of pump-boxes. I fear it will be impossible to find clothing at this place for Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment. I wish, therefore, that what can be procured may be sent up the soonest possible.

"I am, sir, with esteem and respect, your most obedient humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To Colonel Woodhull, President, &c."

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius, as Commissary, procure ten sets of Pump-Boxes, and forward the same to General Schuyler with all possible despatch.

Francis Lewis, Esq., a Delegate for this Colony in Continental Congress, informed this Congress that the subject of commissioning private Ships-of-War and Letters of Marque was in contemplation in Congress; and that the Delegates for this Colony requested the sense of this Congress relative thereto. Congress took the same into consideration, and agreed that it is the opinion of this Congress that such a measure is very right and proper; and Mr. Lewis was informed of the same, and requested to inform the other Delegates of their opinion in this particular.

A Letter from Captain Daniel Denton, relative to his Company raised for the Continental service, and now ready for duty, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, March 13, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Having received a warrant from your honourable House for the purpose of inlisting a company of men in Orange County, to act in one of the four battalions raising within this Province, for the service of the United Colonies, I beg leave to inform you that I have my company complete as to number, and that I have inlisted a number of genteel young fellows out of reputable families, who would choose to clothe themselves entirely; receive the value of some things proposed to be given them—such as hats, shoes, stockings, &c., in cash; and beg your indulgence in that respect.

"Some of the men would willingly find their own guns, if they are not already provided; but the most of them are without that article.

"I am now in town, waiting the direction of Congress.

"I am, respectfully, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

"DANIEL DENTON.

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York."

Ordered, That Captain Denton be informed that such men in his Company as will provide themselves with any articles promised to be furnished to the Troops by Congress at publick expense, shall be allowed for the same the prices fixed by the Continental Congress; and that Captain Denton be requested to inform his men that, by the terms of inlistment, they are to provide their own Arms and Accoutrements.

A Letter from Robert Livingston, Esq., offering to the publick the use of his Furnace and hands, to cast Cannon for the defence of the country, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Manor Livingston, March 2, 1776.

"SIR: I did myself the honour to answer your letter of the 25th of January on the 5th of February, and sent it by my cousin, (Gilbert Livingston), who promised me to deliver it; advising that my furnace would be ready to begin her blast early in April, and that the Committee should be very welcome to have the use of her, with all my stock and hands, to cast guns, or any other implements of war, provided they could procure proper and skilful men who understood the casting and moulding of them, for that I had none about my works. Since which I have received no answer. I am now to inform you that the time draws near that we must cut the hearth and put it in; which, possibly, may not suit the casting of great guns, as we shall do it in such a manner as to suit our business. I wish to have your answer before the 15th current, that I may know how to conduct myself.

"I am, sir, your most humble servant,

"ROBERT LIVINGSTON.

"To Mr. Joseph Hallett."

The Congress took the said Letter into consideration; and, considering that Cannon are already making in another Colony for the Continental Ships-of-War, and that it is not probable any other Cannon will be cast in this Colony than the few additional Cannon that may be wanted for its own defence, and that they have not proper Artificers now remaining in the Colony for that business, are of opinion that it will not be proper to accept of Mr. Livingston's generous offer, as it may do him a very great injury.

Ordered, That Colonel Brasher prepare and report a draft of an Answer to Mr. Livingston's said Letter.

A draft of an Answer to the Letter of Robert Livingston, Esq., was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit :

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 13, 1776.

SIR : This day your letter of the 2d instant came to hand. After returning you our thanks for the offer you have made us of your furnace, for the purpose of casting artillery, we beg leave to inform you that we conceive the season of the year is too far advanced to admit of our sending up a proper person to determine whether your furnace is so constructed and situated as to answer the end we had in view. The Committee of Safety have informed us that, in your first letter in answer to ours, you had some doubts on that head. When the Committee of Safety wrote to you, it was from an apprehension that heavy artillery might be wanted ; since which you have doubtless been informed of the manner in which a supply has been obtained. To alter your works only for the purpose of procuring a few pieces of cannon, if it were practicable, would not be worth while to desire it on our part, would be injurious to you, and inconsistent with the high sense we entertain of your attachment to the rights of your country.

We are, sir, with great esteem, your most humble servants.

By order.

To Robert Livingston, Esq.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A long Letter from Colonel Abraham Hasbrouck, at Kingston, in Ulster County, alleging that he is superseded in his rank as an Officer in the Militia, was read and filed.

Another very long Letter from said Colonel Abraham Hasbrouck, Johannes Snyder, and the other gentlemen lately appointed to be Field and Staff-Officers of the Northern Regiment in Ulster County, and covering all the Field and Staff-Officers of that Regiment, was also read and filed.

The gentlemen who wrote the last above-mentioned Letter, amongst many other childish reasons therein contained for returning their Commissions, have assigned the two following as the principal ; first, as they are called Officers of the Northern Regiment of Ulster County ; and, secondly, that their Commissions bear test on the date posterior to the date of many of the inferior Officers of their Regiment.

The said Letters and Commissions having been received by the post :

Ordered, That Mr. McKesson pay the postage, (fifteen Shillings and ten Pence.)

The Congress then proceeded further to consider of, and determine, the powers of the Committee of Safety, and, beginning with the sixteenth power, as hereinafter contained, the whole residue of the powers of the said Committee were read through, amended, and approved of.

Thereupon, Ordered, That the same remain, and be taken into further consideration the first convenient opportunity.

The Committee appointed this morning, at the request of Lord Stirling, to confer with him on matters relative to the protection and security of this City and Colony, returned.

The said Committee delivered in a Report containing—1st, An Account of several measures already taken by his Lordship as Commanding Officer of the Continental Forces in this City, for the security and defence thereof ; secondly, A draft of sundry Resolutions proposed by the said Committee as necessary to be entered into and carried into execution by this Congress, for the safety and defence of this City and Colony.

The second part of the said Report was read, and, being again read by paragraphs, and sundry amendments therein made, the same was ordered to remain for further consideration.

Die Jovis, 10 ho. A. M., March 14, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Gelston.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Major Schenck, Colonel Morris Graham.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

The Bond of John R. Livingston, Esq., and his securities, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit :

“Know all men by these presents, that we, John R. Livingston, of Rhinebeck Precinct, Dutchess County, and Patrick Dennis and John Dawson, of the City of New-York, Merchants, are held and firmly bound unto Isaac Roosevelt, Nathaniel Woodhull, Abraham Yates, Jun., John Thomas, Jun., Petrus Ten Broeck, John Herring, and Jacobus Bruyn, and the survivor or survivors of them, in the sum of two thousand Pounds, current money of New-York, to be paid to the said Isaac Roosevelt, Nathaniel Woodhull, Abraham Yates, Jun., John Thomas, Jun., Petrus Ten Broeck, John Herring, and Jacobus Bruyn, or the survivor or survivors of them. Sealed with our Seals. Dated the fourteenth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six.

“Whereas the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York, pursuant to a resolution of the said Congress, have lent to the above bounden John R. Livingston the sum of one thousand Pounds, for two years from the date hereof, without interest, as an encouragement to him to erect a Powder-Mill in such place in Dutchess County as the General Committee of the said County shall approve of: Now, therefore, the condition of the above obligation is such, that, if the above bounden John R. Livingston does, within three months from the date hereof, erect a Powder-Mill of the best quality in such place in Dutchess County as the General Committee of the said County shall approve of, and, also, if the said John R. Livingston does well and truly repay the said sum of one thousand Pounds so lent as aforesaid unto the above-named Isaac Roosevelt, Nathaniel Woodhull, Abraham Yates, Jun., John Thomas, Jun., Petrus Ten Broeck, John Herring, and Jacobus Bruyn, or the survivor or survivors of them, within two years from the date hereof, then the above obligation to be void ; but, on failure or non-performance of any or either of the above conditions, to be and remain in full force.

“JOHN R. LIVINGSTON,

“PATRICK DENNIS,

“JOHN DAWSON.

“Sealed and delivered in the presence of—

“ABRAHAM LOTT,

“THOMAS JONES.”

John R. Livingston, Esq., having given bond, with securities, to Isaac Roosevelt, Nathaniel Woodhull, Abraham Yates, Jun., Esquires, and the other gentlemen named in the Order of this Congress of the 9th instant, and contracted to build a Powder-Mill within three months, agreeable to the said Resolution :

Therefore, Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to John R. Livingston, Esq., the sum of one thousand Pounds, and take his receipt for the same.

The Congress agreed that Colonel Drake permit four Men in his Regiment, inlisted with Captain-Lieutenant James Moore, in his Artillery Company, to go into that service.

A Certificate of Stephen Badlam, Captain of Artillery, was read and filed. He thereby certifies that he has examined Alexander Hamilton, and judges him qualified to command a Company of Artillery.

Ordered, That the said Alexander Hamilton be, and he is hereby, appointed Captain of the Provincial Company of Artillery of this Colony.

The Congress, considering that it will be necessary to have some gentleman appointed steadily to pay the Provincial Artillery Company of this Colony, were of opinion that Colonel McDougall would be proper for that service. Colonel McDougall, present, agreed to undertake that service.

Therefore, Ordered, That Colonel McDougall pay the Artillery Company of this Colony as their pay shall become due, until further order of this Provincial Congress, or their Committee of Safety.

The Petition of David Shaddell, setting forth his poverty, and the injury he received on the 18th ultimo, in removing the Cannon from the Battery, and praying for some relief and assistance, was read.

Ordered, That Doctor John Charlton, for the present, take charge of, and attend the cure of David Shaddell's hand and arm; and that he report to this Congress the circumstances of the said David Shaddell.

The Congress were informed by a Member that the workmen employed in unspiking the Cannon on the Green, in this City, are so negligent in their business that it is necessary to set a Guard over them to keep them at work.

Therefore, Ordered, That Lord Stirling be authorized, and he is hereby authorized, to command as many Blacksmiths, or other fit persons who are acquainted with drilling Cannon, as he may think proper, to open the Cannon in this City, and place a Guard over them, to keep them at work until the said Cannon are unspiked, except for such time as shall be necessary for their proper refreshment.

A draft of a Letter to the County Committee of Ulster County, to attend six blank Commissions, to be by the said Committee filled up for the Field or Staff-Officers for the First or Northern Regiment of the same County, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 14, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have now under consideration the subject of two letters received from Colonel Hasbrouck, respecting the Regiment of Militia in your County, which he was commissioned to command. There appears to be a great dissatisfaction among the Field-Officers; and the Colonel declines serving, by reason of your altering the name of his Regiment, and our appointing George Clinton, Esq., Brigadier-General of the Militia of Ulster and Orange Counties. You cannot be ignorant of the multiplicity of business before us, and the impropriety of an application to us upon that subject, as we have, by a letter, dated the 22d of December last, referred the settlement of that matter entirely to you. The reason of this step must be obvious to you when you reflect that it is impossible for us to judge of the qualification of any person in your County. We beg you will accommodate this difference; and, that you may not be under the necessity of applying to Congress on the subject, we enclose you six blank commissions, which you will please to fill up for such persons as you conceive best qualified; being previously assured that the person you appoint will serve, and that his political sentiments are friendly to American liberty.

We are, yours, respectfully.

By order.

To Jacobus Bruyn, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Ulster County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted, and that six Commissions be signed by the President, and countersigned by one of the Secretaries, and enclosed therein.

A copy of the examination of ——— Craig was brought into the Congress by Mr. Robert Benson, who, by order, had called on Lord Stirling and taken a copy from the original, which was taken by his Lordship. The said copy of the examination was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Craig, lately a soldier in the First Regiment of Yorkers, declares that he was employed by one Vernon, a hatter of this City, to rig out a Sloop the said Vernon had lately purchased by order of Governour Tryon, to be employed by the Governour as a tender or cutter, and occasionally to cruise in the North and East-Rivers; that the said Vernon was to be supplied by the said Governour with swivels for the said Sloop; that the said Craig went on board (with the said Vernon) of the Dutchess of Gordon, and there conversed with the Governour and the Attorneys General Kempe and Skinner, who urged him to be active in procuring as many men as possible, not only for the said Sloop, but for the Asia, and other men-of-war soon expected here; that above fifty or sixty soldiers now in town in the Continental service were engaged by the said Vernon for the service of the Ministry."

Ordered, That Colonel Hay and Colonel Morris Graham be a Committee to go to Thomas Vernon and take his Examination, and report the same with all convenient speed.

A Letter or Memorial from Jacob Bampor was read and filed. He thereby requests a Captain or Lieutenant's commission in the Continental service.

Ordered, That the Member of King's County, who brought in the said Letter, inform Mr. Bampor that there is not any vacancy.

Die Jovis, 4 ho. P. M., March 14, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel McDougall, Colonel Lott, Mr. Randall, Mr. Sands, Mr. E. Bancker, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Van Cortlandt, Captain Denning.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on duty.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Gelston.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Ten Broeck, Major Schenck.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulling, Colonel Lewis Graham.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

The several Proposals for victualling the Continental Troops in this Colony were read, and referred to Mr. Randall, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Paulling, and Mr. Sands, as a Committee to report thereon with all possible speed.

The Committee above-mentioned, reported that the Proposal of Mr. Abraham Livingston for contracting for the Continental Troops in this Colony, is the lowest and most advantageous: Therefore, it is

Resolved and Agreed, That his Proposals be accepted, and that a Letter be written to the Continental Congress, informing that honourable body of the terms on which the said Troops can be supplied with Rations.

Ordered, That Hamilton Young be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board of his Majesty's Ship Asia, or the Packet, in company with the Port-Master, to receive his Letters, he having been first duly sworn that he will not communicate on board of the Ships-of-War, or any of the other Ships in the harbour, any intelligence concerning the preparations making for the defence of this City and Colony, or carry any Letters or Papers relative thereto, or giving any intelligence concerning the same. Mr. Sands and Mr. Hallett are appointed a Committee to view such Letters as Mr. Young brings on shore before they be delivered.

It was represented to Congress that Captain Daniel Denton, of Orange County, has his Company full, and ready for service; that Lord Stirling has ordered him with his Company to New-York; and that he is in necessity for some money to pay the wages due his men, that they may furnish themselves with some necessaries.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to Captain Daniel Denton the sum of sixty Pounds on account, in part of the pay of his Company, and take Captain Denton's receipt for the same; Captain Denton to be accountable for that sum paid him on account for his Company.

A permit was given to the Port-Master to carry on board of the Ships Phenix, (packet,) Asia, and Dutchess of Gordon, a great number of articles, mentioned in a memorandum delivered in by the Port-Master and filed. He was also permitted to carry on board for the use of the Ship Asia, certain quantities of Provisions and other articles, specified in a list or memorandum of Abraham Lott, Contractor, and endorsed on the back of the Port-Master's memorandum, Rum excepted.

A Letter from Abraham Livingston, Esq., was read and filed. He thereby informs that he has received a deputation from Walter Livingston, Esq., in the Department of Commissary-General, to furnish all Continental Troops in this part of the Colony with Provisions, and that he will continue to act in that appointment until further order, or some contract made for supplying the said Troops.

A Letter from the Committee of Essex County, in New-Jersey, on the subjects of the Pay and Provisions, &c., of their Militia ordered into this Colony by Lord Stirling, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Newark, March 14, 1776.

"SIR: The Earl of Stirling last night requested of the County of Essex the assistance of three or four hundred men, to march to New-York as soon as possible. We think proper to inform you of it, and, also, that we have agreed to comply with the request, provided it be agreeable to the Provincial Congress of New-York. You will therefore be kind enough to let us know by the bearer the sense of the Congress about it. We have given orders for the men to be raised immediately, and they will be ready to march tomorrow, or next day at farthest. The Congress is desired, also, to inform us how the men are to be provided for, and by whom to be paid, and when quarters and provisions will be ready for them. Three hundred men are ordered to be raised in this County.

"I am, sir, your most humble servant,

"WILLIAM BURNET, Chairman.

"To the President of Congress, New-York."

A draft of a Letter in answer to the Committee of Essex County, in New-Jersey, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 14, 1776.

SIR: I have communicated to Congress your favour of this day, and am directed to inform you that they approve of the requisition made by the Earl of Stirling. The Congress have a grateful sense of the readiness your people manifest to comply with his request. Quarters will be provided for your Troops, but we wish them to bring a Quartermaster with them. An Assistant to the Deputy Commissary-General will furnish them with provisions. Who shall pay the troops is a question to be determined by the Continental Congress. When our aid shall become necessary to our neighbours, we shall cheerfully give it, and put this question on the same issue.

And are, sir, your very humble servants.

To William Burnett, Esq., Chairman of the Committee for the Town of Newark.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted by the bearer from Newark, in waiting.

The Congress then proceeded to take into further consideration the Report of the Committee who conferred with Lord Stirling on the 13th instant, on the measures necessary to be taken for the defence of this City and Colony. The said Report being read, and again read by paragraphs, and those parts of it that remained to be carried into execution corrected, amended, resolved on, and unanimously agreed to, is in the words following, to wit:

Regulations agreed to for the Defence of the City of NEW-YORK, between Lord STIRLING, General of the Continental Army, and a Committee of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of NEW-YORK.

Lord Stirling has already ordered Colonel Dayton, with the Third Regiment of the New-Jersey Troops, and also six Companies of the Second Battalion of the Pennsylvania Troops, immediately to proceed to this City. He also wrote to the Chairmen of the Committees of six Counties in New-Jersey, to send at least three hundred picked men, well accoutred, from each. And has informed the President of the New-Jersey Congress of the intelligence received from General Washington, concerning the embarkation of the Ministerial Troops at Boston, and requested him to give us all possible assistance, on the supposition that those Troops are destined hither. He has also ordered all the Artillery to be put in the best order possible.

Lord Stirling informs the Committee of the arrival of a quantity of Powder in this City, and that another quantity is soon expected, both directed by the Continental Congress for the service of the Army at Cambridge. It is agreed that the forwarding of the said Powder be deferred till further order of the Continental Congress, and that an express be immediately despatched to them by Lord Stirling on the subject.

1st. Resolved and Ordered, That all the male inhabitants, capable of fatigue, be immediately employed on the Fortifications of this City, and as well all the Negro men in the City and County of New-York, in the manner hereinafter-mentioned, to wit: That the commanding officers of each corps draw out one-third of his respective corps, and also one-third part of all the male inhabitants capable of fatigue within the districts or beats of the Militia, whereof he is the commanding officer, to parade in the Common, at nine o'clock, to-morrow morning, without arms, but provided with as many intrenching tools as they are possessed of; and that they take care to have one-third of all the Negro men in their respective districts turned out, provided in the same manner; that they continue to have the third part of their respective corps, and one-third part of all the male inhabitants capable of fatigue, and also one-third part of all Negro men within their respective beats turned out every day, and so on from day to day, to work on the said Fortifications until further order; that the commanding officer of each respective corps for the time being on any fatigue or day of labour may receive an able-bodied hired man in the place of any other person, or any servant or slave in the place of his master, when it is not the proper tour of labour or duty of such hired man, servant, or slave.

2dly. Resolved, That it be recommended to the General Committee of New-York to make immediate report of all the Provisions and Bar-Iron in Town; to prevent the exportation of either of those articles from the City and County of New-York till further order of this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, except such Provisions as the sub-Committee of the City of New-York have, or may have, given permits for before the receipt of this Resolve, which the said sub-Committee are at liberty to permit to be exported, but from the City of New-York only, and agreeable to the permits they have already given, if they think proper.

3dly. Resolved, That Dr. John Jones and Dr. Treat are hereby authorized to purchase all the Hospital Medicines and Stores and apparatus in this City which they shall think necessary in the premises, and that they make report of their doings to this Congress, or Committee of Safety; and that they take the direction and disposition of the Hospital stores in the possession of Mr. Commissary Curtenius.

4thly. Resolved, That the Provincial Congress issue immediate orders to the Committee of King's County to order the inhabitants of that County to give assistance in fatigue to Colonel Ward, thereby turning out for the service as many of the male inhabitants, Negroes included, every day, to work at the Fortifications in that County as the Committee of that County and Colonel Ward shall think necessary; and that they take with them their spades, pick-axes, shovels, and hoes, and to begin the work on Friday next, and they be under the like regulations, as to the number of officers, pay, and provisions, as the Militia of the City of New-York.

5thly. Resolved, That the Marine Committee be, and are hereby, empowered to take the direction and management of keeping proper Look-outs, and by proper persons, to discover any number of Ships on the coast, or approaching or entering Sandy-Hook; and that every Committee, Officer, and person in this Colony, give them any necessary aid for that purpose which the said Marine Committee may require.

6thly. Resolved and Ordered, That the Colonels of the Regiments in Orange County, on the south side of the Mountains, do draft out of their Regiments at least one hundred men, in the following proportions, to wit: Sixty-five privates out of Colonel Hays's Regiment, and thirty-five privates out of Colonel Lent's Regiment, and as many more men out of these two regiments as will turn out volunteers for that service, to be immediately sent to this City, armed and accoutred in the best manner possible, who shall be entitled to receive the same pay and provisions as the other Continental forces in this Colony.

7thly. Resolved and Ordered, That Colonel Joseph Drake and Colonel Thomas Thomas, of Westchester County, do draft out of their Regiments two hundred men, in the following proportions, to wit: Two companies of sixty-five privates each, besides the Captains and other inferior officers, out of Colonel Joseph Drake's Regiment, and one company of sixty-five privates, with the Captain and other inferior officers, of Colonel Thomas's Regiment, and as many more men out of those two regiments as will turn out volunteers for that service, to be immediately sent to the City of New-York, armed and accoutred in the best manner possible, and to be joined to Colonel Samuel Drake's Regiment, and to receive the same pay and provisions as the other Continental forces in this Colony.

8thly. Resolved and Ordered, That the respective commanding Officers be directed, pursuant to the regulations made for the Militia of this Colony, to levy and collect a fine of ten Shillings upon each of those who do not appear according to the above order, and carefully reserve the same for the disposition of this Congress or Committee of Safety.

9thly. Resolved and Ordered, That the Officers be in the proportion of one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, one Major, one Adjutant, and one Quartermaster, to each Regiment, consisting of six hundred and fifty men; and one Captain, two Lieutenants, and one Ensign, for every sixty-five privates, and non-commissioned officers in the same proportion; that the officers and soldiers so employed be allowed the Continental pay, and ten Pence half-Penny per day instead of provisions for each day they shall do work.

10thly. Ordered, That the Officers commanding the parties upon fatigue do make an exact return of all the men so employed to the Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety, every night.

Ordered, That the Secretaries deliver out Copies to the Colonels of the respective Regiments in the before written Resolutions mentioned, of the said Resolutions, as may be necessary for them respectively.

Captain John Warner, of the Militia of New-York, attending at the door, sent in a Warrant from Lord Stirling, as commander of the Continental forces at present of this City, authorizing the said John Warner to proceed to Richmond County, and take the person of James Boyd, and bring him before the Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety, with such evidence as he had against him. The said John Warner was called in and heard.

Joseph Welpley, a witness against John James Boyd, of Richmond County, was called in and examined, and his examination taken down in writing, and filed.

The Congress considering the evidence offered, are of opinion that the said John James Boyd is so unimportant and insignificant a person in the community, as not to deserve the expense or trouble of apprehending him without further testimony of some overt acts inimical to the American Colonies, and therefore dismissed Captain Warner and Joseph Welpley, with commendations of their vigilance and readiness, and directed them to inform the Congress, or Committee of Safety, if they should know of any future ill behaviour of the said John James Boyd.

The Congress took into consideration the late Letter of William Leary, Town-Major, setting forth his great share of hard duty and his small means to support himself and his family without pay.

Thereupon, a motion was made and seconded, that William Leary, Town-Major, be allowed the pay of a Captain on the present Continental establishment, from the 8th day of December last to the 8th day of April next, one of these days included.

The question being put thereon, it was determined in the affirmative in manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.

4 New-York.	2 Westchester.
3 Albany.	2 King's.
2 Cumberland.	2 Tryon.
2 Suffolk.	2 Ulster.
2 Richmond.
2 Charlotte.	25 votes.
2 Dutchess.

Orange divided.

Therefore, Resolved, That William Leary, Town-Major, be allowed the pay of a Captain on the present Continental establishment, from the 8th day of December last, to the 8th day of April next, one of those days included.

Oliver Templeton, of the City of New-York, Merchant, at the door, was admitted. He informed this Congress that a Ship, laded under his direction by order of the Continental Congress, bound for Ireland, is ready to put to sea. That as the said Ship, or the greater part of her, is owned in Britain, and the lading consigned for the payment of British debts, as appears by the papers relative thereto, he is in hopes to prevail on Captain Parker to permit the said Ship to pass him and go to sea, and therefore requests permission to go on board of Captain Parker's Ship for that purpose.

The said Oliver Templeton having in Congress taken the oath usually administered to persons going on board of Ships-of-War in this harbour, a permit was given to him in the words following, to wit:

Ordered, That Mr. Oliver Templeton be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board his Majesty's Ship Phenix, with the Port-Master, and to return, he having been sworn that he will convey no intelligence relative to the Fortifications erecting in or near this City.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., March 15, 1776.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Woodhull, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Sands, Mr. Randall, Mr. Van Cortlandt, Mr. Rutgers, Captain Rutgers, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Evert Bancker, Colonel Lott.

FOR ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Abraham Yates, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Nicoll, (on service.)

FOR SUFFOLK.—General Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Gelston.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Col. Ten Broeck, Colonel M. Graham, Major R. G. Livingston.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Rhea, Mr. Lefever, Colonel Palmer, (on service.)

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Hay, Colonel Allison.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR CHARLOTTE.—Colonel John Williams.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

The Congress were informed that Mr. Jacob Le Roy says Dr. William Farquhar told him he might depend on it that the Ministry would exert their utmost force against the Colonies, and that sixty thousand foreign Troops were coming over.

Ordered, That Mr. Pettit, the Doorkeeper, call on Jacob Le Roy, Esq., and Dr. William Farquhar, and request them respectively to attend at the Congress Chamber, in the City-Hall, immediately.

Mr. Abraham Livingston attending, was admitted. He produced a draft of a Contract for victualling the Troops to be employed in this Colony, which was read. Mr. Livingston then requested to know what sum of money this Congress would advance him to enable him to carry on the contract, and what sum per month they will agree to pay him; and Mr. Livingston withdrew.

Debates arose on the said request. The sums proposed were five thousand Pounds, as soon as Mr. Livingston shall have given security to perform his contract, and five thousand Pounds per month, if the supplying of the Troops shall require that sum.

The question being put thereon, it was carried in the affirmative, Captain Rutgers only dissenting from the vote of his County.

Resolved, therefore, That this Congress will advance to Mr. Abraham Livingston five thousand Pounds, as soon as he shall have given security to perform his contract, and pay him five thousand Pounds per month, if the supply of the Army stationed in the Colony of New-York shall amount to that sum, or require it.

Ordered, That Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Gansevoort be a Committee to examine the said draft of the Contract, and report thereon this afternoon.

Mr. Jacob Le Roy attending, was admitted. Jacob Le Roy, Esq., says, that Dr. William Farquhar told him he might depend on it the Ministry would do what they could by force; that there were sixty thousand foreign Troops coming over, among which were twenty thousand Russians; that on his asking Dr. Farquhar how he knew that, he answered Mr. Temple had said so; that he (Mr. Le Roy) then offered that he would lay a beaver hat with Mr. Temple that it was not true; that Dr. Farquhar offered to lay him a beaver hat of the truth of it; that he (this examinant) refused to take the advantage of him, but said he was ready to lay the wager with Mr. Temple; that he (this examinant) then told Mr. Farquhar that he should make use of the intelligence he had given him, and that he must give him leave to call on him as the author.

Dr. William Farquhar attending, was admitted. Dr. William Farquhar says that he heard some countrymen, at the Ferry, say that Mr. Temple had said that thirty thousand foreign Troops were coming over here. Having heard Mr. Le Roy's examination read, says that he did not inform him of sixty thousand, but of thirty thousand; that he told Mr. Le Roy that he wondered at the different reports—that Mr. Temple should have told some that no Troops were coming over, and has told others that large numbers were coming over; that he does not know the persons of whom he heard the report at the Ferry.

A Permit was given to Robert Murray and Ichabod B. Barnet, after being sworn, in the words following:

Ordered, That Robert Murray and Ichabod B. Barnet be, and they are hereby, permitted to go on board his Majesty's Ship Phoenix and Governour Tryon's Ship, in company with the Port-Master, and he return; they having been sworn that they will give no intelligence relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this Colony.

Ordered, That the General Committee of the City of New-York assist Mr. Garret Roorback, the Barrackmaster, to provide Quarters, without delay, for the following Troops, expected soon to arrive in this City, to wit: For six Companies of Pennsylvania Regulars; for eight Companies of Jersey Regulars; for one thousand Jersey Militia; and for at least three hundred Militia from different Counties in this Colony; and that the Troops of the respective corps be placed as near each other as possible.

A Letter from the Committee of Suffolk County was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

— Suffolk County, March 1, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: In pursuance to your recommendation, the Committee of this County have ordered that no wheat or flour that shall be made after this date, nor any barrel pork or beef, be exported from this County until the 1st day of April next, unless the Provincial Congress or this Committee shall otherwise order. As this County stands in need of a considerable sum of money to defray their past expenses and to pay their Deputies for their attendance on Congress for the present year, we beg the favour of a loan of five hundred pounds; which this County will repay as soon as it will be in their power to collect the same; and desire the Deputies from this County may receive the money, they having our order for that purpose.

"We are, with the greatest respect, your humble servants. By order: "WILLIAM SMITH, Chairman.

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress in New-York."

On reading the said Letter, the Congress agreed to lend or advance to the Deputies of Suffolk County, on their bond, or the bond of those present, four hundred and sixty Pounds.

Whereupon, the said entry of that matter, and order thereon, was read, and agreed to, in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 15, 1776.

The Committee of the County of Suffolk having, by letter dated the 1st instant, requested the loan of a sum of money, which they therein say their County will repay as soon as it is in their power to collect the same; and whereas the Provincial Congress of this Colony, by their resolution of the 13th day of March, instant, resolved to advance on loan, out of the Treasury of this Congress to each County Committee, a sum of money not exceeding the sum for that purpose therein mentioned, and, amongst others, to the Committee of Suffolk County the sum of four hundred and sixty Pounds, payable to the Chairman of the County Committee, or his order; and whereas the Deputies of the said County of Suffolk, for want of such order, have requested that the said sum of four hundred and sixty Pounds may be advanced to them on the bond of Nathaniel Woodhull, John Sloss Hobart, and David Gelston, Esquires, to Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, Treasurer of this Congress, until such certificate from the County Committee shall be produced to entitle them to have the said bond returned, to which request this Provincial Congress unanimously agrees, and the said bond is executed accordingly:

Therefore, Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., Treasurer of this Congress, pay to the said Nathaniel Woodhull, John Sloss Hobart, and David Gelston, or any one or more of them, the sum of four hundred and sixty Pounds, and take a receipt of the pay for the same; and that he receive the Bond before-mentioned for that money, and retain the same until such Certificate as aforesaid from the said County Committee shall be delivered to him in lieu thereof, or until the further order of the Provincial Congress, or of the Committee of Safety.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Colonel Hay, from the Committee appointed to examine Thomas Vernon, delivered in their Report, and the Examination of the said Thomas Vernon, which was read and filed.

It thereby appears that the said Thomas Vernon is a worthless fellow, of no consequence. That no dependance is to be put on his information. As to Craig, the said Committee gave it as their opinion that he ought to be separated from Vernon, and not confined in the same place with him.

The Congress then resumed and read the Constitution and powers for a Committee of Safety during their recess. The whole were read, sundry amendments made thereto, and, the same being finally determined, resolved on, and agreed to, are in the words following, to wit:

That each of the Counties, except New-York, be effectually represented by one Member.

That every vote, order, or resolve, in the said Committee be by Counties, and not by Poll; and that in estimating every vote, order, or resolve, the respective voices be as follows, to wit: The City and County of New-York, four; the City and County of Albany, three; and every other County, two.

That every Member of this Congress who attends the Committee of Safety, may sit in said Committee, and join in the vote of the County to which he belongs.

“SIR: I am honoured with yours of the 4th instant. The Continental Congress have resolved that Captain Wynkoop should be employed upon the lakes under Commodore Douglass. Whether the latter gentleman means to engage in that service, I do not know. Of this, Congress can very speedily inform itself, as he resides near New-York. He was requested to go to Major Douglass with a copy of the said Letter, and show it to him, and request to know of him whether he will accept of that command; and that Captain Wynkoop give an answer to the Committee of Safety, whether he will proceed to the Lakes, in the station assigned him.

The Letter from the Committee of Suffolk County, dated the 1st day of March, instant, and inserted in the Minutes of yesterday, was again read. The Congress took into consideration that part of it relating to the Embargo laid by the County Committee on the Provisions in that County.

Thereupon, Ordered, That it be entirely submitted to the care, wisdom, and discretion, of the Committee of Suffolk County to continue the said Embargo after the 1st day of April next, or otherwise, as they shall think proper and best for the inhabitants of that County in particular, and of the Continental service in general, as occasion and circumstances may then point out or require.

N. B. A list of the names of the men inlisted in Captain Horton's Company, is filed this day.

The Congress was informed by Mr. Paulding, one of the Members, that Captain Jonathan Horton has recruited a great part of his Company, and is in necessity for a sum of Money to pay the Wages due to his men.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to Captain Jonathan Horton the sum of fifty Pounds, in part of the pay of his Company; that Captain Horton be accountable for that sum in part of the pay of his Company, and give a receipt for the Money to the said Treasurer.

Mr. Hobart moved that a Captain-Lieutenant, and other Lieutenants, be appointed to serve in the Company of Artillery whereof John Grenell is appointed Captain.

The Congress, thereupon, Resolved and Agreed, That the undernamed gentlemen be appointed Officers in that Company, viz: Joseph Crane, Captain-Lieutenant, (on his producing a certificate that he has been examined and is duly qualified;) George Fleming, First Lieutenant; Thomas Grenell, Jun., Second Lieutenant; John Reed, Jun., Third Lieutenant, or Lieutenant Fire-Worker.

The Congress resumed the consideration of that part of the Report of their Committee, on the 8th of March, which contained Lord Stirling's answer, as to the case of Samuel Gale. And taking the case of the said Samuel Gale into consideration,

Resolved, That this Congress are of opinion that he ought to be forthwith discharged from his confinement, he having been taken, carried away, and imprisoned, without any hearing, trial, or adjudication whatever.

And Ordered, That a Letter be written to the Chairman of the Committee of Fairfield County, in the Colony of Connecticut, requesting the immediate discharge of the said Samuel Gale.

A draft of a Letter to the Chairman of the Committee of Fairfield County, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: The enclosed resolution of the Provincial Congress will show you their opinion in the case of Samuel Gale. I have it in charge from the Provincial Congress to request your order that he may be immediately discharged from confinement.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient humble servant.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Fairfield County.

Ordered, That Nathaniel Woodhull, Isaac Roosevelt, Abraham Yates, Jun., Morris Graham, and William Paulding, Esquires, Members of this Provincial Congress, do execute the Contract agreed to with Mr. Abraham Livingston, for supplying all the Continental Troops, to be employed in this Colony, with the Rations allowed by Congress in pursuance of the resolutions and recommendations of the Continental Congress on that subject, made and passed on the — day of February last past; a certified copy whereof is filed amongst the Minutes and Proceedings of this Congress, on the 22d day of February aforesaid.

Resolved, That the Committee of Safety be, and are hereby, authorized to contract and agree with proper persons to erect works for the manufacturing of Saltpetre in the several Counties of New-York, Albany, Ulster, Orange, Dutchess, Westchester, and Suffolk.

Whereas the Ministry of Great Britain are not only depriving us of the means of defence, but have arbitrarily ordered, in a piratical manner, their Ships-of-War to ruin our commerce, and deprive us of the necessities of life, which renders it the incumbent duty of the Representatives of the people of this Colony to provide for the comfortable subsistence of their constituents:

Resolved, That this Congress will lend to any person, for the term of two years from the date hereof, a sum not exceeding two hundred Pounds, for the purpose of erecting works, without delay, for the making of Salt out of seawater, in this Colony, upon his giving to Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, or to the Treasurer of this Congress for the time being, good and sufficient security for the repayment of the same; and in default of erecting such works, to be subject to the repayment of the principal, and of seven per cent. interest on the sum so borrowed, and the further penalty of thirty Pounds.

Provided, That any person who shall claim any of the above premiums for having manufactured Salt as aforesaid, shall produce a certificate thereof, signed by three of the principal freeholders of the neighbourhood where the said works shall be erected, and an affidavit of the person who shall have made, and of some other person who shall have measured the said Salt, in order to entitle him to any of the premiums above-mentioned.

Resolved, That the Committee of Safety be, and they are hereby, directed to collect dissertations upon the making of Salt without delay, and that they cause five hundred of the said dissertations to be printed, in order that the inhabitants of this Colony be informed of the process used in the making of Salt; and that the said Committee be also directed to publish, with the utmost despatch, two hundred copies of these Resolutions, and the other Resolutions of this Congress for the encouraging the erecting of Powder-Mills within this Colony.

Ordered, That the Secretaries have such part of the foregoing Resolutions as relate to the making of Salt in this Colony, printed in the publick Newspapers.

A copy of two Resolutions of the Committee of Albany, on the 1st of March, certified by Matthew Visscher, their Secretary, and covered in a short Letter of the said Secretary, by their order, were read and filed.

By the first of their said Resolutions they recommend Thomas Williams, Jun., for Quartermaster of the Regiment raising for Continental service for the Counties of Albany, Tryon, and Charlotte; and by the second they recommend Peter A. Fonda for Adjutant of the said Regiment.

Ordered, That the Members from Albany County inform their Committee that the appointments of Adjutant and Quartermasters for the Regiments is given to the respective Colonels.

The Congress were informed by Colonel Jesse Woodhull, that, through the unhappy dissatisfaction in the Company of his Regiment whereof Silas Pierson has been appointed Captain, the said Company will be useless in their present state; and he therefore requested the Congress to provide some relief in the premises.

Ordered, That a set of blank Commissions for that Company, signed by the President and countersigned by one of the Secretaries, be sent up to the Chairman of the Committee of Orange County; that he be requested to lay this matter before the Committee of the County; and that the said Committee, if they should think it advisable, order a new election for Officers of the said Company, and fill up the Commissions for the Officers who shall be so elected.

Thereupon, a draft of a Letter to the Chairman of the Committee of Orange County was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 16, 1776.

SIR: This Congress being informed that a Company of Militia, commanded by Captain Pierson, in Colonel Jesse Woodhull's Regiment, in your County, is at present in an unhappy situation, occasioned from a party arisen in the election of a Captain, by which means the said Company would be useless should any emergency happen; we have therefore enclosed a set of blank commissions, and recommend that you lay this matter before the Committee of the County with all convenient speed; and, if they should think it advisable, to order a new election, and fill up the commissions for the persons so elected.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

By order.

To Elihu Marvin, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Orange County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted, together with four blank Commissions, signed and attested in the manner above-mentioned.

A Contract with Abraham Livingston, for victualling all the Continental Troops in this Colony, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

And the said Abraham Livingston doth further covenant, promise, and agree to and with the said parties of the second part, to furnish the troops at each of the aforesaid places with fire-wood, at the rate of twenty shillings, New-York currency, per cord; and straw, at the rate of thirty shillings for every hundred sheafs, including cartage, provided he, the said Abraham Livingston, is put to no more than one cartage to either of the said places. And the said parties of the second part, and the survivor or survivors of them, do hereby promise and agree to and with the said Abraham Livingston, that, if it should so happen that any such provisions, wood, or straw, for the purposes aforesaid, should be taken or destroyed any otherwise than by the carelessness or negligence of the said Abraham Livingston, or his agent or agents, that then, and in that case, the loss that shall or may thereupon accrue shall be sustained by the said parties of the second part, and the survivor or survivors of them.

JAMES WILSON TO LORD GEORGE GERMAINE.

Gilgorum, March 17, 1776.

MY LORD: It is not without concern that I find myself obliged to address your Lordship on this occasion, as one of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State. I trust your Lordship will not require any apology for the requisition of that favour, which, in your official character, it may be proper for you to comply with. Presuming, therefore, that you are the person by whose means my sentiments may be most regularly conveyed to his Majesty, I beg leave to entreat your Lordship may lay before his Majesty the enclosed Memorial.

I have the honour to be, your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

JAMES WILSON.

To Lord George Germaine, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty, the humble Memorial of JAMES WILSON, * showeth:

That the Memorialist has served your Majesty for upwards of fifteen years as a Captain in your Majesty's Marine forces; during which time Memorialist discharged his duty with fidelity to the utmost of his power; and that Memorialist has had the honour of a seat in the House of Commons in Ireland during the present Parliament, in which capacity, as a servant of the people, his conduct has been uniformly directed by the best of his understanding to promote the interest of this Kingdom, humbly conceiving the well-being of this Island essentially conducive to the honour and support of your Majesty's Government; that your Memorialist, by every binding influence of allegiance, and inviolable inclination, is ready to risk his life and property, if required, to maintain those inestimable principles by which your Majesty's illustrious family obtained the sovereignty of these realms. But it is with the most poignant concern that Memorialist finds himself compelled, by the pernicious measures of your Majesty's Ministers, and the indelible dictates of nature, to implore your Majesty to withdraw him from the rank and honour he enjoys under your Majesty, as Captain on half-pay. Memorialist thinks it inconsistent with fidelity to your Majesty as a subject, or the people as a representative, to receive those wages which render him liable to the command of Ministers, the perpetration of whose designs, death would be as much preferable to, as it ever had been in the mind of Memorialist to hesitate in the support of your Majesty's real glory and happiness. Memorialist, therefore, humbly entreats your Majesty, in your Royal clemency, graciously to take his dutiful Memorial into consideration, as the only reward for his services, that Memorialist may be emancipated from the distressing apprehension which the present military preparations against America suggest, of being obliged to disobey the commands of his Sovereign, or adopt the horrid alternative of stifling every

* The above gentleman, who is a Member in the Irish Parliament for Taghmon, in the County of Wexford, as a Captain, in the year 1750, raised one hundred and thirty men (as the purchase of his Company) on his own estate, in Ireland, and served all the remainder of the war in actual service, with the highest credit to himself.

Whereas it is apprehended by some persons that the Regiments or Companies of Minute-men in this Colony are not subject to the command of the Brigadier-Generals within whose Districts they generally reside,

Resolved and Ordered, That the Brigadier-Generals in this Colony be authorized, and they are hereby authorized, to command all Regiments or Companies of Minute-men within their respective Districts, in as full and ample manner as any other of the Militia of their respective Brigades.

A Message was received from Lord Stirling, by Captain Morris, requesting the Barrack necessities may be ordered by this Congress to be supplied to a Company of Militia from New-Jersey, arrived at this City to enter on duty.

Thereupon, an Order was made, and directed to Colonel Curtenius and the Barrackmaster, to supply the said Company of Militia with Barrack necessities.

Ordered, That the Committee of Safety be authorized, and are hereby authorized, to hear and determine the case of John Grigg.

impulse of humanity, and rushing into the blood of kindred fellow-subjects and countrymen.

Gilgorum, March 17, 1776.

GENERAL HOWE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Williamsburgh, March 17, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your letter enclosing a commission appointing me a Brigadier-General in the Army of the United Colonies. Devoted to the cause of America, I feel no wish so ardent, no ambition so strong, as to be able to contribute to its service and support. With pleasure, therefore, I accept the important trust, and, through you, beg leave to convey to your honourable body my grateful thanks for this distinguishing mark of their favour; which, by my strenuous endeavours and utmost efforts, I hope in some measure to deserve. The battalions here being not yet complete, nor all the commissions filled up, puts it out of my power to make you at present the return you request, which I shall be happy to forward to you the moment I can.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

ROBERT HOWE.

To the President of Congress.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

[No. 62.]

Annapolis, March 17, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We are exceedingly anxious on account of our Treasury, as it grows very low, and the demands, as you must be sensible, continue still great. You will therefore excuse our mentioning to you so often our apprehension that, unless the plates and paper are furnished in a very short time, the Treasury will be exhausted, and the credit of the Province must sink.

Our Minute Companies have written to us for copies of the Continental regulations and pay to their troops; and as we are not provided with them, we request you will send them to us; or if a favourable opportunity should offer, transmit them to Accomack immediately, as we are sometimes at a loss for conveyances from hence. Pray send us an account of the Continental pay of the officers and men in the Navy. We are informed there have been some alterations lately made in them by Congress, and shall be glad to see them. They will be useful to us in settling the wages for the Defence.

The enclosed is a copy of a letter we have received from Mr. Harrison, our agent in the foreign West-Indies.

We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO TALBOT COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 63.]

Annapolis, March 17, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We are sorry the proceedings of the convention, through the negligence of our press, should not have reached you before the day you mention, and think with you, that the not allowing those in your County that may hesitate to enroll, some time to consider the alternative given them, would be treating them with too great rigour, and are of opinion that the indulging them till the 5th of April will be giving them time sufficient, and be an instance of lenity towards them that, we are persuaded, will meet with the approbation of the Convention.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Talbot County.

ELIAS BOUDINOT TO LORD STIRLING.

Newark, New-Jersey, March 17, 1776.

MY LORD: I was in great hopes that, in raising the proportion of men that was allotted for this town towards the number requested by your Lordship, it would fall to Captain Wheeler, with his Company of Minute-men (formerly Captain Aling's) to go; but I was disappointed, as I am now informed that Elizabethtown has failed in sending their men. And if you should still think it necessary to increase your number, and would either take the trouble to write a line to Captain Wheeler, requesting his company, or to Colonel Ward, desiring him to send for them, (which ever you might think proper,) I dare promise by to-morrow afternoon, as good a company as any in the service would attend you. If you should think it the most eligible way to apply to Colonel Ward, please to let it be in writing, that he may send your note to Captain Wheeler, as that will raise the ambition of the men.

I must beg your Lordship will not mention to Colonel Ward, or any one, that you have this request, as if you should, it would excite the jealousies of the other companies.

There is no necessity of having anything to do with Committees in this affair, as the men will turn out at your request alone.

I am, in great haste, with respect, your Lordship's most obedient servant,

ELIAS BOUDINOT.

To the Honourable Lord Stirling.

LORD STIRLING TO THE COMMITTEES OF MORRIS COUNTY, ETC., NEW-JERSEY.

New-York, March 17, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As a large number of the inhabitants of the Province of New-Jersey are now called upon to assist in fortifying and defending this city, which (by the accounts received from General Washington by express, and this day confirmed by the post) is certainly the object of the enemy's destination, and as I am informed that many of the inhabitants of the Province are intimidated from leaving the Province, by an apprehension of their own private affairs suffering by the common process of the civil law, I must therefore submit it to your Committee, whether it is not, at this time of imminent danger, absolutely necessary to suspend the operations of the civil law, at least until the destination of the Army at Boston is more certainly known. By the last accounts, it appears that five thousand men were actually embarked, and the remainder preparing to get on board as fast as possible, and it is General Washington's opinion they intend to make a sudden push on this place.

STIRLING.

To the Committee of the Counties of Morris, Essex, Middlesex, Somerset, Sussex, Hunterdon, Bergen, and Monmouth, and Committee of Safety of New-Jersey.

LORD STIRLING TO ALEXANDER CARMICHAEL.

New-York, March 17, 1776.

SIR: I have your letter of yesterday's date. Give me leave to assure you that, by appointment of the Continental Congress, the district of the Commanding General here extends to the Province of New-Jersey, and that I have it in command from Congress to call in so many of the Militia of the neighbouring Provinces as I find necessary for fortifying and defending this place and its environs, and to assure them they shall receive the same pay and provisions with the Continental Troops employed in the Middle Department, to commence from the time they actually begin their march for this place. As to the fears of the people about Amboy, the Congress will take care of it; and as to mention of furlough, they are all ordered to their regiments. I hope, therefore, there will be no longer any objections to marching of the three hundred men required from Morris County.

Be pleased to forward the enclosed to Sussex County; and am, &c.,

STIRLING.

To Mr. Alexander Carmichael, Chairman of the County Committee of Morris.

LORD STIRLING TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, March 17, 1776.

SIR: You have doubtless received all the intelligence which I have from General Washington, relative to the motions of the Ministerial Troops in Boston, and the situation of our troops which surround it. That General Howe intends to move this way with his army I think is highly probable. Many little manœuvres of Governour Tryon and the men-of-war near this place lately, seem to confirm it. I am taking every step in my power to be prepared for their reception, by fortifying every advantageous ground near the city and on Long-Island. But whatever may be the designs of General Howe, it appears, from all the intelligence received, that the Ministry are determined to make an effort to gain possession of this city; and I have, therefore, the orders of Congress, by all possible means to provide for the safety of it. I have also their directions to apply to the neighbouring Colonies for such part of their Militia or Provincial Troops as may be necessary, until the Continental Troops, destined for this service, do arrive here. The two regiments from Connecticut now here and at Long-Island, deserve the thanks of the publick for their good order, industry, and alertness; and I sincerely wish they could be prevailed on to stay while their services are necessary, as it would save time and pay to a prodigious amount in the Continental service. But I understand many of them are farmers of property, who have families at home, and want to be there to mark out the work of their farms for the ensuing season. However, I will, with the Colonels Waterbury and Ward, endeavour to prevail with as many of them as possible to stay until they are relieved by others from your Colony, of which returns shall be sent to you as soon as possible. In the mean time I think it is highly necessary (and I have not the least doubt your Excellency will carry it into execution) that recruits be raised to complete those two regiments to at least six hundred privates each; and that another regiment of the like strength be raised in your Colony if possible, on condition of serving the campaign, or as long as the service requires, and to be armed, and accoutred, and clothed, as well as time will permit, and to march to this place as soon as possible.

I shall only add, that, with the highest esteem and regard, I am your most obedient humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esquire, &c.

COLONEL LENT TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Orangetown, March 17, 1776.

SIR: I have this day received the resolution and order of Congress of the 13th instant, respecting the sending a number of men from the two regiments on the south side of the Mountains, in Orange County, to New-York; and as thirty-six men of my regiment have turned out as Minute-men, and elected one of my Militia Captains to command them, I immediately ordered their Captain to march down to New-York with the Minute-men aforesaid, (the reason for my so doing was, because I could not think that the Congress intended to leave the Minute-men here and have the Militia down.) The Captain, it seems, does not think that he is any longer under my command, and, what is more, the Captain and men are all afraid that, as the resolution and order aforesaid only mentions privates, it is intended to take our men and put in officers from other parts to command them; wherefore they decline marching without some further explanation. I hope you will, without loss of time, give me an answer, or rather an explanation of the said order. Should thirty-five men be drafted from my regiment, exclusive of the Minute-men, many farms must go to waste.

I do not think that any of our men, whether Militia or Minute-men, can be prevailed upon to march, unless they are allowed their own officers. I think if a Captain and one Lieutenant were commissioned for the above-said Minute-men, it would be sufficient.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

ABRAHAM LENT.

To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President of the honourable Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Cambridge, March 17, 1776.

SIR: I have the pleasure to inform you that this morning the Ministerial Troops evacuated the town of Boston without destroying it, and that we are now in the full possession; upon which event I beg leave to congratulate you, and sincerely wish (if the Ministry persevere in the same unconstitutional and despotick measures which too long have marked their conduct) that our opposition and resistance in every quarter may be crowned with the success they have been here.

Where their destination is, or what plans they have in view, is altogether unknown; most probably the next attempt will be against New-York, or some more southern Colony. However, I should think (though I do not believe they have any design against Rhode-Island) that it will be advisable to keep a strict look-out; and submit it to you, whether it may not be proper, against the time you apprehend they might arrive, to call in a number of the Militia, and have them posted in proper places. I do not mean to direct the measure, but only mention it for your consideration; to me it appears worthy of attention.

I am, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable Governour Cooke.

N. B. March 19.—The fleet is still in King and Nantasket Roads.

JOHN LANGDON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Portsmouth, March 17, 1776.

SIR: This moment arrived a small vessel from the West-Indies with about six thousand weight of powder, belonging to the Continent; and as I thought it might be wanted at Head-Quarters, have despatched Major Gaines with this information to your Excellency; and should it be wanting, (in part or all,) shall immediately forward it on receiving your direction. The bearer will inform what intelligence the Captain brings, who I should have sent up had it not been necessary to keep him on board his vessel. The Captain informs that, at Martinique and Guadaloupe, there is at least ten thousand French Troops making great preparations for war; this, he says, may be depended on. Yesterday we had a small parcel of powder (about five thousand weight) arrived, belonging to the Colony. We have several vessels more at St. Lucia, who are taking in powder.

Please to accept of the best wishes of your most obedient servant,

JOHN LANGDON.

To His Excellency General Washington.

R. HOOE TO COLONEL JOSHUA BEALL.

Alexandria, March 18, 1776.

SIR: I have gone through every store in this town, and find but few whole pieces of B. cloths of the kinds that are wanted. However, if Colonel Smallwood would send over an officer, I think, by taking different colours, and parts of pieces, they may pick up a good deal; but as they do not answer the directions Mr. Harwood gave me, I thought it best to decline a purchase till I heard further about it. There are some rugs in town, but they are large, and at twenty shillings, Virginia currency, apiece; blankets are not to be had at all; but there are in one store several pieces of woollen, of a kind between a flannel and Kendall cotton, that I think would answer the end. The two casks of medicine you will be pleased to receive, and send a receipt for them.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

R. HOOE.

To Colonel Joshua Beall, at Bladensburgh.

I have sent a memorandum of such woollens as are to be had. Be pleased to write Colonel Smallwood that I will purchase them up, and pay the cash for them if I can have orders directly.

R. H.

THOMAS TILLARD TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fig-Point, March 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I this day received a line from Mr. Duwall, of the 13th of February, requesting that I would inform you what quantity of Gunpowder is in my hands, and where stored. Two hundred and one pounds is what I was paid for, at two shillings and six pence per pound. Two hundred pounds of Mr. Brogden were also lodged with mine—being, in the whole, four hundred and one pounds stored in our store at this place; three hundred and five pounds of which, per your order, were delivered to Mr. Isaac Harris; the remainder, by order of the Committee, into the hands of the Militia.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

THOMAS TILLARD.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

CALVERT COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

In Committee of Observation, Calvert County, }
March 18, 1776.

On motion, Resolved, To consult the honourable the Council of Safety concerning the propriety of stationing an additional number of thirty men in different places in this County, to watch the motion of the Ships-of-War and Tenders, and to prevent them from harassing the Militia by frequent and unnecessary alarms.

Resolved, That application be made to the honourable the Council of Safety for two barrels of Gunpowder and fifty stand of Arms, complete, for the use of this County, as we have not received the Powder ordered from Charles County. Per order:

JOSEPH WILKINSON, Clerk Committee.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL THOMAS WRIGHT.

[No. 64.]

Annapolis, March 18, 1776.

SIR: We have received your favour of the 12th instant, enclosing commissions of officers in the Militia who have refused to accept them; and now transmit you others to supply their places. The same motives which led you to withhold them so long, (which we think you are highly commendable in doing,) we hope will induce you still to persist in your efforts to settle and quiet the minds of the people at this alarming crisis of our affairs, and to reconcile them to the appointments of Field-Officers in your County, which the last Convention thought proper to make; and we cannot but flatter ourselves, when they reflect seriously on the consequences which will inevitably result from the measures they have adopted, they will no longer pursue them. If our expectations should not, however, be answered in a short time, and they should obstinately persevere, it will then become our indispensable duty to pursue different (though disagreeable) expedients, and to exert the powers which we are invested with for the publick good, with a view to that end. We have fixed the station of the troops for your County at Blunt's Ware-House, on Kent-Island, and shall order them to repair there as soon as they can be supplied with provisions, which we imagine will be by the last of next week at farthest; and are, &c.

To Colonel Thomas Wright.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO WILLIAM HINDMAN.

[No. 65.]

Annapolis, March 18, 1776.

SIR: As it will be some time before we can have our new emission struck and ready for circulation, and drafts are coming in pretty quick upon us, we find it necessary to call for some of the unsigned bills of credit now in your hands. We desire, therefore, you will send by Mr. Charles

Wallace the sum of six thousand pounds of them, as mentioned in the order to him of this date.

We are, &c.

To William Hindman, Esq., Treasurer of Eastern-Shore.

ALEXANDER WILCOX TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Safety, Philadelphia, March 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The naval armament that is preparing for the defence of this Province requiring a considerable number of seamen, (more than can be raised in this city,) this Committee has thought it advisable to send Captain Charles Alexander and Lieutenant John Humphrey, (two of the officers of our armed boats,) to recruit a number of seamen for the naval service of this Province. The Committee has been induced to take this measure in consequence of information it has received, that there are now a great many sailors in the City of New-York destitute of any employment, by reason of the entire stop put to trade by the last act of Parliament; and that there is danger that they may enter on board the men-of-war, if means are not taken to engage them in the service of the Colonies. This Committee begs leave to recommend to your countenance the above-mentioned gentlemen, and trust you will give them any assistance that may be necessary to enable them to execute the business intrusted to them.

Gentlemen, your humble servants,

By order of the Committee:

ALEXANDER WILCOX, Chairman.

To the Committee of Safety for the Province of New-York.

ELISHA BOUDINOT TO LORD STIRLING.

Newark, New-Jersey, March 18, 1776.

MY LORD: The bearer hereof, (Captain Wheeler.) with his company, waits on your Lordship, agreeable to your request, and begs the favour that you would review them before they go to their quarters, if possible. If they could be put upon duty by themselves, that their works might appear, it would raise their emulation to merit your Lordship's approbation; and you would soon see the good effects of it.

I have the honour to be, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient, humble servant,

ELISHA BOUDINOT.

To Lord Stirling, New-York.

WILLIAM BURNET TO LORD STIRLING.

Committee-Chamber, Newark, March 18, 1776.

MY LORD: Though the Committee are sensible that the common cause is deeply interested in putting the city of New-York in a state of defence, yet, in case the King's troops arrive, if they do not make a general landing in this Province, it is more than probable they will at least make incursions into it, especially if they meet with opposition at New-York. We need not mention to you, my Lord, the present very defenceless state of this Province, nor that every man sent to you from our Militia will render it more so; and if the harbour of New-York and the Sounds be under command of the ships-of-war expected with the troops, the return of our Militia will be impracticable, or attended with such delay that the mischief may be done here before we can receive their assistance. These considerations have prevented us the pleasure of sending you the full complement of men you requested from this County. We have, however, this day, in addition to the one hundred and fifty already sent, ordered Captain Wheeler, who waits on your Lordship with this, to march with his company to New-York, there to attend to your commands for one week, and no longer. The above reasons have weighed with us in giving him these restrictive orders.

As it will not be so injurious to the defence of this Province to send men from Morris, Sussex, Somerset, and Hunterdon, as from the frontier Counties; if your Lordship should think a larger number of men requisite to be employed in the fortifications, it is submitted to your consideration, whether it would not be most expedient warmly to solicit the aid of the back Counties above-mentioned.

By order of the Committee of the County of Essex:

WILLIAM BURNET, Chairman.

LORD STIRLING TO BERGEN COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE.

New-York, March 18, 1776.

SIR: The alarming intelligence received from General Washington, of the preparations of the Ministerial Army at Boston to embark for this place, induced me to call in some of the Militia of this and the neighbouring Colonies to our assistance. This measure has since been approved of by the Continental Congress, who have agreed that all such shall receive the pay of the Continental Troops in the Middle Department. I have not as yet called on the County of Bergen, to send any of their Militia to this place, because I had another employment in view for them in their own County. The first is, to make a thoroughly good and broad road from Brown's Ferry to Paulus-Hook Ferry, which is become of very great importance to this place, as it is the only communication between the western and south-western parts of New-Jersey and this place. Another work is, to make good the road through Bergen Wood, from Weehawk to Hackensack Ferry. I think there ought to be two hundred men employed at the first work, and one hundred on the latter; and I hope you will order the best men to turn out for this purpose. There must not be more commissioned officers than the proportion of four to the hundred, and one Field-Officer to oversee the whole. They are to take their arms and accoutrements, and working tools, with them, and are at night to mount an officer's guard at Bergen town. The road from Brown's Ferry should be laid out as nearly as possible according to the last act of Assembly. When I am informed of the men being ready to go to work, I will order a proper person to attend at Bergen town to muster them, and to point out how the work is to be done.

STIRLING.

To the Committee for the County of Bergen.

LORD STIRLING TO ESSEX COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE.

New-York, March 18, 1776.

SIR: I have received your letter of this date, by Captain Wheeler, and am much obliged to you for making the addition of his company to the one hundred and fifty before ordered from your County to the assistance of this place. I can now inform you that I have the authority of Congress to allow them Continental pay, while in the service. You may be assured the safety of New-Jersey shall be the object of my attention, as much as this place, and that I conceive them so closely connected that they must be looked upon as parts of one whole concern. I have already determined in my own mind on some works of fortification, which I think will cover every approach to that Province, by the way of the Kills or Staten-Island, and on some means of securing the communication between this city and New-Jersey, in spite of the utmost efforts of the enemy. This plan will be communicated to you in a day or two, and I should be glad that you will appoint a sub-Committee to be ready to meet me, or some officers I shall send, to explain my designs to you, and to engage the people of Elizabethtown to carry them into execution, which, according to my plan, they will be able to do with two or three hundred men in a few days. Some intrenching tools will be necessary, and it will be proper to have them collected as soon as possible at Newark or Elizabethtown.

Lieutenant-Colonel Ward came here with the First Company from your County; since that, Lieutenant-Colonel Cadmus and Major Ludlow are come with the Second Company. There seems to be a competition and uneasiness, which of the Field-Officers of Essex is to command these detachments. I have told them that as Lieutenant-Colonel Ward came first, he was of course in the command, and that I should not alter it until the Committee of the County should determine otherwise. With this they seem to be perfectly satisfied. I must, therefore, request that the Committee of the County of Essex will determine this very important point.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Chairman of the Committee for the County of Essex.

LORD STIRLING TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, March 18, 1776.

SIR: It is of the utmost importance to the safety of this city that all the artillery we are to rely on, be completed in every article. It was but lately that I could obtain a complete statement of all the artillery on this Island. It was then so near the adjournment of your Congress, that I did not care to introduce to it a matter so long in detail. I now enclose to you a return (No. 1) of the whole artillery, and the articles wanting to equip and complete them to one hundred rounds; by which you will observe, that all the cannon below six-pounders are in want of every article; and would take up more time than we can spare at present to complete them. I have, therefore, made out another return, (No. 2,) of all the cannon, down to six-pounders, inclusive, and those, if the work be properly distributed, may soon be equipped with every necessary; and I must request that the Committee of Safety will, as soon as possible, take measures to have all the necessaries provided. And you may be assured that I will lend every assistance in my power for forwarding the work.

As I have no copies of these returns, I should be glad to have them sent back when you have taken copies of them.

STIRLING.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York.

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 23, 1776, and referred to Committee on Qualifications.]

New-York, March 18, 1776.

DEAR SIR: By the enclosed letter from Major De Hart, and the memorial from the officers of the First Regiment of New-Jersey Troops, you will see how exceedingly hurt that regiment is at the late promotion of Major Ogden to the Lieutenant-Colonelcy of it. They look upon it as an inroad on the rights of the regiments; and while officers behave well, those feelings are natural, and are of infinite use in stimulating officers to do their duty. The corps is the more hurt, as they are confident that they have officers among them who have seen as much service as Colonel Ogden, and are conscious they have not been wanting in their duty since they came into the service. I have not the least doubt that Congress will take the first opportunity of doing the regiment justice, by giving one or other of these gentlemen preferment in the first new corps.

The regiment has never yet been allowed the privilege of being clothed in uniform by the Commissary; and to be put under easy stoppages for it, as is done with the other regiments of New-Jersey and Pennsylvania, they have presented a memorial to me, requesting that this may be done; and I should be happy that Congress would order Commissary Lowrey to do it accordingly.

The Army at this place is entirely destitute of artillerymen or matrosses. Captain Badlam was detached here from the camp at Cambridge with General Lee, but brought no men with him. He has the chief direction here of all preparations in that department. He is a very prudent, discreet man, extremely attentive to his duty, and seems perfectly master of it. I believe it would be proper to give him the rank and pay of Major of Artillery. There is a company of about fifty men (artillery) raising here in the Provincial service. This is but a very small proportion of what there ought to be here. We ought to have a regiment of them of at least five hundred; but this I submit to Congress, and make no doubt they will make provision for so necessary a branch as that must be at this place.

I am, with the greatest esteem and regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday I was informed of Lieutenant-Colonel Winds's promotion to the command of our regiment, and Mr. Ogden, of Elizabethtown, preferred to be Lieutenant-Colonel. This last appointment, I confess, much surprises me; and leaves me in doubt whether I may consider it as a particular honour meant to be conferred on him, or a direct affront to me.

If it has been a rule in the Continental Army to promote inferiors directly over the head of superiors in rank, I shall silently acquiesce; but if, on the contrary, I am the first that has fallen under the predicament, I shall consider it in the last-mentioned light. Believe me, sir, I assure you before this promotion no wish ever entered my heart to advance to that station, while I could remain with honour in my present; more studious to qualify myself in that, than to seek further.

But when I consider that, on those principles, I am absolutely forced out of a service I was fond of, I confess it gives me pain, and would more so to deserve it. As I entered into this service with no sinister views, no private feelings shall induce me, in the hour of danger, to quit it. If I stand in the way of the more deserving, or if a satisfactory answer cannot be had to what I have before proposed, I shall beg leave of your Lordship to resign my commission to that honourable body from whom I received it; and, at the same time, to give you my reasons with it; determined, at the same time, in such case, to retire to the station of a private sentinel, and there remain till death or the end of this glorious contest shall release me from the service.

I am, sir, most respectfully, yours,

WILLIAM DE HART.

To His Excellency the Earl of Stirling.

New-York, March 14, 1776.

We, the Captains and Subalterns of the First New-Jersey Regiment of Continental Troops, being heartily engaged in defending the common cause of America, beg leave to claim a few moments' attention of the honourable the Continental Congress, on a subject that gives us infinite pain.

As your honourable House has been pleased to appoint Mr. Ogden, of Elizabethtown, Lieutenant-Colonel in the place of Colonel Winds, promoted to the command of the regiment: we know nothing to the prejudice of that gentleman; neither do we question his merit; but he is put over the head of a superior in rank (who is justly entitled to the claim, and to whom we conceive no reasonable objection can be made) in such a manner as must reflect upon our feelings and characters, as gentlemen and officers, if we silently acquiesce in a matter that affects him and each one of us. It is not rank or commissions that we are asking for; but that ourselves and superiors may remain with honour in their stations, while they deserve it, and advance in that line in all other cases of such a nature followed.

We beg leave most humbly to remonstrate against an appointment of this nature, as we conceive ourselves, under the ties of honour and justice, bound to leave a service we are extremely fond of, and which we shall quit with the greatest reluctance. We would further entreat that this remonstrance may not be considered as the effect of rashness or disorder; but beg leave to assure your Honours that none employed in your service are more faithfully attached to the grand cause, and will ever remain so. This appointment, we are of opinion, would not have taken place were it not for misrepresentation.

Hear, gentlemen, we pray you, our complaints, and grant us redress; we will study to deserve it.

COW-NECK (QUEEN'S COUNTY, NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

In Committee for the District of Cow-Neck, Great-Neck, &c., held at Cow-Neck, this 18th day of March, 1776:

Whereas sundry disaffected persons have lately moved into this neighbourhood, whereby this District, instead of being an asylum for the good and virtuous, is become a nest to these noxious vermin: it has therefore become the part of prudence, and, in its effects, of necessity, to put an end to such proceedings in future, by the most speedy and effectual measures for the publick good.

Be it therefore Resolved, That no manner of person, after the first of April next, presume to move into this District, without producing to this Committee a certificate, signed by the Chairman of the Committee from whence they last removed, of their being friendly to the cause of their bleeding country.

Signed by order:

BENJAMIN SANDS, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety at New-York.

The humble Petition of BERNARD ROMANS, sheweth:

That your humble Petitioner was some time since at Philadelphia, with the honourable the Continental Congress, upon the business of his then office, and that he then and there had the pleasure to meet with an entire approbation of his conduct.

Whereupon said honourable Congress passed a vote that it was reasonable your humble Petitioner should be paid up to the date of his new commission. In consequence of which, a resolve was made, which your humble Petitioner has brought here, and which has been laid before your honourable Board. The time is now expired in which your humble Petitioner was to have appeared at the head of his company, and want of money prevents.

Your humble Petitioner therefore prays an order may be granted him, pursuant to the said resolves of Congress, that he may be enabled to proceed, and save his honour.

And your Petitioner shall ever pray, &c.

B. ROMANS.

New-York, March 18, 1776.

JOHN HASBROUCK TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Marbletown, March 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I understand that Mr. Cantine, one of our Delegates, is gone down to New-York, and intends to apply to Congress for commissions for a company of Grenadiers for the township of Marbletown. If this is granted, it will create a great disturbance in the companies in said township, and will throw our companies into great confusion. I hereby only let you know the state of the case as it stands; and you may do in that case as you, in your great wisdom, judge will answer to, and for, the American union and interest.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, most humble servant,

JOHN HASBROUCK.*

To Colonel Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress, at New-York.

STRATFORD (FAIRFIELD COUNTY, CONNECTICUT) COMMITTEE.

Stratford, Connecticut, March 18, 1776.

On the 10th instant, (Sunday), Mr. Jeremiah Leaming, Missionary at Norwalk, baptized a child in the Episcopal Church at Stratford, and called it by the opprobrious name of Thomas Gage, the parson of the parish being present at the same time. This religious manœuvre gave great disgust. People in general viewed this transaction as a designed insult and ridicule upon the cause of liberty, which the Americans are now engaged to support against the arbitrary and oppressive measures of the British Parliament. Whereupon Mr. Leaming, being duly notified, appeared before the Committee of Inspection for this town.

* [The original is endorsed—"MARCH 21, 1776.—A letter from John Hasbrouck, of Marbletown. This letter was read, and ordered that no notice be taken thereof on the Minutes."]

He owned that he had been previously informed that a child would be presented to him for baptism, and that the parents had proposed to give it that name; but said somebody informed him at the same time that the parents had been dissuaded from it; however, when it was offered by that name, he without any hesitation baptized it. He acknowledged that he thought the parents were imprudent, and that he disliked it; but pleaded in his own excuse the obligation he was under by the rules of the Rubrick, which, he said, directed him to receive the name from the god-fathers and god-mothers, and to pronounce that name in baptism; and that he did not look upon himself at liberty to dispense with the name given by the sponsors. Being asked why he did not object when the name was given him, he said it was unexpected, and, being on a sudden, the propriety of objecting did not come into his mind; but he declared he had no unfriendly intention in it, however it might appear in that light. He professed to have always a high esteem of the liberties and privileges of this Colony.

The Committee having heard Mr. Leaming's exculpation, and considered thereof, and made all charitable allowances they were able, are of opinion that he has not made it appear to their satisfaction that he is really innocent of having had a design, by the above transaction, to insult and ridicule the Continental struggle in the defence of their just rights, which are most wickedly and injuriously invaded. But yet, out of a tender regard to Mr. Leaming's office, and connection with the people of his charge, (most of whom, we understand, are true friends to the liberties of America), judge it most expedient only to state the facts, and submit it to the publick, to make what judgment they please; and to the candid friends of their county, to treat the said Mr. Leaming with that regard which they shall judge his person and character deserve.

Signed by order of Committee.

Attest:

JOSEPH CURTISS, Clerk.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, March 18, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 14th instant, in which you inform me the enemy have embarked their troops on board a number of transports, and are now making a shameful retreat from Boston; and that their destination is conjectured to be either for Halifax or New-York—the latter place most probable. I should, on my part, rather conjecture that their women and children, with the Tory families, (if any on board,) are for Halifax, and the troops for New-York, &c., if they mean to evacuate that town. But may it not be probable, notwithstanding all appearances, that the enemy, expecting an attack on Boston, are only clearing off all incumbrances, and sending off their (at present) useless baggage, in order to be better able to withstand your attack, and to give you a more warm reception, and, if possible, a fatal repulse? A hint of this I dare say you will not take amiss, though I entertain not the least doubt of your greatest attention and utmost precaution to guard yourself against the subtle wiles and artful intrigues of an artful enemy, as well as their open force and violence. But appearances, I fully agree, most probably point at New-York; and as a request from you, on all these publick occasions, comes with the greatest force, (notwithstanding we have great drafts of men from this Colony to various quarters, and have now at New-York, in consequence of your late requisition by General Lee, two regiments, amounting to fifteen hundred men, which, just as I received yours, had despatched orders to them to continue in service till further directions; and, in consequence of your last request, and in consideration of the importance of securing New-York, and the advantage of a prior possession,) have given orders to the Field-Officers of several regiments in this Colony nearest New-York, and where they may arrive at that place with the greatest expedition, immediately, by detachments, to draft out and forward, by land or water to New-York, twenty companies, consisting of ninety men each, including officers, (to admit of no delay,) and there to put themselves under the commanding officer at that place, and remain till relieved by such part of your Army as you think proper to send there; at the same time, as a very busy season for farmers is soon approaching, am obliged to let them know that it is most probable they will soon be released and discharged, unless such as may choose to enlist themselves for further service.

On occasions like the present, the Field-Officers of the Militia are sent to command their regiments, according to a former law of this Colony, in case of alarm; and I have ordered their proper Field-Officers to take command accordingly.

As we are obliged now to drain off our Militia, so as to leave our sea-coasts bare of men, and as an attack may very suddenly be made upon some posts thereof, even in the present movements from Boston, I cannot but request that, in the march of your troops to New-York, they may be directed to take their route on or near the sea-coast, which will be nearer than through Hartford, and a much drier road at this season, as thereby they will be a guard, and ready to oppose the enemy, if any such attempts should be made; at the same time making their approach to New-York as expeditiously as any other way, unless delayed by opposing the enemy, which I am in hopes there may be no occasion for.

I have ordered Captain Niles to keep a good look-out for the enemy, as far as Block-Island and Montauk Point; and if any intelligence from him of consequence, shall immediately acquaint you therewith.

And am, sir, with great esteem and regard, your most obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To His Excellency General Washington.

ADMIRAL HOPKINS TO LIEUTENANT HINMAN.

On board the Alfred, March 18, 1776.

SIR: You being appointed Master of the Ship Endeavour, you are to keep company with the fleet until further orders; but if you should lose company, you are to use your best endeavours to get into Providence. If you cannot get in there, you are to go in on the east side of Rhode-Island, or Howland's Ferry, under the Fort, or into New-London. And whenever you get into port, you are to land your guns and stores, and send to Governour Nicholas Cooke, at Providence, or Governour Trumbull, for further orders, until you hear from me.

ESECK HOPKINS.

To Elisha Hinman, Esq.

ADMIRAL HOPKINS TO DARTMOUTH COMMITTEE.

On board the Alfred, March 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I understand, by Captain Jennings, that you are in want of guns; and I have sent by him two nine-pound guns and some shot, which please to accept, and make such use of them as you think best; and if opportunity permits, send the shot he has on board, that are too big for your guns, to Providence, or Howland's Ferry, and you will oblige your and your country's friend,

ESECK HOPKINS.

To the Committee of the Town of Dartmouth.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, March 18, 1776.

SIR: I am favoured with yours of the 8th and 14th instant, to which I have paid the greatest attention. The several regiments of Militia are ordered to hold themselves in readiness to march in case the enemy should land in this Colony, and the General Assembly is called to meet this day. As a part of the Army in Boston, supposing them to be destined to the southward, might, with but little loss of time, land upon and destroy Rhode-Island, and cut off the troops there, without some effectual measures are taken to oppose them, I thought these steps, which were all it was in my power to take, necessary. I also beg leave to suggest to your Excellency the propriety of ordering a part of the forces designed for New-York to march through this Colony. The route will not be much farther, and they will be at hand to repel any attack of the enemy.

I shall give your Excellency the earliest intelligence of every motion of the enemy that shall come to my knowledge.

I am, with great truth and esteem, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

JAMES OTIS TO BENJAMIN GREENLEAF.

Barnstable, March 18, 1776.

SIR: I think it my duty to write the honourable Board the reasons of my non-attendance on them; which are, because the small-pox has been in my neighbourhood for a month past, near my house, and I am afraid it will spread, as one person broke out on the last fast day, and I am afraid more have taken the distemper; which has confined me a good deal to my house, and should be loth to go abroad if I thought I had taken the infection, and am willing to be pretty certain first, so that I do not think it proper for me to venture abroad on a journey until next week; and if I remain in health, I will wait on the honourable Board some time that week, in case the weather and other circumstances permit. I want much to be at Court, to let them know what confusion some people have thrown this town and County into, on many accounts. This town had their March meeting the week before last, and would not choose tithing-men, wardens, and grand jurors, for the year, nor petit jurors for our next court; nor did they make any provision as to the last Militia act, for procuring axes, spades, shovels, &c., agreeable to said act; and I find the disorder is growing. Yarmouth copied after Barnstable in not choosing jurymen. The case is this: It is given out by our Tories that there is no law; the General Court is said to have no authority to appoint Courts; the General Congress is despised and contemned, and so is all authority in this Tory County; the paper currency depreciated, and some folks won't take it on any account. And if I may be allowed, I would make a few queries, viz: Whether the General Court, and more especially the Council, as governours, have shown that firmness and resolution that is necessary in this time of difficulty as to our publick affairs in general. 2dly. Whether too much attention has not been paid to that part of the populace that incline to anarchy, which have prevented the Court and military establishments; which, in my opinion, leads to this confusion through this part of the Government. I have one request more, which is, that our Court of General Sessions of the Peace, and Court of Common Pleas, to be held in this County (by law) on the first Tuesday of April, may be adjourned until the last Tuesday of June next, the time which our June Court sits. By that time some of our difficulties may possibly be got over, and others subside. I hope you will excuse my freedom; and such part of my scribbling you will communicate as you think proper.

I am your most obedient humble servant,

JAMES OTIS.

To the Honourable Benjamin Greenleaf, Esquire, or to the Honourable John Winthrop, Esq., in Watertown.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GEORGE MASON AND JOHN DALTON.

[No. 66.]

Annapolis, March 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In answer to your favour of the 15th, we have directed Colonel Beall to deliver to your order ten barrels of gunpowder. We shall do everything in our power to promote the general welfare; and for that purpose are now increasing our Marine.

We are, &c.

To George Mason and John Dalton, Esquires.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

[No. 67.]

Annapolis, March 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have your favour of the 9th of this month; and as we are convinced of the expediency of constructing the beacons in the manner you propose, on the points of the river Potomack, we shall readily join you in any expense that may attend the erection of them, and have appointed the Honourable George Plater, Esq., and Brigadier John Dent, to act with the gentlemen nominated by you for the carrying that measure into execution. We shall acquaint them of their appointment, and we are persuaded they will attend for that purpose, on any notice your Commissioners will be pleased to give them. We have heard little of the Otter and her tenders since their leaving this river, except that they pillaged a small island on our East- ern Shore. We are not without expectation of another visit from them, and shall be extremely obliged for any intelligence you may be pleased to communicate to us of their movements. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Safety of Virginia.

P. S. We have just received a letter from George Mason and John Dalton, Esquires, requesting the loan of ten barrels of powder, which we have supplied them with for the use of your Colony.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GEORGE PLATER AND BRIGADIER-GENERAL DENT.

[No. 68.]

Annapolis, March 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In consequence of the enclosed letter from the Committee of Safety of Virginia, desiring us to appoint Commissioners to co-operate with the gentlemen nominated by them for erecting beacons on the shores of the river Potomack, we have taken the liberty to appoint yourself and Brigadier John Dent; and we hope it may be agreeable to you to attend at any meeting their Commissioners may desire, in carrying that necessary measure into execution.

We are, &c.

To George Plater, Esq., and Brigadier-General Dent, severally.

MARYLAND DELEGATES TO COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Tibbet, in a brig from Statia, purchased and loaded by Abram Vanbibber, for our Province, arrived here last week. The Captain applied to us for orders, agreeable to directions he had received for that purpose from Vanbibber. We ordered the cargo to be landed and stored, and the hands to be discharged. A few days since application was made to us for the sale of the brig to the Congress, which we agreed to, and have delivered her up with the guns, stores, &c. The account relative to her will be settled in a few days, and shall be transmitted. You have enclosed a list of the goods imported, all of which will be forwarded by the stages, except the duck; we have retained this till your orders. It is an article very scarce and dear in this city. If you do not want the whole quantity, we can sell it at a price that will leave a considerable profit.

Congress have advanced twenty-two thousand dollars, to be exchanged for gold and silver in your Province. This money would have been sent to you had any convenient opportunity offered. Robert Alexander, who intended for Maryland, last Sunday, prevented our writing by the Saturday's post, as he proposed going to Annapolis, and could give you fuller information of the state of affairs than can be contained within the compass of a letter.

We make no doubt you have heard various reports relative to a Mr. Temple, who came passenger in the packet, and is now in this city. Before his arrival here it was asserted that he was charged with despatches from the Ministry to Congress; that Courts were appointed with full powers; and that, if, on their arrival in America, the different Assemblies refused to treat, they were to treat with Congress. Temple, on his arrival, delivered his budget, which was truly farsical, being only a button of his coat, in which was contained a scrawl from Arthur Lee, informing Congress that troops were to sail from Ireland, and, for other particulars, referring to Temple, who could give information, as he (Lee) had acquainted him with the state of affairs, and the designs of Administration.

We have never seen Temple; it is said he is sick, some say he is mad. From his conduct in taking this journey to deliver such a trifling letter, the latter opinion seems well founded. The packet letters are yet on board the Asia man-of-war. The Postmaster, it is reported, has refused to deliver any letters unless the postage of the whole is paid. We are in expectation of an express from Boston. General Washington took possession of Dorchester Parish, which commands South Boston. It is said by ———'s letter to Congress, that Howe was embarking his artillery, stores, &c., in the greatest confusion.

We are, with respect, gentlemen, your humble servants,

THE DELEGATES OF MARYLAND.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO BARON DE WOEDTKE.

Philadelphia, March 19, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of the warm recommendations in your favour,* and in hopes, by your eminent abilities, you will be able to render essential service to the cause of liberty, the Congress have thought proper to appoint you a Brigadier-General in the Army of the United Colonies, and I have the honour to enclose you their commission.

The desire of Congress is, that you repair to New-York as soon as you can, with convenience, and there wait the arrival of the Commissioners going to Canada, and that you accompany them to that Province, where you will put yourself under the command, and receive the orders of the Commander-in-Chief in that Department.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Frederick William Baron De Woedtke, Knight of Malta, &c., &c., &c., at Philadelphia.

*PARIS, August 30, 1775.

MY DEAR MASTER: A General Officer in the Horse, who is of the highest consideration in this country, interests himself much in the cause of America, which he regards as the cause of mankind in general, and yours in particular. I am not allowed to name him, but I can tell you he is a near relation of that man in France for whom you have the greatest esteem. He has a cooler head and a purer heart than his relation, and is, by his talents, possessed of a most excellent judgment in military affairs, and of military merit; he is by his sentiments incapable to give countenance to any solicitations where there is not real merit. You see, sir, under whose guaranty, and at whose instigation, I have the honour to introduce to you the Baron of Woedtke, whom he knows personally, and is confirmed in his opinion of him by the Baron of Gottz, Plenipotentiary Minister from the King of Prussia to this Court, of whom he has been very particular in his inquiries, and who gives him the highest character, of as good an officer of horse as any in Europe, and as honest a man. He comes to offer himself to assist in making the justest cause that ever people were engaged in triumph—a cause that has made a people the most pacifick in the world the most warlike; their virtue animates their courage, and their oppressors already think that, what they vainly flattered themselves with, of easily subjugating them to their views, will not be easily effected. But the most heroic virtue will not immediately supply that knowledge in war which practice only gives.

I never heard talk of English-American Cavalry. Notwithstanding, between your great rivers you cannot fail of having vast plains, where Cavalry must always decide the fate of battles. Mr. the Baron of Woedtke, brought up in the finest school in the world of this kind, and, I may add, by the hand of the first master, employed in the post of Major of the Prussian Troops, has all the experience, all the capacity which can be wished for by your Colonies to form a body of Cavalry, and to conduct them when formed. They may depend upon his zeal. He has suffered for three or four years in a cause somewhat parallel with yours. He was persecuted, robbed by the injustice and ingratitude of a Sovereign, whom he had so loyally and happily served, who placed in him the greatest confidence, and gave him to hope for a lot the most fortunate; but, destitute of any resource against his tyrant, he abandoned a country in which he was born and educated, to look for one that, by election, he might call his own; where he hopes to signalize himself in the glorious defence of the purest liberty that ever was known; where an asylum is to none refused, and, consequently, a generous defender has not the least doubt but he will be adopted as a citizen by engaging in the American cause. He has already espoused the sentiment, and wishes to have the honour of being called the countryman of Franklin, Otis, Hancock, Adams, of Dickinson, of Mifflin, Middleton, and Rush, of Generals Washington, Gates, Lee, Ward, of Putnam, &c.; the names of whom will be revered in future ages, and blessed more and more, while the slave of Frederick, to whom every knee at present bows, but whose name will be handed to posterity from generation to generation with a growing horror.

The Baron of Woedtke desires in an especial manner to make his appearance in your country under your auspices, and will use all his efforts to deserve your good opinion. I beg that you will immediately do all that will depend upon you, to render him service, and that he may get into employ as soon as possible. You well know that one disgraced by a King of Prussia has very little to depend upon in that country; that his patrimony is confiscated; all his appointments stopped, has reduced him to very great distress; to the point—he was obliged to the succours of some friends for as much as will bear the expense of his voyage to you. He has not, from his birth, imbibed the sweet influence of the laws of Penn. It is true, from twelve years of age he has been employed in a useful manner, as the world goes, but they have only taught him to burn powder and hew off limbs. If he can assist in procuring for you a sweet rest after a glorious war, he will be happy, from his education, bad as it is, that his work may contribute to join the simplicity of the Quaker to the firmness of a Brutus.

You will have here joined a Memoir of his services.

To Dr. Franklin.

The Baron of Woedtke, Knight of the order of Jerusalem of the Protestant Religion, is a subject of the King of Prussia, and was a general officer to that Prince. He entered the service in the year 1750, a volunteer; in 1753 he obtained a Cornetcy of Horse; in 1756 he was appointed Brigade-Major; in 1758 the King appointed him Aid-de-Camp and Major of Brigade to the King's own command;—all the duties of which he did with applause. He served twenty-three years until this time of his arrival in France. He was in high credit and esteem with the King—more so with the young Prince, nephew to his Majesty, about whose COMMISSION FROM THE UNITED COLONIES OF AMERICA TO BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, SAMUEL CHASE, AND CHARLES CARROLL, ESQUIRES.

The Delegates of the UNITED COLONIES of NEW-HAMPSHIRE, MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, RHODE-ISLAND, CONNECTICUT, NEW-YORK, NEW-JERSEY, PENNSYLVANIA, the three Counties on DELAWARE, MARYLAND, VIRGINIA, NORTH-CAROLINA, SOUTH-CAROLINA, and GEORGIA, in Congress assembled:

To BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at PARIS, F. R. S., &c., &c., &c., one of the Delegates of the Colony of PENNSYLVANIA; SAMUEL CHASE, Esq., one of the Delegates of the Colony of MARYLAND; and CHARLES CARROLL, of CARROLLTON, in the said Colony of MARYLAND, Esq., Greeting:

Know ye, that we, reposing especial trust and confidence in your zeal, fidelity, abilities, and assiduity, do, by these presents, constitute and appoint you, or any two of you, Commissioners for and on behalf of us, and all the People of the United Colonies whom we represent, to promote or to form an union between the said Colonies and the People of Canada, according to the Instructions herewith delivered you, and to such as you may hereafter receive; and to execute all such matters and things as you are, or shall be, directed by your said Instructions. And we do require all officers, soldiers, and others, who may facilitate your negotiations, or promote the success thereof, to aid and assist you therein; and you are, from time to time, to transmit and report your proceedings to Congress.

This Commission to continue in force until revoked by this or a future Congress.

By order of Congress:

Dated at Philadelphia.

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

In Congress, March 20, 1776.

Instructions to BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, SAMUEL CHASE, and CHARLES CARROLL, Esquires.

GENTLEMEN: You are, with all convenient despatch, to repair to Canada, and make known to the people of that person he was placed; but the unfortunate death of that young Prince was the fall of the Baron of Woodtke. He, from his station, was obliged to inform his Majesty of the death of his beloved nephew, who therefrom took such an aversion to the Baron, that he could not bear him in his sight. So far did he carry this ill-placed aversion, that he obliged a man devoted to his service and to his native country, to seek an asylum in a strange country, without friends; but he has been happy enough to gain the countenance of some of the most illustrious in this place.

The Baron de Gotz, Minister Plenipotentiary from Prussia, has certified the above in a much more ample manner than it now appears in.

PARIS, August 30, 1775.

SIR: Before the Baron de Woodtke's departure for Pennsylvania, (his country by adoption,) we have frequently talked over the men of merit with whom that country abounds more than any other I am acquainted with, and whom I profess to honour more particularly. I have not forgotten you, sir, in the number, though I had not the honour of seeing you more than one short day. Having told him that you are descended from one of the most ancient noble families of Picardy, and allied to the house of Maily, and knowing that he is also allied to that noble family, it has made him desirous of being more particularly recommended to you than to others of his future countrymen.

The Baron is a man equally to be recommended for his birth, his sentiments, his talents, and his manners. Born a subject of the King of Prussia, was employed in his service from his youth, and arrived to the rank of Major of Horse, in which he has distinguished himself in the armies so celebrated in Europe; but, after being honoured with the most intimate confidence of this Monarch, as impetuous in his temper as enlightened in his understanding, he incurred his disgrace by the intrigues of the Court, (and what Court is without intrigues?) His revenues being stopped, he is under the necessity of quitting his country. Preferable to any other country, where his reputation would not fail of giving him honourable employ, the glory which the Colonies are daily acquiring, and the conformity there is between their lot and his, have determined him to go and offer his services, dum defensoribus istis tempus eget—whilst the time requires such defenders. I am of opinion that this is one of the best presents which Europe can make at this critical time for America, to whom they have so many crimes to expiate.

With this confidence, I flatter myself that I shall serve America by introducing this gentleman to you; and lay hold of the occasion of honouring myself by recalling me to your remembrance.

Europe now rings with the report of the exploits of the Bostonians, the eloquent writings of the Philadelphians, the courage of your Militia, and the wisdom of your Congress. If you continue united, Athens, Sparta, and Thebes, must yield to you. There is one thing that I am in pain about: it is, how you can get places for the numbers who must flock to you from all parts. If I was not sixty years of age, I would not be the last.

I have the honour to be, with the most distinguished and sincere sentiments, sir, your most humble servant, country the wishes and intentions of Congress with respect to them.

DUBOURG.

Represent to them that the arms of the United Colonies, having been carried into that Province for the purpose of frustrating the designs of the British Court against our common liberties, we expect not only to defeat the hostile machinations of Governour Carleton against us, but that we shall put it in the power of our Canadian brethren to pursue such measures, for securing their own freedom and happiness, as a generous love of liberty and sound policy shall dictate to them.

Inform them that, in our judgment, their interest and ours are inseparably united. That it is impossible we can be reduced to a servile submission to Great Britain without their sharing in our fate; and, on the other hand, if we obtain, (as we doubt not we shall,) a full establishment of our rights, it depends wholly on their choice whether they will participate with us in those blessings, or still remain subject to every act of tyranny which British Ministers shall please to exercise over them. Urge all such arguments as your prudence shall suggest, to enforce our opinion concerning the mutual interests of the two countries, and to convince them of the impossibility of the war being concluded to the disadvantage of the Colonies, if we wisely and vigorously co-operate with each other. To convince them of the uprightness of our intentions towards them, you are to declare that it is our inclination that the people of Canada may set up such a form of Government as will be most likely in their judgment to promote this happiness; and you are, in the strongest terms, to assure them that it is our earnest desire to adopt them into our Union as a sister Colony, and to secure the same general system of mild and equal laws for them and for ourselves, with only such local differences as may be agreeable to each Colony respectively. Assure the people of Canada that we have no apprehension that the French will take any part with Great Britain; but that it is their interest, and we have reason to believe their inclination, to cultivate a friendly intercourse with these Colonies.

You are, from this and such other reasons as may appear most proper, to urge the necessity the people are under of immediately taking some decisive step to put themselves under the protection of the United Colonies. For expediting such a measure, you are to explain to them our method of collecting the sense of the people, and conducting our affairs regularly, by Committees of Observation and Inspection in the several Districts; and by Conventions and Committees of Safety in the several Colonies. Recommend these modes to them. Explain to them the nature and principles of Government among freemen; developing, in contrast to these, the base, cruel, and insidious designs involved in the late act of Parliament for making a more effectual provision for the government of the Province of Quebeck. Endeavour to stimulate them, by motives of glory, as well as interest, to assume a part in a contest by which they must be deeply affected; and to aspire to a portion of that power by which they are ruled; and not to remain the mere spoils and prey of conquerors and lords.

You are further to declare that we hold sacred the rights of conscience, and may promise to the whole people solemnly, in our name, the free and undisturbed exercise of their religion, and to the clergy the full, perfect, and peaceable possession and enjoyment of all their estates; that the government of everything relating to their religion and clergy shall be left entirely in the hands of the good people of that Province, and such Legislature as they shall constitute; provided, however, that all other denominations of Christians be equally entitled to hold offices, and enjoy civil privileges, and the free exercise of their religion, and be totally exempt from the payment of any tithes, or taxes, for the support of any religion.

Inform them that you are vested by this Congress with full powers to effect these purposes; and, therefore, press them to have a complete representation of the people assembled in Convention, with all possible expedition, to deliberate concerning the establishment of a form of Government and an union with the United Colonies. As to the terms of the union, insist upon the propriety of their being similar to those upon which the other Colonies unite. Should they object to this, report to this Congress those objections, and the terms on which alone they will come into our Union.

Should they agree to our terms, you are to promise, in the names of the United Colonies, that we will defend and protect the people of Canada against all enemies, in the same manner as we will defend and protect any of the United Colonies.

You are to establish a free Press, and to give directions for the frequent publication of such pieces as may be of service to the cause of the United Colonies.

You are to settle all disputes between the Canadians and the Continental Troops, and to make such regulations relating thereto as you shall judge proper.

You are to make a strict and impartial inquiry into the cause of the imprisonment of Colonel Dufee, Lieutenant-Colonel Nefeu, Major St. George Dupree, and Major Gray, officers of Militia; and of John Fraser, Esq., late a Judge of Police at Montreal, and take such order concerning them as you shall judge most proper.

In reforming any abuses you may observe in Canada, establishing and enforcing regulations for preservation of peace and good order there, and composing differences between the troops of the United Colonies and the Canadians, all officers and soldiers are required to yield obedience to you.

And to enforce the decisions that you, or any two of you may make, you are empowered to suspend any military officer from the exercise of his commission till the pleasure of the Congress shall be known, if you, or any two of you, shall think it expedient.

You are also empowered to sit and vote as members of Councils of War in directing fortifications and defences to be made or to be demolished; and to draw orders upon the President for any sums of money, not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars in the whole, to defray the expenses of the works.

Lastly, you are, by all the means you can use, to promote the execution of the resolutions now made, or hereafter to be made in Congress.

Additional Instructions.

You are empowered and directed to promote and encourage the trade of Canada with the Indian Nations, and grant passports for carrying it on, as far as it may consist with the safety of the troops and the publick good.

You are also directed and authorized to assure the inhabitants of Canada their commerce with foreign nations shall, in all respects, be put on an equal footing with and encouraged and protected in the same manner, as the trade of the United Colonies.

You are also directed to use every wise and prudent measure to introduce and give credit and circulation to the Continental money in Canada.

In case the former resolution of Congress, respecting the English American Troops in Canada, has not been carried into effect, you are directed to use your best endeavours to form a battalion of the New-York Troops in that country, and to appoint the Field and other officers, out of the gentlemen who have continued there during the campaign, according to their respective ranks and merit; and if it should be found impracticable, you are to direct such of them as are provided in the four battalions now raising in New-York, to repair to their respective corps. To enable you to carry this resolution into effect, you are furnished with blank commissions by the President.

By order of Congress: JOHN HANCOCK, President.

NEW-YORK DELEGATES TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We beg leave to recommend to your particular attention the enclosed request from the Delegates of Maryland. We are not sufficiently acquainted with the state of our artillery to judge whether it will be in your power to oblige a sister Colony on this pressing occasion. We can only say that it will give us great pleasure if you can consistently contribute to the safety of Maryland, from whose Delegates our Colony has always received a uniform and zealous support. Their friendship in procuring an instruction from their Convention expressly directing them to move and use their endeavours for procuring relief to our Colony in the article of tea, and their generous offer to supply us with a ton of their scanty stock of powder some months ago, deserve our grateful acknowledgments, and the esteem of our constituents. We could not, indeed, avail ourselves of the last favour, because the interposition of Congress was necessary, and we had reason to be apprehensive that the powder would have been sent another way, where it was then thought more necessary.

We have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servants,

JAMES DUANE,
JOHN ALSOP,
JOHN JAY,
LEWIS MORRIS.

To the Honourable Convention of New-York.

MARYLAND DELEGATES TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Convention of Maryland voted a considerable sum of money to defend the harbour of Baltimore town, the most considerable place of our trade. Fortifications and batteries are now erecting; and every means in our power to procure cannon have failed. If your Colony can spare us four eighteen-pounders, or eight twelves, or eight nines, (which shall be returned as soon as others can be procured,) they will be of infinite service in defending a boom now very nearly ready to be laid across the river.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,
W. JOHNSON, JUN.,
SAMUEL CHASE,
WILLIAM PAGA.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of New-York.

JOHN WITHERSPOON TO LORD STIRLING.

Princeton, March 19, 1776.

MY LORD: I am this day favoured with your Lordship's letter of the 17th, as Chairman of the Committee of Somerset County, and shall not fail to lay it before them at their first meeting, which is on Wednesday next week, the 27th. I would have called them immediately, but the notices could not be sent so as to procure a meeting above two days sooner, as one of their number is gone to Philadelphia to procure powder, and it would have been very disagreeable to them to have been called twice in so short a time. I shall not fail to acquaint your Lordship of the resolution of the Committee; and wishing you much lawful and signal success in your present important charge,

I am, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN WITHERSPOON.

To Lord Stirling.

MOSES OGDEN TO JOSEPH HALLETT.

Newark, New-Jersey, March 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I yesterday attended the vendue at Elizabethtown, and purchased a quantity of coal, to fulfil your order for shot; and as it cannot be delivered without the cash, I am obliged to request the favour of you to advance, and send me by the bearer, (Mr. Garret Jacobus, one of our workmen,) one hundred pounds, who will give you a receipt for the same. We have everything prepared for despatch as soon as the coal arrives.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

MOSES OGDEN.

To Mr. Joseph Hallett, New-York.

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, March 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have this evening, by express, received the two enclosed letters from General Washington. I have communicated the contents of them to the Committee of Safety of this Province, and shall meet them to-morrow morning, to consult on such measures as necessarily arise from this intelligence. The Congress may be assured every step will be taken to prepare this place for the reception of the enemy. The work is great; not a moment of my time is left unemployed in effecting it.

I had the honour of receiving your letter of the 16th instant, last night. In consequence of which, I ordered five tons of the powder, destined for Cambridge, to proceed immediately, and the rest to follow as soon as it could be shifted into proper barrels, which would have been accomplished to-morrow, and sent forward; but on this intelligence from General Washington, and a message which this express brings from Colonel Mifflin, that everything on the road to the camp at Cambridge be stopped, and sent to this place, I have ordered the whole eleven tons of powder to be stored here.

You may depend, sir, that General Howe at first intended a feint, with hopes of preventing General Washington possessing himself of the Heights of Dorchester; and finding the bait did not take, the distress of his Army, and his uneasy situation after that post was secured, has obliged him, in the utmost hurry and confusion, to make a real embarkation of his Army. I have written a free letter to General Lee on our situation here, which, with the other from General Washington to him, (after the Congress has perused them,) you will be so good as to forward to him, if he has left Philadelphia.

I would now go into a more particular detail of matters, but the hurry of business renders it impossible. I will, at every moment's leisure, communicate to you whatever may be of consequence.

I am, dear sir, your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 29, 1776.]

Albany, March 19, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the honour to transmit you a copy of a letter, dated 5th March, from General Wooster, which I yesterday received. It is far from being improbable that the enemy have in contemplation the plan he mentions. His being aware of it will, I hope, put it in his power to render it abortive.

Colonel Warner's conduct, in making me a return, on the 12th of February, of seven hundred and thirty-six men being engaged by him, and on which I founded a warrant for advancing pay, (a copy whereof I enclosed you in mine of the 13th ultimo,) is extremely outré, when only four hundred and seventeen were arrived on the 5th instant.

On Saturday, the 16th instant, two sloops arrived here; but that with the heavy cannon and shot is not yet come up, although I desired that she might be brought up as far as the ice would permit, to take the advantage of the first fair wind after the river opened.

The whole of the batteaus I was ordered to build will be finished in eight days, as far as they can be for want of pitch and oakum, which is not yet arrived from New-York. I have, however, a sufficiency to transport the troops now here.

I have been so continually crowded with business, that I have not had time to copy the proceedings of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs till lately, and now enclose them. I have taken no notice of the numerous meetings I have had with small parties of Indians, as they came only on begging errands. The Six Nations have sent us word that they will soon be down. They always expect presents on such occasions, but we have nothing to give them.

The Indian Department engrosses so much of the time of the acting Commissioners, that a Secretary is absolutely necessary. Should Congress be pleased to make the appointment, they will permit me to recommend Mr. Robert Yates, a gentleman in whom are happily combined great good sense, a facility in doing business, a most consummate virtue, a steady friend to the cause of America, and to whose exertions in this quarter the publick are much indebted. He has the honour to be known to most of the Delegates from this Colony.

March 20.—I have this moment received another letter from General Wooster, of the 13th instant, a copy whereof (No. 2) I also enclose. I am well convinced that General Wooster has sufficient employment in the military branch. The civil also requires great attention, in the present critical state of Canada; and I fear the most fatal consequences, if an immediate attention is not paid to it. This induces me to repeat my former request, that a Committee of Congress may be sent.

Sir John Johnson was this day in town, agreeable to my request; but his accusers did not appear. He avows that he has reported that the Indians have thrown out threats that they would fall upon us; and says it is notorious to many of our friends in the County of Tryon that they have repeatedly done it.

I am just now informed that the Indians are already on their way to this place to hold a conference with us. We shall be greatly distressed, as we have nothing to give them.

The heavy cannon arrived this morning, and they will be moved with all possible despatch to Fort George, and from thence as soon as the lakes are passable. Not a sailor for vessels, nor any artillery companies, are yet arrived here.

I have been under the necessity of repairing the old Hospital in this city to lodge the troops. Several of the men are down with the small-pox. I have had them removed to a distance from town.

Apprehensive that difficulties would arise in transporting the cannon and military stores from hence by land, at this season of the year, when the roads are almost impassable, and frequently overflowed between this and Fort Edward, I caused ten batteaus to be built; and happy it is, as the waters are now out, and many parts of the road rendered thereby impassable. In the transportation of these stores only, considerable more than the cost of the batteaus will be saved, even if the water had not rendered the roads useless; they being so very deep that carriages, at the very utmost, can carry only half loads. I hope to be able to venture a ride to Fort George by the time the cannon are moving from here, that they may not be retarded on the way, or on their arrival at that place, should the lakes be open.

If no sailors come up in time, I will man a sufficient number of the vessels with men from the troops for the present occasion.

I am, sir, most respectfully and sincerely, your most obedient and very humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

Hon. John Hancock.

Montreal, March 5, 1776.

SIR: Your favours, with the cash by Mr. Benson, came safe to hand this day at a time when greatly wanted; what we had being almost entirely expended. Whether I shall be able to borrow money of the merchants upon the plan you propose or not, I cannot yet tell. I have consulted Mr. Henry upon the subject. I think him as likely to succeed in the business as any person I can employ; yet I imagine it doubtful whether he succeeds or not, as very few, if any, of the merchants have any remittance to make in the Colonies, and, in general, they are not disposed to assist us, when it can be avoided.

I am happy at the arrival of the Commissaries, and shall, with pleasure, publish your orders concerning that branch of business. I have no doubt but there have been many abuses, and, I fear, not a few embezzlements. I have attempted several times to make an inquiry thoroughly into the conduct of the different Commissaries; but our critical situation, and the various different kinds of business which were absolutely necessary to attend to, have prevented my taking such measures as I could have wished. There was a considerable quantity of provisions left at St. John's, and taken in the fleet; a part of what was taken in the fleet was carried in the vessels, and has since been sent to Quebeck. There has been a number of poor families who suffered greatly about St. John's, and a number of prisoners in the town, who have been supplied with provisions through the winter; yet I cannot but think the consumption has been greater than it ought to be. Your orders, I hope, will prevent any further waste of provisions. The cost of transporting pork across the lakes is greater than I imagined. I hope the four hundred barrels, with what we have in hand, and what can be procured here, will be sufficient for us until the lakes open. I have sent Lieutenant Johnson, of the train, to St. John's, to forward some of the cannon and artillery stores from that place to Quebeck; a part of which have already been sent. I hope that whatever you send from Ticonderogo will arrive in a few days, or I fear the passing from this to Quebeck will be difficult. I have been very careful to take returns of all the troops, as they arrive from the Colonies. Of Colonel Warner's Regiment, which, he tells me, he supposed to consist of between seven and eight hundred, there have four hundred and seventeen arrived, and there are but a few more expected. I could wish that some method might be found out to prevent any impositions of this kind. I am of opinion that we shall need a real army in this Province—a nominal one will not answer the purpose. I hope the other regiments that are ordered for this country will not turn out so lightly. I imagine you have been deceived with regard to Warner's Regiment, as he tells me he made you a return of between seven and eight hundred.

I am very glad to hear that General Lee is coming into this Province. Perhaps it might not be amiss if the Congress should think proper to send one or two other Generals with him. It certainly will be of great consequence to our cause that we have a respectable army here this summer. We have great reason to believe that there is a correspondence kept up between some of our enemies in and about this town and the King's Troops at Swagotcha and Niagara; and, from a number of circumstances collected from the Caughnawaga Indians, we have reason to apprehend that there is a plan concerted for those troops, in conjunction with what Canadians can be collected about those places, a number of Indian traders and their workmen, and a number of Savages, to make a descent upon this town when our troops are gone to Quebeck. Should our apprehensions prove true, it will be necessary to keep a strong garrison here. I have sent an Indian, who lately arrived here from Dr. Wheelock, (and understands English, French, and Indian,) among several of their tribes, to see whether he can find out the truth. When he returns, I shall likely be better informed.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
DAVID WOOSTER.

To General Schuyler.

Montreal, March 13, 1776.

SIR: I have sent down Mr. Woolsey and Monsieur Beaubasin. Woolsey was taken prisoner by Major Brown, and set at liberty upon his parole of honour to do nothing against our Army. He afterwards went into Quebeck, and headed a party in an attempt to take some of General Arnold's men prisoners, but failed in the attempt, and was afterwards taken himself. Monsieur Beaubasin is represented to be a very dangerous man, and a most inveterate enemy; who is reported to have intrigues with the Indians, and was overheard to advise the massacre of our troops. A few days since, I wrote you that we had reason to apprehend some mischief contriving against us in the upper countries; since when, a Richard Walker, one Goddard, and Lorimier, (a Frenchman and Indian interpreter,) have, in a secret manner, left this place, and gone to the upper countries. We have heard of them upon their way; and it is said that Peter Johnson (a natural son of Sir William's, who sailed from Quebeck for England, stopped at Halifax, and has come across from that place to this, and was disguised here for some days in the dress of a Squaw) has gone with them. What designs may be forming, we cannot certainly tell; but most likely to make a descent upon this place while the most of our troops are gone to Quebeck. And really we have very few men to spare for this garrison; and there has not yet arrived from the Colonies fifteen hundred men. How many more we may expect before the lakes are impassable, we do not know; but I could wish to see them come in much faster. Will it not be well to send a body of troops to Oswego, by the way of the Mohawk River? I am informed that the back Nations of Indians were invited down here this spring by Carleton; but am unacquainted whether any belts have ever reached them from the Congress—you, doubtless, know. If they have received none, will it not be advisable to send to them as soon as possible?

I am, sir, your most obedient, very humble servant,
DAVID WOOSTER.

To General Schuyler.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Colony of Rhode-Island, &c., East-Greenwich, }
March 19, 1776. }

SIR: The General Assembly of the Colony of Rhode-Island, &c., acknowledge with gratitude the timely notice

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. V.

you have been pleased to give them of the late movement of the Ministerial Troops. The necessary orders have, in consequence thereof, been given to the Militia of this Colony to hold themselves in readiness, should any attack or lodgment be made here by said troops. But we must inform your Excellency that the great number of troops sent out of this Colony have considerably thinned our numbers; that the troops raised and stationed within this Colony have necessitated the Colony to take the arms out of the hands of a great part of the Militia; which hath made us greatly deficient in arms. The singular situation of this Colony will, we hope, excite your Excellency's immediate attention. Rhode-Island, and the many other islands in our bays and rivers, with the extensive sea-coast, render it very difficult to defend ourselves against the present Ministerial Forces. What our situation must be if a large armed force should make a landing upon Rhode-Island, or any other part of the Colony, your Excellency may as easily suggest as we can describe. It will, we are sure, be your Excellency's great concern to defend every part of the Continent as far as possible. Should your Excellency see fit to order any part of the forces from the vicinity of Boston to any of the Southern Colonies, we would wish your Excellency to order their march through this Colony, by the sea-shore, that we might have the chance of their being present should the Colony be immediately invaded. And whether it may not be necessary that a considerable force should be immediately stationed here till the intention of the enemy can be known, we also submit to your Excellency. We are extremely solicitous of all the assistance your Excellency can afford us, consistently with the general good; and doubt not but the utmost attention will be paid by your Excellency to our peculiarly distressed and dangerous situation.

At the request and in behalf of the General Assembly, I subscribe myself your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO LORD STIRLING.

Cambridge, March 19, 1776.

MY LORD: I am now to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 11th instant, and to give you every congratulation upon your late appointment by the honourable Congress. If the intelligence is true, and to be depended upon, which was brought by the gentlemen to New-York, I think with you, that we shall have an opportunity of securing and putting the Continent in a tolerable posture of defence, and that the operations of the summer's campaign will not be so terrible as we were taught to expect from the accounts and denunciations which the Ministry have held forth to the publick. I have the pleasure to inform you that, on the morning of the 17th instant, General Howe, with his Army, abandoned the town of Boston without destroying it—an event of much importance, and which must be heard with great satisfaction—and that we are now in full possession. Their embarkation and retreat were hurried and precipitate; and they have left behind them stores of one thing and another to pretty considerable account; among which are several pieces of heavy cannon and one or two mortars, which are spiked. The town is in a much better situation, and less injured, than I expected from the reports I had received; though, to be sure, it is much damaged, and many houses despoiled of their valuable furniture. The fleet is still in King and Nantasket Roads; and where they intend to make a descent next, is altogether unknown; but, supposing New-York to be an object of much importance, and to be in their view, I must recommend your most strenuous and active exertions in preparing to prevent any designs or attempts they may have against it. I have detached the Riflemen and five battalions from hence to your assistance, which will be followed by others as circumstances will allow. These, with what forces you have, and can assemble, if there should be an occasion, I trust will be sufficient to hinder the enemy from possessing the city, and making a lodgment, till the main body of this Army can arrive.

I am, my Lord, with great respect, your most obedient and humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Lord Stirling.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Cambridge, March 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The 17th instant Mr. Bennett handed me your favour of the 9th. It mortifies me beyond expression to find the troops going to Canada so badly provided with arms. I have so often mentioned the situation we are in from the same cause, that I shall not trouble you more thereon; indeed, your letters and mine seem echoes to each other—enumerating our mutual difficulties. Should success crown our labours, the reflection will not be disgraceful.

A short detail of what has happened here since I wrote you last will, I dare say, afford you pleasure. The night of the 4th instant we possessed ourselves of Dorchester Heights, which alarmed the enemy so much that they made their dispositions to engage us; which was what I most earnestly wished for. But a violent storm coming on the evening of the 5th, gave us time to strengthen our works, and cooled the enemy's ardour. From that moment they made all possible diligence in preparing to move off. Our advancing still closer to them on the 16th (by taking post on an eminence called Nook's Hill, which commands their works on the neck of land which separates the town from Roxbury, and also commands the south part of Boston) has obliged the enemy to take to their ships, which, rather precipitately, they effected on the 17th, in the morning, leaving behind them about thirty pieces of excellent cannon and two mortars, (spiked,) a number of ball, some shells, the chief part of their light-horse, forage, twenty thousand bushels of wheat, two thousand five hundred chaldron of coal, salt, rugs, and blankets, with many other articles too tedious to mention. The ships now lie below the Castle, extending themselves to Nantasket Road, about nine miles. I do not expect that they will pay us another visit; though, as a number of transports have appeared this morning to have joined them, they may be tempted; which will prevent my sending off any more troops until they quit the harbour. It is uncertain where they may go from hence. Long-Island or New-York is, in my opinion, the place of their destination. I have sent off a Rifle Regiment and five battalions to New-York; and, when I can be certain of their having fairly left these parts, I shall remove the rest of the Army there, where I shall have great pleasure to meet you in tolerable health.

The return of the troops with General Arnold is received; also, the depositions respecting Colonel Allen's usage, which has been very cruel.

I am in hopes we shall be able to collect some hard money from the inhabitants of Boston. If we do, you shall soon be informed thereof.

Application has been made to the Commissary (Mr. Chamier) relative to the subsistence of the prisoners in our possession; which, I believe, is settled with David Franks, of Philadelphia.

I remain, &amp;c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To General Schuyler.

DR. MORGAN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Dr. Morgan's compliments to General Washington: Having received a present of an exceedingly handsome and good horse, he thinks it too elegant and accomplished an animal not to wish General Washington master of it. He therefore begs the General's acceptance of it, in which case he shall think himself very happy to have had it in his power to furnish him so noble a steed at a time when he may have more particular occasion for a good riding horse, either for his own use or that of Mrs. Washington.

Dr. Morgan's servant now attends with the horse, to deliver it to whomsoever the General shall order to take charge of it. *

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 25, 1776.]

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 19, 1776.

SIR: It is with the greatest pleasure I inform you that, on Sunday last, the 17th instant, about nine o'clock in the forenoon, the Ministerial Army evacuated the town of Boston, and that the forces of the United Colonies are now in actual possession thereof. I beg leave to congratulate you, sir, and the honourable Congress, on this happy event, and particularly as it was effected without endangering the lives and property of the remaining unhappy inhabitants. I have great reason to imagine their flight was precipitated by the appearance of a work which I had ordered to be thrown up last Saturday night on an eminence at Dorchester, which lay nearest to Boston-Neck, called Nook's Hill. The town, although it has suffered greatly, is not in so bad a state as I expected to find it; and I have a particular pleasure in being able to inform you, sir, that your house has received no damage worth mentioning; your furniture is in tolerable order, and the family pictures are all left entire and untouched. Captain Cazneau takes charge of the whole until he shall receive further orders from you. As soon as the Ministerial Troops had quitted the town, I ordered a thousand men, (who had had the small-pox,) under command of General Putnam, to take possession of the Heights, which I shall endeavour to fortify in such a manner as to prevent their return, should they attempt it; but as they are still in the harbour, I thought it not prudent to march off with the main body of the Army until I should be fully satisfied they had quitted the coast. I have therefore only detached five regiments, besides the Rifle Battalion, to New-York, and shall keep the remainder here till all suspicion of their return ceases. The situation in which I found their works evidently discovered that their retreat was made with the greatest precipitation. They have left their barracks, and other works of wood at Bunker's Hill, &c., all standing, and have destroyed but a small part of their lines. They have also left a number of fine pieces of cannon, which they first spiked up; also, a very large iron mortar, and (as I am informed) they have thrown another over the end of your wharf. I have employed proper persons to drill the cannon, and doubt not shall save the most of them. I am not yet able to procure an exact list of all the stores they have left; as soon as it can be done, I shall take care to transmit it to you. From an estimate of what the Quartermaster-General has already discovered, the amount will be twenty-five or thirty thousand pounds.

Part of the powder mentioned in yours of the 6th instant has already arrived. The remainder I have ordered to be stopped on the road, as we shall have no occasion for it here. The letter to General Thomas I immediately sent to him. He desired leave for three or four days, to settle some of his private affairs; after which he will set out for his command in Canada. I am happy that my conduct in intercepting Lord Drummond's letter is approved of by Congress.

I have the honour to be, with sincere respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 14, 1776.

(Parole, . . . . .)

(Countersign, . . . . .)

Stark's, Patterson's, Webb's, Greaton's, and Bond's Regiments, together with two Companies of the Artillery, are to march to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock, under the command of Brigadier-General Heath, who will receive his orders from the Adjutant-General this evening at Head-Quarters. The Quartermaster-General will furnish them with wagons, and the route by which they are to march. The men are to be supplied with five days' provisions, good part of which they will do well to cook before they leave Cambridge, as there may be difficulty in doing it upon the road. The General again reminds the officers and soldiers of the other regiments, of the necessity of being ready for a march, as they may not have more than an hour's notice.

The General was informed yesterday morning, by a person just out of Boston, that our enemies in that place had laid several schemes for communicating the infection of the small-pox to the Continental Army, when they get into the town. This shows the propriety of yesterday's orders, and the absolute necessity of paying the strictest obedience thereto.

All officers and others possessed of any of the Continental horses, are to return them immediately to the Quartermaster-General in Cambridge.

The General Court-Martial, of which Colonel Hutchinson was President, is dissolved.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 15, 1776.

(Parole, Augustine.)

(Countersign, Bristol.)

The Regiments and Companies of Artillery, mentioned in yesterday's orders, are not to march before sunrise to-morrow morning, when everything belonging to them is to be ready to move off. The men are not to put their packs in the carts; their provisions being carried for them, the General expects the whole to carry their own packs. Any officer or soldier who is known to commit any waste or destruction to any of the barracks, or barrack utensils, upon their removing, will be punished with the utmost severity. The Quartermaster-General to order his Assistants to see every article taken proper care of when the troops march.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 16, 1776.

(Parole, Pensacola.)

(Countersign, Havana.)

As the weather is so bad and the roads so miry, the Regiments and Companies of Artillery, ordered to march this morning, are to halt until to-morrow evening.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 17, 1776.

(Parole, Boston.)

(Countersign, St. Patrick.)

The Regiments under marching orders, to march to-morrow morning, at sunrise.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 18, 1776.

(Parole, The Congress.) (Countersign, Liberty.)

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 19, 1776.

(Parole, Philadelphia.)

(Countersign, Sidney.)

Brigade-Major Henly being ordered to attend General Heath, Brigade-Major Cary is to take the duty of both those Brigades until further orders, and is therefore upon no account to be absent from Cambridge.

All officers, soldiers, and others, are positively forbid going into the town of Boston without a pass, or being sent expressly upon duty. As soon as the Selectmen report the town to be cleansed from infection, liberty will be given to those who have business there to go in. The inhabitants belonging to the town may be permitted to return to their habitations, proper persons being appointed at the Neck and at Charlestown-Ferry to grant them passes.

Cambridge, March 15, 1776.

Marching Orders for Colonel CHARLES WEBB, commanding the Nineteenth Regiment of Foot.

SIR: You are to proceed with the Regiment under your command to Norwich, in Connecticut, according to the route annexed. In case of extreme bad weather, or other unforeseen accidents, you are obliged to halt a day or more between this place and Norwich, you will acquaint Brigadier-General Heath, who is appointed to the command of the Brigade now under marching orders, and receive and follow his directions. You will immediately apply to Commissary-General Trumbull and to Quartermaster-General Colonel Mifflin, for an order for carriages and provisions for your march to Norwich. Upon your arrival there, Brigadier-General Heath has his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief's directions for the further disposal of the Brigade.

His Excellency expects you will preserve good order, and exact discipline upon your march, carefully preventing all pillaging, marauding, and every kind of ill-usage or insult to the inhabitants of the country. As the motions of the enemy and the advanced season of the year make it of the utmost consequence that not a moment should be lost that can possibly be made use of upon your march, the General, depending upon your zeal, experience, and good conduct, is satisfied that on your part no vigilance will be wanting.

Given at Head-Quarters, Cambridge, this 15th of March, 1776.

HORATIO GATES, Adjutant-General.

Route.—From Roxbury to Mann's, twenty-two miles; to Providence, nineteen miles; to Green's, twenty miles; to Burnham's, twenty miles; to Norwich, twelve miles—ninety-three miles.

ORDERS TO CAPTAIN BALDWIN.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 16, 1776.

SIR: You are hereby ordered to proceed immediately to the City of New-York, where, being arrived, you are to receive and follow such orders and directions as shall be given you by the officer commanding the Continental Forces there. I am, sir, your most obedient servant.

To Jeduthan Baldwin, Esq., Assistant-Engineer.

INSTRUCTIONS AND ORDERS FOR BRIGADIER-GENERAL HEATH.

Cambridge, March 19, 1776.

As you are forthwith to take upon you the command of the Brigade now upon their march to Norwich, in Connecticut, consisting of the Fifth, Sixteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-fourth, and Twenty-fifth Regiments, you will, without delay, proceed to Norwich, where you will confer with the persons appointed to provide vessels for the transportation of the troops to New-York. Despatch and secrecy are necessary in embarking and sailing with this Brigade from thence to their place of destination; in doing which, you must be entirely governed by the information you will receive at Norwich, and such intelligence of the motions of the enemy's ships-of-war and armed vessels as you will be able to procure at Norwich and from the mouth of that river. As you have your own coast aboard, there will be, in transporting the troops by water, no risk, unless the enemy's ships are in possession of the mouth of the river previous to your arrival there. In that case, you will disembark the troops, and march the Brigade by land to New-York.

Perceiving that several of the carts carried from hence some tables, and other articles of household furniture, you are strictly enjoined to ease the carriages of all such trumpery, and positively not to suffer the march of the Brigade to be retarded by any unnecessary luggage being put in the baggage carts.

By the order of march, delivered to the commanding officers of the several divisions of the Brigade now upon their march to Norwich, it is forcibly recommended to them to exert their utmost diligence and authority to prevent all pillaging and marauding, and every species of abuse or ill-treatment of the inhabitants of the country. This order you will continue to enforce, and command to be strictly observed.

Upon your arrival with the Brigade at New-York, you will wait upon the commanding General there, and receive and obey such orders and instructions as he shall think necessary to give; but you are not, upon any account, to go before your Brigade into that city, nor be at any time absent from them more than ten miles; taking particular care to acquaint the Colonels commanding the divisions where you lay of nights, that they may know where to send, upon any emergency, for your orders and directions. If, when you arrive at New-York, there is no General of superior rank, nor any senior officers to yourself, you will take the command of the Army there, and with all possible diligence proceed in executing Major-General Lee's plan for fortifying that post, and the intrenched camp proposed.

Given at Head-Quarters in Cambridge, this 19th day of March, 1776.

GENERAL HOWE'S RETREAT FROM BOSTON.

Cambridge, March 21, 1776.

Last Sabbath (the 17th instant) the British Army in Boston, under General Howe, consisting of upwards of seven thousand men, after suffering an ignominious blockade for many months past, disgracefully quitted all their strong holds in Boston and Charlestown, fled from before the Army of the United Colonies, and took refuge on board their ships. The most material particulars of this signal event are as follow :

About nine o'clock, a body of the enemy were seen to march from Bunker's Hill; and at the same time a very great number of boats, filled with troops, put off from Boston, and made for the shipping, which mostly lay before the Castle. On the first discovery of these movements, the Continental Army immediately paraded, and several regiments embarked in boats and proceeded down the river from this place. About the same time, two men were sent to Bunker's Hill, in order to make discoveries. They proceeded accordingly; and, when arrived, making a signal that the fort was evacuated, a detachment was immediately sent down from the Army to take possession of it. The troops in the river, which were commanded by General Putnam, landed at Sewall's Point, where they received intelligence that all the British troops had left Boston; on which a detachment was sent to take possession of the town, while the main body returned up the river. About the same time, General Ward, attended by about five hundred troops from Roxbury (under the command of Colonel Ebenezer Learned, who unbarred and opened the gates) entered the town on that quarter, Ensign Richards carrying the standard. The command of the whole being then given to General Putnam, he proceeded to take possession of all the important posts, and thereby became possessed, in the name of the Thirteen United Colonies of North America, of all the fortresses in that large and once populous and flourishing metropolis, which the flower of the British Army, headed by an experienced General, and supported by a formidable fleet of men-of-war, had but an hour before evacuated in the most precipitate and cowardly manner. God grant that the late worthy inhabitants, now scattered abroad, may speedily reoccupy their respective dwellings, and never more be disturbed by the cruel hand of tyranny; and may the air of that capital be never again contaminated by the stinking breath of toriyism.

The joy of our friends in Boston, on seeing the victorious and gallant troops of their country enter the town, almost at the heels of their barbarous oppressors, was inexpressibly great. The mutual congratulations and tender embraces which soon after took place between those of the nearest connexions in life, for a long time cruelly rent asunder by the tyranny of our implacable enemies, surpass description. From such a set of beings the preservation of property was not expected; and it was found that a great part of the evacuated houses had been pillaged, the furniture broken and destroyed, and many of the buildings greatly damaged. It is worthy of notice, however, that the buildings belonging to the Hon. Mr. Hancock, particularly his elegant mansion-house, were left in good order. All the linen and woollen goods, except some that might be secreted, were carried off by the enemy. All the salt and molasses which they could find were destroyed.

The enemy also destroyed great quantities of effects belonging to themselves, which they could not carry away, such as gun-carriages and other carriages of various kinds, house-furniture, &c., together with a quantity of flour and hay. All their forts, batteries, redoubts, and breastworks, remain entire and complete. They left many of their heaviest cannon mounted on carriages, and several of them charged; all of which were either spiked up or had a trunion beat off. They also left several of their largest mortars. Quantities of cannon-shot and shells, numbers of small-arms, and other instruments of war, have been found in many parts of the town, thrown off the wharves, concealed in vaults, or broken in pieces.

In the fort on Bunker's Hill, several hundred good blankets were found. It is said about fifteen or twenty of the King's horses have also been taken up in the town; and it is thought about the same number of Tories remain behind, all the rest being gone with the fleet.

We are told that the Tories were thunderstruck when orders were issued for evacuating the town, after being many hundred times assured that such reinforcements would be sent as to enable the King's Troops to ravage the country at pleasure. Thus are many of those deluded creatures, those vile traitors to their country, obliged at last, in their turn, to abandon their once delightful habitations, and go they know not where. Many of them, it is said, considered themselves as undone, and seemed at times inclined to throw themselves upon the mercy of their offended country, rather than leave it. One or more of them, it is reported, have been left to end their lives by the unnatural act of suicide.

The enemy, previous to their going off, scattered great numbers of crow's feet on Boston Neck and in the streets, in order to retard our troops in case of a pursuit; and with such silence and precaution did they embark, that a great part of the inhabitants did not know it till after they were gone. The prisoners who were long confined in jail were cruelly carried off in irons.

Our troops, the night before the enemy embarked, began an intrenchment on Nook's Hill, in Dorchester, which commands Boston Neck. This, it is thought, hastened their retreat. They kept up a fire upon our men during the latter part of the night and in the morning, until just before they went off, but without doing any execution.

To the wisdom, firmness, intrepidity, and military abilities of our amiable and beloved General, his Excellency George Washington, Esq.; to the assiduity, skill, and bravery of the other worthy Generals and officers of the Army; and to the hardiness and gallantry of the soldiery, is to be ascribed, under God, the glory and success of our arms, in driving from one of the strongest holds in America so considerable a part of the British Army as that which last week occupied the capital of this Province.

Tuesday evening the enemy set fire to the block-house and barracks at the Castle; and yesterday they were employed at the same place in blowing up and demolishing the fortifications.

A part of the Continental Army are now employed in fortifying Fort-Hill, in Boston, to secure the town against any attacks which may be made by the enemy's ships-of-war.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A PERSON OF DISTINCTION
AT CAMBRIDGE, TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED
MARCH 21, 1776.

I shall now, my dear sir, acquaint you with further particulars than what I have before transmitted. The storm that was sent on Tuesday, the 5th instant, at night, prevented, in all probability, a deal of bloodshed, and the destruction of Boston. General Howe had formed a desperate plan. Lord Percy was to have attacked on the Wednesday morning our Fort on Dorchester-Hill with about two thousand men; a feint was to have been made towards Letchmere's Point, and General Howe was to have rushed on our lines at Roxbury with bayonets fixed, without firing a gun. Had he been repulsed, and our Provincials followed him, a large number of field-pieces were to have been fired upon them, and then spiked up. The Ministerialists were to have embarked as soon as possible, while a bomb-ketch that was to be in readiness was to fire carcasses upon the town, with a view of setting it in flames, and thereby, I suppose, covering the embarkation, and diverting our people from the pursuit. Many of them acknowledged after the storm that the Heavens were against them. After the disappointment, Howe was for getting off as fast as possible; he would have been on board on Friday, but the wind chopped about. The British Troops are completely disgraced. They went off in an amazing hurry, and evidently under a panick. They have left behind them a large quantity of coal, near two hundred cords of wood, and a considerable number of pack-saddles, which the subtle Gage got made before the battle of Lexington, that his troops might convey by means of them, upon a single horse, all they might want to carry with them through the woods where carriages could not go, and which may be of great service to the Provincials in some of the Colonies. What with these articles, wheat, porter, oats, &c., they have left to the amount of some thousands sterling, I imagine. All the inhabitants I have conversed with inform me that they have been most cruelly treated; but by none more than by the Refugees and Tories. On Friday the Crier was sent about to order all the inhabitants not to stir out of their houses till evening. While they were thus confined, the soldiers, sailors, and refugees, took the opportunity of breaking into houses and stores and plundering. As they could not carry on board for want of stowage-room, chairs, tables, and the like, they destroyed and burnt them. A prodigious quantity of mahogany furniture has been in this way demolished. When they were gone off, upon search being made, fires were discovered in several houses, so circumstanced as to evidence a design of setting the house on fire; but that was happily frustrated.

General Robertson, under an official cover, seems to have been as great a plunderer as any, and to have connived at the rascally conduct of smaller villains. He might possibly answer to himself for the part he was acting, by viewing what he secured as an equivalent for the many thousands he has out at interest and in property in your Colony and elsewhere, should the same be seized. The press will be employed shortly in communicating to the publick the sufferings of the Bostonians, drawn up by one who has been there the whole time, and well credited; and if that does not determine the Colonies never more to admit the King's Troops into the Continent, I shall think it strange. Since the Ministerialists have left their works, every one that surveys them is convinced what a most hazardous attempt it would have been to have endeavoured to force them, and are better satisfied with that seeming inactivity, but really Fabian delay, that was wisely adopted by our patriotick, sensible commanders. Strain every nerve, hazard life, rather than admit of the Regulars possessing themselves of your city. But it is likely they are going to Halifax; or if not, that you will be strongly reinforced before they can reach you. Many of the ships have sailed. A number of good large iron cannon have been left, which, when we have unspiked them, (several are already,) will serve to fortify the town. Two good mortars fell into the water at the wharf as they were attempting to put them on board, and another was left upon the common, spiked up.

It is reported that Manly has taken a ship laden with Scotch Tories, and their property.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER OF DISTINCTION IN THE BRITISH ARMY, TO A PERSON IN LONDON, DATED BOSTON, MARCH 3-17, 1776.

For these last six weeks, or near two months, we have been better amused than could possibly be expected in our situation. We had a theatre, we had balls, and there is actually a subscription on foot for a masquerade. England seems to have forgot us, and we endeavoured to forget ourselves. But we were roused to a sense of our situation last night, in a manner unpleasant enough. The Rebels have been for some time past erecting a bomb-battery, and last night began to play upon us. Two shells fell not far from me. One fell upon Colonel Monkton's house, and broke all the windows, but luckily did not burst until it had crossed the street. Many houses were damaged, but no lives lost. We expect some carcasses to-night, if the fear of destroying their own property does not prevent it. What makes this matter more provoking is, that their barracks are so scattered, and at such a distance, that we cannot disturb them, although, from a battery near the water-side, they can reach us easily.

March 4.—Bad news from New-York this morning. A man who calls himself Lord Stirling, (I believe one of his family has a right to the title, but passed eldest, and this gentleman plays alone,) put himself at the head of three thousand men, in conjunction with that arch Rebel Lee, and has driven all the well-affected people from the town of New-York. If something is not speedily done, his Britannick Majesty's American dominions will probably be confined within a very narrow compass. The Rebel Army is not brave, I believe; but it is agreed on all hands that their Artillery officers are at least equal to our own. In the number of shells that they threw last night, not above three failed. This morning we threw four, and three of them burst in the air.

March 5.—This is, I believe, likely to prove as important a day to the British Empire as any in our annals. We underwent last night a very severe cannonade, which damaged a number of houses, and killed some men. This morning, at daybreak, we discovered two redoubts on the hills on Dorchester-Point, and two smaller works on their flanks. They were all raised during the night, with an expedition equal to that of the Genii belonging to Aladin's wonderful lamp. From these hills they command the whole town, so that we must drive them from their post, or desert the place. The former is determined upon, and five regiments are already embarked. A body of Light-Infantry under the command of Major Musgrave, (an excellent officer,) and a body of Grenadiers, are to embark to-night at seven. I think it is likely to be so far a general affair, that we shall take our share in it. Adieu balls, masquerades, &c.; for this may be looked upon as the opening of the campaign.

It is worth while to remark with what judgment the leaders of the Rebels take advantage of the prejudices and work upon the passions of the mob. The 5th of March is the anniversary of what they call the bloody massacre, when in (I think) 1769 [in 1770] the King's Troops fired on the people in the streets of Boston. If ever they dare stand us, it will be to-day; but I hope to-morrow to be able to give you an account of their defeat.

March 6.—A wind more violent than anything I ever heard, prevented our last night's purposed expedition, and so saved the lives of thousands. To-day they have made themselves too strong to make a dislodgment possible. We are under their fire whenever they choose to begin, so that we are now evacuating the town with the utmost expedition, and leaving behind us half our worldly goods. Adieu! I hope to embark in a few hours.

March 7.—When the transports came to be examined, they were void of both provisions and forage. If any are got on board to-day, it will be as much as can be done. Never were troops in so disgraceful a situation; and that not in the least our own fault, or owing to any want of skill or discretion in our commanders, but entirely owing to Great Britain being fast asleep. I pity General Howe from my soul.*

Transport, March 9.—I have slept one night on board. The troops are embarking as fast as possible. I mistook, when I imagined the works already made could destroy the town; but the Rebels possess a hill so situated, that if they pleased to erect a battery, it would entirely consume us. They as yet have not proceeded to make a work, nor do they attempt to molest us in our embarkation. It appears as if there was at least a tacit agreement between Washington and General Howe.

March 10.—To-day the horse transports are ordered to fall down to Castle-William, a fort about three miles from the town in our possession; it commands the harbour, and the troops now there will embark the last. The retreat from the town of Boston is to be covered by a large body of Grenadiers and Light-Infantry, and the Fifth and Tenth Regiments. The Fowey, a man-of-war of twenty-eight guns, commanded by Captain George Montagu, covers the retreat by water. A packet is to sail, I hear, as soon as the Army is clear of the town; so probably I shall have it in my power to inform you whether we are attacked in our retreat or not; if I have, I will.

Nantasket-Road, March 17.—According to my promise, I proceed to give a brief account of our retreat, which was made this morning between the hours of two and eight. Our troops did not receive the smallest molestation, though the Rebels were all night at work on the near hill which I mentioned to you in my last letter, and we kept a constant fire upon them from a battery of four twenty-four-pounders. They did not return a single shot. It was lucky for the inhabitants now left in Boston they did not; for I am informed everything was prepared to set the town on a blaze had they fired one cannon. The Dragoons are under orders to sail to-morrow for Halifax—a cursed cold, wintry place, even yet; nothing to eat, less to drink. Bad times, my dear friend. The displeasure I feel from the very small share I have in our present insignificance is so great, that I do not know the thing so desperate I would not undertake, in order to change our situation.

* WHITEHALL, May 3, 1776.—General Howe, Commander-in-Chief of his Majesty's Forces in North-America, having taken a resolution on the 7th of March to remove from Boston to Halifax, with the troops under his command, and such of the inhabitants, with their effects, as were desirous to continue under the protection of his Majesty's Forces; the embarkation was effected on the 17th of that month with the greatest order and regularity, and without the least interruption from the Rebels. When the Packet came away, the first division of the transports was under sail, and the remainder were preparing to follow in a few days; the Admiral leaving behind as many of the ships-of-war as could be spared from the convoy, for the security and protection of such vessels as might be bound to Boston.—London Gazette.

COLONEL ISRAEL MOREY TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

GENTLEMEN: By Colonel Gerrish, I received yours of the 13th instant, wherein you acknowledge the receipt of mine of the 7th, and observe the surprise you mention. I am as sorry to occasion a discomposure of mind, as I am to tell you that yours is as alarming as the abruptness of your determination. In the first place, I am asked what should induce me to purchase medicines. Certainly not for private views, as I am no apothecary. Upon Colonel Bedel's application for them, and having your particular orders to assist in providing for and forwarding the regiment with all speed, thought it necessary. And certainly the medicines will not be lost, nor do I think, at the particular charge of this Colony.

I am told that one hundred guns were supplied for the regiment. That number cannot answer for seven hundred men, as we must expect our adversaries will be all equipped with weapons of defence to a man. As to the prices, they were valued by an indifferent person, who is esteemed to be as complete a judge as any in this Colony. Many of them are King's arms, with bayonets, of the best kind, valued at three pounds only, others in like proportion; which is twenty per cent., at least, under those purchased at Exeter, and free of transportation. Unless I had purchased guns, I never could have complied with my instructions, which are not to muster any until well accoutred. I am confident that not a single man has been detained by me, and every possible means has been used to despatch them. Had the honourable Committee taken into consideration the orders given to Major Bellows and myself, and the many articles ordered to be purchased for the use of the troops, for which there was no money advanced us, they never could have thought of an overplus paid for the fixing the regiment. The money wrote for was for articles not in any particular calculation by the Committee.

I shall (as I ever have) endeavour to follow my instructions; and as soon as I have paid as far as the money already received will allow of, make a return of my proceedings, with my accounts and proper vouchers; and if the publick business shall be retarded for want of sufficient supplies, the Court must abide by the consequences.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

ISRAEL MOREY.

To the Honourable Meshech Weare, Chairman, &c.

JEREMIAH FOLSOM TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE ASSEMBLY.

New-Market, March 19, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: I ask leave to inform you that it was just intimated to me by a member of the honourable Court, that it was expected I should attend on a Committee appointed to sit on Tuesday, 19th March, instant, at Exeter; but for what purposes, I have not been made acquainted. I therefore should not have been prepared to answer any matters, could I have given myself the pleasure of attending on the honourable Committee. But I have the misfortune, from receiving such violent colds in attending in the late storms, to be confined to my house and bed, which has put it out of my power to have obeyed your Honours' citation, if I had received one, which I shall always esteem it my duty and pleasure readily to obey, although the complaints and allegations were as false and maliciously fabricated against me, as those that have lately been by a small number of disappointed, and, therefore, disaffected persons belonging to the Fifth Company, in Colonel Gillman's Regiment, who have retarded and hindered the settlement of the whole regiment, and who, without your Honours' interposition, will continue the same. Confiding, therefore, in the known knowledge and justice of your Honours, in justifying the innocent when falsely accused, think myself happy that I am at the tribunal, and in the protection of this honourable Court; to whose determination and order I shall render the steadiest and firmest obedience, when it is signified to me, if God in his Providence shall admit me health and opportunity to fulfil it.

I am, may it please your Honours, your Honours' most humble servant,

JEREMIAH FOLSOM.

To the Honourable Council and House of Representatives for the Colony of New-Hampshire.

CAPTAIN JAMES OSGOOD TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Orford, March 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have been informed by two gentlemen belonging to the Court, that a certain gentleman of the House declared that he was informed I had only inlisted five men, four of whom had deserted. The affair must be wrongly construed, with an intent to hurt the character of a person unworthy of the same, and who does not deserve such treatment. I have with me at least sixty good men. Boys I scorn to engage, though I might have had a number of them; and I am pretty certain most Captains have had very bad luck in raising their men, by reason of other officers engaging men to inlist for Portsmouth, by offering them greater advantages in respect to furloughs, which they possibly could not have by going to Canada; which, of course, has been a great damage to our parties. I have had a great number deserted after paying them the bounty, and part of advance pay to support their families, and have sent to the Committees to apprehend them, but have not received any answer. A Captain of a company of the Militia in Henniker, (which can be proved in Concord.) told one of my men that if he would go to Head-Quarters only for two months, he would clear him from going to Canada.

We are all in good spirits, though we meet with such difficulties, and shall march to-morrow with what I have got, and shall have the remainder very soon.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

JAMES OSGOOD.

To the Honourable Meshech Weare, Esq., Chairman of the Committee, Exeter.

COLONEL BEDEL TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Orford, March 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of the 13th is just received by Colonel Gerrish, wherein you mention the marching and inlisting my men goes on much slower than you expected. The reasons I can give. In the first place, the inlisting parties about here, (some for Cambridge, some for Canada.) were inlisting only for three months, and gave the same bounty and advance as those I inlist for a year. In regard to the expense for the Indians, I did not ask any money to be given; but by their sickness the money fell short; so I only wanted the money to be lent till I could settle the affair, and remit it back. In regard to the stores, I have not asked for anything but medicines, and something to help them along, as I do not think it prudent to send troops to such a distance without, and the medicines would then be of use to the Continent, as I am certain they were very rare last year in Canada, and suppose they are so now. Though the wages are to be paid monthly, the men are under the necessity to leave something for the support of their families, as the distance being so great, they have not an opportunity of sending anything home, only at some particular time; and the Army being chiefly made up with people who are not under circumstances to support their families while gone, therefore should have something to leave them.

You also mention you expect I will march as soon as possible. That I should absolutely have done without any such directions. My orders from the Continental Congress and General Washington were to apply to you for any necessities I might want, where they both mention you are to furnish me with the same, suitable for my march; but not one word mentioned about my applying to you for orders to march, or how I should conduct in the affair. So, if I have applied for anything of that kind, (as the copy of my letter which I have does not mention, though there might be a mistake in the copying,) I did not mean any such thing. When I was at Exeter, there were two gentlemen, (one by the name of Town, the other by the name of Peabody.) whom the Committee sent to me for orders to raise a company, which I did by your desire, though the gentlemen I was never acquainted with, but supposed they would have raised their men, but never heard from them till several companies had marched. I have had to send an express to Amherst to them, and found they had not raised one man; so had a company to raise after all disappointments. If they had raised their men, I should have had my regiment full by the time. I have six companies marched, and full, except four or five men. The seventh company is now on the march. They are here, and will proceed to day. The eighth company, with two officers and about fifty men, are marched, and two more officers are now recruiting. I have heard they have got their men, but not yet mustered. Captain Osgood's company is here, but not full. There are about sixty mustered, which he will march with. We are not able to complete them with arms, but could purchase them if we had money; and this is the only party I ever had to march without arms and money; and I have never received any money, only a little hard at Exeter for our use at Canada; but shall march with the greatest cheerfulness, and do the best in my power for the good of the service, as I am certain the cause we are upon is right and just, though we may suffer for want of proper supplies.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,
TIMOTHY BEDEL.

To Meshech Weare, Esq.

Colony of NEW-HAMPSHIRE.—By the Council and Assembly.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the Congress of the Colony have, agreeable to a recommendation from the honourable Continental Congress, resolved on, and formed themselves upon a plan of Government by a Council and House of Representatives; which plan has been published and dispersed through the Colony, and is to be in force during the present dispute with Great Britain, unless otherwise advised by the Continental Congress; conformable to which said plan of Government, the Council and Assembly have chosen and appointed the proper officers for the administration of justice, in the several Counties, who are to be sworn to the faithful discharge of their several trusts: it is therefore expected, that no person, or persons, claim, or exercise any civil authority, but such as are, or may be appointed as aforesaid, on the penalty of being deemed inimical to their country.

Provided, nevertheless, and this Proclamation is intended not to interfere with the power of the necessary Committees of Inspection, or Safety, chosen in the several towns through the Colony, by virtue, and in consequence of any recommendation or resolves of the Continental Congress; whereof all persons concerned are to take due notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

And at the same time it is earnestly recommended, that in this distressing day of publick calamity, when our enemies are watching all opportunities to ensnare and divide us, every one would strive to prevent, and, if possible, to quell all appearances of party spirit; to cultivate and promote peace, union, and good order; and by all means in their power, to discourage profaneness, immorality, and injustice.

By order of the Council and Assembly, at Exeter, the 19th day of March, Anno Domini 1776.

M. WEARE, President of the Council.

E. THOMPSON, Secretary.

GOD save the People.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO QUEEN ANNE'S COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 69.]

Annapolis, March 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed is an order on the Treasurer of the Eastern-Shore for the sum of fifty-two pounds two pence, for expenses incurred (as appears by your account transmitted us) in equipping Captain James Kent's Minutemen for their expedition to Accomack and Northampton Counties, in Virginia; and as the several articles furnished now belong to the Province, we desire you will receive them into your possession upon the return of the company, and take proper care of them. We are sorry it is not in our power to compensate Mr. James Brown, who, at the request of Captain Kent, attended his company in the capacities of Physician and Surgeon. However, we assure you we will represent the matter to the next Convention, and do not doubt they will take it into consideration, and as the measure was expedient, make an adequate satisfaction for his trouble and services.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Queen Anne's County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO HUGH YOUNG.

[No. 70.]

Annapolis, March 20, 1776.

SIR: We should have answered your letter of the 11th instant, by Mr. Smyth, before now, but the variety of business before the Council has prevented us. We would have you send out the Nancy, Captain Wise, immediately, under the orders heretofore given, and finish loading the Schooner Ninety-Two, as speedily as possible, and send the Captain to us for his sailing orders.

We are, &c.

To Mr. Hugh Young.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO WILLIAM ENNALLS.

[No. 71.]

Annapolis, March 20, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 16th instant, relative to the payment of paper money for the specie you had collected, in pursuance of our order, to Messrs. Ennalls, Murray, and Steele, was delivered us by Captain Woolford. The Council has some time past given general orders to the Treasurers of the Western and Eastern-Shores to pay out of the Treasury bills of credit for any sums that should be delivered them in gold or silver; you will therefore apply to the Treasurer of the Eastern-Shore for payment of paper money for what specie you may deliver him.

We are, &c.

To Mr. William Ennalls, Dorchester County.

ALEXANDER SOMERVILLE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Calvert County, March 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In obedience of the appointment from your honourable Board, (as a collector of hard cash,) have collected about two hundred pounds, which is now in my possession, and only wait for a safe opportunity to convey it to you. I have given this day an order on the Treasurer of the Western-Shore to pay Colonel Fitzhugh twenty-four pounds fourteen shillings and two pence, currency, for the gold and silver I had of him. If you point out the way of conveyance, it will be strictly attended to by, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

ALEXANDER SOMERVILLE.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. If the paper currency is not soon sent; I shall be obliged to return the hard money.

A. S.

MARYLAND DELEGATES TO COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On the arrival of Captain Tibbet we engaged a boat, on board of which shipped the powder and arms, together with one ton of powder advanced by Congress, and eighteen hundred and seventy-five pounds returned by Congress for the quantity borrowed by Colonel Harrison. This boat went to Christiana Bridge, from whence the powder was sent to Baltimore in wagons. Of this transaction we advised you by the return of the express that brought the intelligence of the Otter and her tender's arrival in the Patapsco. The quantity of powder which was private property in Tibbet, was very small; part of it was owned by a gentleman in Accomack County, in Virginia; the residue (about six or eight quarter-casks) Mr. Bowley informs us is the property of a gentleman in Baltimore, to whom it was sent. Powder is an article that cannot be purchased in this city. Mr. Johnson had a sum of money lodged in his hands by Colonel Hollingsworth, of Cecil County, to purchase a small quantity of powder for that County, the money being raised by subscription for that purpose: this he could not accomplish, and, at the pressing instance of that County, we procured from Congress five barrels, which is sent down. The demand from the eastward being very great, and our magazine almost empty, prevents our making any further application.

We are, with great respect, gentlemen, your humble servants,

R. ALEXANDER, for self and Colleagues.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

COUNCIL OF SAFETY OF DELAWARE.

At a general meeting of the Council of Safety for the government of Newcastle, Kent, and Sussex, on Delaware, at Dover, in Kent County, aforesaid, on the 8th of January, 1776, and continued by adjournment to the 12th of the same month, inclusively:

Staff Officers.

Chaplain, Rev. Joseph Montgomery.	Quartermaster, Robert Bail.
Surgeon, Doctor James Tilton, M. D.	Adjutant, Thomas Holland.

I do certify that the foregoing is a true list, taken from the Minutes of the Council.

JOHN KINLEY, President.

In the House of Representatives for the Counties of Newcastle, Kent, and Sussex, upon Delaware, at Newcastle:

Wednesday, P. M., March 20, 1776.

On motion made, Resolved, That Dr. Thomas McDonough, of the County of Newcastle, be, and he is hereby, recommended to the honourable the Continental Congress, as Major in the Delaware Battalion, vice John Macpherson, Jun., Esq., deceased.

Extract from the Minutes:

JAMES BOOTH, Clerk of Assembly.

CASSANDRA TO CATO.

SIR: I thought you had forgotten the fatal 7th of November, 1774, on which all your ambitious projects were blasted by a publick vote of your fellow-citizens, to divide from the County in their choice of Committee-men, and to hold all future elections by ballot; but I find I was mistaken. While Committees were chosen by holding up of hands, and letters from millers and popular harangues could be employed to serve the purposes of your party, though Cato could write, yet no press teemed with his lucubrations; but now that publick business is carried on in the only way which can secure the people from undue influence, and the party has suffered a total defeat in their electioneering attempts, his masterly pen is called forth into the field of political controversy, and, with a few dashes of it, he has overset our Committee of Inspection, demolished the whole tribe of patriotick scribblers in newspapers, and laid Common Sense in the dirt; taken a catalogue of all the Whigs and Tories in the Province; converted thirty-six Commissioners (about to be sent over to insult us with terms no one can accept) into ambassadors of peace; and poor Cassandra into an enthusiast, madman, barbarian, and drunken Independent. Wretched must the lot of that Whig be who falls into the hands of this fiery defender of Ministerial stratagems. Daniel may be protected from the jaws of the lions; but alas! who can protect us when Cato is roused? The whole band of us is crushed to atoms with one grasp of his hand. Why did you assure us that no persons need be alarmed, for that no indecent nor angry expression should dishonour your pen? Was it that the suddenness of our destruction might heighten its terror? Well has the Scriptures assured us that the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel.

Your grievous paragraph about restraining the press is so notorious a falsehood, that I boldly put you to defiance to point out the instance. And when you give the publick the names of the few who turned the mode of electing Committees out of the channel of corruption, and thereby excluded you and your colleagues, I will undertake to mention the other few who, contrary to every principle of our Constitution, by a prostitution of the cry of publick necessity, are endeavouring to cloak an unbounded hatred to our present cause, under an affected zeal for constitutional dependance; and who have nearly effected their malicious purposes, of destroying their own liberties to be avenged of their enemies. But let not Cato too far provoke the majesty of the people of Pennsylvania, by the bold flourishes of a pen which pays no respect to truth, lest he may find it expedient to end his days on the principles of dependancy.

"Few persons," says Cato, "gave themselves any concern about the election of a Committee of Inspection, being well satisfied that any number of respectable citizens, who would take the trouble of such a Committee, should be thankfully indulged with the office; and although it consists of a hundred members, they had not two hundred votes."

Cassandra begs leave to inform Cato, that our Committees of Inspection, ever since chosen by ballot, got possession of their office by a more respectable number of voters than any Burgess which sat in the House of Assembly since the first day in which a comparison could be made, as he can make appear by the state of the several elections.

"In carrying on our great controversy with England, Pennsylvania," say you, "has no need either to make the least sacrifice of its Constitution, nor yet to yield in zeal to the foremost of the Colonies." This assertion might pass for truth on the coast of Labrador, or in the deserts of Siberia; but the people of Pennsylvania must have drunk deep of the waters of oblivion, and laid aside all pretensions to recollection, before they can consider such assertions in any other light than insults on their understanding. Can Cato inform them of the single measure that can be pursued in the line of our Charter Constitution? I should gladly view the paragraph which gives our Assembly the power of legislating without the Governour; and Cato is too well acquainted with the King's Representative, to believe he would ever give his sanction to our opposition. Name the act of Assembly, Cato, which makes legal tender of the money they have so patriotically struck, and I will believe you have for once strayed into the truth. But because our Representatives can do nothing legal without the Governour, therefore Cato is fiery hot for confining our opposition to them, and not to a Convention, which is under no such restrictions. The interest of the Governour, and not of the people, is plainly Cato's.

"The great privilege," you add, "which we enjoy of giving our free unbiased voice, annually, in the choice of an Assembly, who, from that moment, by charter, become a constitutional body, vested with the authority of the people, and can meet when they please, and sit as long as they judge necessary." Here, sir, you prudently drop the consideration of their being a constitutional body. Had you pointed out the advantages of constitutionally meeting and sitting, when they can constitutionally do no more, you had told us something. But this, alas! was out of your power. So much for your first letter.

In your second, you begin by saying that you know not on what grounds I have satisfied myself that the sole view of Administration, in this commission, is to amuse and deceive, to bribe and corrupt us. It may be so, sir, though I hope you have not the vanity to set up your knowledge as the standard of truth. Did you read the piece, and attempt to pick to pieces the principles and arguments on which my advice is founded? I begin to think you did; and finding them too hard to overturn, you vent your spleen in railing at the author. But do you recollect Lord North's conciliatory plan, and his explanation of it, viz: Substantial revenue, divide et impera, &c.? Do you remember the King's speech at the opening of the present sessions of Parliament, and the re-echo of both Houses? the extensive plan of warlike operations which he means to carry on against us? and his appointing persons who shall, on the spot, dispense most gracious pardons to all such as shall acknowledge their faults and plead forgiveness?—(a new species of Ambassadors, not heretofore taken notice of by the writers on the laws of nature and nations.) Do you remember General Gage's plan for disarming the people of Boston, and the faith he observes in treaties? and that Howe, his successor, pursues the same infernal plan? Or have you totally forgot what the Prime Minister said, on his declaring that he was ready to restore us to the state we were in before the year 1763; for that we did not then deny the right of Parliament to tax America? Or do you forget that every proposal for reconciliation, made by the friends of America in Parliament, was rejected without a division? Had Cato remembered these things, or if he can be brought to remember them, he will have as much reason to suspect the designs of the Commissioners as Cassandra. Perhaps it suits not with Cato's plan to remember these things, though he can recollect many others of a much earlier date. Cato may be much better acquainted with our savage neighbours than Cassandra, as doubtless he has traversed the uncultivated woods of America more frequently than he; yet it may not be an easy matter to convince the people of this Province that the dread of losing all hopes of preferment, if the counsel of Cassandra is taken, has not called forth this champion for an undefined dependance from that obscurity into which he has nearly fallen. It remains a doubt with me whether the historic page will ever transmit your name to posterity as the first American D...t...y, if you are not permitted to shake hands with the Commissioners, and allowed the opportunity of explaining your mysterious conduct. I shall long turn over the volumes which establish the principles of the laws of nature and nations, before I read of ambassadors of peace, attended with Acts of Parliament to confiscate, and Royal Proclamations to divide, the property of those they are to treat with; and backed by immense armies of Ministerial cut-throats, to enforce their demands. Cato's great reading, no doubt, can supply the publick with a few instances of untutored savages receiving ambassadors, thus attended, with respect and hospitality, and smoking the calumet of peace with them. However, until he does, I trust he will grant to Cassandra the liberty of thinking otherwise, and do him the justice to believe that he knows as much about the rights of ambassadors as Cato. Cassandra confesses that he is greatly concerned for our virtue, lest we should be cajoled, deceived, and corrupted. Cato is not so. Corruption may be more familiar to Cato, which will fully account for our difference in sentiment. I am so much of a Christian as to pray that we may not be led into temptation. This, sir, may form no part of your devotion. But if Cato is so easy on the score of this treaty, because it is to be managed by men delegated for their integrity and abilities by the voice of their country, why is he enraged at my attempt to confine them to these virtuous Delegates? Cassandra is not afraid of the Delegates. It is to keep our modern Catos from doing us mischief that he is so anxiously concerned; and if Cato has read his proposal, he knows it to be so. But, Cato, had you adopted a signature correspondent with your designs, my present reply might be unnecessary; and if you yet change your present one for Syphax, Sempronius, or Iago, I may spare the printer much of my intended lucubrations. I believe the world will readily agree with me, that either of the three would be truly characteristic of your present designs, if not of your general character as a man and a politician.

The cup out of which Cassandra has drank was never employed to offer libations at the altar of Royal despotism or Proprietary influence. He knows no guide but reason and love of mankind, as he neither wishes nor expects to be Prime Minister to any future would-be King of Pennsylvania. He is always ready to defend his rights at the risk of his life; and prefers present war to future slavery, being conscious that a great continent will be much happier with the one than the other. Britain has risen triumphant, in a few years, out of bloodier wars than ever America has been or will be called to; but Egypt has not, for thousands of years, recovered from the yoke of foreign oppression.

Cassandra longs to see your bold declaration made good. But why so long about it? Come to the point, sir. The presses are very open for the reception of your wonderful productions. But I beseech you, dear sir, to lay aside groundless declamation for the future, and speak a language which facts will support. The people of Pennsylvania, I trust, will ever have the good sense to prefer Common Sense to the appeals of any Government tool which may appear in defence of a union with those who know no law, human or divine, but the law of violence and murder, and who have their Catos in all quarters to delude and deceive; men who sell their consciences for the prospect of future advantages. Don't be angry, Cato. Give your name to the publick, and I will stand corrected if I have missed my object.

You make a great clamour because we have been constantly enlarging our views, and stretching them beyond the first bounds. But let me tell you, Cato, that nothing can be a greater proof of your iniquitous designs than your present attempt to confine them. Has not Administration first passed a Declaratory Act; then an act laying duties on paper, painters' colours, &c.; then their acts to export their teas to America; then a Boston Port Act; an act to destroy the Charter of Massachusetts; a Restraining Act, &c., &c.? Acts to confiscate our property, and levy the most cruel and unjust war against us? Have not they been constantly enlarging their plans, to the last of all acts of tyranny, murder, and robbery? And are we to remain insensible all this time, and never enlarge our views? Where would be the wisdom of all this, Cato?

You artfully introduce quotations from the proceedings of Congress, to lead the people astray, by producing extracts which you know neither can nor do speak the sentiments of Congress on the subject. Congress early spoke their sentiments on that head, but Cato could not recollect the passage. It did not coincide with his plan, of imposing on the people of Pennsylvania.

"Between these Colonies and the People of Britain (says the Congress, in their Address to the Inhabitants of the Colonies, published in their Resolves of September 5, 1774) subsists the social band which we ardently wish may never be dissolved, and which cannot be dissolved until their minds shall become indisputably hostile, or their inattention shall permit those who are thus hostile to persist in prosecuting, with the powers of the realm, the destructive measures already operating against these Colonies; and, in either case, shall reduce the latter to such a situation, that they shall be compelled to renounce every regard but that of self-preservation."

This was the opinion of Congress at that time. I will leave it to Cato to determine whether both or either of the cases there mentioned have not taken place. Cato does not class himself with Cassandra and the writers on that side of the question; this does not much trouble Cassandra, I assure you; inasmuch as he can class his own with the sentiments of the celebrated Dr. Smith, who, in his address to the graduates, in May last, says: "The glory of every country is its liberty, its independency, and its improvements in commerce, arts, and religion." And I believe the sentiments of this gentleman are as much esteemed among those of your party as the sentiments of Cato.

CASSANDRA.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE TO PENNSYLVANIA ASSEMBLY.
To the Honourable the Representatives of the Freemen of the Province of PENNSYLVANIA, in General Assembly met.

The Memorial of the Committee of Inspection and Observation for the City and Liberties of PHILADELPHIA, respectfully sheweth:

That they have the highest sense of the necessity of the Union of the Colonies at the present juncture, when the Parliament, Ministry, and King of Great Britain, are united in using their utmost efforts to subdue and enslave them.

That they have likewise the highest sense of the necessity of secrecy in many of the measures of the Congress, particularly in those which relate to military affairs.

That they apprehend that the Instructions of the honourable Assembly, of November 9th, 1775, to their Delegates, have a tendency to weaken the Union of the Colonies, and to make publick many of those measures of the Congress which sound policy requires should be known only to the Members of that body.

The Committee beg leave, therefore, to request that the said Instructions be rescinded; and, further, to declare that they are of opinion that peace, liberty, and safety, can only be obtained for this Province by a strict adherence to the resolutions of a majority of the Colonies.

Signed in behalf, and by order of the Committee, by JOHN BAYARD, Chairman.

March 20, 1776.

COLONEL IRVINE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Carlisle, March 20, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your orders to march my Battalion to New-York, which shall be complied with, with all possible expedition.

Many of the arms are old, and want bayonets and other repairs. However, I shall not wait for bayonets, as I hope we may be supplied at Philadelphia or New-York. I have been obliged to purchase many rifles; but they, I presume, may be changed for muskets, should the service require it. Knapsacks, haversacks, canteens, and many other necessities the Commissaries promised to forward for my battalion, are not yet come to hand. Though I do not mean to wait for them, yet I think it proper to acquaint you, as, perhaps, your further orders may be necessary.

I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM IRVINE.

LORD STIRLING TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

New-York, March 20, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I had the honour of receiving your letter of the 16th instant, this day. The important intelligence received within these last three days from General Washington, of General Howe's preparations for embarking his Army from Boston, I have not communicated to you, as I concluded that the same intelligence would reach you at Albany at least as soon as it came to this place; and, indeed, it was almost impossible for me to write you sooner than this moment, as my whole time has been employed in making the necessary arrangements for the defence of this place. As to the troops here, they consist of the First Battalion from New-Jersey, about five hundred, sick and well; two Regiments from Connecticut, about five hundred each, whose time of service expires on Monday next, and I am fearful I shall not be able to persuade them to stay longer. We have about five hundred Minute-men and Militia from the Counties of Westchester and Dutchess, and about two hundred Militia from New-Jersey. This is our whole army at present. I cannot now send you the exact return of the whole, as some of the latter have arrived only this day, and I have not yet received from the reviewing officers the report of them. The whole of these, excepting the necessary guards, are employed on fatigue, on this and Long-Island, in executing the fortifications agreed upon between General Lee and myself. In these works we are assisted every day by about one thousand of the inhabitants of the city, who have turned out, on this occasion, with great alacrity—the inhabitants and the Negroes taking their turn of duty regularly. I have the satisfaction to see that, according to the numbers, the work goes on amazingly well.

I yesterday received a letter from General Livingston, with one thousand pounds of steel, sent from Trenton, at your request, for the use of the blacksmiths and armourers who are going into the Indian country, which I have ordered to be forwarded to you by the first sloop to Albany. The cannon, shot, &c., designed for Canada, were sent off by General Lee before he left this place, and I hope are safe arrived at Albany.

I am rejoiced to find that your health is so much re-established, that you have reason to think you will not soon experience another relapse. I sincerely wish that may be the case.

On considering the whole of the intelligence from Boston, I am of opinion General Howe has been playing off manœuvres to divert General Washington from taking full possession of the grounds of Dorchester; yet, by the last accounts, General Howe has proceeded too far in his embarkations to leave us room to think it is all a feint. That General Washington is of this opinion, I can have no longer a doubt, as he is himself preparing soon to be at this place. Some part of his Army is on the way hither; the destination of the remainder must depend on circumstances. Brigadier-General Thompson is this afternoon arrived from Philadelphia, and, of course, has the command here.

I am, my dear General, your very affectionate and most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To Major-General Schuyler.

LORD STIRLING TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, March 20, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I received your letter, by express, of the 14th, and your letter of the same date to General Lee, which I opened and forwarded agreeable to the directions he left me. I am happy to find that the aid I called in from New-Jersey and Connecticut exactly concurs with your sentiments. The two Regiments of Connecticut are now here, consisting of about five hundred rank and file each; they are impatient to go home, as many of them are farmers, who want to mark out their summer's work. The time of their engagement with General Lee ends next Monday. I have used my best endeavours to prevail on them to stay till their places are supplied from that quarter; but it is still doubtful whether they will consent to it. Of this I have apprized Governour Trumbull, and have requested him to supply their places, and to make the whole two thousand from that Colony. From New-Jersey I have requested one thousand men; about two hundred of them are come in. About one thousand men are ordered from the northern Counties of this Province; none of them have yet arrived. We have now in this place and on Long-Island about two thousand five hundred men, including the above two Connecticut Regiments. The Militia in town amount to about as many more. Near one-half of the whole are on fatigue every day, carrying into execution the plan of defence formed by General Lee. They go on with great spirit and industry.

The Congress have ordered eight thousand men for the defence of this City and Province. The corps to make up this number are, four regiments from Pennsylvania; one from New-Jersey, and four of this Province; none of which have yet arrived; and most of them are incomplete, and unfit to march, especially the latter, of which not above two hundred are yet in town; and some of them I find are to be employed on Hudson's River, and the northern parts of this Province. From this state of the matter, you will see that, if the Ministerial Troops leave Boston and move this way, how necessary it will be to detach a large part of your Army to this place; which, undoubtedly, is the most important object in North America. On receiving your last letter, I had determined to detain at this place the eleven tons of powder designed for your camp; but, lest the manœuvres at Boston should prove a feint, I have ordered five tons of it to proceed to-morrow morning. The rest will follow according to the intelligence we receive.

Ten o'clock, P. M.—Brigadier-General Thompson has arrived here this day, and, of course, takes the command. My utmost industry will be exerted to assist him in it.

My most sincere and best wishes attend you; and have the honour to be, my dear General, your most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To His Excellency General Washington.

MAJOR DOUGLASS TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Brooklyn, March 20, 1776.

SIR: I this moment am honoured with yours of the 18th instant, and at present observe the contents. It appears, by Major-General Schuyler's letter, that the honourable the Continental Congress have honoured me with the command of the lakes, and that Captain Wynkoop should be employed under me. I am now upon furlough by Major-

General Schuyler, which directs me to wait until I receive orders from the Congress or from the General respecting my destination. I told Captain Wynkoop what I now tell you, that, whenever I should receive orders from the Congress or the General, I was willing to comply, if my health would permit; and as Captain Wynkoop is desired by the General to get his men and go up, I beg you would assist and forward him, and, if I am not called upon, shall endeavour to serve my country in some station of as much importance as to command the lakes.

I hope you will excuse my not answering your letter before now, as it was not handed to me, but to a soldier, who laid it on my table with other papers, and did not acquaint me of it; and it was by mere accident that I found it this evening.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

WILLIAM DOUGLASS.

To Joseph Hallett, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York.

JAMES BOYD TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Staten-Island, March 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have been informed there is a complaint lodged against me in your House, the particulars of which I have not been informed; but understand that it is dropping expressions injurious to the country, and in favour of Ministerial tyranny. You must know, gentlemen, that this is the country that gave me birth, and for which I hope ever shall have the tenderest and most feeling regard; the country for whose liberty I would step forward with as much cheerfulness as any gentleman that has entered complaint to your honourable body; the country which I always intended to risk my life in defence of her just rights, for which reason I last week went to New-York, in order to see Messrs. Lawrence and Bancker, and offer myself for a commission in the Continental service. At the time when the people belonging to one of his Majesty's transports, then lying at the watering place, came on shore to plunder the inhabitants of this island, I shouldered my firelock, and, with the foremost, marched to oppose them. Such, gentlemen, has been my conduct; which is, in my opinion, nowise inimical to the cause of America. For the sincerity of my intentions, and the truth here offered to you, gentlemen, I appeal to Mr. Lawrence, who has been intimately acquainted with my conduct, and a great deal of my conversation, since the present unhappy contest began.

Gentlemen, I shall esteem it a particular favour if you would, by letter, acquaint me with the particulars of the crime alleged against me, that I may be the better enabled to vindicate myself against the aspersions thrown out against me.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN JAMES BOYD.

To the Committee of Safety of the City of New-York.

WILLIAM POWELL TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, March 20, 1776.

SIR: Having a permit from the Committee of this city to sail in ballast for St. Croix, and as I am under a St. Christopher's register, and going out with a West-India family, my friends inform me I may probably get a permit, under those circumstances, to sail by the men-of-war; and would request of you to obtain leave from your honourable House for me to go on board of the men-of-war to solicit it.*

Which will much oblige, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

WILLIAM POWELL.

To the Chairman of the Honourable Provincial Congress of New-York.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety of the Colony of NEW-YORK.

The Memorial of SAMUEL LOUDON, of the City of NEW-YORK, Printer, sheweth:

That some weeks ago a manuscript, composed by a gentleman at some considerable distance, and sent in order to be printed here, in answer to the celebrated pamphlet entitled Common Sense, was put into my hands by a gentleman of this city, who desired me to print it. As a publication of this nature required mature deliberation, I did not incline, nor did the gentleman require me, to comply with his proposal till I should be convinced that the manuscript was written with decency, or did not express, or even imply, any disapprobation of the proceedings of the honourable Continental Congress, or the glorious cause, in defence of which Americans are spending their blood and treasure. Being satisfied as to these particulars, I agreed to print the manuscript on my own account.

Having made some progress in printing off the sheets, I advertised the publication of the pamphlet in Mr. Gaine's Gazette, not imagining that any offence could justly be taken by my fellow-citizens. But, to my great surprise, I soon found that the advertisement had given disgust to some of the inhabitants, who highly resented it.

On the evening of the 18th ultimo, I received a message to attend on the Committee of Mechanics. I attended accordingly, and was interrogated by Mr. Christopher Duyckinck, the Chairman, "Who was the author of the manuscript I was printing, and who gave it me?" I told them I did not know the author, and that I got the manuscript from a gentleman of this city, whose name, in my opinion, they had no right to demand. Displeased at this reply, they threatened to burn the pamphlets, blaming me, in strong terms, for printing it. I expostulated with them on the impropriety of condemning a book before they had read it, proposed to send them the sheets that were printed, for their perusal, and to refer the whole affair to the Committee of Safety, and abide by their determination. They did not, however, think it proper to regard any of my proposals, but sent six of their number to my house, who nailed and sealed up the printed sheets in boxes, except a few which were drying in an empty house, which they locked, and took the key with them. The following evening they returned the key, and informed me that they had referred the

* To THE PUBLICK: As the liberty of the Press has been boldly attacked, my private property wantonly destroyed, and suspicions aggravated into enormous crimes,† and circulated both in city and country, greatly to my prejudice; those considerations, I hope, will apologize for laying the following Narrative before the impartial publick.

Some weeks ago, a manuscript, composed by a gentleman at some considerable distance, and sent in order to be published here, in answer to the celebrated pamphlet entitled Common Sense, was put into my hands by a gentleman of this city, who desired me to print it. As a publication of this nature required mature deliberation, I did not incline, nor did the gentleman require me, to comply with the proposal till I should be convinced that the manuscript was written with decency, and did not express, nor even imply, any disapprobation of the proceedings of the honourable Continental Congress, or the glorious cause in defence of which Americans are spending their blood and treasure. Being satisfied as to these particulars, I agreed to print the manuscript on my own account.

Having almost finished printing off the sheets, I advertised the publication of the pamphlet, in Mr. Gaine's Gazette; not imagining that any offence could justly be taken by my fellow-citizens. But, to my great surprise, I soon found that the advertisement had given disgust to some of the inhabitants, who highly resented it as a disapprobation of the laudable efforts of the Colonies to support their just rights and privileges. On the evening of the 18th ultimo, I received a message to attend on the Committee of Mechanics. I attended accordingly, and was interrogated by Mr. Christopher Duyckinck, the Chairman, "Who was the author of the pamphlet I was printing, and who gave me the manuscript?" Other members of the Committee questioned me to the same purport. I told them, "I did not know the author, and that I got the manuscript from a gentleman of this city, whose name, in my opinion, they had no right to demand." Displeased at this reply, they threatened to burn the pamphlet, blaming me in strong terms for printing it. I expostulated with them on the impropriety and unreasonableness of condemning a book before they had read it; therefore, proposed to send them the sheets that were printed, for their perusal, and to refer the whole affair to the Committee of Safety, and abide by their determination. They did not, however, think it proper to regard any of my proposals, but sent six of their number to my house, who put the printed sheets in boxes, and sealed them, except a few which were drying in an empty house, the door of which they locked and took the key with them. The following evening they sent the key, and informed me, that they had referred the matter to the General Committee. Same evening I received a note to wait on that Committee. I attended, and was informed by Mr. Broome, the Chairman, that a complaint had been preferred against me for printing an answer to the pamphlet entitled Common Sense; and that the Committee advised me not to proceed any further at present lest my personal safety might be endangered.‡ I thanked the Committee, and promised to comply with their advice. But all this availed nothing towards my security; for, past ten o'clock the same night, Mr. Duyckinck, without any commission from the Committee of Safety, attended by a large company, and notwithstanding all my entreaties, forced into my house, ran † Five or six weeks ago, I got leave from the Congress to endeavour to get back a runaway servant, I had been informed was on board the Asia. On this was founded a suspicion that Governor Tryon or Mr. Kemp, the King's Attorney, had given me the answer to Common Sense; and it was also reported, that I had received one hundred and fifty or two hundred pounds for printing it; both which are entirely false.

‡ None of the members of the General Committee of Inspection had seen the pamphlet, and could not justify or condemn me for printing it; but, apprehending me to be in danger, from the manner of the complaint, sent for me and gave me the above-mentioned salutary advice.

matter to the General Committee of Inspection. Same evening I received a note to wait on that Committee. I attended; and was informed by the Chairman (Colonel Broome) that a complaint had been preferred against me for printing an answer to the pamphlet entitled Common Sense, and the Committee advised me not to persist in publishing it at present, as my personal safety might be endangered. I thanked the Committee, and promised to comply with their advice. This availed nothing for my security, for some time after ten o'clock, the same night, the before-mentioned Mr. Duyckinck, without any commission from the Committee, attended by a considerable number, to appearance more than forty persons, who rushed into my house; some of them ran up stairs to the printing-office (while others guarded the door) and took away the whole impression of said pamphlets, being about fifteen hundred, which, at a very moderate calculation, amounts to seventy-five pounds. They carried them to the commons, and there burned them, as I have been informed.

Your Memorialist, conceiving the above-mentioned transactions a violent infraction of the liberty of the Press, and an unjustifiable attack on his private property, prays that the honourable Committee will take such measures and give directions, in the premises, as may secure the liberty of the Press, protect private property, prevent such insults for the future, and enable your Memorialist to recover damages adequate to the injuries he has sustained.*

And your Memorialist, &c.

Newbury, March 20, 1776.

SIR: I am sorry to inform you of the backwardness of the New-Hampshire forces destined to Quebeck. The regi-up stairs to the printing-office, and took away the whole impression of said pamphlet, being about fifteen hundred copies, which, at a moderate computation, amounts to seventy-five pounds. They, as I have been informed, carried them to the commons, and committed them to the flames.

I would not anticipate the reflections that will naturally arise in the mind of every candid and dispassionate reader of the above plain and impartial narrative I have given; but justice to the publick and myself requires me to subjoin a few remarks.

As the question concerning American Independence hath not, to the best of my knowledge, been decided by the Continental Congress, nor by any legal subordinate Convention, there can be no criminality in publishing the arguments for and against it; and as it is a question of the greatest importance, it should not be decided before these arguments are fully discussed.

Though a formal answer to the pamphlet entitled Common Sense hath been published in Philadelphia, the printer hath not fallen under the resentment of the Continental Congress; which is a decisive evidence that the Representatives of North-America, do not judge him to be a transgressor. My zealous, well-meaning, but misguided opponents, would have acted a consistent part, had they paid a due deference to the wisdom and good sense of that honourable body of men, whom they have solemnly promised to support, by suspending all proceedings against me till the Philadelphia printer had been called to account and condemned by them.

The publick will determine whether, by not suffering any persons to publish their sentiments but the author of the above-mentioned pamphlet, and such as have adopted his way of thinking, many thousands of steady friends to the common cause of America are not deprived of one of their essential privileges—the liberty of declaring their opinion upon a subject of the greatest moment, and in which they are unspeakably more interested than the supposed author of that pamphlet?

It is, at any rate, self-evident, that if any set of unauthorized men shall be permitted to assume the power of legislating for their fellow-citizens, and punishing them as they please, our legal Conventions and Committees, with all the precious liberties for which we are contending, will be in effect annihilated, and we will be in a more miserable slavery than would arise from the most successful execution of all the tyrannical acts of the British Parliament.

The freedom of the Press is now insulted and infringed, by some zealous advocates for liberty. A few more nocturnal assaults upon printers may totally destroy it, and America, in consequence, may fall a sacrifice to a more fatal despotism than that with which we are threatened.

I have no consciousness of guilt in the affair for which I have been persecuted. It is well known that I have always been a steady friend to the liberties of America; and I am resolved to risk my all in their defence, and cheerfully to submit to every determination of the Continental Congress, of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, and of the General Committee of this city, that is not contrary to the dictates of religion, justice, and humanity; hoping, at the same time, that the reputation of American Councils will never be contaminated by any determination of such an iniquitous kind. I only claim common justice; and desire that for the future, all political publications issued from my press may be legally and impartially tried, by the publicly avowed principles of the Colonies, met in Continental Congress. If, at any time, I shall publish principles opposite to these, under any other predicament than that of common news, let me be treated with all the severity which an enemy to his country deserves.

SAMUEL LOUDON.

ment is not near full, nor gone; but there are some reasons—one is, that no officers were allowed on York side, nor anybody even to advise. Mr. Morey left a letter for Colonel Bedel, at Exeter, informing that Mr. Johnson could not be an officer as he said.

We had concluded no officer could be allowed in another Colony; and he has given out since that he had a right to enlist all the soldiers in another Colony, but no officer might be allowed. On the whole, I am sorry that New-Hampshire is so backward, and am afraid the lake will be broken before they cross it. It is really strange that Philadelphia Troops can be raised, and in Canada, before your troops, when we are not more than one hundred miles from Montreal.

I have taken the freedom to tell you the true state of the case, as you are one of the Committee, and a friend to the cause.

From your friend and humble servant,

THOMAS JOHNSON.

WILLIAM LUX TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, March 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By a letter I received from Mr. Bowly, by this day's post, he tells me our Delegates had ordered all the sailcloth to be left at Philadelphia; the other things were to come in the packet on Tuesday. I expect they mean to sell the sailcloth, as the price is very high there. We sold ours at nine pounds ten shillings per bolt. If the gentlemen have not written you their reasons for doing it, I think you had better order it down, as perhaps you may not soon meet a further supply.

General Lee got here last night, and has been to view our battery. He thinks it very well executed, and that it will answer the intention. He has taken Mr. Massenbaugh with him to Virginia, and says he understands his business, and that he cannot do without him. I desired him to write you a line on the occasion, because, as you had been pleased to give him the command chiefly through my intelligence, I desired to stand acquitted to you. That he has promised to do. Mr. Massenbaugh would have waited on you to have thanked you for your favours, but the General was in so great a hurry, and said he must go with him.

I am, with the highest respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM LUX.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL JOHN VEAZEY.

[No. 72.]

Annapolis, March 21, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of a letter we received from Mr. Thompson, of the 14th of last month, advising us of the importation of eight tons of gunpowder, in Delaware, by Captain Nathaniel Ramsay, and that he had engaged to supply your County with one ton of it, we wrote to you immediately, requesting you would secure the whole for the use of this Province, and transmitted, by Captain Craig, the sum of five hundred pounds for the ton engaged; but as we have since understood none of the powder was to be had, we desire you will return the money by the first safe conveyance; and hope you will excuse our taking this liberty with you, as we are not yet furnished with the plates and paper for the new emission, and drafts come in every day upon our Treasury, which is reduced very low.

We are, &c.

To Colonel John Veazey.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO QUEEN ANNE'S COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 73.]

Annapolis, March 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have transmitted a copy of the enclosed order to the Committee of Observation for Kent County, and expect they will send the gunpowder to you early in next week, as it probably will be with them on Saturday, from Philadelphia. Upon the late alarm, some powder was given into the hands of the Militia on this side of the bay, and we fear it will be difficult to collect the greatest part of it again, and that too much of what may remain with the people will be lost to the publick. We recommend it to you, therefore, to deliver to the Captains of the companies on the water as much as you may conceive will be sufficient, (taking their receipt,) with orders not to distribute it among their respective companies until there is a real necessity, and to keep the residue in some convenient part of your County, where, upon an emergency, the other companies may be supplied. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Queen Anne's County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DORCHESTER COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 74.]

Annapolis, March 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We received yours of the 15th instant, by Captain Woolford, and are much pleased to hear that the Militia of your County behaved with so much spirit and alacrity on the late alarm occasioned by the Otter sloop-of-war and her tender's appearance in the bay; but, at the same time, we are concerned to find they have so few good arms among them. We doubt not but that the same noble and generous spirit, which induced them to step forth on the late occasion, in defence of our just rights and privileges, and those of their fellow-citizens, will support them under every difficulty they may have to encounter. You may be assured that the Council will give them, as well as every other part of the Province, all the assistance in their power. We have ordered the arms and powder imported by Captain Tibbet, for the use of the Province, down to Chestertown, from whence the arms will be distributed among the regular troops stationed on the Eastern-Shore, and a proportion of the powder sent to the Committee of each County. Enclosed we send you our orders for the distribution of the powder (which we have ordered to be sent to Cambridge, to Mr. Harrison's care) by the Committee of Kent County, and we hope will reach you by the middle of next week, as also an order on the Treasurer of the Eastern-Shore for the payment of the expenses of sending forward that for Worcester and Somerset Counties. Upon the late alarm some powder was given into the hands of the Militia on this side of the bay, and we fear it will be difficult to collect the greatest part of it again; and that too much of what may remain with the people will be lost to the publick. We recommend it to you, therefore, to deliver to the Captains on the water side as much as you may conceive will be sufficient, (taking their receipts,) with orders not to distribute it among the respective companies until there is a real necessity, and to keep the residue in some convenient part of your County, where, upon any emergency, the other companies may be readily supplied.

We have given Captain Woolford an order on Captain Robson for the Provincial arms which we received from the Committee of Observation of Kent County, and we hope soon to be able to completely arm his and the other Independent Companies stationed on your shore.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Dorchester County.

PHILADELPHIA COUNTY COMMITTEE.

Philadelphia County, March 21, 1776.

At a meeting of a considerable majority of the gentlemen who have been chosen to serve for the ensuing year as a Committee of Inspection and Observation for this County, Colonel William Hamilton was appointed Chairman, and Dr. Enoch Edwards, Secretary.

This Committee, after having observed that several Committees of the Province of Pennsylvania have recommended the calling a Convention, and some of them proceeded to nominate persons to represent them in the same,

Resolved, N. C. D., That it is the opinion of this Committee that the measure of calling a Convention is by no means necessary at this time, as we trust that the honourable House of Assembly, now sitting, are ready to hear and redress every grievance that is, or may properly be, laid before them.

Resolved, That it be requested of all those gentlemen who have undertaken to collect Donations for the Poor of Boston, that they would pay their several sums into the hands of Mr. Joseph Mathers, who is appointed Treasurer for this year.

Resolved, That John Bull, Esquire, Colonels William

Hamilton, Robert Lewis, Doctors Charles Bensel, Samuel Swift, Messieurs Joseph Mathers, Jonathan Pascall, and Isaac Hughes, be appointed to serve as a Committee of Correspondence.

Resolved, That it be recommended to those few Townships which have yet neglected to choose a person to represent them in this Committee, that they would proceed to do it as soon as possible, as their members will be expected to attend when the Chairman shall think proper to call another meeting.

By order of the Committee:

ENOCH EDWARDS, Secretary.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.—LETTER III.

When I sat down to address you, a resolve or vote of our Committee of Inspection for calling a Convention had alarmed many good friends of the Province, on account of our Charter Constitution; and, therefore, I determined freely to examine the right of the Committee to convene such a body, the necessity of their being convened, the powers which they might assume, and the confusion such a measure must produce. But, in the evening of the same day on which my first letter was published, we were acquainted, "by order and in behalf of the Committee, that they had recalled their former vote;" and therefore, as the resolution for this recall was probably formed before my publication, I shall claim no merit in it. The publick seems willing to ascribe it to motives of prudence, suggested by the general disapprobation of the Convention scheme, the zeal shown among all ranks of people for the support of our ancient Government by Assemblies, and the little prospect that any regard would have been paid to the edicts of a body of men constituted without necessity, even if we could suppose any number of our County Committees willing to unite in assuming powers which were never delegated to them.

But those who correspond in behalf of the Committee give us other reasons than the above. They tell us that they have held a "conference with several Members of Assembly," and have, in behalf of this Province, told them their duty; that the said members have promised all future attention to the same; but that the Committee, watchful for our good, and not willing to trust them too far, still hold the rod over them, and therefore have not annulled their vote, but have only been graciously pleased to forbear, "for the present, the forwarding the letters [or issuing the writs] for calling a Convention."

This is rather spoken in a lordly style, if it be anything more than the assuming language of the few who correspond in the name of the Committee. But if there be those who think a back door more honourable for a retreat than the front, I would not wound their dignity, nor throw a straw in the way to retard them. It is probable that our Assembly may now be permitted to exercise their own judgment, without further attempts to intimidate them in the discharge of the important trust committed to them by the voice of their country; and therefore, as I would avoid contention at all times, and especially at this dangerous crisis, I shall likewise, for the present, forbear sending to the Press everything which I had prepared in vindication of our injured Representatives, except so far as relates to Independency. But that topic I propose, as occasion offers, to handle at some length; for I find the chief resentment levelled against them, appears to be on account of their instructions to their Delegates. These, in the eyes of some men, stand as an insurmountable barrier in the way of their destructive purposes, and I trust will continue so to stand till removed by the clear sense of an uncorrupted majority of the good people of this Province. Without full proofs of this, the Assembly can neither consent to any change of our Constitution, or to make the least transfer of our allegiance; and these proofs ought to be more pure than what can flow through the foul pages of interested writers, or strangers intermeddling in our affairs, and avowedly pressing their Republick schemes upon us, at the risk of all we hold valuable. Nor would I be willing to receive these proofs from Committees, as proposed in the Evening Post of the 9th instant, by one who signs himself "A Lover of Order," but should be styled an Author of Confusion.

"It would be proper (says he) that the constituents of the Congress should declare their sentiments upon that head [Independence] as soon as possible. This may be done by the various Committees and Conventions on the Continent. Their votes and resolves should determine the question in the Congress. The first Congress was nothing but the echo of Committees and Conventions. In the present important question concerning Independence, the Congress should only (as in the former case) echo back the sentiments of that people;" that is, of Committees and Conventions. And thus we may be echoed and re-echoed out of our liberties, our property, our happiness, and plunged deeper and deeper into all the growing horrors of war and bloodshed, without ever being consulted. For I insist upon it, that no Committees were ever entrusted with any authority to speak the sense of the people of Pennsylvania on this question. I have already observed by how few voices our largest Committee of a hundred was chosen; and I know some Counties where the whole Committee was named by six or seven voices only. At this rate, three or four hundred people would take upon them to declare the sense of as many hundred thousands, in a matter of the greatest importance that ever came before us. Can you, my countrymen, acquiesce in such a horrible doctrine? Or does not the bare mention of it still further convince you that your liberties can nowhere be so safe as in the hands of your Representatives in Assembly? "Those who are not inebriated with Independency will certainly allow, that the instructions to their Delegates were dictated by the true spirit of peace, justice, and exalted policy. Who so proper to instruct them as those chosen by yourselves, not in the hour of passion, riot, and confusion, but in the day of peace and tranquil reflection?" These words I borrow from a pamphlet just published, under the title of Plain Truth; which I would recommend to your perusal, as containing many judicious remarks upon the mischievous tenets and palpable absurdities held forth in the pamphlet so falsely called Common Sense.

I have, in my second letter, freely declared my political creed, viz: "That the true interest of America lies in reconciliation with Great Britain upon constitutional principles, and that I wish it upon none else." I now proceed to give my reasons for this declaration. It is fit, in so great a question, that you should weigh both sides well, and exercise that good sense for which the inhabitants of these Colonies have been hitherto distinguished; and then I shall be under no apprehensions concerning the pernicious, though specious plans, which are every day published in our newspapers and pamphlets. The people generally judge right, when the whole truth is plainly laid before them; but through inattention in some, and fondness for novelty in others, when but one side of a proposition is agitated and persevered in, they may gradually deceive themselves, and adopt what cooler reflection and future dear-bought experience may prove to be ruinous.

Agriculture and commerce have hitherto been the happy employments, by which these Middle Colonies have risen into wealth and importance. By them the face of the country has been changed from a barren wilderness into the hospitable abodes of peace and plenty. Without them, we had either never existed as Americans, or existed only as Savages. The oaks would still have possessed their native spots of earth, and never have appeared in the form of ships and houses. What are now well cultivated fields, or flourishing cities, would have remained only the solitary haunts of wild beasts, or of men equally wild.

That much of our former felicity was owing to the protection of England is not to be denied; and that we might still derive great advantages from her protection and friendship, if not valued at too high a price, is equally certain; nor is it worth inquiring whether that protection was afforded us more for her own sake than ours. That the former was the case, more especially since the Colonies grew into consequence, I have not the least doubt; but that this is a reason for our rejecting any future connection with her I must utterly deny. Although I consider her as having, in her late conduct towards us, acted the part of a cruel step-dame, and not of a fostering parent; I would not therefore quarrel with the benefits I may reap from a connection with her, and can expect to reap nowhere else. If, by her fleets and armies, every nation on the globe is deterred from invading our properties, either on the high-seas, in foreign countries, or on our own coasts, ought we not, in sound policy, to profit by her strength; and, without regarding the motives of her conduct, embrace the opportunity of becoming rich and powerful in her friendship, at an expense far less than it would cost us merely to exist in alliance with any other power?

If our present differences can be accommodated, there is scarce a probability that she will ever renew the late fatal system of policy, or attempt to employ a force against us. But should she be so infatuated, at any future period, as to think of subjugating us, either by the arts of corruption or oppressive exertions of power, can we entertain a doubt but that we shall again, with a virtue equal to the present, and with the weapons of defence in our hands (when necessary) convince her that we are willing, by a constitutional connection with her, to afford and receive reciprocal benefits; but, although subjects of the same King, we will not consent to be her slaves. It was on this ground, and not for the purpose of trying new forms of Government, or erecting separate independent States, "that America embarked in the present glorious contest." On this ground, and upon none else, the Continental Union is formed. On this ground we have a powerful support among the true sons of liberty in Great Britain; and lastly, upon this ground, we have the utmost assurance of obtaining a full redress of our grievances, and an ample security against any future violation of our just rights. And if hereafter, in the fulness of time, it shall be necessary to separate from the land that gave birth to our ancestors, it will be in our state of perfect manhood, when we can fully wield our own arms, and protect our commerce and coasts by our own fleets, without looking to any nation upon earth for assistance.

This, I say, was our ground, and these our views, universally declared, from the origin of this contest till within a few weeks ago, when some gleams of reconciliation began first to break in upon us. If we now mean to change this ground, and reject all propositions of peace, from that moment we are deserted by every advocate of our cause in Great Britain; we falsify every declaration which the Congress hath heretofore held forth in our behalf; we abandon all prospect of preserving our importance by trade and agriculture—the ancient, sure, and experienced road to wealth and happiness.

In short, if thus contradicting all our former publick professions, we should now affect Independency as our own act, before it appears clearly to the world to have been forced upon us by the cruel hand of the parent state, we could neither hope for union nor success in the attempt. We must be considered as a faithless people in the sight of all mankind, and could scarcely expect the confidence of any nation upon earth, or look up to Heaven for its approving sentence. On the contrary, every convulsion attendant upon revolutions and innovations of Government, untimely attempted or finally defeated, might be our portion; added to the loss of trade for want of protection; the consequent decay of husbandry; bloodshed and desolation; with an exchange of the easy and flourishing condition of farmers and merchants, for a life, at best, of hardy poverty as soldiers or hunters.

To see America reduced to such a situation may be the choice of adventurers who have nothing to lose, or of men exalted by the present confusions into lucrative offices, which they can hold no longer than the continuance of the publick calamities. But can it be the wish of all that great and valuable body of people in America, who, by honest industry, have acquired a competency, and have experienced a happier life? Can it be their wish, I say, for such considerations, to have destruction continually before their eyes; and to have enormous debts entailed upon them and their posterity, till at length they have nothing left which they can truly call their own?

I know the answers which will be given to these questions, and am prepared to reply to them, with that temper and gravity which so serious a subject requires. It will be asserted—indeed it has already been asserted—that the animosities between Great Britain and the Colonies are now advanced to such a height that reconciliation is impossible. But assertions are nothing, when opposed to the nature of things, the truth of history, and all past experience. The quarrels of nations, being neither personal or private, cannot stir up mutual hatred among individuals. There never was a war so implacable, even among States naturally rivals and enemies, or among savages themselves, as not to have peace for its object as well as end. And among people naturally friends, and connected by every dearer tie, who knows not that their quarrels (as those of lovers) are often but a stronger renewal of love? In such cases, the tide of affection, reverting to its course, is like that of water long pent back, which, at length bursting the opposing mounds, breaks forward through its native channel, and flows with redoubled vigour and increased velocity, to mix itself with its parent main.

It has been further asserted, that we are able, with our land forces, to defend ourselves against the whole world; that if commerce be an advantage, we may command what foreign alliances we please; that the moment we declare ourselves an independent people, there are nations ready to face the British thunder, and become the carriers of our commodities for the sake of enriching themselves; that if this were not the case, we can soon build navies to force and protect a trade; that a confederacy of the Colonies into one great Republick is preferable to Kingly Government, which is the appointment of the Devil, or at least reprobated by God; that those denominated wise men in our own and foreign countries, who have been so lavish of their encomiums upon the English Constitution, were but egregious fools; that it is nothing better than a bungling piece of machinery, standing in need of constant checks to regulate and continue its motions; that the nation itself is but one mass of corruption, having at its head a Royal brute, a hardened Pharaoh, delighting in blood; that we never can enjoy liberty in connection with such a country; and, therefore, all the hardships mentioned above, and a thousand times more, if necessary, are to be endured for the preservation of our rights.

If these things had been as fully proved as they are boldly asserted by the authors of what is called Common Sense, I should here drop my pen, and, through the short remainder of life, take my chance of whatever miseries Providence may have in reserve for this land, as I know of none else to which I can retire. But as these doctrines contradict everything which we have hitherto been taught to believe respecting Government, I hope you, my dear countrymen, have yet kept one ear open to hear what answer may be given in my future letters.

CATO.

Postscript.

Cato to Tiberius, greeting.—Questions civilly proposed deserve a civil answer, which shall be speedily given to those of Tiberius. Urbanity becomes us Romans; and Cato is proud to correspond with one assuming that character, although he is not fond of the imperial name. He has no quarrel with our Committee as a publick body, and regards many of the members as fit to fill any station to which they may be called by their country. If he cannot support his charges against the individuals who projected the Convention scheme, he will cheerfully acknowledge his mistake. He never expected to finish these letters without opposition. The question is, whether the liberty and happiness of America can be best secured by a constitutional reconciliation with Great Britain, or by a total separation from it? Cato is willing to be judged by his countrymen, when the whole of his arguments shall be submitted to them. Whatever may be insinuated before that time, he will scarce think worthy of regard; and it was rather unbecoming Tiberius, so early in the dispute to suggest that "the sentiments (in the letters) may resemble a modern, more than an ancient, Cato, who will consent to live a slave rather than to die free." The inaccuracy of expression, in making sentiments resemble men, may be passed over; for where a person's meaning can be picked out, in such a contest as this, Cato despises a war about words.

N. B. The twelve queries in the Evening Post are, in substance, the same as the questions of Tiberius, and the same answer will serve for both.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, Thursday Evening, March 21, 1776.

SIR: I am this moment honoured with your favour of the 13th by express, which I shall lay before Congress in the morning. I expect immediately to be ordered to despatch the first by Fessenden to you, when I shall have the honour to write you very particularly.

This is only to inform you that I have sent two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the use of the Army under your command, to the care of Thomas Hanson, John Donaldson, and Moses Franks, Esquires, gentlemen of character, who, I am confident, will meet your notice.

I am, with the fullest sentiments of esteem, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONEL WARREN.

Philadelphia, March 21, 1776.

SIR: I have now only time to inform you that I have sent, packed in three boxes, two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the use of the Army, under the care of Thomas Hanson, John Donaldson, and Moses Franks, Esquires, gentlemen of character, and who I beg may meet your notice and civilities.

I am so engaged, I cannot add but that I am, with respect, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Honourable Colonel Warren, Paymaster.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THOMAS HANSON AND OTHERS.

Philadelphia, March 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You having engaged to take charge of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, which I have delivered you in three boxes, I am to desire you will proceed with as much expedition as possible, and deliver the same money at Cambridge to James Warren, Esq., Paymaster, or to the order of General Washington, and take a receipt therefor.

All Committees, and officers in the Continental Army, are requested to afford you all the aid you require on your journey.

Should you meet General Washington on the road, you will deliver the letters to him, and follow his orders; but you are by no means to be interrupted or counter-ordered by any other officer whatever.

I wish you a pleasant journey, and am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Thomas Hanson, John Donaldson, and Moses Franks, Esquires.

JAMES DUANE TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The bearer, Mr. Carpenter Wharton, is Commissary for the Pennsylvania Troops. He supplies them by contract, at seven pence per ration. He will probably make the same offer for the rest of the Army in the Middle Department; and unless others will be equally reasonable, must be entitled to a preference, it being the intention of Congress to have their armies supplied on the easiest terms. He supports a very fair character in this place, and is well connected.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, with the utmost regard, your most obedient humble servant,

JAMES DUANE.

To the Honourable Convention of New-York.

CAPTAINS FORD AND COOKE TO LORD STIRLING.

Morris County, March 21, 1776.

MY LORD: In consequence of a letter written by your Lordship to Mr. Alexander Carmichael, Chairman of the Committee of this County, dated at New-York, the 17th instant, requesting three hundred of the Militia to come over to your assistance, we have this day marched a detachment of one hundred and fifty soldiers, (exclusive of officers,) in two companies, from the First Regiment in this County, (which we have the honour, as Colonels thereof, to command,) under some of our Militia officers, as you will see by the enclosed muster-roll. We beg, my Lord, that they may be well used, and in the like manner provided for, of which we cannot have any doubt, and which will encourage our men to turn out with cheerfulness upon any future occasion. We also beg they may not be detained from their suffering farms any longer than may be found very necessary.

The authority pointed out to us in your Lordship's letter for calling out those men, leaves us no kind of doubt but it became our duty to comply with the requisition; and believe it, my Lord, we cannot be happier than in affording every possible assistance in our power at all times, to the hitherto successful struggle of the United Colonies.

Mr. John Doughty, to whom we have thought it most advisable to give the command of our detachment, is Adjutant to our regiment; but we beg he may be appointed to the rank and character of a Major, while he is out on the present service with the detachment, and so recommend him as a very worthy and fit person. If this should not be agreeable, we hope your Lordship will have no objections to our sending down a commissioned Field-Officer from the regiment.

We would also request of your Lordship that, as there is a probability (as we conceive) of a further detachment from this County, that we may remain a separate corps, and not be joined to those of another County. This, if agreeable to your Lordship, would be very much so to us.

Doctor Jabez Canfield comes out as Quartermaster to the detachment.

We have nothing to add but our compliments to your Lordship, and wishes for your good health and prosperity, and hearty prayers for the success of the American arms.

We are, my Lord, your Lordship's most humble and obedient servants,

JACOB FORD, JUN.,
ELLIS COOKE.

To Lord Stirling.

Roll and Return of the detachment marched from the First Regiment of Militia in the County of Morris, under the command of John Doughty, appointed to the detachment, this 21st of March, 1776:

First Company: Peter Layton, Captain; Henry Doremus, First Lieutenant; Anthony Joline, Second Lieutenant; Samuel Oliver, Ensign; four Sergeants; four Corporals; sixty-seven Privates.

Second Company: Sylvanus Seely, Captain; Obadiah Kitchell, First Lieutenant; Israel Ward, Second Lieutenant; Benjamin Southard, Ensign; four Sergeants; four Corporals; sixty-seven Privates.

Jabez Canfield, Quartermaster.

JACOB FORD, JUN.,
ELLIS COOKE.

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 25, 1776.]

New-York, March 21, 1776.

DEAR SIR: On receiving intelligence from Cambridge verbally, by Colonel Bull, that the troops ordered to this place from Cambridge were all countermanded except one regiment, General Thompson has directed five tons of the powder to proceed for General Washington's camp; the rest will follow in a day or two, when it will be in condition for so long land carriage. The absolute necessity of shifting it into other strong casks, would have made this delay necessary, had there been no other reasons.

I am your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

PETER T. CURTENIUS TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, March 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed is an estimate what the articles will amount to which you have given me orders to purchase. I have no cash in hand. Should be glad if you will please to give me an order on the Treasurer for the amount.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

PETER T. CURTENIUS.

WILLIAM POWELL TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.
New-York, March 21, 1776.

Yesterday I made application to your honourable House for a permit to go on board the man-of-war, and am really sorry I am thus under the necessity of being troublesome. Ruin may be the consequence to me as an individual. My property as a merchant of St. Christopher's, and in the vessel, is all I have to subsist on. My application to Captain Parker is grounded on every circumstance that ought to induce him to let me pass: my wife going with me; myself as an inhabitant of St. Kitts, as appears by my register; a West-India family with me; the vessel in ballast. On the other hand, my all at stake if I am taken going from hence, or in the Islands, unless I get the permit. All which I humbly submit to your consideration; and am, sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM POWELL.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York.

BENJAMIN BIRDSALL TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.
At Oyster-Bay, Southwest Neck, March 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN OF THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS IN NEW-YORK: I think myself bound in duty to inform you of the conduct of the people in the southeasternmost part of our County of Queen's County, where I am well acquainted. I here enclose a song, that is publickly and frequently sung with joy and jollity, and healths drank "Damnation to the Congress." Such publick conduct, I conceive, is detrimental to the publick union of friendship in our County—to the American cause now in contest with Great Britain. I, for my own part, rely my trust and confidence in the Continental and Provincial Congress; and depend they will take all methods that to them may seem advantageous for the safety of our country, and the more perfect union of the people. I can say our Queen's County has been, and still is, in a surprising situation, and dangerous to the welfare of our country, and in remarkable contradiction with those who are actually friends to the cause of America; and unless some particular resolves should be shortly passed for the better regulating said County, and by its being in some way regulated by the Congress military law, I apprehend it will grow worse, instead of better. I am ready and free to discharge any request in my power for the protection of my country, at either the call of the Continental or Provincial Congress; and therefore I pray that, until a perfect peace may be finally settled with you, (the Congress and Great Britain,) you may stand fast in the light, with that true guide in Congress, that will support and protect advantageous laws for the protection of your friends, and a perfect union in and throughout all the thirteen United Colonies—and more, all the friends to the American cause, be they where they may.

From your most obedient and humble servant,
BENJAMIN BIRDSALL.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress in New-York.

TO THE FREEBORN SONS OF AMERICA IN GENERAL, AND OF CONNECTICUT IN PARTICULAR.
New-York, March 21, 1776.

MY DEAR COUNTRYMEN: As the American separation and independence is now seriously thought of, and realized by our friends as an event near at hand, and reconciliation despaired of as a thing utterly impracticable, if not impossible, it is high time to attend in good earnest to the dictates of common sense, and to be collecting the materials and laying the plan for a more sound Constitution and perfect scheme of Government among ourselves, that will never wax old or decay, nor prove rotten and defective, as all others of human invention have done; but be so wise, permanent, and solid, as to stand in full vigour and glory as long as the sun and moon endureth, and afford to every individual in the present and in all future generations ample security and indemnification of his life, his liberty, and property. Then our peace will be as a river, and our righteousness as the waves of the sea.

To accomplish this important work, the present happy Continental Union must, by a solemn stipulation or confederation of all the Colonies, be established and ratified, to endure till time shall be no more, to the mutual benefit and advantage of all concerned; and some general regulations come into respecting trade and commerce, and provision made for the military defence of the Continent against an invading foe; and a standing Congress agreed upon, something in the form of the present, to be chosen by the freemen of the Colonies, to be entrusted with a superintending power over them for the time being, to decide disputes and adjust differences that may arise between one Colony and another; to prepare for war, or settle peace, as occasion shall require; and to direct all commercial and Continental affairs, &c.

The internal policy of each Province will come next under consideration; as to which, since their usage and customs in civil and judicial affairs have heretofore been so different, the one from the other, it cannot be expected there will be an exact uniformity among them; though it would be happy if they might agree in all essential particulars; as it would tend to cement their union, and make them coalesce as one Continental body politick, and prevent all vain-glorying and boasting, that lesser distinctions might be swallowed up in a laudable emulation to support and vindicate their honour as Americans. This nice, delicate business of settling internal policy and government will be much more difficult in some Colonies than others, as the change and alteration will be greater when the proposed revolution takes place. As Connecticut, I apprehend it may be effected with the utmost ease, should they only form a new instrument, as the charter of a free corporation, to establish and confirm the rights and properties of the people, and substitute the respectable, august name of Congress, or whatever title was assumed by the ruling States of America, instead of that of Majesty. They might, in all other respects, go on in their old forms, as to their General Assemblies, Courts of Judicature, &c. Connecticut, from the beginning, has been a free State, and proved a nursery of freemen; and though but small in compass, yet can afford more able-bodied, effective men, for publick service, and larger quantities of good provision for an army, than perhaps any spot of earth on the globe of the like bigness and extent; which is owing, I imagine, to the inhabitants being educated in a spirit of liberty and industry, frugality, and good economy. I could wish that her liberal form of Government might be looked into by our sister Colonies, and what they find excellent in it might be adopted for their good. Not that I would propose it as a perfect model and plan; for I am full in the opinion that it is capable of much emendation and improvement, and that the people, as they grow in wisdom and knowledge, will alter the manner of their conduct in sundry particulars, and be so careful of their rights as not to trust such matters to the management and disposal of others which belong to themselves. All authority and power in this Colony, it is allowed, originates and derives from the right source, viz. from the People. From hence it is inferred, and strongly asserted by many, that no man can come into publick office only by their free choice and election; which is not true, unless the doings of the Governour, Council, and Representatives, chosen by them, may be considered, in all respects, as the doings of the people. The said people have all that liberty and freedom I could wish for in annually choosing their Governour and Council, and their Representatives, spring and fall. But it is my humble opinion that they are not wise and prudent to entrust them wholly and absolutely with the disposal of all lucrative posts, offices, and commissions: these are the inherent right of the people, and ought to be looked upon as their gift to the person that enjoys them, and not the gift of such as they have appointed to serve them as rulers. If the people would keep this right and power in their own hands at large, as they certainly might do without much difficulty, it would effectually shut the door against the mean, wicked arts of bribery and corruption, and be the strongest guard and bulwark for liberty, against all approaches of despotism and tyranny. As the freemen are annually assembled in a publick meeting to put in their votes and suffrages for a Governour, Counsellors, and Representatives, why might they not, at the same meeting, nominate and appoint a number of well-qualified persons to be commissioned for the peace, and in each County a Sheriff, Judges for the County Court, Field-Officers for the Regiment, within their bounds, as often as is necessary? And why might not Judges for the Superior Court be thus chosen by the freemen of the Colony as well as their Counsellors, &c.? But, however this is, I insist upon it, that, as to inferior Magistrates—such as Justices of the Peace, on whose virtuous and exemplary conduct the peace and good order of society do so much depend—none ought to be admitted into the commission but only by the free choice and election of the people they are to serve; who, without dispute, are better acquainted with the talents, qualifications, and conduct, of persons in their several districts than their Representatives, and have a fuller knowledge of the disposition of their neighbours, and can make a wiser judgment whether they are friends or enemies to the rights and liberties of mankind, and discover who may be safely trusted with such an office, and who is most likely to be useful in it, by promoting the publick good of society, and acting as a Minister of God for good; besides, the people at large are not so liable to be corrupted and bribed as are a few individuals whom they may choose to represent them. A wicked Magistrate—that loves the business of the law, or at least the profits of it, the wages of unrighteousness, and uses his art and influence to stir up strife and contention, angry debates, and law-suits, in neighbourhoods and societies, and has evil-doers for his chosen companions—cannot, with propriety, be called a Justice of the Peace—but a promoter of discord and confusion; and will be a plague and vexation to mankind in all his connections, and be the object of their detestation. No business that can be done by the people themselves should ever be trusted to their Delegates. The observation of this easy maxim, which is agreeable to common sense, would prevent a multitude of mischief and confusion in the world. But not to enlarge; should the other Colonies examine the internal policy and Government of Connecticut, in order to draw any plan from it, it is to be hoped that they will distinguish her excellences from her defects and imperfections, and that the inhabitants themselves may, in time, grow wiser, and better understand these things that so nearly relate to their well-being and happiness.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 29, 1776, and referred to Mr. Wythe, Mr. Harrison, and Mr. S. Adams.]

Albany, March 21, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday I was honoured with your polite favour of the 7th instant. It is in vain for me to attempt a description of the sentiments it has inspired me with. Let it suffice that I will attempt, in the discharge of my duty to Congress and my dear country, to render a series of thanks.

Five Companies of Colonel Burrell's are arrived; the remaining three are daily expected. One of Colonel St. Clair's is also come up; and I hope the whole will soon be here.

I am exceedingly happy to learn that the gentlemen Commissioners will be here so soon. They will experience all that attention which is due to their merit and the respectable body by whom they are sent.

Colonel Allen is not yet arrived. He will meet with a reception consonant with that esteem and respect which I have the honour to entertain for you.

I am, sir, most sincerely and respectfully, your obedient, humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To John Hancock, Esquire.

MAJOR FRENCH AND OTHERS (PRISONERS) TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read May 7, 1776.]

Hartford, Connecticut, March 21, 1776.

The undersigned, Officers of his Majesty's Troops, prisoners at Hartford, in Connecticut, beg leave to make the following representation to the honourable Continental Congress:

Captain Williams, Lieutenant Smith of the Royal Artillery, and Captain McKay, made prisoners at St. John's, desire to join Major Preston, and that garrison, at Lancaster, or elsewhere.

Captain Williams, late commanding officer of the Artillery at St. John's, represents that, in consequence of capitulation, he went to Montreal, as Quartermaster of Artillery, and Lieutenant Smith marched with Major Preston and the rest of the garrison at Albany, and came into this Province, where Captain Williams joined them about five weeks since on his return from Montreal. That he applied to the Committee at Hartford to forward him and the Artillery to Lancaster, and also wrote to Major Preston to apply to the honourable Continental Congress for that purpose; but, having received no answer from Major Preston, he apprehends his letter miscarried.

He also begs leave to represent that he is informed it is not the desire of Congress to allow any of the prisoners (at least those under capitulation) to enlist in the Continental service; notwithstanding which, two matrosses of St. John's garrison, after taking an unfair advantage by receiving their clothing, subsistence, &c., have enlisted, and several others have sold their clothing. He presumes that these abuses arise from the Artillery (though few in number) being dispersed about the country, so far beyond the narrow limits of the six miles assigned to him, that an officer can take no charge of them. By this means, the spirit of the St. John's capitulation is entirely defeated in respect of that article which provides for the garrison being together, and which would have been the case had not the above mistake happened.

He further represents (as well as the undersigned officers, also prisoners at Hartford) that, notwithstanding it is their earnest wish and design to avoid giving any just and reasonable cause of offence to the inhabitants in their neighbourhood, yet the most trivial incidents are industriously misrepresented and maliciously propagated through the country, insomuch that their personal safety is actually endangered by mobs, there being none of the Continental Troops here to grant them a safeguard. They have only to add, that, in case the honourable Continental Congress shall think proper to comply with their request, (the cheapest way moving them being by water,) they would apply to his Majesty's Admiral-in-Chief to grant a passport for that purpose.

They take the liberty of enclosing a paragraph from the last Hartford paper, by which the honourable Continental Congress will see another method made use of to inflame the minds of the people against them.

[Extract from the Connecticut Courant, enclosed in the preceding Letter.]

"Colonel Ethan Allen, with thirty other prisoners, by the latest accounts are arrived in England, and honoured with apartments in a close prison. As the Colonel left America in irons, it is probable he will wear those badges of Royal clemency during his abode in those dreary mansions. This mode of using prisoners must essentially affect the situation of an equal number of those whom the fortune of war has put into our power; the same mete that they measure, by the laws of reason and retaliation must be measured to them again. Severity with the Americans, whose hearts are softened by the benevolent spirit of Christianity, is a strange work; but the safety of the country, in the present case, requires it.

"Those we have taken prisoners, have received gentle usage, and had great indulgences hitherto. This, none but an ingrate, and such as have forfeited every blessing of life, will deny. The Americans, in exercising rigour, are out of their element. Their humane dispositions recoil at the thought. Though they are sensible of injuries, and of the wrong use which some worthless prisoners make of their humanity, yet they are exceeding loth to show themselves severe toward those entirely at their mercy, and whose temporal existence must cease at their pleasure. But the savage disposition of the King and his minions obstructs the exercise of mercy in the above instance, and forces the Americans, from their natural bias, to vindictive measures. As we have none of equal rank, the shackling of two Majors will scarcely be deemed an equivalent for a Colonel. However, I trust a line of distinction will be drawn between the precious and the vile, and that those prisoners of a humane and noble disposition will be excused from suffering any disadvantage on this score; whilst the disorderly, the haughty, and peevish, and those who delight in mischief and blood, are singled out as proper objects of the justice and severity of America.

HUMANUS."

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO LORD STIRLING.

Lebanon, March 21, 1776.

MY LORD: I received your favour of the 17th, the last evening, by Lieutenant Betts. I have now, on the commencement of a correspondence, to congratulate you on your late appointment; and from your known zeal in the great American cause, and your abilities to serve it, I cannot but form pleasing expectations. I have also to congratulate you on the shameful retreat of General Howe and his Army from Boston, which city they have actually abandoned, and a detachment of General Washington's took full possession the last Sabbath day. They have left it in a less ruinous situation than was expected—their own works entire, about thirty large cannon spiked up, and a considerable quantity of wheat; and are now lying in the road, (supposed for a wind,) very probably designing a descent on New-York, or parts adjacent. I am extremely pleased to hear that you are taking every step in your power to be prepared for their reception. It is of vast importance to prevent their establishing themselves there.

His Excellency General Washington, well aware of their designs, had, by his letter of the 14th, earnestly requested me to throw in two thousand men from this Colony for the same purposes mentioned and requested by your Lordship, until he could arrive there with the Army under his command, large detachments of which are now on the march. In consequence of which, I had, with the advice of my Council of Safety, despatched orders, on the 19th, for nearly that number of our Militia to march forthwith from the nearest frontiers of this Colony to New-York, under the command of Colonels Silliman and Talcott. It is not time yet to hear what progress they have made; but I hope and believe as good as the nature of the thing will admit, and that they will very soon be with you. Thus I have, and doubt not but you will have, much pleasure to find your request anticipated.

I am happy to hear that our regiments now with you have done themselves the honour to meet with your approbation, and have no doubt but they, and our men in general, will continue to do so, and to serve their country well, while they meet with generous usage from their commanders; and have no doubt but they will ever experience it from a nobleman of your distinguished generosity and politeness.

I expect and depend that Colonels Waterbury and Ward's Regiments will remain in the service, or the greater part of them, till they can be properly relieved and spared, and have written them accordingly; you will please to repeat to them my request for that purpose, and that, in the highest probability, a great part of the main Army will soon be there.

The troops now sending from us, you will perceive, were requested by the General for such term till they might be relieved by his Army. If it should be necessary to have a regiment raised and stationed there for this season, you may rely on it that nothing in my power shall be wanting to serve this great and just cause in this or any other way. Colonel Dyer and Colonel Williams, (two gentlemen of my Council,) will wait on you next week, on their way to Philadelphia, and will be instructed to confer with your Lordship on this or any other subject you may think proper, whereby the important common interest of this much injured country may be promoted.

I have the honour to be, with sentiments of great esteem, your Lordship's most obedient and very humble servant,
JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Stirling.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Lebanon, March 21, 1776.

SIR: Your esteemed favour of the 9th instant was delivered me the 15th, per Bennett. Our Treasurer's chest remains dry, as well as your Paymaster's; but hope they will both be soon replenished.

My attention has been taken up by the late movements of the enemy at Boston, and their appearance of evacuating the town, and removing (as is supposed) to New-York, the Jerseys, or Long-Island, to order eighteen hundred of our Militia to maintain the important post of New-York. (Being destitute of bills to exchange for silver or gold, I have made no attempts for that purpose, and fear but little can be done here.) Besides this number, Colonels Waterbury and Ward, with two battalions from Connecticut of seven hundred and fifty men each, have been some time at that place. I yesterday afternoon received letters from the honourable Continental Congress and from Lord Stirling, requesting to do what was ordered the day before; that is, to send forward a number of our Militia. The works in that quarter are now going on briskly, and hope they will soon be in readiness to prevent the mischievous operations of our enemies.

Forty-one of the old gun-barrels you sent me from Ticonderoga were fitted up and sent forward to General Washington. They make very good arms. The great difficulty is to get gun-locks for them; but shall, notwithstanding, make out of the one hundred and eighty about one hundred and seventy that prove good. If more old barrels are to be had from Crown-Point, as I am told, and many parts of gun-locks, I shall be glad to receive as many of both as can be had.

I do most sincerely congratulate you on the success of General Washington. The enemy evacuated Boston last Sunday. Boston is now open. The poor inhabitants are greatly emaciated from their want of provisions, and rejoiced for their happy deliverance. The most of the Tories are gone off with the troops. The cattle remain in the enemy's hands, but hope they will soon be in ours. They have carried off the unhappy prisoners, it is said, in irons. Is it not time to retaliate? They have done all the mischief in their power. Hitherto the Lord hath helped us. May we ever thankfully acknowledge his mercies.

I am, with great truth and regard, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To Major-General Schuyler.

JOSIAH QUINCY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Braintree, March 21, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Nothing less than an inveterate nervous head-ache has prevented my paying, in person, those compliments of congratulation which are due to you from every friend to liberty and the rights of mankind, upon your triumphant and almost bloodless victory, in forcing the British Army and Navy to a precipitate flight from the capital of this Colony. A grateful heart now dictates them to a trembling hand, in humble confidence of your favourable reception.

Whilst the faithful page of history records the British codes of blood against America, carried into execution by military murderers, to the utter destruction of the British empire, and the eternal infamy of those who devised them; you, sir, must be happy, I hope, in the unenvied certainty, in the unrivalled glory of having your name handed down to posterity with the illustrious character of being the Saviour of your country! God grant that the success of your future endeavours for its safety and prosperity may be equal to the past, and an adequate reward to your merit in both.

Since the ships and troops fell down below, we have been apprehensive of an attack from their boats, in pursuit of live-stock; but yesterday, in the afternoon, we were happily relieved by the appearance of a number of whale-boats stretching across our bay, under the command (as I have since heard) of the brave Lieutenant-Colonel Tupper, who, in the forenoon had been cannonading the ships with one or more field-pieces from the east head of Thompson's Island, and I suppose last night cannonaded them again from the same place, or from Spectacle-Island.

This judicious manœuvre had its genuine effect; for, this morning, the Admiral and all the rest of the ships, except one of the line, came to sail, and fell down to Nantasket-Road, where a countless number is now collected. In revenge for their burning the Castle last night, were we provided with a sufficient number of fire-ships and fire-rafts, covered by the smoke of cannon from a few row-galleys, this night might exhibit the most glorious conflagration that was ever seen upon the watery element; and the probable consequence of it, a period to the present war. Otherwise, humanity revolts at the destruction of so great a number, even of our enemies.

If my wishes must not be gratified, either in a visit to, or from your Excellency, the best I can form will constantly attend you, whilst memory and reflection are continued to your Excellency's faithful and obedient, humble servant,

JOSIAH QUINCY.

To General Washington.

By His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esquire, General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the Thirteen United Colonies.

Whereas the Ministerial Army have abandoned the town of Boston, and the forces of the United Colonies, under my command, are in possession of the same:

I have, therefore, thought it necessary for the preservation of peace, good order, and discipline, to publish the following Orders, that no person offending therein may plead ignorance as an excuse for their misconduct.

All Officers and Soldiers are hereby ordered to live in the strictest peace and amity with the inhabitants; and no inhabitant, or other person, employed in his lawful business in the town, is to be molested in his person or property on any pretence whatever. If any Officer or Soldier shall presume to strike, imprison, or otherwise ill treat any of the inhabitants, they may depend on being punished with the utmost severity. And if any Officer or Soldier shall receive any insult from any of the inhabitants, he is to seek redress in a legal way, and no other.

Any non-commissioned Officer, Soldier, or others under my command, who shall be guilty of robbing or plundering in the town, are to be immediately confined, and will be most rigidly punished. All Officers are, therefore, ordered to be very vigilant in the discovery of such offenders, and report their names and crime to the commanding Officer in the town as soon as may be.

The inhabitants, and others, are called upon to make known to the Quartermaster-General, or any of his Deputies, all stores belonging to the Ministerial Army that may be remaining or secreted in the town. Any person or persons whatever that shall be known to conceal any of the said stores, or appropriate them to his or their own use, will be considered as an enemy of America, and treated accordingly.

The Selectmen, and other Magistrates of the town, are desired to return to the Commander-in-Chief the names of all, or any person or persons they may suspect of being employed as Spies upon the Continental Army, that they may be dealt with accordingly.

All Officers of the Continental Army are enjoined to assist the civil Magistrates in the execution of their duty, and to promote peace and good order. They are to prevent, as much as possible, the Soldiers from frequenting tippling-houses, and strolling from their posts. Particular notice will be taken of such Officers as are inattentive and remiss in their duty; and, on the contrary, such only who are active and vigilant will be entitled to future favour and promotion.

Given under my hand, at Head-Quarters, in Cambridge, this 21st day of March, 1776.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Cambridge, March 21, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 18th instant, and concur with you in opinion, that their women and children, with the Tory families, will most probably go to Halifax. This is what I meant and alluded to, having never suspected that they (especially the latter) would go to New-York.

I am extremely obliged by your friendly hint, and shall ever receive them with pleasure. But I do not think that they were apprehensive of an attack from our side, but rather preparing to make one. However, let their designs have been what they may, I have the satisfaction to inform you that, on Sunday morning last, they totally evacuated the town, and we are now in full possession, upon which event I beg leave to congratulate you; and more so, as the town is in a much better situation than was expected. Added to this, they have left, by means of their precipitate retreat, stores of one kind and another to a pretty considerable amount—a particular detail of which, or estimation of their value, I have not yet got. Notwithstanding they have abandoned the town, and there have been favourable winds for their departure, they are still lying with their fleet in Nantasket-Road; but for what purpose, is a matter of much conjecture—some supposing their vessels to have been loaded with such hurry and confusion as to be unfit for sea, and to require sundry things and arrangements to be settled previous to their going out; but for my own part, I cannot but suspect they are waiting for some opportunity to give us a stroke at a moment they conceive us to be off our guard, in order to retrieve the honour they have lost by their shameful and scandalous retreat, diminishing from that lustre and renown which British Armies were wont to boast, and justly claimed as their right. Suspecting them of such motives, I shall not detach any more of the Army than what is gone already, until they have taken their departure and quitted the coast.

I heartily thank you for your kind attention to my last requisition, and am glad that the companies you have ordered are of the Militia; the trouble and inconveniences occasioned by them being far less than what generally attend volunteers. Nothing but necessity and the importance of New-York to us in the present contest, could have induced the application, and, therefore, as soon as they can be spared by the arrival of our Army, they will be at liberty to return home to their common and necessary employments, except such as may choose to enlist and continue in service.

In compliance with your request, I shall direct the troops, or some of them that go from hence after the Ministerial Fleet are gone, to pursue their route on or near the sea-coast, if they can be accommodated with covering and provisions, that they may be ready to oppose the enemy in case they make any attempt upon your Colony about the time of their going, though that is what I do not apprehend. I rather suppose, when they once set out, that they will repair to New-York, or wherever bound, with all possible despatch, to secure the place they are destined for by surprise, lest preparations should be made to receive and prevent them.

I am, sir, with great regard and esteem, your most obedient servant, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Cambridge, March 21, 1776.

SIR: Your favours of the 18th and 19th instant I received, and am extremely sorry to hear that your Militia are so deficient in arms. I fear the misfortune is too common; nor do I know how it will be remedied. In this Army, although I have pursued every mode I could devise for procuring them, there is still a great deficiency, and a considerable number of men without any in their hands. The peculiar situation of Rhode-Island, and the extensive sea-coast, had not escaped my mind. I well know the enemy have it in their power to do it considerable damage, unless there is a sufficient force to repel their attempts. But it is the opinion of the General Officers here that their destination is against New-York; the importance of which (as it secures the free and only communication between the Northern and Southern Colonies, which will be entirely cut off by their possessing it, and give them the command of Hudson's River and an easy pass into Canada;) makes it absolutely and indispensably necessary for the whole of this Army, which is but inconsiderable, except that part of it which will be left here to secure the stores, barracks, and other publick property, to be marched from hence for its defence, with all possible expedition. It is an object that should command our first attention, and if lost, will be of the most fatal consequence to us in the present unhappy and interesting struggle. Lest any attempts should be made against you, I shall give orders to the officers commanding brigades, if they have intelligence of an invasion upon their march, that they forthwith return to your succour. I shall also order the officer who will be left here to do the same with the troops under his command, whenever occasion may require it.

Agreeable to the request made by you and your honourable General Assembly, I shall with cheerfulness and pleasure direct some of the last divisions that go from hence to pursue the route you wish, if they can be accommodated with covering and provisions, and shall be ever ready and happy to render Rhode-Island, or any other place, any services in my power that may be compatible with the general good.

I am, sir, with sentiments of the highest regard, your and their most obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Cooke.

GENERAL HOWE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

On board his Majesty's Ship Chatham, }
Nantasket-Road, March 21, 1776. }

MY LORD: It is with great regret I am obliged to inform your Lordship that, after my struggles to supply the Army with provisions from the Southern Provinces and the West-Indies, (from whence none of the vessels have yet returned,) and after an anxious expectation of more transports to convey the troops, stores, civil officers, inhabitants, and effects, the enemy, by taking possession of and fortifying the commanding heights on Dorchester-Neck, in order to force the ships by their cannon to quit the harbour, has reduced me to the necessity either of exposing the Army to the greatest distresses by remaining in Boston, or of withdrawing from it under such straightened circumstances. The importance of preserving this force when it could no longer act to advantage, did not leave any room to doubt of the propriety of its removal; and since my determination, taken on the 7th instant, I have exerted every expedient to accomplish the arduous task, which was executed on the 17th following in the forenoon, without the least molestation from the Rebels, the transports having been previously watered and fitted for sea in every respect, excepting the article of provisions, in the view of complying with his Majesty's commands for a movement from Boston as soon as I might be enabled to effect it.

In order to explain to your Lordship more clearly the state I was reduced to in the article of provisions, I have enclosed a return extracted from the Commissary-General's reports between the 12th of February and 4th of March; also, the tonnage of transports at the time of embarkation.

The Rebels, about the latter end of January, erected new works and batteries on a point of land opposite to West-Boston, at a place known by the name of Phipps's Farm, which, lying under cover of their strongest posts, and so situated as to be supported by their whole force from Cambridge, was not to be prevented. Soon afterwards the Militia of the country was called in, and having intelligence that the enemy intended to possess themselves of Dorchester-Neck, I ordered a detachment from Castle-William on the 13th of February, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Leslie, and one composed of Grenadiers and Light-Infantry from Boston, commanded by Major Musgrave, to pass over the ice, with directions to destroy the houses, and every kind of cover whatever upon that peninsula; which was executed, and six of the enemy's guard made prisoners.

On the 2d instant, at night, the Rebels began a cannonade upon the town, from Roxbury and Phipps's Farm, and threw some shells from both places, without doing any personal damage, and but little to the buildings. The same was repeated on the evenings of the 3d and 4th, by which only six men were wounded; the fire being returned from our batteries, but at such a distance as to be very uncertain in the execution.

It was discovered on the 5th, in the morning, that the enemy had thrown up three very extensive works, with strong abattes round them, on the commanding hill on Dorchester-Neck, which must have been the employment of at least twelve thousand men. In a situation so critical I determined upon an immediate attack with all the force I could transport. The ardour of the troops encouraged me in this hazardous enterprise. Regiments were expeditiously embarked on board transports to fall down the harbour, and flat-boats were to receive other transports; making in the whole twenty-four hundred men, to rendezvous at Castle-William, from whence the descent was to be made in the night of the 5th; but the wind unfortunately coming contrary, and blowing very hard, the ships were not able to get to their destination; and this circumstance also making it impossible to employ the boats, the attempt became impracticable.

The weather continuing boisterous the next day and night, gave the enemy time to improve their works, to bring up their cannon, and to put themselves into such a state of defence, that I could promise myself little success by attacking them under all the disadvantages I had to encounter; wherefore I judged it most advisable to prepare for the evacuation of the town, upon the assurance of one month's provision from Admiral Shuldham, who, in this emergency, as he has on every other occasion, offered all the assistance he could afford.

A thousand difficulties arose on account of the disproportion of transports for the conveyance of the troops, the well-affected inhabitants, their most valuable property, and the quantity of military stores to be carried away. However, as the enemy gave no interruption but during the nights, and that inconsiderable, I found the whole in readiness to depart on the 14th, if the wind had favoured; and, assisted by the abilities and assiduity of Captains Reynar and Montagu, of his Majesty's Ships Chatham and Fowey, who superintended the embarkation, and by the alacrity of the officers under them, this operation was effected on the 17th, and the rear guard embarked at nine o'clock in the morning, without the least loss, irregularity, or accident. Such military stores as could not be taken on board were destroyed, and the utmost expedition is now using to get ready for sea in the best state our circumstances will allow; the Admiral having all the ships-of-war he can spare from the convoy for the security and protection of such vessels as may be bound for Boston.

Every provision my situation would afford has been made for the accommodation of the inhabitants, and the preservation of their effects. All the woollen goods also that I could find room for, belonging to those who chose to stay behind, (the want of which is more distressing to the enemy than any other article whatever,) has been shipped; inventories of them taken in the best manner possible, and put under the charge of proper persons, in order to be hereafter stored. The demolition of the Castle has been effectually executed, and an armed ship is sent by the Admiral, express, to advise the different Governours on the Continent of this removal.

Halifax, though stripped of provisions during the winter, and affording few conveniences to so numerous a body, is the only place where the Army can remain until supplies arrive from Europe. My first attention will be paid to the defence of the town and his Majesty's dock-yard, and to enable Governour Legge to overcome the spirit of disaffection which has lately appeared in the northern parts of Nova-Scotia; after which, I conclude that three battalions, with Goreham's and Maclean's corps, will be a sufficient force for its protection.

I shall also detach three regiments to Quebeck as soon as the navigation of the river St. Lawrence becomes practicable, if I do not, in the mean time, hear anything to the contrary from Europe. The remainder of the Army, which, after these detachments are made, may consist of about five thousand men, including sick, will be held in readiness to proceed to New-York, when enabled by a supply of provisions, and an addition of transports sufficient for that undertaking; and although the force, according to the present estimation, intended to go on this service, is too small to expect more from it than the possession of the town, which, in itself, is a most important post, I shall attempt it at all hazard as soon as possible, apprehending it will be more advisable to pursue this measure without delay, than, by waiting for reinforcements from Europe, whereof I have no certainty, to give the Rebels time to form an Army in the Province of New-York, and to check the encouragement they will receive from the apparent inactivity of the King's Army retired to Halifax, as well as to prevent the contrary effect it may have upon the few friends to Government remaining there.

I am justly sensible how much more conducive it would be to his Majesty's service, if the Army was in a situation to proceed immediately to New-York; but the present condition of the troops—crowded in transports, without regard to conveniences, the inevitable dissortment of stores, and all the encumbrances with which I am clogged—effectually disable me from the exertion of this force in any offensive operations, although I should receive a supply of provisions before my departure from hence; which considerations, I hope, will lead his Majesty to approve of my determination.

Unless these supplies are sent under convoy, or of force to defend themselves, they will become very precarious, as the Rebels have greatly increased their naval strength; and I fear that many of those now on their voyage will fall into the enemy's hands, notwithstanding all the efforts which his Majesty's ships, (unequal in point of number to the service they are upon,) can make. In this persuasion, I humbly submit to your Lordship, whether it would not be an advisable measure to order all convoys directly to Halifax; from whence they may proceed with more certainty to the future destination of the Army.

I beg leave to remark, that the last commands I had the honour to receive from your Lordship are dated the 22d of October, which will serve to show the difficulties ships bound to this port have met with on the coast; many whereof, I learn by the master of a vessel just arrived here, have been forced to the West-Indies, and no less than thirty-seven sail of different kinds were at Antigua the last of this month, when he left that Island.

I shall not fail to write as fully as possible to your Lordship from Halifax.

I am, &c.,

W. HOWE.

P. S. The transports which brought over the Twenty-Seventh Regiment are arrived from Halifax, in consequence of orders sent to Brigadier Massey some time ago, and will afford great relief to the Army in its present crowded state.

*By the King.—A PROCLAMATION,
For encouraging Seamen to enter themselves on board His Majesty's Ships-of-War.*

GEORGE R.

Whereas it is our Royal intention to give all due encouragement to all such Seamen who shall voluntarily enter themselves in our service: We have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Privy Council, to publish this our Royal Proclamation. And we do hereby promise and declare, that all such able Seamen, not above the age of fifty, nor under the age of eighteen years, fit for our service, who shall, on or before the 30th day of April next, voluntarily enter themselves to serve in our Royal Navy, either with the Captains or Lieutenants of our ships, or the chief officers on board such tenders as shall be employed for raising men for the service of our Navy, shall receive, as our Royal bounty, the sum of three pounds each man; and all such ordinary Seamen fit for our service, who shall so enter themselves as aforesaid, shall receive the sum of two pounds each man, as our Royal bounty, in lieu of all other bounties mentioned in our Proclamation dated the 3d of January, and our order in Council of the 28th day of February last; such respective sums to be paid them by the respective clerks of the Cheque, residing at the ports or places where the ships into which they shall be entered shall be, immediately after the third muster of such Seamen. And we do declare, that the qualifications of the Seamen so entering themselves as aforesaid, shall be certified by the Captain, Master, and Boatswain of the ship or vessel where they shall enter. And for prevention of any abuses by any persons leaving the vessels to which they shall belong, and entering themselves on board any other ships or vessels, in order to obtain the said bounty-money, we do hereby declare and command, that such Seamen belonging to any of our ships or vessels as shall absent themselves from any of the said ships or vessels to which they shall belong, and shall enter themselves on board any other of our said ships or vessels, in order to obtain the said bounty, shall not only lose the wages due to them in the ships or vessels they shall leave, but also be severely punished according to their demerits.

Given at our Court at St. James's, the 22d day of March, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, in the sixteenth year of our reign.

God save the King.

ADDRESS OF THE PROVOST, ETC., OF FORRES (SCOTLAND)
TO THE KING.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Forres, presented to His Majesty by Henry Dundas, Esq., Lord Advocate of Scotland.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Deeply impressed with a just and grateful sense of the many invaluable blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and beneficent reign, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Forres, humbly beg leave to approach the Throne, to declare their firm attachment to your Majesty's person and administration.

We beg leave to assure your Majesty that we will, with the greatest cheerfulness, to the utmost of our power, support the dignity of your Crown, and the honour of Great Britain, in reducing the rebellious Colonies in North America to a sense of the duty they owe to your Majesty and the Parent State.

Though we abhor the turbulent and seditious spirit that actuates the refractory Colonies, and applaud the spirited coercive measures that are now adopted by Administration to reduce them to a proper allegiance to their King, and dependance on the Mother Country; instigated by the feelings of humanity, we commiserate the fate of our unhappy deluded fellow-subjects, who, excited by a malevolent domestick faction, have heedlessly plunged themselves into all the horrors of a most unnatural civil war; and rejoice to think that when they return to their duty, they will be again received under the protection of the best Government that ever human wisdom framed, and into the favour of a Prince whose glory it is to be in every respect a constitutional and patriotick King.

We felicitate your Majesty and ourselves on having the prospect of a national and well-regulated Militia in North Britain, which we are convinced will answer every good purpose Government can expect.

That your Majesty may be speedily enabled to restore peace to your Colonies, and diffuse happiness over all the British Empire, is the fervent prayer of,

May it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most loyal, and most dutiful subjects.

Signed by appointment, the seal of the Burgh being affixed,

JAMES GRANT, Provost.

PETITION OF THE CITY OF LONDON TO THE KING.

St. James's, March 22, 1776.

This day the Right Honourable the Lord-Mayor, several of the Aldermen, the Sheriffs, and some of the Common Council of the City of London, waited upon his Majesty (being introduced by the Earl of Hertford, Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's household) with the following Address and Petition, which was read by the Recorder:

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address and Petition of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of LONDON, in Common Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons, of the City of London, in Common Council assembled, beg leave to approach your Throne, and to entreat your Majesty's royal attention, whilst, with the humility of dutiful subjects, we lay before your Majesty what at present most immediately affects us in the spirit and tendency of the publick measures now depending, and the anxiety we feel at the naked and exposed state in which this country will be left, by draining it of the national troops, as well as at the danger and disgrace attending the late treaties for foreign mercenaries, whose latitude is such as to provide the means of introducing a foreign Army even into this Realm.

We cannot, sir, without horror, look forward to national debt and of burdensome taxes, that loss of our most valuable resources, those distresses of our merchants and manufacturers, those deficiencies of the revenue, that effusion of the blood of our countrymen and brethren, that failure of publick credit, and those dreadful calamities and convulsions, which must follow a civil war so begun and pursued, whose extent no wisdom can foresee.

We humbly conceive that no people can be bound to surrender their rights and liberties as a return for protection. The Colonies have fought our battles with us; and in the last war they so far exceeded their abilities, that this nation thought it just and necessary to make them an annual compensation; and even now, driven to open hostilities in their own defence, they are willing (their Charters being inviolably secured) to continue to us all those advantages of a regulated and exclusive commerce, to which we have long owed our opulence and prosperity. And we have every assurance which men in their situation can safely give, that, if asked as freemen, they are willing to go further, and to afford to the exhausted state of the revenue of this country such reasonable voluntary aid as their abilities permit; provided that their contributions are unalienably applied to relieve that distress which is the only fair and politick foundation of requiring them; and that neither their aids nor our own sinking fund shall be any longer perverted from a publick benefit, and misapplied to the purpose of corruption, instead of redeeming the debts of the nation according to its first wise and just institution.

Indulge, most gracious Sovereign, the humanity and benignity of your own Royal disposition, and our prayers will be granted. We implore the extension of your Majesty's justice and mercy towards that Continent which, when arbiter of the terms of peace, it was your Majesty's own determination to prefer to every other compensation for all the expenses of the last war. We humbly and earnestly beseech your Majesty, that the most solemn, clear, distinct, and unambiguous specification of those just and honourable terms, which your Majesty, with both Houses of Parliament, means to grant to the Colonies, may precede the dreadful operations of your armament. Every colour and suspicion of injustice and oppression will then be removed from the proceedings of the Mother Country; and if those just and honourable terms are not submitted to, your Majesty will undoubtedly be enabled to meet, what will then be rebellion, with the zealous hearts and hands of a determined, loyal, and united people.

Signed by order of Court:

WILLIAM RIX.

To which Address and Petition His Majesty was pleased to return the following Answer.

I deplore, with the deepest concern, the miseries which a great part of my subjects in North America have brought upon themselves by an unjustifiable resistance to the constitutional authority of this Kingdom; and I shall be ready and happy to alleviate those miseries, by acts of mercy and clemency, whenever that authority is established, and the now existing rebellion is at an end. To obtain these salutary purposes, I will invariably pursue the most proper and effectual means.

WILLIAM LUX TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, March 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed is a letter (from Mr. Massenbaugh) of thanks for your favours. The bearer, Mr. Robert Porteus, comes to solicit an appointment in his stead. He is a young man who has lived some time in this town with Captain Ewing, as a clerk, in which department he has behaved very well. I believe he does not possess any military knowledge; but if you think him worthy of the station, I dare say he will exert himself.

Mr. Hughes cast one eighteen-pounder on Monday, and it was bored. He expected to have four ready by last night; and begs to have some person sent up to prove them, that if any fault be found, he may remedy it before he proceeds too far. He thinks these will answer your expectation, and turn out exceeding fine; and he can have them down by Tuesday or Wednesday next. Pray order some person up to prove them directly.

Mr. Bowly is not yet returned. As soon as he does, you will be waited on by, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM LUX.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CALVERT COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 75.]

Annapolis, March 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As it was thought by the last Convention that fifty regular troops would be sufficient to watch the movements of the ships-of-war and their tenders, on your coast, and to repel any sudden attack or invasion which might be attempted by small parties; and as we do not conceive your situation more dangerous now than it was then, so we cannot think ourselves at liberty to station an additional number of men in your County. We wish to prevent the Militia being harassed; and apprehend, when Captain Beall arrives at his station, which we imagine will be by the last of next week, there will not be any occasion for them to move, unless a more formidable force should come up the bay than has yet appeared, which we have no reason to expect for some time; under which circumstances, the number you speak of would not avail, and the Militia would be under a necessity of taking the field.

We have renewed our orders to the Committees of Observation for Charles County; and if they are not shortly complied with, will send you some powder from hence. As to furnishing you with arms, though it would afford us the highest satisfaction, yet from our inability we cannot experience the pleasure of gratifying you, not having a sufficiency for the regular forces.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Calvert County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 76.]

Annapolis, March 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have called James Morris before us; and not finding his affair in such a situation as that we can go into a plenary hearing, we have thought proper to oblige him to give security for his good behaviour, and also for his appearance before the Committee of Observation on the first Thursday in April next; against which time, if you think it necessary, you may order witnesses to attend to enforce his charge, and send him down to us again or not, as the facts may appear.

Stephen Gartrell hath been heard, and is ordered to make proper concessions at the head of the Elkridge Battalion, at their next meeting, and to pay one moiety of the expense of bringing him down, guards, &c.; James Morris to pay the other moiety. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for the Elkridge Department, in Anne Arundel County.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN TO C. W. F. DUMAS.

Philadelphia, March 22, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I wrote to you lately by Mr. Story, and since by another conveyance. This line will be delivered to you by Mr. Deane, who goes over on business of the Congress, and with whom you may freely converse on the affairs committed to you in behalf of that body. I recommend him warmly to your civilities. Messrs. Vaillant and Pochard continue close at their new business, and are already able to subsist by it. As they grow more expert, they will be able to take more money.

Mr. Deane will inform you of everything here; and I need not add more than that I am, with esteem and respect, &c.

B. FRANKLIN.

To C. W. F. Dumas, Utrecht.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety for the Province of PENNSYLVANIA.

The Petition of OSWELL EVE, of FRANKFORD, in the Township of OXFORD, and Province of PENNSYLVANIA, humbly sheweth:

That your Petitioner some time ago, at great expense, erected a Powder-Mill in this Province, with a view of carrying on that useful manufactory; and spent much time in inventing machines and making experiments for bringing that branch of business to perfection, which he apprehends he had in a great measure accomplished, so as to establish the making of powder in this Province, which had not been carried on to any extent before.

That the present situation of America requiring a greater supply of that article, he was employed by the honourable Congress and the Committee of Safety, to work up part of the saltpetre imported by them and made here, which induced him to extend his works at a very great additional expense. That, by employing his whole time and study therein, he has invented and carried into execution works for graining powder, and for other parts of manufacturing the same, which are put in motion by water, (which is not done in any part of Europe;) and by which not only many hands may be saved in carrying on the same, but that it can be completed with much more expedition and safety than in any other mill.

Also, that he has, by different experiments, improved the refining of saltpetre and sulphur, and has brought the whole to perfection; and is now making upwards of twenty-two hundred weight of powder per week.

That he has at all times shown his works and many of his improvements to such gentlemen as came from different Colonies to view the same, which has contributed to promote the erecting a number of powder-mills; therefore, as the expense which he has been at will not, for a considerable time, be compensated by the profits of his mill; and as other manufactories, of less publick utility than this is at present, have met with publick encouragement, he humbly proposes to make known to the honourable Congress or Committee of Safety, or such persons as they shall appoint, his whole art of making powder, and different improvements in the mill, not doubting that they will grant him an adequate reward for having brought to perfection the said manufactory in the most safe and expeditious manner.

All which he submits to the consideration of your honourable Board, either to recommend his case to Congress, or to grant him such compensation as you may think proper.

OSWELL EVE.

Frankford, March 22, 1776.

JAMES YOUNG TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 23, 1776.]

Philadelphia, March 22, 1776.

SIR: Permit me to address you in this manner, as I would not presume to take up your time with a tedious relation of disagreeable circumstances. I am the unfortunate father of a wrong-headed and deluded, though only son, who made an elopement from me the latter end of January last, and got on board the Phoenix ship-of-war without my knowledge, and have not yet been able to reclaim him to the duty he owes his country. I am now informed that he is fortunately a prisoner in New-York, having been on board the ship that was cast away on Long-Island, going, as I am informed, with recommendatory letters from Governour Tryon to General Howe. This is, therefore, to implore you, with the honourable Congress, to permit him to be a prisoner on the parole of a gentleman, at the late estate of his grandfather, Dr. Greame, twenty miles north of this city, or where else it may be thought proper near this place; which will lay me under a deep sense of gratitude to the honourable Congress.

Being, with the utmost respect, honourable sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

JAMES YOUNG.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

P. S. The youth is but eighteen years of age, and an apprentice to Messrs. Chevalier, of this city. His name is John Young.

JOHN CHATFIELD TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Easthampton, March 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This day, about ten o'clock in the forenoon, our guard, stationed at Montauk, saw twenty sail of square-rigged vessels (five of them appeared to be large) and two sloops, bearing about south-southeast from the point of Montauk, about nine or ten miles to sea, (the wind south-southeast, the weather something thick and hazy,) steering about northeast by north, and sailed to the eastward of Block-Island; and suppose, by the course they steered, that they were going into Rhode-Island. This, gentlemen, is all the information we can give you concerning them, as at about one o'clock they disappeared behind Block-Island, and they saw them no more.

As we are a frontier at the east end of Long-Island, and are destitute of men to defend us, and have but little ammunition, should be very glad if the honourable House would use their endeavours that we may have some assistance.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servants.

Signed by order of the Committee of Easthampton.

JOHN CHATFIELD, Chairman.

To the New-York Committee of Safety.

PETER S. VAN ALSTYNE TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Kinderhook, Albany County, March 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: A difficulty has arisen in the execution of my office of Justice of the Peace, under the Five Pound Act, which induces me to apply to your Board. I have hitherto issued precepts as usual, when applied to for the recovery of debts within my limited jurisdiction, though I have always, since the commencement of our publick distresses, endeavoured to dissuade parties from a prosecution where the debtor's default arose from inability; but where I have been assured that the demand of process by the plaintiff has not proceeded from litigiousness, but as a means of obtaining a just debt, which was not detained from inability, I have readily exercised the powers of my office. Notwithstanding these my principles, I have given offence, and on Saturday last, I was visited by sundry persons, who said they were a Committee from a larger number in the northeastern part of this District, who had come to a resolution that the law for recovery of debts before Magistrates should cease in this District; and yesterday, when I happened to be from home, about thirty or forty men came with a design to compel me to a promise of desisting from the further exercise of my office in civil suits. The objections they make are of a general nature, and by no means confined to me; for no peculiar hardship or any oppression is complained of, nor has any resentment been shown against the plaintiffs; but they say that, in the present situation of the country, they ought not to be compelled by law to pay debts; and that while we are fighting against the King, (I state their objection,) it is absurd to use his name or authority to enforce the payment of debts. Your Board will at once perceive the dilemma to which myself, and, indeed, all who are concerned in the administration of justice, are reduced by these principles, and the compulsory methods threatened of carrying them into execution. For my part, I have remonstrated that no order of the Continental Congress, the Provincial Congress, or the General County Committee, has passed for a cessation of law, and that when either interferes, I shall doubtless be freed from further application. They, on the other hand, argue that the silence of the Congresses must be taken to be in their favour, from the evident reasonableness of their objection, (which I have already stated,) and, therefore, that it is incumbent on those who are advocates for the law's going on, to get an express declaration to destroy what they suppose to be the implied sense of the Congresses. At present, while the one party complains of the hardship of paying debts, the other thinks it equally hard to be restrained from the only effectual means of enforcing their just demands.

Upon the whole, it would be of publick benefit that your Board (which, except the Grand Continental Congress, is the only competent power to decide these differences) should express its sentiments on this important subject, for it is that by which all sides profess themselves ready to govern themselves.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

PETER S. VAN ALSTYNE.

To the President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.

Although we have not experienced the inconveniences above set forth, yet, being exposed thereto from the nature of our offices as Magistrates, we beg leave to join in the above representation.

PETER VOSBURGH,
H. V. SCHAICK,
ANDRIES WITBECK.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Province of NEW-YORK.

The Petition of ROBERT ROBINSON and MICHAEL PRICE, humbly sheweth:

That your Petitioners have unhappily fallen under the censure of the Committee of New-York, for having been concerned in selling goods at higher prices than for twelve months last past. That your Petitioners have suffered, and do daily suffer, many hardships and inconveniences from this censure. That your Petitioners are extremely sorry that any part of their conduct should have given offence to their fellow-citizens, as they have always had the sincerest regard for the welfare and prosperity of the Province of New-York, and of America in general. That your Petitioners did early sign the General Association, and, in all cases except the above, have strictly observed all orders and recommendations of the Continental and Provincial Congresses and General Committee of this City, and that they sincerely promise to abide by all such orders and recommendations for the future, and that it shall be their earnest endeavour so to demean themselves as to avoid giving any just cause of offence. That your Petitioners, therefore, humbly request this honourable Congress will be pleased to take the singular hardship of their case into consideration, and grant them relief from the present embarrassments under which they labour from said censure. And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

ROBINSON & PRICE.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Lebanon, March 22, 1776.

SIR: Eliphalet Dyer and William Williams, Esquires, are authorized and empowered by the Governour and Council appointed to assist him in the recess of the General Assembly, to move your body to grant this Colony for its use the loan of such a number and sizes of cannon as you can spare without detriment, which, if granted, the return of them, or their value, shall be secured. The reason of this application is, that we have undertaken to set the furnace at Salisbury in blast, to cast cannon, &c., for use at this important crisis of publick affairs; that the hearth is laying, ore, coal, and every other necessary preparing, workmen provided for every part of the business, and hope to begin to cast cannon in all next month, or early in May. They can with greater ease be transported to New-York (and used where needed) than brought here. In the mean time, fearing our necessity of cannon for use before this work can be effected, and apprehending that a great number of various sizes may be spared from your Colony without injury to the common service, we therefore hope for a compliance with our motion.

This Colony have been exploring lead-mines. One at Middletown is opened, fifty or sixty tons of ore raised, a smelting furnace built there, and expect thirty or forty tons of lead to be run out soon. A Committee appointed by our Assembly in October last to explore and examine a lead-mine at New-Canaan, in your Colony, made report at our session in December last. A copy thereof is enclosed. If worthy of your attention, and ore is raised there, the furnace at Middletown may serve for smelting what is raised at both places. Any service we can render your Colony in that or any other instance, will be done with pleasure.

I am, with great truth and regard, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

East-Greenwich, March 22, 1776.

SIR: At the request of the General Assembly now sitting here, I make application to your Excellency for six seamen taken from the enemy, and now your prisoners, to be exchanged for six inhabitants of this Colony, who were taken and are detained by Captain Wallace. Four of these men have families, who are greatly distressed. I send this by express, by reason of the danger of Captain Wallace's being removed from this station, and carrying these unfortunate people with him; or, if that should not be the case, of his sending them to Britain, to the utter ruin of them and their families. We have but two prisoners in this Colony, both officers, and active enterprising men, whom we should be extremely unwilling to give up.

I beg the favour of your Excellency to give this matter the quickest despatch, and to deliver the seamen to Mr. Burr, the bearer, to be immediately brought into this Colony.

I am, with great truth and respect, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL WARD TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Camp at Roxbury, March 22, 1776.

SIR: The enemy having abandoned the town of Boston, and as my health declines, I have no prospect of being able to perform the duties of my office in the Army the ensuing campaign, therefore, I must beg leave to resign my command, and sincerely pray that some gentleman better qualified may be appointed in my place.

Wishing you the Divine smiles and protection, I am, dear sir, your most obedient humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

MAJOR HILDRETH TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Dracut, March 22, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: I am sensible of the honour done me by your Honours' appointing me a First Major in the Seventh Regiment in the County of Middlesex; but the consciousness of my being unqualified and unequal to that important post, will, I hope, excuse my declining it. I therefore have enclosed the commission to your Honours, and pray your Honours to appoint some other person in my place.

I remain your Honours' most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM HILDRETH.

To the Honourable Council of the Massachusetts-Bay.

Colony of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

The major part of the Council of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in NEW-ENGLAND, to WILLIAM HILDRETH, Esq., greeting:

You being appointed First Major of the Seventh Regiment of Militia in the County of Middlesex, whereof Siméon Spaulding, Esq., is Colonel, by virtue of the power vested in us, we do by these presents (reposing special trust and confidence in your loyalty, courage, and good conduct) commission you accordingly. You are, therefore, carefully and diligently to discharge the duty of a First Major in leading, ordering, and exercising said regiment in arms, both inferior officers and soldiers, and to keep them in good order and discipline; and they are hereby commanded to obey you as their First Major, and you are yourself to observe and follow such orders and instructions as you shall from time to time receive from the major part of the Council or your superior officers.

Given under our hands and the seal of the said Colony, at Watertown, the 14th day of February, in the sixteenth year of the reign of his Majesty King George the Third, Anno Domini 1776.

By the command of the major part of the Council.

ON THE AMERICAN AFFAIRS.

London, March 23, 1776.

The dies are thrown, and the game is lost. The Addressers have won. Whether or not there was foul play, I will not inquire. But can they be so weak to imagine that the calamities of this war will only fall on the Americans?—that they only shall feel the storm, and that we shall remain safe and unhurt? Is it possible that a total stagnation of trade to America should bring no evil upon us? As well might it be asserted, and with as much truth, that causes have ceased to produce their effects. Alas! miseries, accumulated miseries, must come upon us! There is that evil in the cause that must produce them. Thousands will be seen wringing their hands, and crying for bread, whose honest industry used plentifully to supply themselves and families. The affluent merchant, and all who depended upon him for support, must be overwhelmed with misery and wretchedness; and the poor rates must be swelled beyond the ability of the land to support. None of these evils may, indeed, at present be felt by the Addressers—with them all may be plenty, calm, and sunshine; but how long will, or can it remain so? Poison thrown into the natural body does not instantly show its effects. It is not possible that we should yet feel the miseries that lie concealed in the present measures; but they will operate, and, too soon, like poison, discover the fatality of their nature. Let every man, therefore, look to himself.

The Duke of Grafton must be allowed to be well acquainted with the finances and resources of Government. His declaration in the House was very alarming. As a stockholder, it most sensibly affected me. If the resources fail, whence is my interest to arise? Ex nihilo nihil fit. Many, doubtless, see this evil; nor is it possible that so weighty a matter should escape the sagacity of our rulers. Would to God it had acted on them as a preventive, and turned their hearts to peace, instead of war!

If the Americans have drawn on them our resentment, they have certainly, by this time, been amply punished; but if delenda est Carthago, if nothing can appease the wrath risen up against them but their utter ruin, let it be remembered that the tares cannot be plucked up without the wheat suffering with it. David certainly made the wisest choice when he chose to fall into the hands of God, rather than into the hands of man. Man's mercies are cruelties: intent upon the object of his resentment, he neither sees how he may be hurt himself, nor regards what mischief he brings on others.

This war has more evils in it than can possibly be foreseen. It admits of no comparison with other wars. It is rather like a family quarrel, where, every one flying to law, the whole estate becomes lost in the contest.

O Addressers! what infatuation has seized you? Is not peace better than war? Would it be any loss to you to have a general amnesty granted to the Americans? Would ye be sufferers were you to behold them again as in the year 1763? Ye may live to curse the day when you set your hands to the fatal paper! Sooner should my right hand have perished than have been instrumental in bringing so great an evil on the land as the curse of war. The child unborn will rue the day.

CAPTAINS KENT AND HENRY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Head-Quarters, Northampton, Virginia, March 23, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: We embrace this opportunity by Captain Kell, who has been some weeks blocked up in this harbour by tenders. On Monday evening last a tender came into Chariton Creek, and carried out a sloop belonging to Isaac Vaughan, and got Captain Kell's schooner under way, but luckily run aground. Our companies that are stationed at the Court-House got down a little after dark; and as there were a ship and five small craft in the offing, that we supposed to be the man-of-war and tenders that were up the bay with you, we planted sentinels along the bay shore, and went to heaving up an intrenchment opposite to Captain Kell's schooner. We discovered nothing of the tender till the morning, when she weighed anchor, and came opposite to our little breastwork, and an engagement ensued, which lasted about an hour; when we obliged the tender to retreat, without carrying out the schooner.

We shall be exceedingly thankful for the Continental regulations relative to victualling and paying off troops. We were obliged to send Mr. Bruff to the Treasurer for the money to pay one month's wages to our companies. We hope your Honours will make some provision for getting the companies home, as also for our Surgeons.

We are, very respectfully, gentlemen, your very humble servants,

JAMES KENT,
WILLIAM HENRY.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. As Captain Kell will return here again, he has promised to wait on you for any commands you may have to us.

In Committee, Northampton County, Virginia, }
March 20, 1776.

Captain Thomas Kell, commander of the Schooner Dolphin, having put into Chariton Harbour, being chased by one of the tenders, who have made several attempts to take possession of her since; and the said Captain Kell having appeared before the Committee, and desired their opinion what part to act, and there appearing no probability of getting safe out, and thinking it would be attended with fatal consequences to suffer such a valuable cargo to fall into the hands of the enemy, recommended to the Captain to unload her without loss of time, and run her up the creek, and wait the further direction of the owners.

Extract from the Minutes:

DRURY STITH, Chairman of Committee.

THOMAS B. HANDS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Chestertown, March 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Houston just now returned from Philadelphia, and delivered me the enclosed letter, which I should have sent unopened, but he told me he had directions from Mr. Alexander to deliver the letter to either Mr. Smyth or myself, if in this town, and to desire us to open it and see the contents, and carefully to transmit it to you. As it might be imprudent to intrust it to a casual conveyance, I have engaged a person to take the care of it to you, by way of Rock-Hall, with orders that, should he be pursued in the bay, and be in danger of being taken, to sink the letter with weights. Mr. Houston brings no intelligence worth communicating.

I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,

THOMAS B. HANDS.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

JOHN STEWARD TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

March 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The late Convention were pleased to honour me with an appointment in the regular Independent service of this Province. I am well pleased with my present situation; but, from the consideration that I cannot attain so just a knowledge of military duty in it as in the Battalion or Artillery, I wish to exchange for the vacancy in Captain Fulford's Company. If, gentlemen, you think I merit such favour, it shall be my constant study to qualify myself for the post.

I am, gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your obedient servant,

JOHN STEWARD.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN JOHN ALLEN THOMAS.

[No. 77.]

Annapolis, March 23, 1776.

SIR: We received a letter of the 15th instant, from Mr. Mackall, advising us that you thought a Virginia Pilot-boat, which the Calvert County Guards had stopped some days past, would be very useful, as well for conveying the troops from one County to the other, as for taking any small tenders which might come into your river; and that the owner would sell her on reasonable terms; and requesting our opinion upon the expediency of purchasing and arming her for the use of the Province. We cannot conceive a pilot-boat properly calculated to transport troops across a narrow river, in which, upon an alarm given, unless the wind should suit, they cannot sail from one place to another with that expedition the service might require; and as to repelling any hostile attacks which may be made by tenders, we do not think that boat would be sufficient for the purpose, as nothing less than an eight or ten-gun vessel would offer to run up our rivers to commit depredations. These and other reasons will not justify our purchasing her for the services suggested.

We are, &c.

To Captain John Allen Thomas.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

[No. 78.]

Annapolis, March 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Two tons of powder, or near that quantity, we believe, have been lately received at Baltimore Town from Philadelphia; one ton of which Mr. Alexander wrote us was intended for Virginia, but given up by their Deputies on occasion of the late alarm. We wish to be informed whether we are indebted to Virginia or to Congress for the last ton. If to Virginia, we can easily settle the account, because we have already lent them twelve barrels: two for the lower Counties, and ten for their sloop-of-war at Alexandria.

Muskets by Captain Tibbet not yet come to hand. They are much wanted. Our Independent Companies are very importunate for arms, which we have not as yet been able to supply them with. Our gunsmiths go on very slowly, and we want small-arms very much. Permit us to request you would remind the Congress of those lent for fitting out the Hornet and Wasp.

We are anxious to have all the powder secured we can; and should be glad to know what quantity Messrs. Willing & Morris sent, and whether any more is to be expected from that quarter soon.

We are satisfied, so far as relates to the Province, with the sale of the vessel called the Wild Duck. W. Lux seems not altogether pleased, and talks that he had some claim; but we think he ought to be contented, all things considered.

Some gold and silver have already come in; and more might be got had we cash to exchange. We are in daily expectation of the arrival of the Continental money, as also of our plates and paper for the new emission. We admire much at your silence on that head, and can account for it no otherwise than by taking it for granted that your attention is engaged on subjects of more importance.

We have heretofore requested you would let us know the pay of officers and seamen engaged in the Continental Navy, and must again remind you of sending it to us, that we may settle the pay in our Province.

We can spare fifty pieces of the heaviest duck, and most unfit for tents; the rest you will be pleased to forward to us by the stages. All is quiet here at present. Nothing new, only that the man-of-war, in her passage down, plundered Sharp's Island, and carried off some stock, and had taken a small vessel belonging to Colonel Tayloe. A flying report, by Charles Landsdale, this day, that they were lately seen at the mouth of Potomack.

Your information with regard to Mr. Temple falls much short of the great expectations raised by the publick papers, and by private letters heretofore received. Be pleased to send us the earliest intelligence which way Lord Howe steers his course from Boston, that, if he comes this way, we may be prepared to receive him.

We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

P. S. If the lead be not already sent off, please order four tons to Chestertown, for the use of the Eastern-Shore.

JOHN JAY TO COLONEL McDUGALL.

Philadelphia, March 23, 1776.

DEAR COLONEL: When the Clerk of the Congress gave me the printed papers which I enclosed you, he told me they contained the Navy establishment. Whatever deficiencies there may be in them as to that matter, will, I hope, be supplied by the extract now enclosed.

As to Continental colours, the Congress have made no order as yet concerning them; and I believe the Captains of their armed vessels have, in that particular, been directed by their own fancies and inclinations. I remember to have seen a flag designed for one of them, on which was extremely well painted a large rattlesnake, rearing his crest and shaking his rattles, with this motto: "Don't tread on me;" but whether this device was generally adopted by the fleet, I am not able to say; I rather think it was not.

I am by no means without my apprehensions of danger from that licentiousness which, in your situation, is not uncommon. Nothing will contribute more to its suppression than a vigorous exertion of the powers vested in your Convention and Committee of Safety—at least till more regular forms can be introduced. The tenderness shown to some wild people, on account of their supposed attachment to the cause, has been of disservice. Their eccentric behaviour, by passing unproved, has gained countenance, and has lessened your authority, and diminished that dignity so essential and necessary to give weight and respect to your ordinances. Some of your own people are daily instigated, if not employed, to calumniate and abuse the whole Province, and misrepresent all their actions and intentions. One, in particular, has had the impudence to intimate to certain persons that your battalions, last campaign, were not half full, and that Schaick's Regiment had more officers than privates. Others report that you have all along supplied the men-of-war with whatever they pleased to have, and through them, our enemies in Boston. By tales like these they pay their court to people who have more ostensible consequence than real honesty, and more cunning than wisdom.

I am happy to find that our intermeddling in the affair of the Test is agreeable to you. For God's sake resist all such attempts for the future.

Your own discernment has pointed out to you the principle of Lord Stirling's advancement. Had the age of a Colonel's commission been a proper rule, it would have determined in favour of some Colonel at Cambridge, many of whose commissions are prior in date to any in New-York. The spirit you betray on this occasion becomes a soldier.

The enclosed copy of a resolve of Congress will, I hope, settle all doubts relative to rank, which may arise from your new commission. The consequence you drew from that circumstance was more ingenious than solid; for I can assure you that the Congress were not disposed to do anything wrong or uncivil; and I can also add, that your not having joined your regiment last summer has been explained to their satisfaction, as far as I am able to judge. With respect to this, however, as well as some other matters, I shall defer particulars till we meet. In a word, with some men in these as in other other times, a man must either be their tool and be despised, or act a firm disinterested part and be abused. The latter has, in one or two matters, been your fate, as well as that of many other good men. Adieu.

I am, dear sir, your friend,

JOHN JAY.

To Colonel McDougall.

JOHN ADAMS TO GENERAL GATES.

Philadelphia, March 23, 1776.

SIR: I had the pleasure, a few days ago, of your favour of the 8th instant, for which I esteem myself under great obligations to you. We rejoice here at the prospect there is of your driving the enemy from Boston. If you should succeed in this, I hope effectual measures will be taken to fortify the harbour, that the Navy may never enter it again. I think the Narrows may be so obstructed that large ships may not be able to pass; and the channel between Long-Island and the Main may be commanded, by batteries on each of those Islands, in such a manner that Boston may be safe from men-of-war. I hope my countrymen will hesitate at no expense to attain this end, if, in order to accomplish it, they should be obliged to remove the rocky mountains of my town of Braintree into the harbour.

But I cannot yet clearly satisfy myself that they will leave Boston. It will be a greater disgrace to the British arms than to be taken prisoners in the town in a body. If they should abandon the persons and property of their dear friends, the Tories, in Boston, will any other Tories, in any other part of the Continent, ever trust to their protection? It will be considered as such impotence or such infidelity, that I am inclined to think few professors of Toryism would ever afterwards be found anywhere.

I agree with you that in politics the middle way is none at all. If we finally fail in this great and glorious contest, it will be by bewildering ourselves by groping after this middle way. We have hitherto conducted half a war; acted upon the line of defence, &c., &c. But you will see by tomorrow's paper that, for the future, we are likely to wage three-quarters of a war. The Continental ships-of-war, and Provincial ships-of-war, and letters of marque and privateers, are permitted to cruise on British property, wherever found on the ocean. This is not Independency, you know; nothing like it.

If a post or two more should bring you unlimited latitude of trade to all nations, and a polite invitation to all nations to trade with you, take care that you do not call it or think it Independency. No such matter. Independency is a hobgoblin of such frightful mien that it would throw a delicate person into fits to look it in the face.

I know not whether you have seen the act of Parliament called the Restraining Act, or Prohibitory Act, or Piratical Act; or Plundering Act, or Act of Independency—for by all these titles it is called. I think the most apposite is the Act of Independency; for King, Lords, and Commons, have united in sundering this country from that, I think, forever. It is a complete dismemberment of the British Empire. It throws thirteen Colonies out of the Royal protection, levels all distinctions, and makes us independent in spite of our supplications and entreaties.

It may be fortunate that the Act of Independency should come from the British Parliament rather than the American Congress; but it is very odd that Americans should hesitate at accepting such a gift from them. However, my dear friend Gates, all our misfortunes arise from a single source—the reluctance of the Southern Colonies to Republican Government. The success of this war depends on a skilful steerage of the political vessel. The difficulty lies in forming particular Constitutions for particular Colonies, and a Continental Constitution for the whole. Each Colony should establish its own Government, and then a league should be formed between them all. This can be done only on popular principles and axioms, which are so abhorrent to the inclinations of the Barons of the South, and the Proprietary interests in the Middle States, as well as that avarice of land which has made upon this Continent so many votaries to mammon, that I sometimes dread the consequences. However, patience, fortitude, and perseverance, with the help of time, will get us over these obstructions.

Thirteen Colonies, under such a form of Government as Connecticut, or one not quite so popular, leagued together in a faithful confederacy, might bid defiance against all the Potentates of Europe, if united against them.

Pray continue to make happy with your favours. Accept of my most cordial wishes for your safety, happiness, and honour. Make my most respectful compliments to the General and the ladies, and the whole family; and believe me to be, with much respect, your most affectionate friend and servant,

JOHN ADAMS.

To General Gates.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO NEW-JERSEY COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, March 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your several letters have been duly received, and laid before Congress. I beg leave to acquaint you they are at this time under consideration, and that as soon as any determination is made thereon, you may expect to have it communicated to you.

The necessity of the thing has induced the Congress to come to the enclosed resolution, which I am directed to request you will carry into immediate execution.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety of New-Jersey.

In Congress, March 20, 1776.

Resolved, That the Committee of Safety of New-Jersey be desired to remove the Prisoners from Trenton to such place, or places, in that Colony, as may be thought convenient, at a proper distance from the Sea and the Post-Roads, subject to the Regulations formerly made respecting Prisoners.

Resolved, That all Officers, (Prisoners,) who shall refuse to subscribe the Parole ordered by Congress, be committed to Prison.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO CAPTAIN WOLVERTON.

Philadelphia, March 21, 1776.

SIR: I am to inform you that the Congress have agreed to take your company into the service of the Continent; and as soon as they are mustered, and properly armed and accoutred, they are to enter into pay; which being effected, I am commanded by Congress to direct that you proceed with your company, with all expedition, to the city of New-York, and put yourself under the orders of the officer commanding the Continental Troops there.

I have delivered Colonel Charles Stewart the commissions for your officers; and yours as Captain, I delivered to you. I have also paid into the hands of Colonel Stewart six hundred dollars, to defray the necessary expenses of your company previous to their march; to whom you will please to apply.

I wish you success; and am, sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Captain Thomas Wolvorton, of a Company of seventy-six men, in Continental service.

JOSEPH REED TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, March 23, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: The great changes which have taken place with you will, I doubt, scarcely leave you time to read a letter; but as it conveys a piece of good news, I will venture to interrupt you for a few moments. I dare say you have heard how troublesome and dangerous the back inhabitants of North-Carolina were growing. General Gage sent some Scotch officers there last summer, who, pretending a disgust to the Ministerial service, went among their countrymen there, and fomented a spirit of disaffection; and when they thought matters sufficiently ripened, they headed a large body of men, and were marching down to meet the Governour. However, they were met by Colonel Caswell, and totally defeated, about thirty being left dead on the spot, a great number of prisoners taken, and their commander, a Mr. McDonald. The whole party is said to be so crushed and disappointed, that nothing more is to be apprehended from them.

We have no news from Virginia since I wrote you last; no account yet of our fleet; and as no member of Congress expresses any concern on the subject, we begin to suspect they are gone upon some distant enterprise—some conjecture to lay in the way of the East-India ships, a few of whom would soon reimburse us the expense of the war; however, it is all supposition. It has happened, as I expected, that many who were impatient to have Howe driven from Boston, are now alarmed with the apprehension of the seat of war being moved to the Middle Colonies.

General Lee is gone off to Virginia, and we hope will be there in time to meet the troops expected from England. The Congress have at length granted letters of marque; but there is such a difficulty in procuring ammunition, that I imagine little use will be made of them; at least for some time. The Prussian General is made a Brigadier, and ordered to Canada. By some late accounts from England, we are led to expect that the scheme of sending Commissioners will be wholly laid aside. If it should, I think we shall have no reason to regret it, as it does not seem calculated to produce any real benefit.

Adieu, my dear sir. That health and honour may soon attend you is the sincere wish of, my dear General, your most obedient and affectionate humble servant,

JOSEPH REED.

To His Excellency General Washington.

BARON DE WOEDTKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, March 23, 1776.

SIR: The many marks of esteem and distinction with which your Excellency honoured me when I was at Cambridge, and the kind recommendation you favoured me with, requires the most respectful and lively gratitude.

I now have the pleasure to inform your Excellency that the honourable the Congress have appointed me to the rank of a Brigadier-General, and that my destination is for Canada, where I shall repair immediately; and I pray your Excellency to continue me the honour of your protection.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

BARON DE WOEDTKE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

NEW-JERSEY COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 25, 1776.]

In Committee of Safety, New-Jersey, March 23, 1776.

SIR: I am to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of this day's date, covering a resolution of Congress of the 20th instant. The Committee took the resolution into consideration, and have resolved to remove the officers, now prisoners in this town, to Mount-Holly, eight miles from Burlington, as the most proper place on all accounts. They will there have the opportunity of good accommodation, and be at a distance from the sea, post, and stage-roads.

I am directed to acquaint you that, if Congress have any particular matter for this Committee to carry into execution, they request it may be sent as soon as possible, as the season is fast approaching that requires the members' attention on their domestick affairs.

By order of the Committee:

I have the honour to be, your most obedient, humble servant,

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

LORD STIRLING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Elizabethtown, March 23, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I enclose you copies of two letters I received this evening from General Washington and Brigadier-General

Thompson, and of another I wrote in consequence thereof to the Committee of Safety of this Province, which comprehended everything I can say on the subject of them at present. Be pleased to excuse the want of time, or better paper.

I am, most respectfully, your most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

LORD STIRLING TO NEW-JERSEY COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Elizabethtown, March 23, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have just received the enclosed letters from General Washington and Brigadier-General Thompson. From them you will see the necessity of every Province, contiguous to New-York, exerting themselves in sending troops to that place to assist in fortifying and defending it, and also in defending and fortifying such parts of this Province as are most liable and likely to be invaded. With an attention to the latter I came over from New-York yesterday, in order to view the grounds on the heights of Bergen-Neck and the Kills Von Cull, and Staten-Island. I was prevented by the bad weather proceeding so far in this as I could have wished. But, on the whole, I think that the Militia of the Counties of Bergen, Essex, and Middlesex, should be immediately employed in fortifying Amboy, Elizabethtown-Point, the Kill, and Bergen-Neck, with Paulus-Hook. I shall communicate my plan to Brigadier-General Livingston, and shall return to New-York to-morrow morning, and will be over here again in a day or two, and bring some Assistant Engineers with me, in order to lay out such works as General Thompson, on my report, approves of. In the mean time, I hope your Committee of Safety will, without delay, direct the Militia before-mentioned to be employed in the way above suggested; and also to direct the Militia of the interior Counties to march either to the succour of New-York or of the most exposed parts of this Province, as may be found necessary. There is a resolution of Congress, passed a few days ago, that such Militia of this Province as are called upon for the service of fortifying and defending New-York, shall receive pay agreeable to the establishment of the Continental Troops of the Middle Department; and as these works proposed in New-Jersey are with a view to the same point, I make not the least doubt but the troops employed in them will be put on the same footing. For the further satisfaction of your Committee of Safety, they can send a copy of this letter to Congress, and know their determination of this matter. But, for God's sake, do not, at this critical moment, suffer any delay in your directions for the march of the Militia from the interior Counties, nor for the employment of the others in the works of defence which may be found necessary.

I am, &c.,

STIRLING.

To Samuel Tucker, Chairman of the Committee of Safety of the Province of New-Jersey, Trenton.

(Copies to Mr. Hancock and to Brigadier-General Livingston, with the letter to him, to desire the Militia of the interior Counties to march immediately.)

GENERAL WILLIAM THOMPSON TO LORD STIRLING.

New-York, March 23, 1776.

MY LORD: I have taken the liberty of opening the enclosed letter from his Excellency General Washington to your Lordship, (of the 19th instant,) knowing it was of a publick nature. You will see, my Lord, the necessity of sending a number of troops to this place as soon as possible, as it is very probable that General Howe will endeavour to possess himself of the city. I must therefore request you will write to the sundry Committees to order the Militia, with all convenient speed, as well to this place as to any part in Jersey you may judge they will attempt to land at. You will also please to write to Colonel Dayton to march for this place with as many of his regiment as have arms.

I am, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM THOMPSON.

To Lord Stirling.

LORD STIRLING TO COLONEL DAYTON.

Elizabethtown, March 23, 1776.

SIR: I have it in command from Brigadier-General Thompson to desire that you will immediately march to New-York, with as many of your regiment as have arms.

I would recommend it to you to be as alert in obeying this order as possible. And as you have this evening informed me that many of your men who have good fire-locks have yet no bayonets, they being in the maker's hands, I think you had best order such to march, and let care be taken to send the bayonets to them as soon as possible.

I am your most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To Colonel Dayton.

LORD STIRLING TO GENERAL WILLIAM LIVINGSTON.

Elizabethtown, March 24, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I now enclose you copies of a letter from General Washington, of the 19th, one from Brigadier-General Thompson, of yesterday's date, and another from me to the Committee of Safety of this Province. From these, you will see the necessity of putting the eastern part of this Province, as well as New-York, in an immediate state of defence; and from the conversation I have had with you on the subject, you know my sentiments with regard to fortifying the several places mentioned in the letter to the Committee. I think it highly necessary, also, to possess some commanding height on Staten-Island. The men employed in these works will be in the most proper places to guard the Province, and I should think the Militia of the Counties of Bergen, Essex, and Middlesex, would be sufficient if only one-third of them were employed weekly on the business. The Militia of the interior Counties ought to be sent forward to New-York as soon as possible; and you may be assured that, as soon as they can be spared from thence, they will be sent over again into New-Jersey, or to Staten-Island, for the purpose before-mentioned; and that, in case the enemy should attempt to land their Army in New-Jersey, a very considerable part of our Army at New-York will be detached to oppose them. I shall only add, that as soon as you inform me or General Thompson when the men of these Counties will be ready to go to work, I will attend, with the Chief Engineer, to mark out the most necessary grounds to be fortified.

STIRLING.

To Brigadier-General Livingston.

MESSAGE FROM THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:

The Secretary will herewith lay before you two letters from the Committee of Newburyport, one dated 24th February last, and the other the 18th instant, wherein you will observe that the order of Court of the 8th of February last, relative to fixing for the sea, and manning with fifty men each, the Sloop Machias Liberty and the Schooner Diligent, hath not been fully executed; that it is not in the power of said Committee to do it; and that if said vessels are manned, it must be from the eastern part of this Colony. Considering the danger that would attend the suffering said vessels to leave the harbour in which they now are, with so few men as are enlisted to serve on board, (which are a number little more than sufficient to sail them;) the great delay it would cause to attempt recruiting and marching men the distance of two hundred miles at this season of the year; that the present appearance of our affairs are materially different from what they were when said order of Court was made; and that there is good reason to believe that one, if not both, said vessels are unfit, in their construction, for the service for which they are designed; the Council thought it their duty to lay this matter before you, and recommend it to your immediate consideration.

Council Chamber, March 23, 1776.

Newburyport, February 24, 1776.

The Committee of Safety, Correspondence, and Inspection, of Newburyport, beg leave to acknowledge the receipt last evening of a resolve of the honourable General Court, passed the 8th of this present month, appointing them, "with Captain Jeremiah Obrien, a Committee to prepare, and, in all respects, equip and man, with fifty men each, including officers, the Sloop Machias Liberty and Schooner Diligent, now lying at Newburyport," &c. The Committee, with pleasure, will undertake and perform all in their power, and can engage to purchase the necessary articles wanted, except gunpowder. Of that essential article they, with reluctance, say, not a cask can be procured here at any rate.

The pressing demands of this town have called for every exertion in their power to raise moneys, notwithstanding the town is greatly in debt, not being able to furnish enough to pay the necessary current services. Therefore, to make it possible to comply with the aforesaid resolve, the Committee humbly hope the honourable Council will furnish them, by the bearer, (Captain Michael Hodge, one of their members,) with as much money as the present occasion calls for, which, by a moderate calculation, for two months' cruise only, with the fixing the vessels, will amount to five hundred pounds, lawful money, exclusive of the cost of gunpowder, (which is not to be had here,) and of which Captain Obrien thinks there ought to be five hundred pounds weight, besides one hundred and twenty pounds now on board. The Committee apprehend that the fifty men for each vessel, or any considerable number of them, cannot be found in this town, owing to a large number being in the Continental Army, and to several privateers out on cruises. Captain Obrien says he can make up the deficiency in the eastward harbour, if your Honours think it proper to let him depart hence without his full complement. As Captain Obrien must probably collect his men from thence, and his present officers, whom he approves of, may be most agreeable to such men, the Committee hope the honourable Council will excuse them from recommending said officers, for this reason only, that they are entire strangers to them.

Per order of the Committee:

TRISTRAM DALTON, Chairman pro tempore.

To the Honourable the Council of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay.

Newburyport, March 18, 1776.

Immediately after the date of the before-mentioned letter, Captain Hodge, who was the bearer of it, set out to deliver it, but met with some of the Council, who informed him that the honourable Board were adjourned; upon which he returned home. The Committee, after some delay, procured an agent to supply Captain Obrien, and he is now nearly fitted for sea. They would still beg your Honours' direction whether Captain Obrien should depart hence without his full complement of men, which it does not appear probable he can procure in this place.

Per order of the Committee:

JONATHAN JACKSON.

To the Honourable Council of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay.

Proceedings of a Court of Inquiry, held at HAMPTON, MARCH 24, 1776, by order of Major JAMES HENDRICKS, Commandant, to inquire into the conduct of Lieutenant DANIEL TRIGG, respecting his behaviour on the 22d instant, when the enemy set on fire Captain EARL's Sloop.

Members present: Captain West, President; Captain Towles, Lieutenant J. Peyton, Lieutenant Tyler, Lieutenant Arrill, Lieutenant V. Peyton, Lieutenant Tutt, Lieutenant Gummins, Lieutenant Cooper, Ensign Tibbs, Ensign Linn, Ensign Holliday.

The Court having examined a number of creditable witnesses, on oath, who were present during the whole time the enemy were engaged in destroying the above sloop, and having an opportunity of observing Lieutenant Trigg's conduct throughout the whole of that affair, are of opinion that Mr. Trigg behaved with spirit, coolness, and as a good officer ought.

CHARLES WEST, President.

JAMES HENDRICKS.

COLONEL BEALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Bladensburg, March 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received yours of the 19th instant, with the commissions for the Majors and other officers in the Twenty-Fifth Battalion, requesting me to recommend proper persons as a Second Lieutenant and Ensign in Captain Warring's Company, and an Ensign in Captain Richardson's Company.

As to the first, Mr. Baruch Duckett was commissioned by the Convention, and has acted as Ensign in that company. I am, therefore, at a loss about recommending a second person, till I know whether you intend to remove, or leave him out of that company.

Mr. Joseph Carlton, who has acted as First Sergeant to that company ever since it was formed, and is very capable of acting in either of those offices, would be very agreeable both to the officers and men of that company. I am not yet well enough acquainted with Captain Richardson's Company to fix on any particular person in that; but will, in a few days, inform myself, and send up his name.

Enclosed you have some accounts for wood and candles furnished the guard at this place, as also for the hire of an express to Annapolis to acquaint you with the arrival of the powder. I have received your order for the delivery of ten barrels to the gentlemen in Virginia, which will be delivered this day; and I sincerely wish there may be a speedy distribution of the remainder.

The Militia in this neighbourhood have attended on guard pretty well, as yet; but I find they begin to grumble much since the delivery of twenty-two barrels to the wagons for Annapolis. I have got it all in one house, and keep only a sergeant and twelve men as a guard over it, in order to make the duty easier to the people and cheaper to the Province.

At the time of calling my Battalion together, by your order, I furnished one company with powder, lead, and flints, (in proportion to the arms they had fit for service,) out of the ammunition purchased at Bladensburg; and have given orders to the Captains of the distant companies to receive thirty pounds of powder, lead and flints in proportion, that they may have it ready, on any sudden alarm, to furnish such of their men as may have arms fit for use. As no one, but those who have experienced it, can tell the time it takes to furnish a company, on any sudden emergency, I think (if we have a sufficient stock of ammunition) it would be highly necessary, in our present situation, to furnish every Captain of a Militia Company in the Province in the same manner. However, I shall submit this to your determination, and give no further orders without your approbation therein.

Pray send me the money for the enclosed accounts, and likewise some money for the further support of the guard, or let me know in what manner those expenses are to be paid; otherwise, I am afraid I shall not be able to keep up a guard much longer.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOSHUA BEALL.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CHARLES COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 79.]

Annapolis, March 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We received a letter yesterday from Mr. Mackall, one of the Committee of Observation for Calvert County, advising us that they had not been supplied with powder and lead from your County, agreeable to an order of the Council, which was made and transmitted to you the 23d of January. Delay, upon such occasions, may be attended with dangerous consequences; and it will be impossible for us to direct the military operations with any probability of success, unless our requisitions are complied with. Calvert is greatly exposed, and ought not to be without a proper supply of ammunition. You may be assured it is our wish to provide equally for the defence of every part of the Province, and that we will not reduce your stock below your proportion. It appears, by a report of the Committees appointed by the last Convention to inquire into the state of the arms and ammunition, that there were twelve hundred and five and a half pounds of powder in your County; and since then there have been but two hundred and fifty sent to St. Mary's; so that you have now nine hundred and fifty-five and a half pounds remaining. We desire you will, therefore, immediately despatch the barrel of powder and lead ordered to Cakeert. When a further distribution is made, we will supply you with your full share.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Charles County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO FREDERICK COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 80.]

Annapolis, March 24, 1776.

SIR: We received your letter of the 11th instant, advising us what price sulphur bears in your County. We do not think ourselves authorized to exceed the price ascertained by the last Convention, which was six pence per pound; and, therefore, have to inform you we cannot advise the purchase of it at eight pence per pound.

We are, &c.

To John Hanson, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of the Middle District of Frederick County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DOCTORS HOWARD AND COALE.

[No. 81.]

Annapolis, March 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We hope to have a powder-mill erected early this spring; and as we must depend on our works for a supply of saltpetre, are anxious to know how much we have already in the Province, and what it may reasonably be presumed we may expect to be provided with by the middle or last of April; and, therefore, request you will immediately inform us of the quantity of crude nitre you have made, and what you can supply per week. We have great dependance on your works, from your abilities and assiduity, and the sums of money furnished you by the former Council of Safety to carry it on extensively.

We are, &c.

To Doctors Ephraim Howard and Samuel Coale, Elkridge.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COMMITTEES OF OBSERVATION.

[No. 82.]

Annapolis, March 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The great difficulty we find in providing blankets for the regular forces raised for the defence of this Province, obliges us to apply to the Committees of Observation for the several Counties, earnestly requesting that they would use their endeavours to procure from the housekeepers in their respective Counties all the blankets or rugs that they can, with any convenience, spare; for which the Council will pay such price as the Committees shall agree, as well as any expense that may arise in collecting them together; and when you have procured any quantity, you will send them to Annapolis, to Colonel Smallwood, or, in his absence, to the commanding officer on the station, who will receive the same, and give orders on the Council for the payment thereof. We hope that the friends to our cause in your County will contribute everything in their power to the comfortable subsistence of the soldiery in this respect. It will be an act of great humanity, and render an essential service to the publick.

We are, &c.

To the Committees of Observation of the several Counties, respectively.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO KENT COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 83.]

Annapolis, March 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On the receipt of your letter of the 13th instant, per Mr. Houston, we took the subject-matter thereof into our consideration, and resolved to send Houston to Philadelphia, with orders for all the powder and arms imported in the Wild-Duck, Captain Tibbet, to be sent to Chester, to your care, for the use of the Eastern-Shore.

We are much pleased with the commendable spirit which the Militia of your County manifested on the late alarm; but are concerned to hear they are so ill provided with arms.

The Council think it unnecessary to order the Minute

Companies up from Virginia, as they will soon return from their station. We are much obliged to you for the assistance you have given Captain Veazey, in accommodating his company, and wish you to continue your good offices to him. We expected our Commissary would have furnished Captain Veazey's Company with their rations of provisions before the date of your letter. Since then he has assured us he would immediately send a sufficient quantity of provisions to Chester for the company.

As soon as the arms and powder which we have ordered by Mr. Houston from Philadelphia, to your care, arrive at Chester, we request you would send immediately to us an account of the number of arms, that we may order a proper distribution to be made among the troops stationed on the Eastern-Shore.

Enclosed we transmit you our order, requesting you to send the powder therein mentioned to Queen Anne, Talbot, and Dorchester Counties; and also an order on the Treasurer of the Eastern-Shore for the payment of the carriage of the arms and powder from Philadelphia to Chester, as well as for the expense of sending the powder ordered to Queen Anne, Talbot, and Dorchester, and what arms we may also order to those Counties; though we desire you would not send the powder until we have given directions how the arms are to be distributed, that they may also be sent by the same conveyance.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Kent County.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER IN THE CONTINENTAL ARMY, DATED TROIS RIVIERES, MARCH 24, 1776.

My business at this post is to furnish horses, carriages, &c., for the passing army, and see them supplied with provisions; which business takes up almost my whole time. I have it also in my orders to call in the old commissions given to the officers of Militia in the seventeen Parishes in the District of Three Rivers, by the late Governour Carleton, and to have new officers elected. Some of them seem shy of receiving the post, being afraid either that the Ministerial Troops will drive us out of the Province, or that we, after carrying our point with Great Britain, will leave them to fall a sacrifice; but, in general, they seem to be fond of holding commissions under the Congress. In some Parishes there have been three or four candidates for the Captaincy; and I receive information that bribery and corruption is already beginning to creep into their elections. At some, the disputes run so high that I am obliged to interfere. At one, I was under the necessity of going twenty-seven miles to superintend the poll, and was obliged to give them a new election; with which they were satisfied. I have sent up about thirty names to the General, in order to get commissions under the right honourable the Continental Congress, which have been new elected, and expect soon to send more. I have been extremely sorry that our forces do not come forward faster. Of late, some have come up; but, upon the whole, I must say I think this department has been neglected.

I have troubled you with an account of all the fresh forces which have passed this post, exclusive of those who were at Montreal, who have been nearer the scene of action.—Officers are included in the account.

January 31.—Captain Seaban, from the Bay Government, (the first hero that came to our assistance,) twenty-five; Captain Smith, with nineteen.

February 9.—Lieutenants Munson and Pettibone, with part of two companies, twenty-five. 21.—Lieutenant Walker, seventeen; Captain Wetherly, thirty-three. 22.—Lieutenant Meacham, twelve. 24.—Captain Hinman, twenty-three; Captain Pierce, twenty-five; Uzziah Wright, a gentleman volunteer, eight. 26.—Lieutenant Sunderland, thirty-two; Sergeant Clark, twenty.

March 1.—Lieutenant Loomis, fifty eight; Lieutenant Talbot, with the first Pennsylvania Company, sixty; Lieutenant Deane, from the Bay Government, forty. 4.—Sergeant St. John, fifteen; Serg't Gideon Brenson, seven. 5.—Captain Goodridge, thirty-five; Lieutenant Frisby, thirty-one; Lieut. Walbridge, forty-nine. 6.—Captain Gideon Doud, forty-eight; Captain Wright, sixty-three. 10.—Lieutenant Hughes, from Philadelphia, sixty; Lieutenant Grant, from New-England, thirty; Major Safford, of Colonel Warner's Regiment, sixty; Capt. Grosvenor, forty-two. 12.—Captain Jenkins, from Philadelphia, (his company chiefly passed by before,) eight; Captain Cooley, from New-England, forty. 16.—Lieutenant Yard, (the first of the Jersey forces, with an escort with provisions,) thirty-four. 17.—Major Ray, of the Jersey Battalion, one hundred and seventy-nine. 20.—Captain Carlisle, twenty-nine; Lieutenant Grant, fourteen. 22.—Lieutenant Stone, thirty-four; Captain Wait, forty-seven; Lieutenant Stainer, eighty-one. Gone from Montreal garrison, three hundred; remained, after the defeat, six hundred; by recruiting among the Canadians, five hundred. Total, two thousand seven hundred and sixty-two.

General Wooster's baggage passed through here yesterday, and I expect to receive his Excellency at this garrison to-morrow. Passed by this post, also, Colonels Warner, Williams, Irvine, Maxwell, Wait, and Major Morris.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO LORD STIRLING.

Cambridge, March 24, 1776.

MY LORD: Since my last to you of the 19th instant, I had the pleasure to receive your favour of the 15th. It gives me vast satisfaction to find you are making such preparations as will prevent the enemy from making any lodgment there. The reinforcement gone to you from this camp will put you on so respectable a footing, that I have no doubt but you will be able to strengthen your works in such a manner that, even if General Howe should arrive before this Army, you will be able to prevent his taking post.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. V.

The fleet are now lying in Nantasket-Road. The wind has been these two days fair for them to sail, but they seem fixed. I really know not what they aim at. I have made such preparation for them, that I think it will be very difficult for them to regain the post at Boston, if they are so inclined. While they remain in sight, I must stay here to watch their motions with the Army under my command. When they move from hence, if nothing unforeseen happens, I shall make the best of my way to New-York, where I shall have great pleasure in taking your Lordship by the hand. You omitted sending the paper you refer to in your last: it will be a satisfaction to me to receive it in your next.

If this should reach you ere the departure of the powder from your place, you will do well to keep it with you.

I am, my Lord, &c.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Lord Stirling.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOSIAH QUINCY.

Cambridge, March 24, 1776.

SIR: I am favoured with your letter of the 21st instant. It came to hand this afternoon, and I thank you for the many kind and flattering expressions it contains. To obtain the applause of deserving men is a heartfelt satisfaction—to merit it is my highest wish. If my conduct, therefore, as an instrument in the late signal interposition of Providence, hath merited the approbation of this great country, I shall esteem it one of the most fortunate and happy events of my life. I acknowledge myself your debtor for the share you have bestowed on me of it. The continuance of the fleet in Nantasket-Road affords matter for speculation; it surpasses my comprehension, and awakens all my suspicions. I have taken every step in my power to guard against surprises; but the temper of your people seems to me to be apprehensive of no danger till it stares them in the face. I do not think there is cause to apprehend such marauding parties as you dread; if any stroke is aimed, it will be a capital one; for which reason I wish to be much upon my guard, and, therefore, have appointed guard-boats, look-outs, &c. There is one evil I dread, and that is, their spies. I could wish, therefore, that the most attentive watch was kept to prevent any intercourse with the ships and the main land for this purpose; and to prevent suspected persons (for I have no doubt but that trusty soldiers, sergeants, and even commissioned officers in disguise, will be sent out) from travelling about. I wish a dozen or more of honest, sensible, and diligent men, were employed to haunt the communication between Roxbury and the different landing-places nearest the shipping, in order to question, cross-question, &c., all such persons as are unknown, and cannot give an account of themselves in a straight and satisfactory line. If you could hire men for this purpose, whilst the shipping continue where they now are, I would pay the wages you agree upon, and thank you for the trouble, as I think it a matter of some importance to prevent them from obtaining intelligence of our situation. The earliest information should also be communicated of any movements which may be discovered, and whether any of the shipping are getting out as it were by stealth.

I am exceedingly sorry to hear of your indisposition, and heartily wish you a perfect restoration to health. I should be very happy to take you by the hand before I bid adieu to the Colony; but as my motions are regulated by those of the enemy, I cannot say when or where it can happen.

In sincerity and truth, I remain, dear sir, your most obedient and obliged servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Josiah Quincy, Braintree.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE ASSEMBLY.

Winter-Hill, March 24, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: I have an account presented me by Captain Tilton, agreeable to the direction of General Folsom, for payment of seventeen pounds twelve shillings and six pence. It consists of six articles: One bill is nine pounds ten shillings, for boarding Artillerymen sent from the Army to your assistance, and remained there three weeks without wages, and were carried there and brought back at my expense. The next is two pounds ten shillings and eleven pence, for Major Cilley's expenses; he was by the Committee of Safety appointed and detained as Muster-master for your troops, and I supposed you would make no difficulty in paying his expense. The next is one pound eleven shillings and one penny, for expense of Mr. Nathaniel McClintock, appointed my Aid-de-Camp while present, and remained as a volunteer with your forces, at the request of your commanding officer, when I was absent, and was very useful to him; and his bill, if paid, would not amount to the wages of a private soldier for the time he tarried. The next bill is for seventeen shillings and nine pence, expense of the Captain of the Riflemen sent there without my knowledge or consent, with a company to assist you if necessary. To crown the whole, is a bill of four shillings and six pence, expended in securing the Tories in your capital when the enemy appeared off your harbour, when I was at Head-Quarters, and knew nothing of the matter. This, gentlemen, is a state of the account handed me for payment, and which I am ready to pay, in case you think a single article ought to be paid by me.

Gentlemen, I am extremely sorry to find a person pretending so much patriotism as Mr. Folsom does, ever striving to give me pain and uneasiness, and this without the least provocation on my part. Every day do I hear of his insulting and abusive language, such as he well knows he dare not use if I were present. Every step he takes is pregnant with malice against me; and I am sorry to hear his malicious endeavours have but too great weight on some other minds; and by means of that I am daily censured in your cabinet; and for what, I know not. I now appeal to you all, and call upon you to give one instance where I have made money at the expense of my country, or where I have usurped a greater power than was at first delegated to me. What relations have I promoted, or what part of my family have I enriched? Which of my former friends have I promoted, or which of my former enemies have I persecuted with unrelenting fury? No, gentlemen, my motives are of a different kind; no private friendship or private quarrels shall take hold of my publick conduct. I call Heaven and earth to witness, that thus far, the good of my country has been my only aim. This I have endeavoured to evince by my conduct.

Consider, gentlemen, what sums of money I have already expended, and how many days I have hailed clad with new and threatening dangers to my life; how I have refrained from the seat of domestick happiness, and, confined by my country's cause at a distance, heard the fatal tidings of sickness and death in my own family, while I was contemplating my own dangers here. Can all this be, gentlemen, and yet I not be in earnest? And shall he who basks in the sunshine of malice, and sleeps securely in the bed of revenge, set my own friends, my fathers in political life, against me? Let gratitude, let pity, forbid it; and let the heavenly justice take hold on the wretch whose sordid soul could never harbour a thought but that of gratifying his own malicious dispositions, or bringing about his own promotion. I most earnestly pray that Heaven may judge between us, and reward him that is insincere with infamy and disgrace. I know, gentlemen, that some of you thought it a great stretch of power in me to select officers for a new regiment out of those you sent before. Let the enclosed paper witness the justice of the choice, and the confidence General Washington has placed in the Field-Officers of that regiment, by trusting them with the most important posts, (never before entrusted to Militia Regiments,) witness in favour of my judgment. Sure I am that those persons have not in private life been my intimate friends—nay, some of them my most inveterate foes; but I wish we could leave our private resentments in our closets when we are acting in publick capacities, and consider only the means of promoting our country's good.

Surely, by my having the choice of thirty-one sets of officers, who had been under my immediate inspection, I could have a much better opportunity of selecting eight good ones, than you who were not here, and could not know how they behaved. I made the choice, and the officers have done honour to themselves and the Province, and differ exceedingly from some of the Captains sent here before, who could neither sign a return nor give a receipt for the money they received at Head-Quarters, but by making their marks. Now, let me ask what power I have gained to myself by this procedure, or what could I have in view but the credit of the Province and the good of the service. Have I added to my own interest, or gratified myself by assuming a power and laying a foundation to destroy the liberties of my countrymen? I well know that Mr. Folsom, and some others, have censured my conduct at Portsmouth, for no other reason but because they were not at the head of affairs themselves. I well know that the fatigues I went through, and the large sum I expended, were not matters of sufficient inducements in themselves to draw me into the measures of which these malicious persons complain. I must observe that, when they feel motives similar to those which actuated me at the time, malice will cease to reign in their bosoms, and envy learn to be silent.

I am sorry to hear, gentlemen, that some gentlemen have moved in your House for my being reimbursed the expense I was at in coming to assist your capital. I find myself obliged thus publickly to assure you that this was done without my knowledge and consent, and to assert that I never hinted to any person that I expected a thing of the sort. I sensibly feel my obligation to those gentlemen who, actuated by motives of justice and humanity, made the motion without my knowledge or consent; but, at the same time, must beg leave to assure them that the loss of interest and the fatigues of war are what I expect nothing in return for, except seeing my country freed from slavery, and those worthy gentlemen and their posterity enjoying the sweets of peace and freedom.

Gentlemen, I beg pardon for the length of this letter, and that you will excuse any expression that may proceed from a mind conscious of having been basely injured; and believe me to be, gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

To the Honourable the General Assembly.

P. S. I must again entreat you to forward the commissions for this regiment.

J. S.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, DATED ON BOARD HIS MAJESTY'S SHIP CHATHAM, MARCH 24, 1776.

The retreat of the Troops from this garrison [Boston] cannot fail to be differently represented in England; for which reason I have found time from our great hurry to give you some account of it. In the first place, the General's not receiving any letters or despatches from Government since the middle of October, could not fail of making everybody very uneasy; it looked as if we were left destitute to get out of a bad scrape as we liked best. Our provisions falling short, added to our discontent. The fleet afforded us no relief; little indeed was in their power—their own ill equipment was enough to make them as dissatisfied as ourselves. The Provincials, who knew exactly the state of our garrison, harassed us from their batteries, with an intention of making our people more dissatisfied, in hopes of desertions. Finding no probability of supply, and dreading the consequence of further delay, it was thought prudent to retire to the ships, and to save what we could. Our not being burdened with provisions, permitted us to save some stores and ammunition, the light field-pieces, and such things as are most convenient of carriage. The rest, I am sorry to say, we were obliged to leave behind; such of the guns as, by dismounting, we could throw into the sea, were done so; the carriages were disabled, and every precaution taken that our circumstances would permit, for our retreat was by agreement. The people of the town who were friends to Government, took care of nothing but their merchandise, and found means to employ the men belonging to the transports in embarking their goods; by which means several of the vessels were entirely filled with private property instead of the King's stores. By some unavoidable accident, the medicines, surgeons' chests, instruments, and necessities, were left in the Hospital. The confusion unavoidable on such a disaster, will make you conceive how much must be forgot where every man had a private concern. The necessary care and distress of the women, children, sick, and wounded, required every assistance that could be given. It was not like breaking up a camp, where every man knows his duty ; it was like departing your country, with your wives, your servants, your household furniture, and all your encumbrances. The officers, who felt the disgrace of their retreat, did their utmost to keep up appearances. The men, who thought they were changing for the better, strove to take the advantage of the present times, and were kept from plunder and drink with difficulty. In bad plight we go to Halifax. What supply we are to expect there I do not know ; our expectations are not very sanguine. The neglect shown us bears hard on us all ; the soldiers think themselves betrayed, the officers all blame the Admiralty, and your friend, Lord S——, is universally execrated. The sea officers complained they were hurried out of England in a most shameful condition, not half manned, and ill provided. Fleet and Army complain of each other, and both of the people at home. If we fare as ill at Halifax as we have done here lately, I fear we shall have great desertion, as the opportunity will be more convenient.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read April 2, 1776.—Referred to Mr. Johnson, Mr. Jay, Mr. Wilson.]
Cambridge, March 24, 1776.

SIR: When I had the honour to address you the 19th instant, upon the evacuation of the town of Boston by the Ministerial Army, I fully expected, as their retreat and embarkation were hurried and precipitate, that before now they would have departed the harbour, and been far on their passage to the place of destination ; but, to my surprise and disappointment, the fleet is still in Nantasket-Road. The purpose inducing their stay is altogether unknown ; nor can I suggest any satisfactory reason for it. On Wednesday night last, before the whole of the fleet fell down to Nantasket, they demolished the Castle, and houses belonging to it, by burning them down, and the several fortifications. They left a great number of the cannon, but have rendered all of them, except a very few, entirely useless, by breaking off the trunnions, and those they spiked up, but may be made serviceable again. Some are already done.

There are several vessels in the docks, which were taken by the enemy, some with, and others without, cargoes, which different persons claim as their property and right. Are they to be restored to the former owners, on making proof of their title, or to belong to the Continent, as captures made from the enemy ? I wish Congress would direct a mode of proceeding against them, and establish a rule for decision. They appear to me to be highly necessary. In like manner, some of the cannon which are in Boston are said to have come from the Castle. Supposing them, with those remaining at the Castle, to have been purchased by, and provided originally at the expense of this Province, are they now to be considered as belonging to it, or to the publick ? I beg leave to refer the matter to the opinion of Congress, and pray their direction how I am to conduct respecting them.

It having been suggested to me that there was considerable property, &c., belonging to persons who had, from the first of the present unhappy contest, manifested an unfriendly and inveterate disposition, in the town of Boston, I thought it prudent to write to the honourable General Court upon the subject, that it might be inquired after and secured ; a copy of the letter I herewith send you, and submit it to Congress, through you, whether they will not determine how it is to be disposed of, and as to the appropriation of the money arising from the sale of the same.

As soon as the town was abandoned by the enemy, I judged it advisable to secure the several Heights, lest the enemy should attempt to return ; and for this purpose have caused a large and strong work to be thrown up on Fort-Hill, a post of great importance, as it commands the whole harbour, and, when fortified, if properly supported, will greatly annoy any fleet the enemy may send against the town, and render the landing of their troops exceedingly difficult, if not impracticable. This work is almost done, and in a little time will be complete. And that the communication between the town and country may be free and open, I have ordered all the lines upon the Neck to be immediately destroyed, and the other works on the sides of the town facing the country, that the inhabitants from the latter may not be impeded, and afforded an easy entrance in case the enemy should gain possession at any future time. These matters I conceived to be within the line of my duty ; of which I advised the General Court, and recommended to their attention such other measures as they might think necessary for securing the town against the hostile designs of the enemy.

I have just got an inventory of stores and property belonging to the Crown, which the enemy left in Boston, at the Castle, and at Bunker Hill, which I have the honour to transmit you ; and shall give strict orders that a careful attention be had to any more that may be found. I shall take such precautions respecting them that they may be secure, and turn to the publick advantage as much as possible, or as circumstances will admit of.

A Mr. Bulfinch, from Boston, who acted as clerk to Mr. —, having put into my hands a list of rations drawn the Saturday before the troops evacuated the town, I have enclosed it for your inspection. He says neither the Staff Officers or women are included in the list ; from which it appears that their number was greater than we had an idea of.

Major-General Ward and Brigadier-General Frye are desirous of leaving the service, and for that purpose have requested me to lay the matter before Congress, that they may be allowed to resign their commissions. The papers containing their applications you will herewith receive ; they will give you full and a more particular information upon the subject, and therefore shall take the liberty of referring you to them.

I would mention to Congress that the Commissary of Artillery Stores has informed me, that whatever powder has been sent to this camp has always come without any bill ascertaining the number of casks or quantity. This, it is probable, has proceeded from forgetfulness or inattention in the persons appointed to send it, or to the negligence of those who brought it, though they have declared otherwise, and that they never had any. As it may prevent in some measure embezzlements, (though I do not suspect any to have been made,) and the Commissary will know what and how much to receive, and be enabled to discover mistakes, if any should happen, I shall be glad if you will direct a bill of parcels to be always sent in future.

There have been so many accounts from England, all agreeing that Commissioners are coming to America, to propose terms for an accommodation, (as they say,) that I am inclined to think the time of their arrival not very far off. If they come to Boston, which probably will be the case, (if they come to America at all,) I shall be under such embarrassment respecting the manner of receiving them, and the mode of treatment that ought to be used, I therefore pray that Congress will give me directions, and point out the line of conduct to be pursued. Whether they are to be considered as Ambassadors, and to have a pass, or permit, for repairing through the country to Philadelphia, or to any other place, or whether they are to be restrained in any, and what manner, I shall anxiously wait their orders ; and whatever they are, comply with them literally.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable the President of Congress.

Cambridge, March 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Ere now I was in hopes of congratulating you on the departure of the Ministerial Troops, not only from your capital, but country. That they still remain in the harbour, after having been five days embarked, affords matter for speculation, and, collected as their force is now, of apprehension. This circumstance, the security of Boston by a work on Fort-Hill, and demolition of the lines on the Neck, and preservation of the stores for Continental use belonging to the King, by a proper search after them, rendered it indispensably necessary for me to throw more troops into the town immediately, (it coming within the line of my duty ;) but notwithstanding all the precaution which I have endeavoured to use, to restrain and limit the intercourse between the town and country and Army for a few days, I greatly fear that the small-pox will be communicated to both.

So soon as the fleets sail, my attention must be turned to another quarter, and most of the Continental Regiments, now here, marched off. It may be necessary, therefore, for you, gentlemen, to consider the state of your harbour, and think of such works as shall be found necessary for the defence of it, and the town, in case another armed force, (which I by no means expect,) should be sent hither. I shall leave three or four regiments, as circumstances may require, for the security of the stores, and throwing up such works as shall be deemed necessary for the purposes above-mentioned, and shall direct the officer commanding them to receive such instructions, in respect to the latter, as you may think proper to give.

It has been suggested to me that in the town of Boston, &c., there is a good deal of property belonging to Refugees, and such other inimical persons, as, from the first of the present dispute, have manifested the most unfriendly disposition to the American cause, and that part of this property is in such kind of effects as can be easily transported, concealed, or changed; I submit to you, therefore, gentlemen, the expediency of having an inquiry made into this matter before it is too late for redress, leaving the decision thereupon (after the quantum or value is ascertained, and held in a state of durance) to the consideration of a future day. I have ordered that no violence be offered by the soldiery, either to the property or persons of those people; wishing that the matter may be taken into consideration by your honourable body, and in such a way as you shall judge most advisable.

The enclosed came to me a few days ago, and I beg leave to recommend the purport of it to the consideration of the Court. I shall take the liberty to add, as my opinion, that the Congress expect nothing else than that the Field-Officers of the Massachusetts Regiments should receive the same pay as those of the other Colonies have done, and that they expected, at the time the pay was fixed, that fifteen pounds to a Colonel, twelve pounds to a Lieutenant-Colonel, and ten pounds to a Major, was the actual establishment of this Government. I could wish, therefore, they were allowed it, to remove the jealousies and uneasinesses which have arisen.

I am, with great respect and esteem, gentlemen, &c.,
 GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable General Court. *

* The Committee of both Houses, appointed to take into consideration a Letter from his Excellency General Washington, dated the 21st of March instant, as also the Report of a Committee who, by order of Court, had waited on his Excellency, to confer on the subject-matter of the removal of the Continental Troops now in this Colony, having attended to the business assigned them, report as followeth:

As our enemies are now withdrawn from the Town of Boston, and it appearing to your Committee that it is a matter of the utmost importance to secure said Town against the approaches of large ships-of-war in future, that a Committee of both Houses be appointed as soon as possible to lay before this Court a sketch of the Harbour of Boston, and examine and report particularly the number of passages there are for ships into the same, and what distance they are from the capital; what is the depth of water in, and the width of the channel at each passage; what is the height of the land adjoining, and the distance therefrom to the opposite side of the channel; whether it is necessary to the best good of this Colony, and its capital, that all the passages to the Town of Boston should be continued open; what are the advantages, and what the disadvantages, that will result from stopping either of the passages thereto; which passage, if any, ought to be stopped; where can fortifications be erected most easily to resist the enemy in their attempt to enter the harbour aforesaid; whether such posts are on the main, or on an island or islands; and if on an island, whether a communication can be kept up between it and the main in case of a siege; whether those posts are commanded by any neighbouring hills; and if by any, by what hills; and whether, at all times, a garrison at such posts can be supplied with water.

And whereas this Colony is greatly weakened by the destruction of our fortifications and warlike stores by our enemies, and will be more so on the removal of the Continental Army, as a large proportion of the men and arms therein are from this Government:

Your Committee are therefore of opinion that an application be immediately made to his Excellency General Washington, and request that he would further consider the exposed, and, at present, the defenceless state of this Colony, and, if consistent with the general interest, he would continue here six Regiments of the Continental Troops for the defence of this Government, instead of the three or four Regiments his Excellency hath informed this Court he intends to leave.

W. SEVER, per order.

In Council, MARCH 25, 1776: Read and accepted; and Ordered, That B. Lincoln and Joseph Palmer, Esquires, with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee for the purposes mentioned in the foregoing Report.

Sent down for concurrence.

PEREZ MORTON, Deputy Secretary.

Camp at Roxbury, March 22, 1776.
SIR: I am now to inform your Excellency that I am in such an ill state of health, that I do not think myself capable of doing the duty which ought to be done by me through the ensuing campaign, in the station I am now in. And to eat the Continental bread, and not do the duty, is what I am much averse to. Therefore, I must beg leave to resign my command, and to withdraw from the Army after the expiration of this month.
I am your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,
ARTEMAS WARD.
To His Excellency General Washington.

Camp in Cambridge, March 18, 1776.
SIR: The Ministerial Troops having (yesterday) taken their departure from Boston, will, I presume, occasion the removal of the Continental Army to some distant part of the Continent. And as I find myself in such an infirm state of health as renders me unable to bear the fatigue of such march as that manœuvre will require, I cannot think it laudable to continue in the Army and pay of the Continent, without being able to merit the pay by my service; therefore take leave to desire I may resign the command in the Army I have been honoured with. And as I am at present unable to travel, and being one hundred and forty miles from my family, I take leave, also, to request that my resignation may take place the 11th day of April next.
I am your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,
JOSEPH FRYE.
To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL ORDERS.
Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 20, 1776.
(Parole, Dorchester.) (Countersign, Salem.)
Whitcomb's, Phinney's, and Hutchinson's Regiments, are to march into Boston this day, and remain there until further orders. They are to guard the town and publick stores there, and do all such fatigue, and other duties, as the General commanding there thinks proper to order. Every possible precaution will be taken to destroy the infection of the small-pox.

The troops now in Boston are to march out, and join their respective regiments, upon being relieved by the regiments that are to march in.
The posts on Bunker's Hill, Breed's Hill, and Charlestown-Ferry, are to be garrisoned by Colonel Waldron's Regiment, who is to take especial care that the abattis, picketing, &c., are preserved entire.
The Quartermaster-General is to see that fire-wood or coal is immediately laid in for the supply of those posts.
The Commissary-General has orders immediately to lay in a proper supply of provisions for the garrisons of Boston, Bunker's Hill, and Dorchester Heights.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 21, 1776.
(Parole, New-York.) (Countersign, Halifax.)
Learned's and Cary's Regiments are to march this afternoon, and relieve the troops upon Dorchester-Heights, and those regiments are to remain in garrison until further orders. The Deputy Quartermaster-General will provide carriages from Roxbury, and provisions are ordered by the Commissary-General to be stored upon the Heights.
The details for the Roxbury and Cambridge Departments, will be delivered to the Majors of Brigade with this day's orders.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 22, 1776.
(Parole, Grafton.) (Countersign, . . . . .)
The Colonel of Artillery, Quartermaster-General, Commissary-General, and Commissary of Ordnance Stores, to make out exact Returns of all Military Stores, Provisions, &c., &c., now in Boston, Cambridge, Roxbury, Dorchester-Heights, and Forts, &c., adjacent. This must be done in the correctest manner, and when finished and signed, delivered by the proper officer of each Department to the Commander-in-Chief.
The Provost-Marshal is forthwith to remove with his prisoners to Boston. The prisoners of war and John Stevens, are, by his Excellency's order, to be put into Boston Jail.
The Majors of Brigade to order the Adjutants to be punctual in delivering their Weekly Returns' at orderly time to-morrow.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 23, 1776.
(Parole, Cape-Fear.) (Countersign, Moore.)
Colonel James Read's, Nixon's, Poor's, Prescott's, Arnold's, and Baldwin's Regiments, are the first to march under Brigadier-General Sullivan. They are to be ready at a moment's warning. The General flatters himself that the commanding officer of each of these and the other corps will exert themselves (as they are going to join the troops of other Colonies) in sprucing up their men, that they may look as soldier-like and reputable as possible. This, and a proper attention to the good and orderly behaviour of the men, and the proper care of their arms, ammunition, and accoutrements, are qualifications essentially necessary to every commanding officer; therefore, for their own honour and the honour of the New-England Colonies, it is hoped they will diligently exert themselves at this time.
Two Companies of Artillery, with such light brass ordnance and stores as the commanding officer of the Artillery shall direct, are to march with General Sullivan.
Colonel Gridley is to apply to General Ward for such men as are necessary for the demolition of the lines on Boston Neck, who is to see the work executed as fast as possible; the pickets and other useful materials to be preserved and placed, so as to be ready when called for, under the care of sentries. Such parts of these works as may be of service for our defence are to be preserved.
Colonel Knox will immediately lay out a battery upon Charlestown Point, to be executed under the direction of Lieutenant-Colonel Mason, of the Artillery. A Field-Officer, with all the men off duty of Colonel Robinson's Regiment, to march at sunrise, to-morrow morning, to Charlestown Point, as a working party.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, March 24, 1776.

(Parole, Philadelphia.)

(Countersign, Lynch.)

The enemy still continuing in the harbour without any apparent cause for it, after winds and weather have favoured their sailing, leaves abundant reason to suspect that they may have some design of aiming a blow at us before they depart. The General, therefore, in the strongest terms imaginable, recommends to the commanding officer of every corps to prevent his men that are off duty from straggling, but to have them ready to turn out at a moment's warning, with their arms and ammunition in good order. For this purpose, a strict attention is to be paid to roll-calling, and all delinquents severely punished.

The General Officers, in their several departments, are to take care that proper alarm-posts are assigned every corps, that no confusion or disorder may ensue in case we should be called out. In a particular manner, Generals Putnam and Sullivan are to attend to those of the centre and left division. As the enemy's evacuation of Boston will render a new disposition proper, they are to meet and consult on this point without delay. General Greene will dispose of the Regiments in Boston to the best advantage.

The floating batteries to be manned (if they have guns on board) and sent down to Charlestown Point, for the purpose of defence, in case of need.

The guard-boats are to patrol constantly, and be very attentive to every movement of the enemy; and good look-outs kept at and from the posts from Chelsea, round Squantum, and the earliest information given of a hostile appearance.

All the flat-bottom and whale-boats, not in immediate and necessary use, are to be brought from Boston and Charlestown, where they are beating against the wharves, and secured in Cambridge River. Mr. Sylvanus Drew is appointed to take charge of the boats, and to make a return thereof to the Commander-in-Chief. Such hands as he shall find necessary to get these boats together, General Putnam will order him.

The publick horses and some other articles will be sold on the Common in Cambridge to-morrow, at eleven o'clock.

ORDERS AND INSTRUCTIONS FOR COLONEL MIFFLIN, QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL OF THE ARMY OF THE UNITED COLONIES.

As the motions of the enemy, and the operations of the ensuing campaign, render it indispensably necessary that a very large body of troops should be immediately assembled at or near New-York, you will immediately proceed to Norwich, in Connecticut, where you will, in concert with the Brigadiers-General Heath and Sullivan, regulate the embarkation of the Brigades under their command, and settle all such matters with the Commissary-General of Provisions, and Contractors for the Transports, as may be further necessary for expediting the march of the rest of the Army, with the stores, artillery, camp equipage, &c.

This being done, you will proceed without delay to New-York, where your first care will be to provide barracks for the troops; firing, forage, and quarters, for the General Officers; fix upon a proper house or houses for a General Hospital; stabling for the Continental draught-horses, &c., &c. Intrenching tools must also be immediately provided, with a sufficient quantity of joist and plank for platforms, and timber for gun-carriages; in short, every necessary article for the publick service, and which your experience the last campaign convinces you will be wanted for that now approaching.

The variety of the business of your department renders it next to impossible to point out particularly every duty of your office; therefore a latitude is given you in these orders and instructions, which, together with the directions and advice of the commanding General at New-York, must be the rule for the future regulation of your conduct; and I shall at present only recommend that the same integrity, zeal, diligence, and activity, which has hitherto animated your past services, may govern that which is to come.

Given at Head-Quarters in Cambridge, this 24th day of March, 1776.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Thomas Mifflin, Quartermaster-General.

TO THE INHABITANTS OF VIRGINIA.

MY COUNTRYMEN: The state of our publick affairs appears to be at present in a more critical situation than it has been at any time since the commencement of the quarrel, which has so much agitated the minds of the people, both in Great Britain and America. The principles of a dispute, so long contested before the whole world, I need not recite to you. You have seen it in its birth, and your own deliberations and exertions have conducted it to its present point. The single question that has for many years disturbed the publick tranquillity is well known on this side of the Atlantick to be, whether the Parliament of England has a right to bind us by their laws in all cases whatsoever, or in no case at all, without our own consent—for reason and good policy can discern no medium. And, indeed, no medium has been sought on either side; for the former is maintained in its utmost extent in Britain; the latter with no less firmness in America. And after many resolves and petitions, and after a long suspension of trade, and the milder methods of obtaining redress, you have at last been constrained to take up arms in your own defence. And I pray God that the contest may be decided by arms alone; for I fear lest we should be led into a snare, where the bait may be disposed with so much craft that many, misled by generosity of disposition, and others wearied with uncertainty and delay, or seduced by motives of interest, may unwarily be decoyed by it, without observing their danger. The snare to which I refer is the negotiation which the British Ministry propose to enter into with the States of America, in the beginning of the next campaign. Although we have been declared Rebels by both Houses of Parliament as well as by the King, to preserve a consistency with their former measures; and although they have menaced us with all the power they are able to command, to suppress this pretended rebellion; yet we receive the most authentick intelligence that they design to accompany their armaments with Commissioners to several of the Colonies, to negotiate terms of submission to Great Britain; a measure, it is evident, they would never have adopted, if they had not entertained some doubts of the success of the sanguinary projects in which they had before embarked; and if their long acquaintance with the policy of courts, and finesse of negotiations, had not taught them that success, if success be attainable, is most likely to be accomplished by this means. And if our attachment to Britain; if the prospect of peace (which seems to be doubly flattering, after distractions so great and of so long duration) do not blind us, and hurry us into the measure before we have anticipated maturely all its consequences, we may easily foresee that we shall be exposed to greater danger by negotiation than by arms. It is well known to what an excessive height bribery and corruption have been carried in England: as much of the publick treasure is prostituted to this iniquitous purpose as might redeem the nation in a few years from that enormous debt, under the load of which every nerve of the body politic begins to crack. And can we suppose that the treasure of England will be less profusely applied to buy their favourite measure into effect, from the men who lead the Councils of the Colonies, than it has been to purchase a majority in both Houses of Parliament?

They to whom we have hitherto delegated the task of steering the State through the present troubles, merit every acknowledgment we are capable of making to them, for the wisdom and integrity of their conduct; but they must have successors. Good policy, in a free State, requires that great power should not be successively intrusted in the same hands too often. The innocence of the cottage is frequently corrupted when it is produced into the publick scenes of honour and ambition. There is a situation in life in which a man may act with great and deserved applause; but we reason wrong if we therefore conclude that there are no temptations capable of corrupting his virtue. We may repent our credulity if we unsuspiciously resign too far to his honesty, without using any precautions against the frailty of human nature. I believe modern virtue is in no country carried to so great a height as it is in America. I have as high a veneration as a wise man ought to have for the Conventions of the different Colonies, and for the Continental Congress. But shall we be in no danger by acting with an incautious resignation, as if every man in these numerous assemblies, like Curius, could reject the costly and royal bribes of the Samnites with a virtuous disdain? If they are to be bought; if they have not attained a perfection almost beyond the condition of human nature, they may make their own terms. No price will be denied that can be raised out of the future revenues of America.

Our danger is the greater, because all the parts of their demands are so inseparably linked together, that the minutest concession involves in it and draws after it all the train of evils, and innumerable others, against which we have complained and fought so long. Or if the voice of one or two Colonies should be bought from among the rest, it may throw us into endless distractions, and prolong and increase the horrors of the war, by nursing enemies in our own bosom, more formidable than those we encounter from abroad.

Besides, what are we to expect from a negotiation? The single question in dispute is, whether we are subject to the British legislation, consisting of King and Parliament, or to the Legislatures of America, consisting of the King's Representative, and the Parliaments or Assemblies of the different Colonies. If the English House of Representatives mean to relinquish their pretended rights, what is easier than to open the way to peace and harmony, in which we can meet them with confidence, by passing a single bill declaratory of our privileges? Such a bill they will make no difficulty to pass, if they mean to meet us upon sincere and equitable principles. If they make their approaches under any other pretext, they must be totally futile, and, according to the common policy of European Courts, only meant to deceive.

Are we likely to be any nearer an accommodation after they have repealed three of their obnoxious acts? The rest remain in force; and the principle, the iniquitous principle on which they are all founded, is still supposed to be true, and is kept up like a sluice, ready to pour in an inundation of oppressions whenever it shall be admitted on our side the water. Does it not kindle every honest man's indignation to see the whole Continent insulted in the refusal of these acts, as much as or more than in their creation? I can scarcely suppress the expressions of the warmest resentment when I conceive them approaching my country with the falsest proposals of treaty, and at the same time insulting, with the utmost indignity, our supposed credulity or ignorance.

They have repealed the Boston Port Bill, it is said, and no doubt they will make a mighty merit of conceding so far for the sake of peace. A meritorious concession, indeed! to open the ports of a town to their half-starved soldiers, after they have expelled its native inhabitants, burnt its houses and stores, pillaged its wealth, blocked up the only passage by which it can manage its trade with the country, and rendered it totally impossible to reap any benefit from the repeal. In whose emolument does all this parade of condescension issue? Not in that of the Colony; still less in that of the just proprietors of the town. It is, then, I presume, for the use and behoof of their officers and soldiers—a company of miserable wretches, in the constant terror of their lives, who neither know how nor have time nor money to make use of the privilege, unless it be to import some potatoes and porter, to keep in their souls and drown the sense of their misery. That, I suppose, the humanity of their masters would not have denied them, if the act had stood in the same predicament that it was. About half as much, upon a just computation, may be placed to the account of their merit, for the repeal of the Fishery Bill. I will venture to assert, and I dare almost engage to prove it, that they have had no design, for nine months past, to prevent the present inhabitants of Boston from devouring all the fish which they had time and courage to take. It would have been very cruel, because they were in a pet with New-England, to have made no distinction in their wrath, but have scourged their own children along with their servants, and set them down to a dry morsel of potato without any sauce. So that the sum total of Parliament merit may be pretty fairly expressed in the style of the algebraist thus: The repeal of 1 Bill for the administration of Justice + 1 Port Bill + 1 Fishery Bill = 0 — 3: that is, three full Bills less than nothing; a worthy bottom on which to open a negotiation. And yet, what concessions do they expect on this account from us? They have the insolence to demand an acknowledgment of the right to alter, cut up, new-model, and annul our charters, whenever a whimsical Minister takes it in head that he is not complaisantly treated, because we refuse to choke ourselves with tea, or to glut the avarice of half a million of swag-bellied pensioners out of our private purse, and to be bound by their laws in all cases whatsoever. Since they offer terms of accommodation on one side, I think we have a right to state our demands on the opposite column. But this I shall reserve for another paper.

A PLANTER.

March 25, 1776.

CHARLES CARROLL TO DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER.

Mount Clare, March 25, 1776.

MY DEAR MAJOR: I was so much out of order that I was obliged to leave Annapolis earlier in the morning than I intended, that I might not hurry myself too much in my ride home. Unfortunately I got wet before I reached the Mount, and fear, from the pains I have in my hands and knees, and other appearances, that I shall have a smart fit of the gout before I again get to rights; however, shall be able to judge in two or three days. If I should escape, I am so entirely unhinged that I do not think I can venture to Annapolis before Monday next. I hope Mr. Rumsey will be down, that Mr. Smyth may not be detained longer than is convenient to him. I desired J. T. to request the Council to let me have their opinion about the tender now fitting out, and I would manage that business while up here. I find, by what I yesterday heard, that many in town think she is so dull a sailer that she will be of no use. Let me also know of any directions to be given about sending down hats, cartridge-boxes, &c.

I find we must look for another Second Lieutenant for our Annapolis Artillery Company, as General Lee has taken Mr. Massenbaugh with him. Let me know whether the Council think of coming up to Baltimore. If anything new occurs, let us have it.

I am, dear Major, your affectionate friend and servant,
CHARLES CARROLL.

To the Honourable Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

AMOS GARRETT TO BENJAMIN RUMSEY.

March 25, 1776.

SIR: I had a line from you about bayonets. I forged out by a servant I had (since runaway) about sixty, for one of the Militia Companies, and offered them at six shillings per piece. I delivered one as a sample. They are mostly unfinished; but I could get them done by another smith I have, if I could have a gauge given me as to the size of the barrel. They were originally intended to fit on guns of different bores; but if I had the size of the musket-barrels, they could be finished all but fitting them to the right barrels, which must be done by an artificer with the piece by him. If the Council of Safety should incline to take them, I will set about them, and it is likely I may make up one hundred or more, if I can, and deliver them to your order. If I had the guns I would gladly fit them; but it cannot be well done without.

I am, sir, your humble servant,
AMOS GARRETT.
To Benjamin Rumsey, Esq.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO STEPHEN WEST.

[No. 84.]

Annapolis, March 25, 1776.

SIR: We have been informed that you have a quantity of coarse blankets that are very suitable for the soldiery, who are in great want of that necessary article, and are afraid it will be some time before we shall be able to provide them, and that the soldiers in the mean time may suffer very much for want of them. Under these circumstances, and from the zeal you have manifested in the cause, we make no doubt but that you will readily spare all you possibly can, notwithstanding you may have laid them aside for the use of your own family.

You will please to write us on this subject by the first opportunity, and acquaint us what blankets you may think proper to supply the publick, and the price; for which we will send you an order on the Treasurer, and order them directly here. We are, &c.

To Mr. Stephen West.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GEORGE PLATER AND GENERAL DENT.

[No. 85.]

Annapolis, March 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Colonel Mercer has been with us this day, and is very desirous a time and place should be appointed for meeting to consult about setting up beacons on the river Potomack. We have agreed with him that Port-Tobacco should be the place, and Tuesday, the 2d of April, the time. You will be pleased to attend accordingly, agreeable to your former appointment.

We are, &amp;c.

To George Plater, Esq., and Brigadier-General Dent.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOHN HANSON.

[No. 86.]

Annapolis, March 25, 1776.

SIR: The bearer will deliver you the Association papers subscribed in your County, which we request you will return to us by some safe conveyance as soon as you can conveniently, as the Convention may possibly want to see them.

We shall be obliged to you for particular accounts of the expenses incurred by the Minute Companies in your County, as well as their wages, that we may transmit the money to you to discharge them. If an opportunity should offer, we request you will send us all the bayonets belonging to the Provincial muskets.

We are, &amp;c.

To John Hanson, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Middle District of Frederick County.

N. B. The times of the attendance of the men must be proved by the oath of some one at least of the commissioned officers, agreeable to the resolves of the last Convention, and we return the enclosed for that purpose.

COLONEL ST. CLAIR TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

March 25, 1776.

SIR: I observe that, in the vote of Congress for raising five Battalions in Pennsylvania, there is no provision made for Surgeons' Mates, Sergeant-Majors, or Quartermaster Sergeants. I beg leave to represent to you that each of these officers is very necessary to a battalion. Part of a battalion may frequently be detached to a distance, where it may be impossible for the Surgeon to attend them, without neglecting the rest of the regiment. And as to Mates being readily found in Canada, I do assure you it is scarcely possible to find a person that has any knowledge, either as Physician or Surgeon, in that country, some few excepted, who have left the Army, and settled there. The duty of the Adjutant would be insupportable without the assistance of a Sergeant-Major, and the Quartermaster-Sergeant is also very necessary, as not only the quarters or encampment of the corps falls under the Quartermasters' direction, but the receiving and issuing the provisions, and the care of all the regimental stores, which it is impossible one man can at all times execute; and these men ought to be acquainted with accounts.

I also beg leave to mention to you the necessity of providing tents for the troops in Canada. The season of the year is at hand when they must occupy other grounds than they have been confined to in the winter, or be exposed to have their posts insulted, and, perhaps, carried by a force much inferior to theirs, were they encamped in one body, or in such manner as to be capable of supporting each other. And tents will become still more necessary, if there should be a necessity to attack Quebeck in form, which may probably be the case.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

ARTHUR ST. CLAIR.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

ALLAN McDONALD TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read March 29, and referred to the Committee on Prisoners.]

Philadelphia, March 25, 1776.

SIR: It is now several weeks since the Scotch inhabitants in and about Johnstown, Tryon County, have been required by General Schuyler to deliver up their arms; and that each and all of them should parade in the above place, that he might take from this small body six prisoners of his own nomination. The request was accordingly complied with, and five other gentlemen with myself made prisoners of. As we are not conscious of having acted upon any principle that merits such severe proceedings from Congress, we cannot help being a good deal surprised at such treatment; but are willing to attribute this rather to malicious, ill-designing people, than to gentlemen of so much humanity and known character as the Congress consists of. The many difficulties we met with since our landing on this Continent, (which is but very lately,) burdened with women and children, we hope merit a share in their feeling; and that they would obtain the surest conviction, before we were removed from our families; as, by a separation of the kind, they are rendered destitute, and without access to either money or credit. This is the reason why you will observe, in the article of capitulation respecting the Scotch, that they made such a struggle for having their respective families provided for in their absence. The General declared he had no discretionary power to grant such, but that he would represent it, as he hoped with success, to Congress; and in this opinion two other gentlemen present supported him. The request is so just in itself that it is but what you daily grant to the meanest of your prisoners. As we cannot, we do not claim it by any agreement. Though, by a little attention to that part of the capitulation, you will observe that we were put in the hope and expectation of having them supported in their different situations.

As to ourselves, we are put into a tavern, with the proper allowance of bed and board. This is all that is necessary so far. But what becomes of the external part of the body? This requires its necessities, and without the decent part of such, a gentleman must be very intolerable to himself and others. I know I need not enter so minutely in representing those difficulties to Congress or you, as your established character and feelings will induce you to treat us as gentlemen and prisoners, removed from all means of relief for ourselves or families, but that of application to Congress. I arrived here last night in order to have the honour of laying those matters personally, or in writing, before you and them. Shall accordingly expect to be honoured with an answer.

I am, most respectfully, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

ALLAN McDONALD.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO OFFICER COMMANDING AT NEW-YORK.

Philadelphia, March 25, 1776.

SIR: Captain James Young, of this city, having, by letter, represented to Congress, that his son John Young, in January last, eloped from him and got on board the Phoenix man-of-war, at New-York, from whence he was proceeding to Boston, and on his passage was cast away on Long-Island, and that he is now fortunately a prisoner at New-York, and desiring that he may be permitted to be a prisoner on his parole at the estate of his late grandfather, (Doctor Greame;) in consequence of which, I have it in charge to direct that the said John Young be allowed to reside at the house of the late Doctor Greame. You will therefore please to order him to be delivered to his father, first taking his parole, which he must subscribe; and you will forward it to me.

Captain James Young is a gentleman exceedingly friendly to our cause; I therefore beg leave to recommend him to your notice.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Officer Commanding the Continental Troops at New-York.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, March 25, 1776.

SIR: I had the honour of receiving yesterday yours of the 19th, containing the agreeable information of the Ministerial Troops having abandoned Boston. The partial victory we have obtained over them in that quarter, I hope will turn out a happy presage of a more general one.

Whatever place may be the object of their destination, it must certainly give a sincere pleasure to every friend of this country to see the most diligent preparations everywhere making to receive them. What may be their views it is indeed impossible to tell with any degree of exactness. We have all the reason, however, from the rage of disappointment and revenge, to expect the worst. Nor have I any doubt that, as far as their power extends, they will inflict every species of calamity upon us. The same Providence that has baffled their attempt against the Province of Massachusetts-Bay will, I trust, defeat the deep-laid scheme they are now meditating against some other part of our country.

The intelligence that our Army had got possession of Boston, you will readily suppose gave me heartfelt pleasure. I beg, sir, you will be pleased to accept my warmest thanks for the attention you have shown to my property in that town. I have only to request that Captain Cazeneau will continue to look after and take care that it be no ways destroyed or damaged.

This success of our arms naturally calls upon me to congratulate you, sir, to whose wisdom and conduct it has been owing. Permit me to add, that if a constant discharge of the most important duties, and the fame attending thereon, can afford genuine satisfaction, the pleasure you feel must be the most rational and exalted.

I have it in charge from Congress, to direct that you send an account of the troops in your camp who are deficient in arms, to the several Assemblies or Conventions of the Colonies to which those men belong, and request them to send a sufficient number of arms for the men coming from the respective Colonies; and that if arms cannot be procured, that such as have not arms be dismissed the service.

The Congress being of opinion that the reduction of Quebeck and the general security of the Province of Canada, are objects of great concern, I am commanded to direct that you detach four battalions into Canada from the Army under your command, as soon as you shall be of opinion that the safety of New-York and the eastern service will permit.

Your several letters are at this time under the consideration of a Committee. As soon as any determination is made thereon, I will immediately forward it to you.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety for the Province of NEW-YORK.

I, John McDonald, Miner, who was appointed by your Honours, with the most punctual instructions relative to lead-mines, accordingly have proceeded, in compliance with the request contained in said instructions, with all convenient despatch, to the Little Nine Partners; and repaired myself, with all sincerity, in working and examining for lead and copper, in order to bring the true information of the state and quality of the same, which is at large reported as specified, in the following manner: Jonathan Landon, Esq., to whom I was recommended for directions, conducted me to a limestone hill, where, at random, took the dimensions from the northeast to the southwest, being one mile in length, included from both fallings, in the ground in each end of said hill. The breadth is half a mile, and about forty rods height. There I found said mines, the veins of ore in which appear inclining or lying west and east, in ledges of limestone, mixed with white flint. Some years ago a company of adventurers had sunk several pits, or shafts, in pursuit of lead and copper; and that amongst the trials are two pits, one of which is fifteen feet deep, the other is fifty feet deep; and in the bottom of said pits left a promising discovery of about seven inches diameter solid ore, and that of a continued vein. Unfortunately the company were under the necessity of giving up their proceedings on account of the under-water rising, anent which we are fully informed of all the particulars by Mr. Harris. The principal method of preventing the damage done by the water is, to drive a level from its advantageous situation to the discoveries made, which will clear away the water. The timber which supported the pits from the beginning of sinking, broke by the age and want of repairing, thereby is filled to the top with rubbish, &c. Mr. Harris undertook cheerfully to make discovery of lead; therefore the said Jonathan Landon, Esq., applied to one Mr. Fish (on whose property Mr. Harris has made a prosperous discovery of lead) for leave to open and search the ground; but he refused the freedom of breaking the ground, so that Mr. Harris's best discovery was not explored. I made trials in several places, and discovered a small quantity of lead ore in each vein. The bounds wherein the mines lie are extraordinarily well situated for pursuing the necessary trials according to minery. The above-mentioned length, breadth, and height, will be a sufficient declaration to any person that professes to have a particular skill and knowledge in conducting lead-mines regularly in all its branches. My sincere advice to your Honours is, to employ some hands, and provide them with tools, in order to clear and draw the rubbish, &c., out from the said two pits, and support them well with timber; and by accomplishing the clearings of rubbish from these shafts, will make your Honours to have the satisfaction to know the truth of Mr. Harris's description. If it appears to be depended on, the workmen must prepare to prosecute the discovery of the said lead-mines according to the directions of the inspector appointed; and if it be carried on properly, they will follow my aforesaid directions. I surveyed some mines near Martown, which is not worthy to report. I am fully informed by several, that there is a good mine explored in Rochester Patent, in Ulster County, which a company of adventurers wrought at about fifty years ago, and that they raised some hundred tons of lead ore. The full truth of which mine, Colonel Pawling, Chairman to the Committee Board of Marbletown, was to acquaint your Honours. The common report of the neighbouring inhabitants was declaring their seeing two feet diameter of solid ore, and great many trials made. Your Honours may or may not carry on these trials to execution. All that can be said is, that such promising discoveries for the publick good ought not to remain dead and useless in the bowels of the earth, without trials to be properly executed.

All which is humbly submitted, by your Honours' most obedient and humble servant,

JOHN McDONALD, Miner.

JOSIAH QUINCY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Braintree, March 25, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Your obliging letter of yesterday was handed to me this morning by General Ward's son. The fleet still continues in Nantasket-Road; and I cannot discern any diminution of their numbers. Five or six transports, and a man-of-war, arrived last Friday afternoon. As the man-of-war saluted the Admiral, I suppose they came from England.
